COUNCIL OF WOMEN BUSY

centrate on one particular branch, you must of necessity learn to do it better than when your energies are divided amongst many lines. But specialists incline often to narrowness. Housemaid's knee and writer's cramp often result from specialization, but as long as you don't get either of these complaints in your mind, it is all right."

The purpose, then, of the Local Council, and its outstanding benefit to the members is the broadening influence it exerts, in its co-ordination of the various branches of endeavor in which local women are active.

A brief resume of the rules and origin of the Council was given, from its formation, about 30 years ago, arising out of the desire of women who had a "conviction that something should be done, a faith that something would be done, and the courage of their conviction to say that it must be done and it shall be done."

In answer to the second question, "Why doesn't the Local Council take it up?" the speaker said: "Instead of asking this question of the President, ask it of yourselves," comparing the different affiliated societies to pickets of an army, sent out to reconnoitre and report as to the movements of the enemy. But the information sent in must be authentic, and not the "scare" variety.

Reports Read.

Mrs. C. E. Jamieson, corresponding secretary, reported a good year. Efforts had been made towards eliminating objectionable features in local moving picture theatres, and with regard to the curfew law, which had been taken up by the Chamber of Commerce, with no action recorded as yet. The society had been mainly instrumental in the agitation for the formation of a local branch of the Humane Society, which was now practically accomplished, and had sponsored, through Mrs. Robt. Harstone, the forwarding of a resolution to the Provincial Council recommending the banning of Arbuck'e films.

A Large Connection.

Twenty-nine societies are now in affiliation with the Council. The W.C.T.U. had withdrawn from membership during the year, and two new societies had been added—the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association and the Catholic Women's League. "We must remember," the report concluded, "that the work of the Council is not in specialization, but that great and lasting results can only be obtained by personal effort."

The treasurer's report, also read by Mrs. Jamieson, gave the balance at the beginning of the year as $114.56, with receipts at $64.59, making a total of $179.15, and expenditures of $125.08, leaving a balance on hand of $54.07.

Work of Various Committees.

Brief reports were given by the following convenors of committees: Immigration, Miss Charlotte Layton; Well Babies' Clinic, Dr. Birnie, who recorded the year just ended as a banner one for this institution, with a constantly-increasing attendance. Dr. Birnie paid a warm tribute to the work of local doctors in connection with the Clinic, and to the generosity of local societies, especially the different branches of the I. O. D. E. in the city, who contribute constantly to the upkeep of the work.

Mrs. W. R. Morris reported on Taxation; Miss H. Moffat on Household Economics and Miss Walton on Objectionable Literature and Movie Films. Although Miss Walton deprecated the work of her committee, a warm tribute to her endeavors was paid by the secretary and by Mrs. Mowat, who considered that already some of the objectionable element had been erased from city billboards. Miss Walton referred to the difficulties encountered, with regard to the different ideas of many women as to what was objectionable in the "movies." The co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce, which possessed a men's committee for this work, had been requested, but so far nothing had been done.

Mrs. Joseph Mills reported on Professions and Employments for Women, and also referred to her efforts to reduce the price of bread. She had been in touch with the Chamber of Commerce and the City Council with regard to this, but nothing had been done.

The Committee on Equal Moral Standard was reported by Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, who recorded the difficulties encountered in the carrying on of this work, and the need of a Police Woman to assist Mrs. Bunton in her endeavors.

Sundry Business.

Mrs. Mowat spoke of the Sunday opening at the Public Library, which will be continued through January, and requested co-operation on the part of the members in advertising this.

A hearty vote of thanks, proposed by Mrs. A. Stevenson, and seconded by Mrs. R. Harstone, was rendered Mrs. Mowat for her indefatigable efforts throughout the year to carry on the work of the Council to success.

Mrs. Morris, seconded by Mrs. Stevenson, proposed a message of condolence to Mrs. M. Blois for her recent bereavement.

Officers Elected.

The officers for the local Council of Women for 1922 are as follows: President, Mrs. A. Mowat. Vice-Presidents: Mesdames A. Stevenson, W. R. Morris, S. T. Medd, Joseph Mills, N. H. Sutton. Recording Secretary, Mrs. Joseph Wearing. Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. C. E. Jamieson. Treasurer, Mrs. N. D. Seaton. Committee—Citizenship, Miss A. Lancaster; Equal Moral Standard, Mrs. A. Stevenson; Household Economics, Miss Riley; Laws, Miss Moffat; Public Health, Dr. J. Birnie; Profession and Employments of Women, Mrs. Joseph Mills; Objectionable Literature and Movie Films, Miss Walton; Taxation, Mrs. W. R. Morris; Conservation and Natural Resources, Mrs. R. H. Parsons; Playgrounds, Mrs. A. Mowat; Education, Mrs. N. H. Sutton; Care of the Mentally Deficient, Mrs. E. V. Frederick.

At the conclusion of the business session, a pleasant half-hour was spent, in the enjoyment of tea and light refreshments.

Two past presidents of the Council, Mrs. Robt. Harstone and Mrs. F. C. Neal, poured tea, assisted by the sub-executive, with Mrs. Joseph Mills in charge. The tea-table was prettily decorated with spring-like hyacinths and narcissus.

THE VAUDEVILLE REVIEW REVEALED MUSICAL TALENTS

LOCAL AMATEURS GAVE ENJOYABLE CONCERT AT ST. ALPHONSUS LYCEUM.

The Vaudeville Review, a unique and very enjoyable musical entertainment offered at St. Alphonsus Lyceum last evening, under the auspices of the Holy Name Society, was a real treat. A varied program by artists in their several lines had been arranged by the committee in charge and every number was enthusiastically received by a moderately large but appreciative audience.

The opening number was a selection by the orchestra, which also played during the intermission, and proved to be a promising young musical organization, composed of Miss Mary Lonergan, pianiste, Messrs. V. McCabe and Jas. Bowen violins; J. A. MacPherson, Harold Snelgrove, saxaphone, and Ted McCarthy, drums, and Joseph Minicolo, cornet.

The Greene Musical Trio; Miss Mildred Greene at the piano, Baden Greene, violin, and Kenneth Greene, flute, rendered a very pretty, dreamy selection, with skilled perfection; two juniors, Messrs. Williard and Cullen, gave their musical comedy skit, including Hawaiian guitar and piano numbers, a couple of jokes and a vocal solo "When Frances Dances with Me", in Verne Willard's clear, high voice. These young men, who gave a splendid performance, were heartily encored.

Mr. J. Johns' recitation brought down the house; two humorous selections delivered in his own inimitable style, and a thrilling rendition of "Kissing Cup, or the Jockey's Story".

Vocal selections were much enjoyed. Mr. George Ball contributed two beautiful numbers, his high, resonant baritone and faultless enunciation receiving renewed applause, and Mr. Sam Whitehouse made a hit with his deep, rich voice, heard to great advantage in "Tommy Lad" and "The Rosary".

Miss Eileen McCabe sang "The Waters of Minnetonka", the rippling Indian love song beautifully rendered by her sweet, clear soprano, with a violin obligato by Mr. Vincent McCabe, and Mrs. J. Curran gave a vocal solo which was received with much applause, responded to by an encore number. Mrs. Curran is a newcomer in musical circles at the Holy Name Society, and her lovely, soft, vibrant voice was much appreciated.

Miss Ernestine McManus contributed two vocal numbers in her pretty, high clear tones, and Mr. Robert Leonard's fine, ringing baritone was heard in "Old Pal", rendered in fine style.

The Cassidy sisters from Toronto were a much appreciated section of the program in their costume dances of Scotch, Irish and Dutch origin delivered with their usual dainty effectiveness, and Earl Spellman gave a clever medley of native music on the Hawaiian guitar, an excellent performance from such a youthful musician.

Miss Kathleen Burke, a small lady with clever fingers and fine technical ability, rendered a difficult pianoforte selection with admrable tone, and a well-rounded musical programme was brought to a close by a selection, followed by an encore, from the Male Quartette, composed of Messrs. K. Picard, J. Minicolo, C. Legendre and J. Fitzpatrick. The four voices, which mark this promising organization were heard to great advantage in a "Bell" number and an attractive medley of old-time songs.

Accompanists for the evening were the Misses Margaret Doherty and Florence Giroux, Messrs. A. Weatherhead and Verne Willard.

The very effective stage draperies were kindly loaned by the Cressman Company, Limited, and Messrs. J. M. Greene Music Company loaned a beautiful piano. A committee headed by Mr. N. Tobin, to whose energy much of the success of the affair was due, was composed of Messrs. A. Doherty, W. Grisdale, J. W. Young, H. Donovan and E. Judge. Mr. Ed. Riley looked after the stage arrangements and Mr. Jack Primeau acted as chairman with his usual urbanity.

POPE DYING—NO HOPE ENTERTAINED

Marchiavara, a throat specialist, and Dr. Bignami.

The turn for the worse came in the early hours this morning. Pope Benedict sank rapidly, and, at his own request, the last Sacrament was administered while he was still conscious.

Pope Benedict, who was conscious and tranquil during the early morning, requested that the final sacrament be administered in the presence of the entire Papal family and court.

Honor the Almighty.

According to the Vatican ceremonial, the last Sacrament is to be administered only when the Supreme Pontiff is on the verge of losing consciousness, but in practice this rule has often been changed, as nearly every Pope has expressed the wish to receive the holy wafer when fully conscious of the solemnity and sanctity of the act. Pope Benedict especially has often told his relatives and private chaplains that he preferred to receive the last Communion while still strong enough consciously to do honor to the Almighty.

Bells Tolling.

As soon as the decision had been reached to administer the last Sacrament, an order was issued to all of the 400 churches of Rome. Almost simultaneously the bells of all these edifices began tolling to summon the people for the purpose of offering up prayers for the Pope. At the moment when the final Sacraments were administered, thousands of people in Rome were on their knees, either in one of the churches or private chapels.

The ceremony itself was simple and affecting. As soon as the Pope's private confessor had finished confessing him, the doors of the sick room were thrown open and the prelates and relatives assembled in the anti-chamber entrance.

At ten o'clock this morning the Pope received the entire Sacred College diplomatic corps for a dying visit.

The Pope then was still fully conscious. Owing to his weakened condition only a small portion of the holy wafer was placed on his tongue. While the ceremony lasted the few Cardinals gathered about the Pontiff's bed recited in subdued tones the Passion psalms.

The administration of the wafer over, the Grand Plenipotentiary of the Sacred College, approached the bed surrounded by his assistants and read to the Pontiff the profession of faith prescribed as formulated by the Vatican and the Trent Councils. After reading the profession of faith, Cardinal Giorgi gave to the Pontiff the absolution in Articuleo Mortis. The words of the formula were pronounced slowly as though to impress on everyone within hearing the sincerity of the occasion.

Government Notified.

At 11 o'clock this morning, when notice was sent to the Government that Pope Benedict's condition must be considered hopeless, his physicians announced that serious weakness of the heart had set in.

As soon as the Pope's Entourage condition was critical, Cardinal Gasparri was notified. The Cardinal hurried tearfully to the Pope's bedside. Pope Benedict was resting tranquilly when the Papal Secretary of State arrived and immediately requested that the Last Sacrament be administered. Monsignor Zampini, the Vatican Sacristan, adminstered the sacrament. His Holiness was conscious and calm throughout the ceremony.

Solemn Procession.

At the same time word was sent to St. Peter's where all of the Cardinals and Prelates had been in the meantime assembled. The Sacrist of the Vatican headed the procession, bearing the holy wafer and escorted by a detachment of Noble Guards. The Canons of St. Peter's came next and then the Cardinals, escorted by the Swiss Guards. Among the members of the Sacred College were nearly all of the so-called Curia Cardinals who are always at Rome.

After them came the Prelates, Monsignors, Chaplains, Apostolic Protonotaries, the Auditors of the Rota, Segantura and other Ecclesiastical Tribunals, the Pope's many private Chaplains residing at Rome, and practically all of the various ecclesiatics connected wit hthe Vatican administration. A large delegation of the old Roman nobility and a detachment of the Palestine Guards closed up the procession.

From St. Peter's Sacristy, where it was organized, the procession slowly wound its way up through the Sistine Chapel, chanting all the way the prescribed prayers and psalms. From the Court, where the procession paused for a moment to allow the more aged priests to catch up with the rest of the column, the procession resumed its march up to the Papal apartments.

On the threshold of the latter it was met by the Prefect of Ceremonies, together with the Assistant Master of Ceremonies. Only a few Cardinals entered the sick room. The remainder of the procession continued in the corridor, repeating and chanting the prayers of the dying.

Oxygen Administered.

LONDON, Jan. 20.— (Canadian Press.)—Oxygen has been administered to Pope Benedict XV, according to a Central News Agency despatch this afternoon. The Pope's respiration was troublesome.

Sinking Rapidly.

PARIS, Jan. 20. — (Canadian Press.)—The Papal Nunciature here received a telegram at five o'clock this evening, stating that the Pope was sinking rapidly.

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH ANNUAL MEETING--SUCCESSFUL YEAR

OVER TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS RAISED FOR ALL PURPOSES

The annual meeting of Murray Street Baptist Church was held on Wednesday evening in the School Room, and was largely attended. The pastor, Rev. J. R. Webb, occupied the chair, and was assisted by the efficient clerk, Mr. A. J. Raddon.

Reports of all departments were presented, and in every case a healthy and prosperous church life was apparent. The year just closed has been one of activity and accomplishment in work both at home and abroad.

This church has raised for all purposes in twelve months the magnificent sum of $20,272.

The clerk gave the numerical statistics, and spoke in his report on behalf of the church and the appreciation of the faithful and efficient services of the pastor.

The financial statement was presented by Mr. F. M. Somerville, that of the Building Treasury by Mr. Gordon S. Matthews, the Fellowship Fund by Dr. W. D. Scott, and the Forward Movement Fund by Mr. H. H. Graham.

Mr. R. S. Merrill, the financial secretary, made a very interesting statement concerning the regularity of the giving of the people, and paid a tribute to his assistants in the church office.

During the year the church debt has been reduced by another $2,500, which leaves the present mortgage on the beautiful edifice only $8,500.

The Women's Association and the Mission Circles have had a splendid year. These reports were presented by Miss Emma Aldridge and Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle. The women of Murray Street Church are a great company of workers, as these reports show.

The Sunday school report was presented by Mr. Roy White. The year has been marked by distinct advance. Miss Darling gave the facts concerning the Home Department and Mrs. Charles Westbrooke those of the Cradle Roll.

Dr. Morgan is chairman of the Music committee and his report, as the others, was a record of harmony and service.

The Trustees' report on the physical condition of the property indicated what had been done for the preservation of the buildings and the increase of the insurance on the buildings by $26,000 was noted.

Every treasurer showed his accounts paid and a balance on hand.

The report of the Finance committee given by Mr. A. S. Zavitz, the chairman, was the record of a year of fine work by men whose valuable time was given liberally for the Master's service and which brought forth fruit abundant.

There were a few changes made in the staff of officers. Mr. A. J. Madill and Mr. R. S. Merrill were elected deacons, the latter to complete the term of the late T. G. Gillespie.

The annual pastoral letter dealt with the past year's work and with hopes for the future. Eleven hundred and two pastoral visits had been made. Mr. Webb in his letter spoke most highly of the hearty co-operation of the Murray street congregation and the inspiration he received from the kindness of the people to their minister.

Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, with his usual well chosen phrases, thanked the volunteer choir and its leader and organist.

Murray street church has always had a good record in this city, and the year just closed has been one of the best in its seventy-five years of history.

DROP OF 25-40 P.C. IN COST OF CANDIES

Reduction General in the Dominion.

MONTREAL, Jan. 20.—Sister's beau will be delighted to hear, and baby will shed no tears over the news that a reduction of between 25 and 40 per cent. was made January 9 in the price of creams, hard-boiled candies, and chocolates, as well as biscuits.

The price cut is general throughout Canada, and is now announced by a representative of a large candy and biscuit manufacturing firm.

"The reduction," the candy man said, 'has been managed by the candy and biscuit manufacturers in spite of the fact that wages, cost of production and other expenses have not dropped from the high standard to which they jumped during the war.

"Chocolates, hard-boiled candies, such as "Bull's Eyes," and the other kiddies' favorites, with creams and biscuits, are now retailing at practically pre-war prices, which is a reduction in all cases from 1c to 6c per pound.

"Sodas, which a year ago were selling wholesale at 18c, are actually being sold in the retail stores for that price. This will demonstrate the extent of the reduction.

"The reduction is general throughout Canada, but was first effected in the Province of Quebec, which has always been in the forefront of price movements.

"The manufacturers felt that the time had come when, with the drop in the wages of the working classes, the price of the little delicacies such as we are privileged to make should also be dropped. We have done so in spite, as I have said, of no corresponding decrease in the cost of production, wages, material and other incidentals."

S. A. ADJUTANT ON VERGE OF DESPAIR

MRS. BRADBURY TOLD SHE COULDN'T LIVE MUCH LONGER —MAKES 38 POUND GAIN ON TANLAC.

"I only weighed a hundred and two pounds when I began taking Tanlac and my case had been pronounced hopeles, but now I actually weigh a hundred and forty pounds and am simply overjoyed to be in such fine health," said Mrs. Wm. Bradbury, 94 Merrick street, Hamilton, Ont., Mr. and Mr. Bradbury are both adjutants in the Salvation Army, and are widely known, as their work has carried them over all the eastern part of Canada.

"I can go down town now for the first time in over two years," said Mrs. Bradbury, "and I just can't tell how happy I am over what Tanlac has done for me. For nearly twenty years I have been in miserable health. I suffered from a complication of troubles and had lost about thirty pounds in weight. My nerves were a total wreck and I thought sometimes I would go distracted.

"I had no appetite, was subject to headaches that were almost blinding and hardly knew what sleep was. I tried medicines and treatments and spent all kinds of money, but was told that I could not live much longer. I underwent two different operations, but in spite of it all, there seemed to be no relief for me.

"But to-day my friends are actually astonished to see me looking so well and strong. Tanlac has been one of the greatest blessings of my life and I feel that I owe it an everlasting debt of gratitude. I can eat whatever I please, am not a bit nervous and sleep perfectly sound. I have gained thirty-eight pounds in weight and can now attend to my duties in the Salvation Army and do all my housework as well. I will praise Tanlac to my dying day."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

GRAND PRIZE OF ROME FRENCH AWARD

The grand prix de Rome is a prize awarded by the French government yearly for the best work in sculpture, painting, music and architecture. The competition is confined to French subjects over 15 and under 30 years of age, and consists of four years of art study, three of which are spent at the Villa Medicis at Rome, and the fourth in travelling through Italy and Greece, all expenses paid by the government. Candidates are selected by competitive examinations conducted by the Ecole des Beaux Arts, under the direction of the Minister of Fine Arts.

Those who pass the entrance examinations are placed "en loge" for a period of several weeks. This means that the student is locked up in a private studio, during which time he is not permitted to see anyone or even talk to the servant. The only recreation given is a half-hour walk daily in the grounds. During this time he is expected to prepare something finally to be passed upon by the authorities.

ROBBED, RAGGED, AND STARVING.

Such is the Fate of Kahan of Khiva.

MOSCOW, Jan. 20. — (Associated Press.)—Robbed, ragged, starving and forgotten in the big concentration camp of Pokrowsky, a few miles distant from this city, is the fate of the Hevdiar, Khan of Khiva, who, until a few months ago, was one of the richest of the Mohammedan rulers of Central Asia. As he is nearly 30 years old, he may die there.

Hevdiar, successor to Tamerlane the Great and Ghenghis Khan, who ruled from China to Germany, in the Middle Ages, is a pure-blooded Uzbek Turk to whom the Sultan of Turkey is a mere modern upstart. He has been brought to his present plight through the revolutions engineered by the Moscow Soviet in Russian Turkestan, aided by Enver Pasha, recently denounced by Mustapha Kemal Pasha as the arch-traitor of Turkey.

The treatment of the Khan of Khiva, not yet widely known by people of the Mohammedan world, is expected in time to widen the rift that has long threatened between the Russian Soviet and the Mohammedans of India and the old Turkish dominions. The Russians have long been hated for their conquest of Khiva, Bokhara, and the rest of the territory known for the past 60 years as Russian Turkestan.

Could Not Conquer

For two centuries the Russians tried in vain to conquer these war-like peoples and only in 1873 was Khiva humbled and its Khans made subject princes of Russia. But they retained their religious influence and their vast wealth and when they came to the Russian imperial court at Petrograd, their presents in gold and jewels surpassed easily the treasures of that gorgeous court.

For the past two years the Soviet influence has been slowly tightening its hold on old Russian Turkestan, under General Doutoff, aided by 100,000 German war prisoners. Firstk, a Soviet revolutionary committee was formed at Tashkent, after the approved Bolshevik manner, and later at Bokhara, and finally at Khiva. These committees in turn gave way to the formation of Soviet republics, as in Baku and Tiflis, at the point of the Red Army's bayonet.

The Emir of Bokhara was reduced to a figurehead, though still held as a possible religious successor to the Sultan of Turkey.

Hevdiar was unseated in his rule by the new order but when his advisers showed him how the palace walls were falling about him, he got together the choicest of his inherited jewels, his favorite wives, a large stock of his royall robes, together with 400 pounds, avoirdupois, of solid gold, ordered a train at Bokhara and started overland to reach it. At the depot in Bokhara, the Cheka, or secret police, swooped down upon him, robbed him of his wives, his jewels and gold, and made him prisoner, together with his 20-year-old son and heir apparent.

Both were put aboard the train, under heavy guard, and sent to Moscow, to the old convent prison of Porrowsky, where they have since been.

A Proud Bearing

With heavy white beard, the Khan maintains his proud bearing and stil looks the part of a great ruler in exile. Silent and uncomplaining, after the manner of his people, he sometimes attends the concerts organized for the prisoners.

In answer to his request to the Soviet Khiva Mission for food, he was sent exactly one pound of bread.

"It is the will of the Allah," said the Khan when the bread came. His son has fared somewhat better. He does odd jobs, such as scrubbing floors, for the more fortunate prisoners whose friends send them food, and this way keeps soul and body together.

SHOT IN THE BACK.

BELFAST, Jan. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Armed men took a farmer named Kelly from his home near Newtownards and shot him in the spine. He will probably die.

START TOMORROW AND KEEP IT UP EVERY MORNING

Get into the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath"? you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles according to hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limentone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood, causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

BARLEY BASIS OF STANDARD OF WEIGHT

Parliament, during the reign of Henry III, established standards of length and weight with actual grains of wheat and barley as a basis. Three barley corns were an inch, and from that was built up our table of inches, feet, ells (yards), perch and acre. One restriction was that the barley corn must be dry and taken from the middle of the ear and laid end to end.

Under this same system 30 grains of wheat made a pennyweight, and from that as a basis they worked out the Troy pound in which 12 ounces still make a pound. Originally the sizes of shoes were based upon grains of barley, and it is said that these are the same today as in the early days. There were 13 grains of barley to each size.

"Furlong" is an old English word meaning "furrow long," and is based upon the length of a furrow would be in a square 10-acre field.

"CASCARETS" 10c. IF SICK, BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

You're bilious! Your liver and bowels need a thorough cleansing with Cascarets, then the headache, dizziness, bad breath, and stomach misery will end. No griping. Nicest physic on earth for grown-ups and children. 10c a box. Taste like candy

WOMEN WERE LEGALLY WHIPPED.

The greater part of the medieval lady's time and intelligence was devoted to works of piety. Almsgiving was strongly encouraged by the church and diligently practiced by the faithful. There is a French legend which speaks of a certain Countess of Mans who cared for 30 fatherless children, and who at her death was seen surrounded by a cloud of light in which were small children.

Insincerity is said to have been a great fault of the medieval lady if the fierce attacks of satirists of the times are indicative of her character. An old bard sings, "There were three wily, three wily there were, a fox, a friar, and a woman." Woman was depicted as a chattering, fickle creature, and her grotesque headdress, particularly, called for the anger of moukish chroniclers.

In the Middle Ages a Scotch law held that a woman who committed trespass without the knowledge of her husband was liable to be chastised "like a child under age," and there was also a law that no man should beat his wife with a stick thicker than his little finger.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN.

Marriage in Holland is always a festive affair.

More than half of all the women who marry in the United States select mates before they are twenty-five years of age.

Mrs. Constance M. Coltman alternates with her husband in the pulpit of the Congregationalist Church at Maidvale, England.

An American woman journalist claims the distinction of being the first person to secure an interview from Li Hung Chang, the famous Chinese statesman.

Mme. Bryn, wife of the Minister from Norway, has lived in Washington longer than any other woman of the Diplomatic Corps with the exception of Mme. Jusserand, wife of the French Ambassador.

Miss Inez Hogland, a graduate of the New York Law School and a member of the New Jersey bar, has been appointed deputy law officer in the Jersey City Corporation Counsel's office, at a salary of $3,500 a year. She is the first woman to hold such a position.

Lindsay Declares The H. N. S. Team Cannot Win Next Two Games

Speaking of tonight's game the Lindsay Post says: The Midgets are working dilligently for their game in Friday and they will be at the top of their form when they go on the ice against the Holy Name team. Jerry Coughlin's youngsters have been withdrawn from the Peterboro City Leagues games for the week in order to keep them fresh for the the combat. They are beginning to realize that they have to win the game and it is in that spirit that they will play. Their exhibition against the Midgets here was not an inspiring one and the locals have no doubt as to the outcome of the game. Lindsay is out to win the district and more his year. They haven't lost a game and don't propose to. Prayers are being offered that the referee will be an impartial official with a mind of his own. No more Jack Carmichaels or Lou Marsh's.

It is expected that a record crowd will board the special on Friday evening. Apart form the fact that the Midgets want the support, all who go will see a real game worth while, and will also see the last of the Holy Name for this year. Uxbridge is laying deep, dark plans for the entertainment of the Petes next week and it is a cinch that the Coughlinites can't survive both games.

Aura Lee Senior Leaders Should Give Great Exhibition Here

When the P.A.A.A. management goes booking for senior games it aims at the best that can be had, and so the Aura Lee team, who have not lost a game in the Senior O.H.A. race this season, are booked to clash with the local crew at Brock Street Rink on Monday. The game last Monday gave the Peterborough fans an appetite for more first-class hockey, and their wants will probably be supplied by the Aura Lee outfit, which is steaming along in great style. With Conacker, Burch and Rodden, reinforced by such sterling performers as Hogarth, Stephenson, Rutherford and Meeking, the Petes will have a busy evening on their hands, but they are confident that after the experience they gained against the Dominion Bank they can give the Aura Lee team worthy opposition. John R. Roach will referee, and the game is billed for 8.30 o'clock.

OSHAWA WILL HOLD BONSPIEL ON FEBRUARY 14

OSHAWA, The Oshawa Curling Club will hold its annual bonspiel on February 14th, and invitations have been sent out to a number of outside clubs to participate in this annual event, which had to be dispensed with last year, owing to the lack of ice. Efforts are now being put forth to make the tournament this year the biggest success in the history of the local club. The McLaughlin trophy and the Eaton cup will be played for, while suitable prizes will be given.

Steve Vair Will Handle The Bell in Game Tonight

O. H. A. SENDS ONE OF ITS BEST REFEREES FOR IMPORTANT JUNIOR FIXTURE—MEMORABLE GAME IS PROMISED.

The O.H.A. is recognizing the importance of tonight's Junior O.H.A. game between the Lindsay Midgets and Holy Name Society Juniors by sending one of the best referees on its roster, Steve Vaid, of Toronto, to officiate. Vair handles a lot of the senior and intermediate games and is a competent official who should make the teams play hockey all the way.

The Lindsay gang are coming down with a train-load of supporters and the expectation of walloping Jerry Coughlin's kids at Brock Street Rink. The Peterborough fans cannot see it at all, and they are confident that the H.N.S. youngsters can hand Lindsay their first beating of the season. The ice will be keen and fast and everything points to one of the best junior games staged in Peterborough for years. There will be a huge crowd out, for a Lindsay-Peterborough struggle always provides excitement.

SPORT GOSSIP

Football stars would lack some of their individuality were their nicknames removed. Nicknames are ever interesting. University of California's squad has a varied assortment. Among them: Shingles, Weinie, Stew, Dutch, Brick, Crip, Mugs, Stupe, Fat, Swede, Brodie, Duke, Luke, Bunk.

What more could any campus ask for?

Walter Eckersall officiated in the Washington and Jefferson-University of California game on Jan. 2. A few days before the game "Eckie" met an old friend at Pasadena. They talked about the game and "Eckie's" visit.

"It was rather a surprise to me when they selected me to officiate as I never worked for either team," said Eckersall.

"That explains the selection," commented his friend.

"These various things develop day after day, as new situations present themselves. There is always something new to master, and the first time you meet the new situation you are liable to do it wrong. By doing it wrong you have a chance to find out the right way to do it and correct yourself. That's the reason football players are much better in their third year of football than in their second. During their first and second years they are learning through making mistakes.

"Everybody has to make so many mistakes. Everybody has to learn by experience. It is far better that the mistakes are made in practice than in actual play. In practice it means correction; in a game it may mean correction plus defeat.

"I often go poorly in practice and when I make a lot of mistakes I just figure that I'm lucky I made them in practice instead of a game. If I correct the mistakes in practice I won't make them in any game."

FINE TRIBUTE TO HOYT OF HUGMEN

From Billy Evans, Who Relates Incident of World's Series.

Those sitting in front never know what is going on back of the scenes.

That is true of a ball field as well as the theatre. While the crowd laughs and applauds, tragedy in its various forms is often being enacted behind the scenes. Humor also has its place.

In baseball the field is the stage the club-house is behind the scenes.

Waite Hoyt, star pitcher of the New York Americans, was the big figure in such a setting during the 1921 series with the Giants.

After the second game of the series, in which Hoyt had held the Giants in the hollow of his hand, I dropped around to the Yankee's club house to see how the team felt after twice defeating the Giants, each time over the shutout route.

Pitches Right On

I had another reason for doing so. During the last few innings of the game I noticed that Hoyt used a curve ball almost entirely.

It surprised me because his fast ball which he had been using was practically unhittable. He had used the curve more as a threat.

I also noticed that he occassionally would glance at the second finger on his pitching hand and shake his head.

When I dropped into the clubhouse I found Hoyt the center of a crowd of all the Yankees. The usual noise that goes with a world series victory was lacking.

Badly Injured Finger

I felt sure something was wrong I edged into the crowd and found Trainer Wood of the Yankees examing the second finger on Hoyt's pitching hand. There was a big blood blister on the end of the finger which extended well under the nail.

It didn't seem possible that a pitcher could work with such a finger on the throwing hand. The silence that pervaded the dressing room made it evident that all the Yankees entertained such an opinion.

After the finger had received medical attention, I got Hoyt off to the side and asked him what he thought of his chances to start another game.

"The finger is terribly sore," he sad. "It prevents me from getting a purchase on the ball and therefor takes the "zip" of my fast ball. However, I will be in there if I am only able to dish up slow ones."

Has Real Courage

The news aboutt he injured finger was kept a secret. Hoyt won his second game after a hard struggle. He was forced to resort to every bit of pitching strategy to possessed. His actions plainly showed the finger was giving him much pain.

Before his third start, his injured finger was world-wide gossip. He lost that game I to 0, because the usually reliable Peckinpaugh made an error at a critical stage.

Hoyt's performance in the world series, great that it was, was all the more remarkable when one considers the conditions under which he labored.

In the slang of the sporting world "sand" means courage.

That word was coined for Waite Hoyt.

A HAPPY ENDING

The Toronto Mail and Empire says of "The Unloved Wife"; "A play with a happy ending and not what might be expected from the title is "The Unloved Wife", the ingenious three-act drama now playing at the Grand Opera House. A most unusual situation is developed when a youth whose affections are wasted on a frivolous girl, to whom gold was the only attraction, becomes a disappointed cynic and determines to revenge himself by marrying the daughter of the woman who had jilted him."

From the London Advertiser: "Because the majority of people have little pecularities of viewpoint, and a greater number than one realizes have been embittered, souredor prejudiced by unpleasant past experiences, "The Unloved Wife" is a play that helps to prepare all who see it for the often difficult task of living with other people who have become morbid through brooding over wrongs of the past."

From the London Free Press: "Before "The Unloved Wife" concludes its engagements most of London will betalking about it, for it deals with problems of married life in a manner which, while frank and fearless, permits of nothing that will in the least offend. It is in its dialogue, in he expressions of its characters and the views they possess that its chief attraction is to be found."

THE REX STOCK COMPANY'S FOURTH FEATURE PLAY LIKE "THE BAT"

Our play for next week (says Rex) is something on the order for the great success of this season "The Bat" for the simple reason, that while it is a society comedy drama, it abounds with mystery till the end of the last act. Another thing I like about this play, while it is a feature play with us, it gives every character in the cast a really good chance to display their abilities. There are so many really good shows, that while they are good, only give the leading people a chance to do anything, the balance of the cast have to stand around them and support them. In this play—"Under Cover" H. B. Warners greatest success, every one has their chance to really do something. The comedy running throughout is good, the play has a certain "class" that is always acceptable, and as far as I can find out is the very first time this play has ever been produced here at any price. We are painting quite a bit too, Old Frank, the manager of our scenic department is going around with a grouch on, that always means that he is painting more than he thinks he should.

Be sure and bring your shock absorber with you, you'll need it when you hear strange whistles coming out of the dead of the night, or strange forms creeping over the balcony at 3 a.m. And then when you really find out that — Oh, Boy, it's some show.

AT THE ROYAL.

A Special Bill.

At to-morrow's matinee children will be admitted for 5 cents, which covers war tax.

Buck Jones in "To a Finish."

Another emphatic hit has been scored by Buck Jones, now at the Royal Theatre in the Fox production, "To a Finish." No star in photoplays of the cowboy order has been more consistently successful than Buck Jones; and no star in any line of screen work has advanced more rapidly—for his experience as a star covers a period not exceeding eighteen months.

In "To a Finish" Buck has an excellent story, cleverly developed; a story of the hills and plains in a day when an honest man had to depend more upon personal courage and physical strength than upon the ordinary agencies of law and order to maintain his rights and vindicate his integrity.

The stirring incidents which mark the progress of the tale are punctuated by the development of a love theme in which the party of the second part is a young girl who is as brave as she is pretty. She enters upon the scene early and figures in the action more or less constantly until the end—of which, naturally, she becomes an essential part. The entertainment is most satisfying.

Larry Semon in "The Suitor."

Larry Semon is in love with the daughter of a multi-millionaire, who objects to his suit. Larry is persistent and has very striking ways — sometimes it's the mirror, again it's the policeman; but more often he strikes the ground as he is ejected from the house of wealth. "The Suitor" is a dynamite comedy, wherein explosions of laughter follow the explosions of chemicals. Biscuits and cigars are used as bombs with results that tickle the funny bone and keep the audience in a constant uproar of laughter. The comedy is not without its share of thrills. Larry Semon is an acrobat of no mean ability and he performs some feats that are hair-raisers. On one occasion the comedian leaps from a motorcycle to an airplane. At another point in company with Lucille Carlisle he makes a double parachute leap. It is a mile-a-minute comedy with a laugh in every scene.

The above specially selected pictures also include other comedy and dramas. This is one of the finest programmes ever presented to any audience at any theatre at any price.

AT THE CAPITOL.

If you have even a wee bit of Scotch in your veins you will enjoy "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush" at the Capitol this week. Highland heather, Highland glens with the shaggy Scotch sheep and their shaggy shepherd, Highland burns "wimplin'" in the sunlight, Highland loves and tears are blended in a picture that thrills, amuses and attracts. Here are the "braw" pipers, a hundred strong, with their kilted magnificence, the dancers footing it, light and free, the Scooth shepherd with his fierce, indomitable pride, who turns his daughter from his door in wrath, and welcomes her back with "the fifty Scotch ways of saying 'darling'."

The love of the gentle Flora Campbell for her noble sweetheart, who marries her according to the Scotch rite, the whimsical romance of the high-born London lady for the lowly minister, presented with a wealth of beautiful background, held a filled house at the Capitol last evening in spellbound attention, with the stirring Scotch music rendered by the orchestra adding to the general atmosphere of reality. Perhaps that is the strongest feature of this lovely picture, the impression conveyed while watching it of real, human nature instead of acting.

Harold Lloyd has a screaming farce comedy in "Never Weaken," the comedian doing some wonderful stunts on a dizzy crane suspended in mid-air, and Reba and Tracey do some good high-class acrobatic work to a musical setting.

AT THE REGENT.

The salt air of the sea blows through the powerful story of "Dr. Jim," the Universal special attraction starring Frank Mayo, which opened last night at the Regent. From waxed floors that are trod by the "four hundred" to the slippery decks of a four-master in the waters of tropic seas, the action of a strong drama of marriage, written for Mr. Mayo by Stuart Paton, takes its course.

"Dr. Jim" is an eminent surgeon with a penchant for heeding the pleas of tiny sick children before thinking of his wife's claims upon him. When he neglects her, she becomes dissatisfied, and, in imagination, is forlorn and neglected.

A breakdown sends the doctor to the southern seas and his wife accompanies him. On the ship they have chartered is a crew of rough characters captained by a man without soul or mercy. This skipper is handsome enough, however, in the light of a yellow moon — and the husband's illness makes the emphasis of this romantic quality a simple matter.

Frank Mayo has done good work before, but this performance is above anything he has ever offered. Opposite him Claire Windsor is winsome and quite natural as the wife, while Herbert Heyes holds the attention in his scenes as the despicable skipper.

Stanhope Wheatcroft creates a laugh in a clever portrayal of a butterfly of the most insipid variety. Gordon Sackville, Robert Anderson and Oliver Cross each present commanding figures in lesser roles. William Worthington is responsible for the direction.

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

One feature about the Dominion Bank-Peterborough game the other night that the fans thoroughly appreciated was the absolute cleanness of the play, and they are looking forward to just another such game when Aura Lee comes here on Monday. Hockey of that brand is always sure of support, and as long as Walter Smaill is looking after the P.A.A.A. squad, there need be no worry about the Petes not playing the game—for the P.A.A.A. director is a faddist for clean hockey. "Play the puck and let the man alone" is his motto.

If Trenton wins their close struggle with Picton, they will be stacked up against the P.A.A.A. squad. Trenton and Peterborough have not met on the ice for many moons, but they have had some hard struggles in the days when Bud Kelly was one of the Peterborough stars. In Trenton at that time they used to have a red light over each goal, which the goal umpire operated by means of a button, flashing on the illumination to signal for a goal. One memorable night Mart Kenneally was acting as goal umpire for the Petes, and early in the game Kelly flashed down and shot in a beauty that bounced out of the net again. Kenneally couldn't find the button to turn on the light, and the Petes lost a well-earned goal.

Incidentally Trenton has furnished Peterborough with a number of hockey players. Louie Lamore, who is playing with the Holy Name team against Lindsay to-night, hails from the town at the mouth of the Trent. Art Reynolds, who used to be Frank Heffernan's mate on the Peterborough Grillers' defence a dozen years back, also came from Trenton, as did Art Armstrong, who played a season here.

Famous Sayings of Famous Men:

"Come on. Let's hear you."—Jake Solomon.

Russel Stephenson, who will likely be here with Aura Lee on Monday night, has been seen in action at Brock Street Rink before, and local fans know him as a smooth hockey player. With a forward line selected from Burch, Rodden, Stephenson, Rutherford, Meeking, and Muston, Aura Lee will present an attacking division against the P.A.A.A. gang that will keep the homesters busy all the way.

The Lindsay Post declares that the Holy Name team cannot possibly beat Lindsay here to-night and win in Uxbridge next Tuesday. Fortunately, however, the games are to be played on the ice and not in the columns of the Post. The Greenshirts can and will win both games if they will play clean hockey and keep out of the penalty box. It is up to the players themselves. The offenders must have learned by this time that games cannot be won by teams that are almost continuously a man or two short through penalties.

Some Pests We Meet:

The bug who always wants to know: "Are the boys really going out to win to-night?"

City League clubs and other local teams who want a game out of town are promised a good practice and a good time if they will tackle the Warsaw team, which has been re-organised. Norman Crowe, who played for the G.W.V.A. fotball team last season is manager of the Warsaw outlt, and is very anxious to secure some games. He declares that his team are all good sportsmen, and adds that no "shinney" will be played.

Hugh Fullerton, famous sporting writer, has outlined ten principles as constituting the code of the real sportsman. They are well worth preserving:

1—Thou shalt not quit.
2—Thou shalt not alibi.
3—Thou shalt not gloat over winning.
4—Thou shalt not be a rotten loser.
5—Thou shalt not take unfair advantage.
6—Thou shalt not ask odds thou art unwilling to give.
7—Thou shalt always be ready to give thine opponent the shade.
8—Thou shalt not under-estimate an opponent nor over-estimate thyself.
9—Remember that the game is the thing, and that he who thinketh otherwise is a mucker, and no true sportsman.
10—Honour the game thou playest, for he who playeth the game straight and hard wins even when he loses.

Hockey's Tragic Moments:

When one of the home team tries to carry the rubber out in front of his own nets.

It looks as if the famous Varsity team is paying the penalty for upholding Canada's hockey reputation in the United States. Their trip across the border was a great advertisement for Canadian hockey, but the Varsity team has gone completely stale as a result of their exertions, and their chances of winning the O.H.A. championship may be completely gone before they can hit their stride again.

Why does the City League have to send to Lindsay for a referee when there are five hundred of them in the bleachers at every City League double-header? is the query that a local fan is asking. We pass his question on to the League executive.

To-day's Happy Thought:

Cold spells may be hard on the fuel bill, but they make nice ice for hockey.

BASKETBALL PRACTICES

A snappy practise of both the Junior and the Intermediate Basketball teams representing Peterborough was held on Wednesday night The Intermediates did not have their regular team out so the Juniors took advantage of this to trim them by two baskets. Both teams are coming along in good shape and are rapidly rounding into condition. The date of the first O.B.A.A. fixture for the Intermediates has not been decided on until word is received from both Belleville and Cobourg, but the boys are holding practices regularly in anticipation of an early contest. Some of those out the other night were: Pogue, Jobbitt, Darling, Ecobichon, C. Elliott, McLean, Sage Hardill, Hopkins, A. Elliott and Burgoyne.

PERJURY SUGGESTED.

Witnesses in Toronto Murder Trial Warned by Judge.

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—Conflicting testimony yesterday by Norman Urquhart and John Collins in the trial of Mrs. Louisa Leslie of London, Ont., on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Eileen Lyons, Toronto, led to a warning by Justice Riddell that should charges of perjury be proven against them he would send them to penitentiary for life. Certain statements made by both men were shown by counsel for defence to be different to their evidence given at the preliminary hearing.

MANUFACTURERS COMMENT ON HALFORD APPOINTMENT

Says His Presence on Workmen's Compensation Board Lessens its Judicial Character.

HAMILTON, Jan. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—That the appointment of H. J. Halford, Laborite, to the Workmen's Compensation Board, had divested that body of its judicial character was the opinion expressed at the session of the Ontario division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association here yesterday. An urgent plea was made that legislation be enacted to compel workmen to contribute a proportionate share to its assesment fund.

The next game takes place on Tuesday night.

Railway Situation in Canada

"The simplicity of the railway situation as compared with the complicated state of railway affairs in United Sates", says D. B. Hanna President, Canadian National Railways, in the Annual Financial Survey of the Toronto Globe, "is something for which Canadians should be truly thankful. The Canadian public is being constantly harrassed by the spokesmen of certain groups that "something must be done." This was a proper attitude about five years ago, but a decision as to polihy was then reahhed and while it has taken longer than was expected to carry out the complete programme, yet action in line therewith has been taken step by step until now absoute absorption of the Grand Trunk Railway lies into the National System is all that remains to carry out the plan in its entirety. Those whose interests are opposed to the creation of a strong publicly owned competitor for the Canadian Pacific Railway have made and make each successive stage in the development of the plan a battleground for fighting the execution of the project.

Recent Success

Mr. Hannah continues:—"The recent success of the Canadian National Railways as at present constituted in more than meeting its operating expenses (including both Grand Trunk Pacific and the National Transcontinental as well as the Intercolonial) has, I believe, convinced a large section of the public of the benefits of consolidations already effected, and has created a large measure of support in favour of carrying out the plan to its completion.

"In bringing this about, (as our efforts would naturally be of no effect without public support) I am confident that the train services established and the character of the transportation both passenger freight and express that the public in receiving from the Canadian National Railways has been a factor of great weight. Modern transportation is so bound up with service that the making of net earnings at the sacrifice of service would be a short-sighted policy, and one which transportation system of such magnitude as the Canadian National Railways could not adopt with any prospects of great ultimate success in mind. It has therefore been a matter of great concern to the Directors and Management as to how far in the way of service they should go The problem is one that comes up in connection with every locality served in every province. That we have succeeded to the extent we have since the month of August is I believe, a fair indication that we have brought about a proper relationship between service and expenditure as affecting generally the communities we serve. While the Grand Trunk lines are being operated in co-ordination with the Canadian National Railways, yet the operating staffs are distinct and the very fact that the two properties are to be combined, has the effect of limiting the actions of the executive of both lines to temporary measures. This condition is however one that should terminate, and under unified management provided it is properly safeguarded from political interference the National Lines should quickly improve the performance.

Dual Service Ideal

"The reconstructed Canadian National Railways Board, or Commission, or whatever plan of control for the Government's lines is adopted, will operate just about 50% of the country's mileage while in control of the Canadian Pacific lines may worw with either or both of these great systems and the same is true of the extensions into Canada of United States Railroad Systems. Thus the entire situation will be a competitive one.

As to the practicability of a Government-owned system to complete with a further necessity for looking far afield for proof that it is quite feasible. The experience of the last three years in Canada where I maintain that the character of the service given by the Canadian National System compares favourably with that given by any privately owned system is in itself the best evidence as to what may be erpected in the future."

Situation In U.S.

"Now against this comparatively simple situation in Canada of dual service of the two great systems we find in United States a much more complex system. In a number of cases, five or six railways systems serve the same communities. Besides East and West lines there are North and South lines, diagonals and systems that very little competition, if any, exists. There are weak lines and strong lines and yet due to the dominence of certain financial goups of a number of systems exists, which is not always in the public interest. The United States railways have been over-regulated in some respects while able to get beyond control in others, that to bring order out of disorganized condition in which the lines were found to be when released from the monopolistic control enforced by the United States Government as a war measure in an undertaking of great complexity and it is of course a problem of exceptional magnitude.

Plans to Consolidate.

"There are plans being put forward under the provisions of the Transportations Act of 1920 for consolidation of the various linees into large competiting systems. Legislation to remove State control is being called for and the repeal of various State full crew laws and other restrictive measures is being urged. Considerable dissatisfaction exists becaue of the confliction between the functions of the United States Railroad Board to fix reasonable wages and of the Interstate Commerce Commission to establish reasonable rates, viz: those which will permit the railways, as called for in Transportation Act, 1920, to earn from 5½ to 6 per cent on their property investment.

No new railways are being built in the United States and small sections of line are being abandoned each year. It is recognized that the railways have little if any capacity for handling any volume of traffic beyond what might be regarded as the normal volume — the present movement being considerably below normal.

Canadians Thankful.

"Canadians therefore may be thankful that the railways in Canada are now in strong hands; that they have no problem of dealing with a great body of security holders that the railway services are free from the complexities of control by the various provinces, that at least 50 per cent of the railways are free from the domination of any finacial group, and as they confidently look forward to a period of expansion they may be extremely thankful that the railway systems of the country have a margin of carrying capacity well in advance of normal requirements.

"The management of the two Canadian railways will carefully watch the developments that take place in the United States. It is quite likely that the plan for unification of certain large terminals and their operation by a common agency such as the Harbour Commissioners, or somewhat similar body, might be adopted at certain points in Canada. It has advantages for the public in the way of stabilization of city development, removal of obstructions to city growth, release of valuable real estate and if the cities are prepared to cooperate so that some mutual advantages could be obtained the plan has much to commend it.

A Fair Trial.

"Under the circumstances existing my own opinion is that no better general plan could have been adopted for the solution of Canada's railway problem than the one which should shortly be brought to completion. The results of operation for November as in the previous three months show substantial net earnings—the November figure being $734,150. It is expected that December will likewise show a balance over the operating expenses.

"A fair trial of the complete plan," Mr. Hanna concludes, is all that the management can ask of the Canadian public. I am confident that the results will be creditable to Canada as a whole—this means 'National' in every sense of the word.

MADAME FAHEY'S PROGRAMME

The programme for the Winifred Lugrin-Fahey recital in George Street Church on Friday evening, January 27th, has been announced. It is varied, and every number will appeal to those who enjoy music at all. It is as follows:

"I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" (Handel).
"Should He Upbraid" (Bishop).
"Kerry Dance" (Mol'oy).
"Caller Herrin'" (Nairne).
Aria — "Pace, Pace" (Destino) (Verdi).
"The Lorelev" (Liszt).
"The First Primrose" (Grieg).
"With a Water Lily" (Grieg).
"O Thou Billowy Harvest Field" (Rachmaninoff).
"Homing" (Del Riego).
"Spring Song" (Macey).
"The Spring Song of the Robin Woman" (Cadman).
"At the Well" (Hageman).
God Save the King.

This is practically the same programme which she gave recently in Tacoma, Washington. On that occasion the "Tribune" commented as follows: "If the city owed the Orpheus Club no more than this, the introduction of such an artist and the remembrance of her thrilling voice in every note of every song she has given in her brilliant recitals, the debt would be great." It is not too much to say that the visit of such an artist to Peterborough is the outstanding event of many seasons.

WILL SELECT SITE FOR HATCHERY

DEFINITE ASSURANCE GIVEN THE LOCAL DEPUTATION BY HON. MR. MILLS.

Definite assurance that within 30 days Mr. McLeod and Deputy Minister Macdonald would visit Peterboro and consider fully the question of establishing a fish hatchery here, was given the local deputation that urged its establishment here upon Hon. H. Mills at Queen's Park yesterday.

Mayor W. H. Taylor, City Clerk S. R. Armstrong, J. J. Duffus, President of the Chamber of Commerce, L. Fraser, secretary of the Chamber and T. Tooms M.L.A., formed the Peterboro deputation, which waited on the Minister of Mines, under whose department the fish hatcheries are located. They impressed upon him the ideal location of Peterboro for a hatchery located as it was on one of the largest rivers in the province and close to a great many large inland bodies of water. They also dwelt upon the fact that Peterboro was the centre of one of the seven Normal Schools in the Province and the hatchery would serve a valuable use in the instruction of the students.

Hon. Mills regarded Peterboro very favourably, it was stated to-day and he practically assured them that if a suitable site ensuring a pure water supply of 200 to 300 gallons a minute with a head of 14 feet could be selected. He advised the deputation to prepare a specific proposition for Mr. McLeod, the department's expert and Mr. Macdonald when they came down to look over the sites as he said they would within 30 days.

Two of these hatcheries are established in Eastern Ontario, Lenora, Prince Edward County having been definitely selected as the site of one.

H. G. Finlayson, trustee of Thornton, Davidson and Company, asked to testify on how much money Cameron transferred from the firm's account to his own, said that the total amount withdrawn by Cameron was $577,283.83.

Among the checks produced were several made payable to Mrs. Cameron and one for $2,000 telegraphed to H. Steer of Edmonton, and which Mr. Finlayson said was a Christmas present.

PUT PROBLEM UP TO CITY

PLAYGROUNDS ASSOCIATION BELIEVE CITY SHOULD TAKE A MATERIAL SHARE IN WORK OF SUPERVISED PLAYGROUNDS.

THE ANNUAL MEETING

A general conviction that the city should guarantee expenditures for the Peterboro Playgrounds Association was prevalent at the annual meeting of the organization held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, who was in the chair said she for one did not care to go on with the work unless the city would meet the expenditures that last year nearly had to be "put up" from their own purses. The attendance at the meeting was small.

A delegation consisting of Mrs. A. Stevenson and Mrs. W. R. Morris will wait on Mr. J. J. Turner and ask him to accept the presidency. Mrs. Arthur Stevenson was elected first vice-president, Mrs. A Mowat, second vice president; Mr. F. C. Neal, third vict-president; Miss Florence Hamilton, secretary.

Balance on Hand

Mr. E. G. H. Vanstone submitted the treasurer's report showing a balance on hand of $40.24. After serving as treasurer for five years, Mr. Vanstone resigned, owing to the pressure of other duties. He commended the work of the Playground Association highly. His successor was not appointed.

Mrs. W. R. Morris reported for the supervision committee on the summer's activites. Three men supervisors and four ladies were employed and the attendance was good considering the hot weather. Mrs. Stevenson reported for the Equipment Committee, telling in detail what had been secured and the new equipment that is ready for this year. She said the playgrounds were well equipped now.

Committes were appointed as follows:

Appointment—Mrs. E. V. Frederick, Mrs. W. R. Morris, Walter Smaill.

Equipment—J. W. Worth, Mrs. (Dr.) Neal, Mrs. Robert Harstone, Mrs. T. Barrie.

The Supervision Committee to consist of members of both committees with power to appoint their own convenor.

The Examiner is running an estimating contest as usual and the first prize in this contest will be $10.00. Arrange to pay your subscription accounts or other accounts on this day and receive estimating blanks.

A CHANGE NECESSARY

Gospel Hall being too small to accomodate the crowd for Mr. Ainslie's farewell address, it has been decided to unite both meetings in one at the Regent Theatre, Sunday night, commencing at 8 o'clock. BANTAMWEIGHT PUGILIST WILL FIGURE IN BREACH OF PROMISE ACTION—MADE MANY PROMISES

DETROIT, Jan. 21.—The friendship of Audrey Littell, 22 years old, 1035 Beech street, and Carl Tremaine, bantamweight pugilist, formerly of this city, began years ago, when the two attended the Wilkins School together, and it has ended, according to Miss Littell, with a preach of promise suit asking $40,000. The boxer was married this winter to a Cleveland girl.

The suit came to light to-day when a capias was issued by Judge Harry J. Dingeman in connection with the suit on the chance that Tremaine would proceed to Windsor by the way of Detroit for the fight Wednesday night between himself and Jabez White. Tremaine was given the decision over White in the bout, and is expected to be matched with Johnny Buff, bantamweight champion, as the result.

"I am heartbroken, but the reason for this suit is that I actually need the money to support these babies," the woman declared, while surrounded by her three children of which, she said Tremaine is the father. There is Katharine, 4 years old; Carl, 2 years old, named after his father, the woman said, and Baby Jean.

Tells of Promises

"I was only 14 years old when I first met Carl. When he first told me he loved me, I was just 16 years old and he was 17. I was in love with him; we were married under the common law then, and he promised we would be married under the civil law later; I told my mother this then and believed him."

She said Katharine was born April 24, 1918.

"I begged him to grant me a civil marriage then, bue he said I was too young and that he would be married when he was 21 years old. Even after that I believed in him. He told my people he would marry me, and introduced me to his friends as his wife. Then Carl was born in 1920. He was named after his father and Carl seemed fond of the boy. He was here with me and my mother frequently, and although he did not see little Jean until she was two months old, there was never any question between us about her."

Then the mother told of court action taken last year to force Tremaine to pay for he children's keep. He was ordered at the time to pay $15 a week. She said he had failed to pay the money since his marriage and that she was not able to work because of her health, and the fact that her three children needed her.

Tremaine denies the paternity of the last child, according to court records.

Mother Blames Success

"It is a terrible thing to bring the children before the public in this fashion," the mother said, "but they must be cared for. For the last two months I have been forced to borrow money from my mother, who has no more money. I could not believe at first that Car

CITY LOST OUT IN COAL DEALS

CITY SOLICITOR STILL TRYING TO COLLECT $600 FROM SOPHIA KOHEN—CHILLY DAYS OF 1918

There is a possibility the $600 that Sophia Kohen, of Scranton, Pennsylvania, is alleged to owe the city may be collected. To a large number of people this cursory remark does not convey much of an impression, but to members of the Council in 1918 or 1919 it will bring to mind the clever genius that indebted the city for $1,500 on coal deals, $1,000 of which was finally collected through the courts.

Sophia Kohen, the coal queen, juggled the coal and bills of lading of half a dozen municipalities in those chilly days when coal was being measured out in 50-pound lots, and it had to go into the coal business. To this clever business woman the shivering councils were easy marks, and even the C.P.R. suffered losses, which City Solicitor C. R. Widdifield says they have never recovered so far as he is aware. Belleville and other places were in the same boat as Peterborough. Fifteen hundred dollars worth of coal ordered and paid for by this city was never received.

The Judgment.

In the fall of 1919, Judge E. C. S. Huycke, of the County Court, awarded the city's claim of $1,500 and costs of $100 against her in full, but by that time her golden harvest was gone. Her solicitors paid $500 here and in Scranton the City Solicitor collected another $500. She had no goods or assets in Canada, but a sheriff's execution was issued in Toronto, and, in the opinion of the City Solicitor, it is this execution that is worrying the lady dealer now. She probably wants to begin business in Canada again, and she cannot while her goods are in danger of seizure. It is this initiating feature, Mr. Widdifield believes, that caused her to reply to a curt letter sent her in Scranton, where she is again located after some absence, that she was ready to have the claims arbitrated. Her recognition of the claim at all is considered a very satisfactory sign. To this letter the City Solicitor re-affirmed the city's position, declaring there was no need for any arbitration — the judge's award of $1,600 had been met by only $1,000. However, he said, the city was prepared to have the arbitration proceedings if she would be bound to pay the costs and before the arbitration opened pay in, pending a decision, the amount of the claim. A reply to this letter is awaited.

Peterborough may soon be able to give the coal queen a full receipt, and the last chapter in an episode in municipal affairs that grew out of the fuel scarcity attendant to the war, written off.

Re Finances.

At a previous meeting, each society represented had been asked to give the sum of ten dollars towards the upkeep of the Bureau, this action, however, not being necessary in affiliating. Representatives from the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association, from the Ladies' Auxiliary to the G.W.V.A., from Trinity Methodist church and from the Well Babies' Clinic, promised this sum or half of it; representatives from the Prince of Wales Home and School Association, from the King Edward Home and School Association, from George Street Methodist church and from Knox Presbyterian church pro-

BRIEFS FROM WIRES

TORONTO, Jan. 21. — Mike Miller was sentenced by Mr. Justice Riddell in the Assizes here to-day to life imprisonment for attempting to murder his wife. The attack on Mrs. Miller occurred a few weeks ago, the victim being injured by knife cuts, although she has considerably recovered and was able to give evidence at the trial. HOLDING CONFERENCE.

PARIS, Jan. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Sons and daughters of Ireland and their descendants from all corners of the globe began arriving in the city to-day to take part in a conference of tht Irish race. Delegates are expected from fifteen countries. The Lord Mayor of Dublin arrived this morning, and De Valera is expected early next week.

Politics and religion are barred from discussion, say organizers, the objects being to promote economic interests of the Irish Free State and interest in Irish art throughout the world. It is in no way connected with the Sinn Fein, and is purely educational in character.

The convention marks the resumption of an event which was an annual feature of Irish life until the thirteenth century.

A HISTORIC HOUSE.

DUBLIN, Jan. 21. — (Canadian Press). — The old Irish House of Parliament on College Green will once again ring with Irish oratory. Now occupied by the Bank of Ireland, it is to become the official home of the Legislature of the Irish Free State.

Thus is the prediction of the old Irish ballad fulfilled in College Green that there will yet be seen an Irish Parliament, to make the laws of our own just cause, and with them be content.

Michael Collins and William Cosgrave visited the historic building Wednesday, and it is said they made arrangements to take it over.

MOTHER SUFFOCATED.

OTTAWA, Jan. 21. — (Canadian Press).—In the act of trying to save her young children from a blaze in her home at 130 George Street today, Mrs. Charles Karysse was overcome by smoke and suffocated before the firemen could reach her.

Bang! Nerve-Shattered Wall Street in a Panic

NEW YORK, January 21. — Wall Street's poor, lacerated nerves were rasped again yesterday when a manhole cover blew up in Broadway, at Rector Street, just a hoot and a holler from Broad and Wall Streets, where the great bomb disaster occurred.

One man was injured severely and another was badly scratched. Police reserves were rushed pell-mell to the scene, and fire apparatus screamed through the streets, closely pursued by ambulances from Volunteer Hospital and Broad Street Hospital, which institutions cared for many of the wounded persons when the great bomb went off.

The streets were filled with the noon-hour lunching crowd returning from their soda-fountain repast. Men hurled themselves flat in the mud of the streets instinctively as the explosion roared through the valleys of high buildings. Missiles whistled through the air with the same unfriendly note that characterised the flight of the sash-weight slugs in the fall of 1920. There were the fragments of the manhole cover. They fell harmlessly, however, and were collected by the firemen.

Wall Street's nerves haven't been what they were since the great disaster. Since then, periodic bomb threats and warnings have kept the memory of that scene too vivid for comfort in the minds of thousands of office workers and curb brokers.

DIED TO-DAY

POPE BENEDICT
Death came late this afternoon, aged 67 years.

MARKET WAS HEAVY TODAY

LOTS OF SUPPLIES OFFERED—EGGS LOWER THIS WEEK—YOUNG CHICKENS ARE GETTING SCARCE.

Snow-filled roads did not deter the farmers from attending market this morning. The open market and basket section had all the vendors they could contain. A policeman delivered order out of chaos on the square but upstairs the crowd were lining up around the stove early to deceive the farmer, wives who pay for heat, into thinking the clerk was prevaricating when he said there was a stove in the building. By 11 oclock it was completely hid.

Steadier prices in butter and eggs featured the market. Eggs were 55 and a good many were sold at 50. Butter was steady at 40 cents. More old hens than pullets were offered for the very good reason that the latter are beginning to lay. Per pound hens were 25 and chickens 35 cents. A few ducks sold at 35 a pound and at least two geese went into somebody's basket. One big fellow was $3.35 and the mate $3.00.

Lots of Wood

A police constable was busy all morning regulating traffic on the square. No less than 25 loads of wood were on as well as the regular trio of auctioneers with their garulous following. Confusion reigned supreme and loss of life seemed imminent until the majesty of the law arrived and made the wood loads line up in order and went so far as to move some of them to the practically uninhabited south area.

If a blind man was looking for a quarter of beef he could easily have groped around and got one. Beef was eight and ten cents some eight and twelve and some ten and twelve a pound fore and hind quarters. Pork also very plentiful, was sixteen and eighteen. Mutton was hard to find and sold at 25 and spring lamb at 30. "$1.60 a bag if you take one bag or $1.50 if you take two", said one farmer in a stereotyped voice quoting potatoes. Carrots were 30 cents a peck and onions up to $1.00.

No two farmers were asking exactly the same for wood. A general price was struck however and mixed wood sold from $8 to $10 a load. In the $10 loads there was quite a lot of maple but real genuine maple in blocks was $13. A great deal of birch is in the hybrid collections.

The Whole Catholic World Mourns The Death of His Holiness Pope Benedict XV

DISTINGUISHED PATIENT MADE A BRAVE EFFORT TO RESIST THE RAPID SPREAD OF THE PNEUMONIA—INFECTION EXTENDED INTO BOTH LUNGS—THRONGS GATHER OUTSIDE THE VATICAN WITH HEADS BOWED IN PRAYER.

CARDINAL BOURNE OFFICIALLY NOTIFIED

London, Jan. 21.—Late this afternoon, Cardinal Bourne was officially notified by telegraph from Rome that Pope Benedict was dead.

(BY HENRY WOOD)

ROME, January 21 (United Press). — "The end is imminent," Cardinal Gasparri, emerging from the bedchamber where the Pope Benedict lay dying, declared this afternoon. Cardinal Gasparri was weeping. He announced that the Pope was delirious, and that His Holiness insisted upon resuming his work.

At 10 o'clock this forenoon it was announced from the Vatican that all hopes for Pope Benedict's recovery, based upon his sleep, and taking some little nourishment this morning, had been abandoned.

Pope Benedict was sleeping quietly this morning when his physicians visited him at 9 o'clock.

A statement that his death was only a matter of a few minutes, which had been issued earlier, was immediately withdrawn.

It was declared by the Papal physicians that His Holiness might linger for some time, as was the case with Pope Leo.

Praying throngs outside the Vatican, and cardinals and attendants crowding the ante-chambers this morning had been plunged into deepest gloom by a statement from Prof. Marchiafava that Pope Benedict's death was a question of minutes.

The physicians who were in constant attendance upon the Pope throughout Friday, and who retired early to-day only at His Holiness' request, visited the Papal chamber at 7 o'clock this morning.

An official bulletin which was issued by them afterwards read:

"His Holiness' condition became worse during the night. The pneumonia has spread. The temperature was 88.4 (Centigrade), the pulse 120, and the respiration 60."

At 8 o'clock word came to the gathering throngs outside the Vatican that Pope Benedict could live only for a brief while, the death agony being begun. His Holiness, having received communion and extreme unction in the early hours to-day, was sinking rapidly.

The serenity of Pope Benedict gave way this morning, and His Holiness, unable to recognise even his physicians, was slightly delirious. He murmured unintelligible phrases.

"Th catastrophe is now only a question of minutes," a bulletin issued earlier by Prof. Marchiafava had said. This was the statement that was withdrawn.

During the night (Friday) and until an early hour this morning, three physicians were constantly at the Pope's bedside. Oxygen, which had been administered yesterday, again was given His Holiness at 10 o'clock last night.

Towards three o'clock this morning Pope Benedict insisted that Dr. Battistini himself retire for a short rest, which the Professor reluctantly did. Professor Marchiafava had retired somewhat earlier, and was not recalled during the night.

After leaving the Papal chamber, Prof. Battistini stated he had left Pope Benedict with the pneumonia and bronchial catarrh more accentuated. His Holiness was having great difficulty in breathing at that hour, and was consequently in considerable distress. Several centres of infection from the catarrh, Dr. Battistini said, had developed in both lungs. In view of this condition, the doctors had decided to remain throughout the night, but Pope Benedict had insisted they retire for a while.

Oxygen and camphorated oil had been used, Dr. Battistini said.

At 2.20 a.m. today, anouncement was made by Dr. Battistini that the Pope had entered practically the pre-agonic stage, and that he continually murmured incomprehensible words.

At five o'clock Mass was said in the Pope's private chapel by Cardinal Giorgi, who had spent the night in a room near the Papal chamber.

At 5.30 a.m. Cardinal Gasparri, Papal secretary of state, said Mass.

About 7 o'clock the Pope's condition took a serious turn for the worse, and bulletins which depressed the waiting attendants and the throngs outside were issued. It was believed at the time that His Holiness could not live more than a few minutes.

SANK INTO PEACEFUL SLEEP

A little later, while his physicians, who had almost given up hope, had retired from the Papal bed chamber, the Pope sank into a peaceful sleep. When the doctors returned at 9 o'clock they found Pope Benedict's condition so greatly improved that they immediately withdrew statements they had just issued.

"Pope Benedict XV might now continue alive for some time," Dr. Marchiafava said at 9.30 to-day.

Pope Benedict, whose slight attack of bronchial catarrh, acquired while conducting an open air mass meeting last Sunday, spread to his heart and lungs and developed into pneumonia, was not expected to live throughout last night.

The Pope's nephew, Marquis Della Chiesa, came to the bedside, and was

The "Boneka" Adult Bible Class of the Methodist Sunday School, of which Miss P. Byam is the teacher, and Mrs. J. L. Byam, President, are having a social evening in the church parlors on Friday at 8 p.m. Former members of the class, and the husbands of the present members, are included amongst the guests, and an enjoyable evening is assured.

The Junior League held their regular meeting in the Waverley parlor on Friday evening at 7.15. The President, Jean Burnham, occupied the chair. A new secretary being necessary through the removal of Kathleen Freelove, on motion, Mabel Lord was appointed to that office. Readings were given by Marjorie Sayles and Vera Weeks, while Gladys Tucker played a piano solo. The Superintendent gave a Bible talk on "The Story of the Baby Moses."

A vote of thanks to Mrs. A. J. Brown for her kind donation to the funds of the Junior Society was passed unanimously. The meeting closed with the benediction.

COULDN'T DO HOUSEWORK HEART WAS SO BAD

Many women get weak and run down and unable to look after their household duties owing to the heart action becoming impaired or the nervous system unstrung.

Nature intended women to be strong, healthy and happy instead of sick and wretched. But how can a woman be strong and healthy when day in and day out she has to go through the same routine of work sweeping, dusting, cooking, washing, etc. Is it any wonder that the heart becomes effected and nervous, has hot flushes, faint and dizzy spells, smothering and sinking spells and can't sleep at night are the best remedy to tone up the system and strengthen the weakened organs.

Mrs. Daniel Bezanson, Loganville, N.S., writes:—"As I was troubled with a weak heart for nearly two years I am writing to tell you what your great remedy, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, has done for me.

"My heart was so bad at night I could not sleep, I would take smothering spells, and was so weak I could not do my housework. I tried two doctors, but no results. A friend advised me to try your pills. I used six boxes and am completely relieved. I think they are the best remedy for heart trouble there is."

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND

BY "SAPPER" (CYRIL McNEILE)

The light flashed out, darting round the room. Ping! Something hit the sleeve of his pyjamas, but still he could see nothing. The bed, with the clothes thrown back; the washstand; the chair with his trousers and shirt —everything was as it had been when he turned in. And then he heard a second sound—distinct and clear. It came from high up, near the ceiling, and the beam caught the big cupboard and travelled up. It reached the top, and rested there, fixed and steady. Framed in the middle of it, peering over the edge, was a little hairless, brown face, holding what looked like a tube in its mouth. Hugh had one glimpse of a dark, skinny hand putting something in the tube, and then he switched off the torch and ducked, just as another fly pinged over his head and hit the wall behind.

One thing, at anyrate, was certain: the other occupant of the room was human, and with that realisation all his nerve returned. There would be time enough later on to find out how he got there, and what those strange pinging hoises had been caused by. Just at that moment only one thing was on the programme; and without a sound he crept round the bed towards the cupboard, to put that one thing into effect in his usual direct manner.

Twice did he hear the little whistling hiss from above, but nothing sang past his head. Evidently the man had lost him, and was probably still aiming at the door. And then, with hands that barely touched it, he felt the outlines of the cupboard.

It was standing an inch or two from the wall, and he slipped his fingers behind the back on one side. He listened for a moment, but no movement came from above; then, half facing the wall, he put one leg against it. There was one quick, tremendous heave: a crash which sounded deafening: then silence. And once again he switched on his torch.

Lying on the floor by the window was one of the smallest men he had ever seen. He was a native of sorts, and Hugh turned him over with his foot. He was quite unconscious, and the bump on his head, where it had hit the floor, was rapidly swelling to the size of a large orange. In his hand he still clutched the little tube and Hugh gingerly removed it. Placed in position at one end was a long splinter of wood, with a sharpened point: and by the light of his torch Hugh saw that it was faintly discoloured with some brown stain.

He was still examining it with interest, when a thunderous knock came on the door. He strolled over and switched on the electric light: then he opened the door.

An excited night-porter rushed in, followed by two or three other people in varying stages of undress, and stopped in amazement at the scene. The heavy cupboard, with a great crack across the back, lay face downwards on the floor; the native still lay curled up and motionless.

"One of the hotel pets?" queried Hugh pleasantly, lighting a cigarette. "If it's all the same to you, I wish you'd remove him. He was—ah—finding it uncomfortable on the top of the cupboard.

It appeared that the night-porter could speak English; it also appeared that the lady occupying the room below had rushed forth demanding to be led to the basement, under the misapprehension that war had again been declared and the Germans were bombing Paris. It still further appeared that there was something most irregular about the whole proceeding —the best people at the Ritz did not do these things. And then, to crown everything, while the uproar was at its height, the native on the floor, opening one beady and somewhat dazed eye, realised that things looked unhealthy. Unnoticed, he lay "doggo" for a while; then, like a rabbit which has almost been trodden on, he dodged between the legs of the men in the room, and vanished through the open door. Taken by surprise, for a moment no one moved; then, simultaneously, they dashed into the passage. It was empty, save for one scandalised old gentleman in a nightcap, who was peering out of a room opposite angrily demanding the cause of the hideous din.

BLAMES UNITED STATES.

BERLIN, Jan. 21. — (Canadian Press.)—The United States, "in her delirium of power, has failed to make use of her opportunities to bring order into the world—an omission which history will write as the cause for future wars," says an editorial in Die Zeit, concerning the Washington Conference.

"America's duty, after she entered the war and assured victory to the Entente, was to use all her influence to shape the purpose of the war and the peace which followed," continues the editorial, "so that the new conditions would assure the harmonious co-operation of the world: This she should do now."

The newspaper believes that an America, weighing its judgments and being ready to enforce them by arms, is the world's sole salvation now.

Miss Westlake gave a short sketch of Miss Havergal's life, which was interspersed with a duet by Mr. P. C. Brown and Rev. J. E. Beckel, entitled "Who is on the Lord's Side?" one of Miss Havergal's hymns; also a solo by Mrs. Card, "I am Trusting Thee, Lord Jesus," another of these beautiful hymns. The hymns used all through the programme were composed by Miss Havergal. After this Rev. Mr. Beckel took charge of the social side of the programme. Question." Mr. P. C. Brown chose "Christopher Columbus" as his subject, while Bertrand Monk talked Conservative. Mr. P. C. Brown won in this contest. Next was a spelling match with Miss Dewell and Miss Westlake as captains. Miss Westlake's side won; Mr. Donald Lowe spelling the rest down.

SHAVING BRUSH KILLS WIFE

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—A woman's death from anthrax, in Brooklyn, was traced yesterday to a shaving brush which she used to lather her husband's neck.

The victim was Mrs. Reginald Meland, 22, of 566 Fifty Second St., Brooklyn. She died in the Kingston Avenue Hospital after a sudden seizure with the mysterious ailment. Dr. William Jacobson of the Health Department made an investigation.

It shows one of the most peculiar cases in medical annals. Singularly enough, the husband was not affected. A tiny pimple on Mrs. Meland's left cheek had become infected on Christmas Say, when she aided her husband to shave, the physician found.

He said many of his books had been dug up or found and later traded in by the Eskimos. The man who had recovered the notebook was named Whinet Much. Other evidence of this kind on his North Pole trip will be found from time to time, he added, and said all of it would vindicate him and sustain his claim of the Pole discovery.

CONFERENCE OF FARMERS IN CALGARY

ANOTHER SESSION WILL BE HELD TODAY—FARMERS WANT BETTER MARKETS—ALBERTA TELEPHONE RATES.

THE LIQUOR QUESTION

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 21.—(Canadian Press.)— Telephone rates in Alberta will not be increased as long as present economic conditions continue, so the United Farmers' convention was assured yesterday afternoon by Hon. Vernon W. Smith, Minister of Railways and Telephones. This announcement, made, he said, as a result of rumors that an increase was in prospect, was greeted with cheers. The telephone system is owned by the province.

A long session was spent on a great variety of subjects. The delegates decided to sit again to-day, business being far from completed.

The Railway Commission was requested by resolution to put into effect an immediate reduction in freight rates on agricultural products, including grain, and on lumber and coal.

The association wants a re-valuation of stock and equipment purchased by returned soldiers under the settlement scheme, the soldiers' debts to be reduced to the new valuation.

The convention went on record in favor of the creation of the position of provincial market commerce, with a view in particular to the encouragement of co-opertive marketing facilities.

A resolution from the Women's section in opposition to any system of government sale of liquor for beverage purposes was adopted.

Organized municipal districts should be given, it was decided, power "to undertake the manufacture and marketing of farm produce on receiving the approval of the ratepayers on a plebisicite."

BANDIT PROOF CARS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.— Chicago mail last night was loaded for the first time into new "bandit proof" container cars, introduced by the New York Central lines. The United States Government, beset by mail bandits, contracted for use of the cars in the regular mail service.

The containers, each with a capacity of 438 cubic feet, were locked at the general post office. Then they were taken to the station on motor trucks, lifted by cranes and then lowered into grooves on the container cars.

Loaded, the cars look like a solid block of steel safes set inside protecting steel ends and sides equipped with a device which makes it impossible to open the container doors while in transit.

Says Poisoning Cause of Death

PARIS, Jan. 21. —(Canadian Press).—The death of Mrs. Thomas Stewart Ryan, known as Miss Audrey Creighton, Thursday, in the American Hospital at Neuilly, was due to poisoning, according to the verdict of Police Surgeon Paul, who performed an autopsy on the body yesterday.

Serious lesions were found in the stomach and kidneys and the surgeon removed the vital organs for chemical analysis.

Charles G. Loeb, attorney for Mr. Ryan, who was held by the police a few days after Mrs. Ryan had swallowed poison tablets, has filed a demand for his client's release on bail. The investigating magistrate is expected to reply to the demand today.

The demand recited the history of the case, pointing out that Mrs. Ryan had never stated she had been terrorized into swallowing the poison, as some versions of the story have claimed and that no cries of protest were heard. Her normal mental condition, says the demand, was shown by her ability to write farewell letters to her husband. you are going to wear longer skirts,

LOVE NOTES INTRODUCED

ANOTHER CHAPTER IN THE STILLMAN CASE—COUNSEL REPEATS CHARGES.

NEW YORK, January 21. Canadian Press. — James A. Stillman's fight to have the little Guy Stillman adjudged illegitimate was intensified yesterday in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

The banker's counsel repeated charges that Mrs Annie U. Stillman had misconducted herself with Fred Beauvais, the Indian guide, who Mr. Stillman contends is the father of Guy. Love messages purported to have passed between Mrs. Stillman and Beauvais were introduced. They began "Dearest," and "Dear Freddie."

Counsel for Mr. Stillman declared his wife had never defended the charge that the child is illegitimate, and answered her recent predictions that Guy's good name would be upheld in the court by saying her defence had not shown reasonable probability of success.

The action to-day was on an appeal from an order which would have Mr. Stillman provide $7500 to meet the expenses of a hearing in the suit at Montreal. The court reserved decision.

Mr. Stillman's lawyers said the banker had paid Mrs. Stillman $122,000 in the last nine months without a murmur but it was now time to call a halt.

Insisting that the question before the court was simply whether Mrs. Stillman would get the $7500, Mr. Brennan said her lawyers had declared that they would pay the expenses of the Canadian trip if necessary.

The court reserved decision.

STIRLING DEFEAT MARMORA AT HOME

Good Brand of Hockey in Trent Valley League Game—Stirling Won by 6 to 5.

MARMORA, Jan. 21. — Sterling tightened its hold to the leadership of the Trent Valley Hockey League by defeating Marmora here last night by the score of 6 goals to 5. It was a fast clean game, before a crowd estimated at 600, and as the result indicated, it was close all the way. Marmora started off with a rush and had all the better of the first period, scoring two goals and blanking the visitors. Sterling came back with five in the second while the best Marmora could do was a single, with the score of 5 to 3.

The teams were as follows:

Stirling — Goal, Hulin; defence, Conley and Whittey; centre, J. Ackers; left wing, Wallace; right wing, H. Ackers. Subs, Turley and Forbes.

Marmora—Goal, Inkster; defence, Wells and Quinn; centre, Shannon; right wing, J. Thirnbeck; left wing, McWilliams. Subs, Jones and Leal.

Referee— Charlie Holmes, Campbellford.

Conley scored 3 goals for Stirling, Whittey 2 and Wallace 1, while Quinn and Shannon each got two for Marmora and Thirnbeck one.

The big crowd was delighted with the brand of hockey, although there was general disappointment by the local fans.

Drink Plenty of Milk

Once you begin to drink more milk you eat less and less of the heavier and more expensive foods which clog the system and rob you of strength, snap and vim.

Your health improves. You become stronger. Your nerves are steady—your step firmer. Your skin clears. Your eyes shine. Your cheeks bloom. You feel the glow of well-being all over.

GAMBLING WITH DEATH.

"From the information I have received, these diseases are spreading instead of declining." So declares Mr. G. H. Duncan, chairman of the Board of Health, in referring to the epidemic of scarlet fever and diphtheria in Peterborough, and his admission confirms the statement of The Examiner that the situation demands attention. The Examiner has no desire to create a panic, but the circumstances are such as to call for more vigorous action than has hitherto been taken to control the spread of these diseases. Our charge that the quarantine regulations have been and are being openly and flagrantly violated has not been refuted. There is the chief cause for the future to stamp out the twin epidemic. In many cases the red or blue placards that are intended to indicate that a house is under quarantine are nothing but camouflage, to use a very much abused word. From a score of such residences people are going out to work each day and to amusement places at night, mingling with hundreds of other people and spreading infection everywhere. How, in the name of common sense, can it be hoped to check the outbreak of scarlet fever and diphtheria as long as these things are allowed to continue? Every week there is a toll of young lives being taken, lives that might have been spared if the quarantine regulations had been strictly observed. If a degenerate was to take a club and beat the life out of ome little child, the whole community would turn out to hunt him down. But each week, for several months back, there have been children slain in Peterborough—some of them, at least, because selfish people have put their own convenience and pleasure before the lives of others, and have failed to carry out the law in regard to quarantine, and because lax enforcement of that law has made it possible for them to disobey the regulations with impunity. How long are the people of Peterborough going to go on gambling with death?

THE PLAYGROUNDS ASSOCIATION.

It seems a far cry from the snow and ice of to-day to the hot sun and the green grass of mid-summer, and yet the annual meeting of the Playgrounds Association is a reminder that the intervening months will pass swiftly by. The community in general owes a debt of gratitude to the people who were the pioneers in the movement to provide supervised playgrounds in Peterborough, and to those who have carried on the work so successfully. There were many people who, at the initiation of this organisation, were inclined to view this undertaking as a fad. The children had always found a chance to play, they declared, and there was no need of going to any expense to provide supervisors to direct their youthful energies. It is true that the youngsters have made the best of what was offered them, but their playground was too often the streets, where the increasing motor traffic endangered life and limb on some other place not so perilous physically, but a more deadly menace from a moral standpoint. A summer's operation of the playgrounds changed all this; the doubters were converted from critics to warm supporters of the movement. They saw that the youngsters were healthier and more contented; they knew that they were being benefited in character as well as in physique by healthful recreation under wise supervision. They could let their little ones go each day to the playgrounds and know that they were safe from the danger of the street, and that they were being made better children by reason of the supervision provided by the Association. Not all children can get away to the lakes in the hot weather, and for those who have to remain at home, there is no better friend than the Playgrounds Association. Its work should have the whole-hearted support of the citizens.

ANOTHER MENACE TO OUR FISH.

Himself an ardent angler and by reason of his business thrown into contact every year with many successful fishermen, Mr. E. Elcome comes forward with an interesting contribution on the question of protecting our fish supply. Mr. Elcome agrees with The Examiner that most of the trouble occurs during the spawning season, but differs from us in blaming tame ducks as being the chief cause of the destruction of the spawn. His letter, which is published below, is based, he explains, upon personal observation. It furnishes a new angle to the discussion and should prove of interest to many readers. Mr. Elcome says:

January 20, 1922.

"To the Editor of The Examiner.

"Dear Sir,—Your editorial of last evening, stating that the greatest destruction of fish was during the spawning season 'locates the trouble' to a great extent. Let me give a picture. A stream enters our Otonabee River, the fish run up this stream to spawn. The quantity of young fish, if properly cared for, will meet all our requirements. Let us watch this stream. Here come a pirate and a twenty-pound maskinonge is taken unlawfully. She has fulfilled her part and the spawn is deposited in the best place. The inspector goes after the pirate, and rightly so; but let us go back and look at that clean spot where the spawn is deposited, for that is our future supply. What do we see? A flock of tame ducks. What are they doing? Eating all the spawn, and the thousands of young fry are destroyed and no notice taken. Is not this the seat of the trouble and the great leak? STOP THE DUCKS.

"E. ELCOME."

Perhaps some other sportsman can confirm Mr. Elcome's observation and furnish further evidence as to the part played by domestic ducks in preying upon the spawn that is the source of our supply of game fish.

THE QUESTION OF SINGAPORE.

Singapore, the Gateway of the East, and one of the world's greatest shipping ports, a prized British possession, seems to stand in the way of an agreement upon the limitation of fortifications and naval bases by the conferees at Washington. When Secretary Hughes gave out a statement on 15th December to the effect that the status quo "in the Pacific region, including Hong Kong" was to be maintained, with the understanding that the restriction should not apply to the Hawaiian Islands, Australia, New Zealand, "and the islands composing Japan proper, or, of course, to "the coasts of the United States and Canada," the Japanese assumed that the fortifications of Singapore were not to be increased. The British think that there should be an exception in the case of Singapore, which they contend is not in "the Pacific region." Geographically they are right, for it is situated on an island in the Straits of Malacca, which is an outlet of the Indian Ocean. Singapore is about 2,800 miles in a direct line from Japan and about 1,600 miles from the Philippines. Round the corner from Singapore is the China Sea. It would not be an unapt description to speak of it is a China Sea port.

The British delegates seem to have accepted with a mental reservation the agreement as stated by Mr. Hughes. Literal construction, they declare, would exclude Singapore. When the time came to make a first draft of the naval treaty they asked that the limitation should not apply to islands "south of the Equator." Singapore is eighty miles south of the Equator. A British "spokesman" now makes this statement:

The real defensive base for Australia and New Zealand is Singapore. Singapore, of course, is not in the Pacific. It is a naval base now and has been for generations. No question has been raised about it by anybody in the conference.

The Japanese, however, are disposed to raise the question. They believe that Japan won a strategical victory when the United States was persuaded to agree not to develop naval bases in the Philippines and at Guam. Without a naval base in the Western Pacific the United States would be at a great disadvantage, a disadvantage that probably could not be overcome in the event of a war with Japan. If the British were denied an opportunity to improve the fortifications at Singapore, Japan might have nothing to fear from any rival sea Power. In the defensive she would appear to be secure.

Addressing the Australian House of Representatives on 9th October Premier Hughes said that the question of a naval base in the Pacific was discussed at the recent Imperial Conference, and that a decision was reached. He was not more explicit, except that he added that the base would not be Singapore. The attention of the British Admiralty was at once drawn to the Australian Premier's speech, and it admitted or feigned mystification. Curiously, a London newspaper, a few days before Premier Hughes talked to the Australian House of Representatives published a report that Great Britain was preparing to convert Singapore into a first-class naval station. But Premier Hughes may have been right after all. A modern naval base on some island "south of the Equator" which is in 'the Pacific region" might have a greater strategic value as a protection to Australia than Singapore. It would be interesting to know what Admiral Jellicoe's views are. They would have great weight with the British Government. His mission in Australia and New Zealand has been to make a study of the means that should be taken for their security.—New York Times.

AMERICA SHOULD LEND THE WAY.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: It will mean a great step toward general recovery from the war if Russia and Germany enter the economic conference and are given the opportunity to show what they can and will do to that end. It is time for the abandonment of enmities and a general co-operation on the principle that the necessities of one are the necessities of all. And to this work America can contribute greatly by a wise participation in the proceedings of the conference, using its enormous influence for the establishment of harmonious and united effort in reconstruction.

THE WILL TO PEACE.

Westminster Gazette: It is useless for us to keep telling the French that their fears are groundless. They are not groundless, if the Treaty of Versailles is to be taken as the last word in European wisdom; and it is a sound instinct which tells them that the claims which they found on it can only in the long run be maintained by heavy armament. Either those claims must be revised or Europe will continue to stagger on in poverty and unsettlement, with its Governments cut off from co-operation with one another, and all of them out of touch with the United States. On this road there can be neither settlement nor solvency, nor any of the relief which peaceful Governments pursuing a moderate policy might reasonably look for from each other. Whether we keep to this road or seek a new one is the question which will be sharply presented to us in the New Year.

Personal Mention

Police Magistrate Langley paid a flying visit to the village on Friday.

The epidemic of scarlet fever and diphtheria is practically a dead letter in the village. No new cases have been reported for two days and some suspected cases have proved to be false alarms. One of the latter cases is Master Robert Spence.

The A. Y. P. A. will meet on Tuesday evening next week instead of Monday as first announced.

RHEUMATISM vs. T.R.C.'s
Lumbago, Neuritis, Sciatica

Rheumatism and similar troubles invariably yield to this T.R.C.'s (Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules) treatment. Many doctors and many hundreds of druggists from coast to coast will confirm this truth. The hundreds of testimonial letters in our files show that T.R.C.'s have successfully treated Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, Sciatica and acute Neuralgia of all kinds. But the best evidence is your own experience. If you suffer we want you to try this guaranteed non-injurious remedy at our expense. Druggists sell T.R.C.'s $1.00 per box. For free trial write T.R.C. Co., 58 Colborne St., Toronto.

BITTER TOWARDS FRANCE.

BERLIN, Jan. 21. — (Canadian Press.)—The Berlin newspapers yesterday commented in a tone of bitter resignation to the strict policy towards Germany of the Poincare Government, as outlined in the French Chamber of Deputies.

Theodore Wolff, writing in the Tageblatt, says no spirit of conciliation can be expected from Premier Poincare, who make no confession to the universal desire for peace or to reason. "Having co-operated in bringing about the war," says Herr Wolff, "he has chosen the role of judge and avenger."

THE PRINCE

Micawber, perhaps the most futile and amusing of all literary creations, was the Prince of Procrastinators.

He was always just about to make a spring. He constantly told David Copperfield that he was contemplating a vigorous leap forward.

But he was never outside a network of overdue bills and bankruptcy. His life was lived within the shadow of the debtor's prison.

And the moral of it all. Any act which is vital and excellent should be carried out at once. For instance, the policy of Assurance which you think of taking up, say, next month, will not help much if anything untoward should happen to you between now and then.

Could Not Eat

Constipation is caused by a torpid condition of the liver. Dosing with salts, castor oil, etc., to move the bowels, cannot afford more than temporary relief.

If you are to rid yourself of this ailment and the scores of annoying symptoms and diseases which come in its wake, it is necessary to get the liver right by such treatment as is suggested in this letter:

Mrs. Alvin Richards, R. R. No. 1, Seeley's Bay, Ont., writes:

"For two years I was afflicted with indigestion, and in the morning when I got up my breath was bad. I had a poor appetite, and just felt like eating certain foods. I used many different medicines as a laxative without benefit, and the doctor's medicine did not help me at all. Finally I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and found them better than anything I had ever tried. I can highly recommend them to anyone troubled with constipation or kidney troubles."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

WHAT CAUSES SO MUCH SICKNESS

Constipation Responsible for 90% of Disease

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Corrects It

It is generally recognized among the medical profession that Constipation or Insufficient Action of The Bowels, produces more disease than any other one cause. Constipation is responsible for at least 90% of the disease in the world today—because Constipation is responsible for the Indigestion and Dyspepsia—the nervousness, Insomnia and Rheumatism—the Eczema and other skin troubles—the Headaches and Backaches.

Why is this?

As you know, it is the duty of the bowels to carry off the waste matter in the system. If the bowel muscles are weak or the liver inactive, then this waste matter remains in the body and poisons the blood. As a result, every organ in the body is poisoned by this waste.

"Fruit-a-tives" has been wonderfully successful in relieving Stomach Troubles, Nervous Troubles, Liver Troubles, Kidney Troubles, Skin Troubles and Blood Troubles, because "Fruit-a-tives" positively and emphatically relieves Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always relieve Constipation, even though the trouble has been chronic for ten, fifteen and twenty years. Thousands of grateful users proclaim "Fruit-a-tives" the greatest remedy for Constipation that the world has ever known.

BUICK CONTINUES TO HOLD PLACE OF HONOR AT NEW YORK MOTOR SHOW

For the fourth consecutive year Buick has been awarded first choice of space at the New York National Automobile Show. This Honor is conferred each year by the Automobile manufacturers, who are the members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, upon the members having done the greatest volume of business during the previous year. The figures on which the 1922 award was made proved Buick to be the largest builder of six cylinder cars in the world.

What the Buick car means to the people of United States, the McLaughlin-Buick Canada's Standard Car means to the people of Canada. A quality car built on quatity basis enables the McLaughlin Motor Co., to sell it at the present low prices.

Canada's confidence in McLaughlin-Buick is expressed in the number of McLaughlin cars seen every day in every locality working under all conditions.

Constant service at all times is the ideal built into each and every car.

The McLaughlin factory Oshawa has been forced to run ther factory from sixteen to twenty-four hours per day, working two and three shifts to keep pace with the great demand.

Mr. A. Brown of this city, their representative gives a local emphasis to this when he states that his orders for new cars since the first of August is over double that of last year for the same period.

APPEAL TO NATION FOR A REAL PEACE

LONDON, Jan. 21.—An appeal to the nations to establish a real peace by which International confidence and world trade might be restored was made by Prime Minister Lloyd George in a lengthy speech before the National Liberal Conference here to-day. He lauded the achievements of the Washington Conference, declaring it had played an especially notable part in restoring the understanding between Great Britain and the United States and said the task of the coming Genoa Economic Conference would be to "end the constant wars and rumors of wars."

Mr. Loyd George said he looked to the Genoa gathering to restore peace in the east and he pleaded for a reduction in the cost of armament.

Discussing the Washington Conference the Premier said: "Peace of the world largely depends upon good understanding between the United States and ourselves. The Conference has done more than anything else to restore that understanding."

The Premier said that if there had been a conference in July, 1914, there would nto have been a war in August, 1914.

"No International Conference ever settled Europes problems," he declared, "but they have advanced the cause of peace on earth. I have profound faith and conviction in the ultimate reason of mankind."

Touching on the advantage accruing to the Empire from the Irish settlement he said that it was "the first time in a century that we have had an Irish government established with the whole-hearted sanction of the people of Britain."

The Irish settlement had enhanced the prestige of Great Britain throughout the world and had deprived her enemies of force of that taunt that we were always willing to give exalted advice to other nations, which we never followed ourselves."

asked by Pope Benedict to pray for him.

During the whole of yesterday, except at times when breathing became tremendously difficult, Pope Benedict maintained a calm, serene cheerfulness. Last evening, although oxygen had to be administered, the Pope remained bright.

After a visit by the Cardinals, who were permitted to pass through the room last evening and kiss the Pope's hand, Pope Benedict said: "If it please the Lord that I shall work again for the church, I am ready. If He says it is enough, let His will be done."

The Pope's voice was very weak. A statement as to Pope Benedict's condition, issued at 10 o'clock today, declared that should the unexpected sleep into which the Pope had sunk, continue for several hours, it hmight justify hope for his recovery.

Rapidly Failing.

ROME, Jan. 21. — At 8.15 this morning Pope Benedict was still alive but rapidly failing.

At 5.15 the Pope was reported by Prof. Battistini to be dying. He said the Pontiff was "passing away quietly." The heart action was commencing to become irregular and pulse intermittent. Grand Plenipotentiary Cardinal Giorgi, and other prelates entered the sick chamber at six o'clock and chanted prayers for the dying Pope, who was rapidly sinking.

Since early morning a crowd gathered before St. Peter's. Carriages and automobiles bearing Cardinals, diplomats and distinguished personages kept arriving all forenoon, but few were permitted to approach the Pope's apartment.

In his slight delirium during the noon hour the Pope resisted efforts of physicians to listen to his heart action and expressed a desire to rise and perform his usual duties.

AFTERNOON BULLETINS.

ROME, Jan. 21.—(1 P.M. Bulletin.)—Dr. Battistina, one of the Pontiff's physicians, said that the end was appraoching rapidly for the Pope and that it was only a question of hours.

Pope Benedict passed into a sleeping condition during the forenoon to-day and doctors indicated that they would not abandon hope if sleep continued for three or four hours.

ROME, Jan. 21.—(2.10 P.M. Bulletin.)—At 2.10 the Pope's physicians weer momentarily awaiting the end. They issued no bulletin after visiting the Pontiff at 1 p.m.

ROME, Jan. 21.—(2.30 P.M. Bulletin.)—Pope Benedict XV sank into a comatose stae this afternoon, and it is unlikely that he will live until evening, Dr. Battistini, Papal physician, announced at 1.45 p.m.

Only injections of camphor oil give the Pope relief, Dr. Battistini said.

FOMENTATIONS FOR HIS EYE TROUBLE

When Billie Kerr fell off the roof of the garage and hurt his head and face, the doctor ordered fomentations to be applied to his eye every four hours for 20 minutes at a time.

There was consternation in the household; but eyes are very import and, and despite the small boy's protests his mother carried out the orders faithfully.

"I had to put stupes on my William's stomach last year," said a distant cousin who had come to visit.

"But stupes and fomentations for the eye are entirely different," said the small Billy's mother quietly.

"You use pieces of flannel for stupes and small compresses of gauze or absorbent cotton for eye fomentations."

As she spoke (for it was the first time the treatment was given) Mrs. Kerr carried a towel, a bath thermometer, a small basin and a pitcher of boiling water to the couch where Billy lay. These articles she arranged on a large tray on a table beside the couch. Then she brought scissors, a roll of absorbent cotton and a paper bag to hold waste cotton. For she knew that one needs a number af compresses to treat an inflamed eye and that the same compresses may not be used a second time.

Cutting a dozen compresses of cotton about one and a half inches square, she put a towel under Billy's reluctant head. Then she poured hot water from the pitcher into the small bowl, tested it, and found it to be 110 degrees Fahrenheit, which was the right temperature for eye fomentations.

Wringing a compress from the water was the right temperature for eye for two minutes, discarded it, and applied a fresh one. Keeping the water at the required temperature, Mrs. Kerr continued this treatment for 20 minutes, while the family looked on.

"I like it", said Billy at last, which was his mother's reward.

Pretty Heiress:—"But, father, if you refuse, poor Jack will die of a broken heart."

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS WITH "CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP"

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup," and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother. You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

THE STAR OF HOPE

Oh Hope! Thou sar of the morning
That glows in the eastern sky,
How oft hast thou beamed upon me
When I have been ready to die:
Shut up oft in Doubting Castle
A victim of Giant Despair,
Thou hast said, Here's the key of Promise,
Arise! and get out of here.

Haste! The delectable mountains
Are not very far away
Great things the shepherds will shew you,
If you loiter not on the way:
Things that will make you sober,
Things that will make you glad,
That this far you've come on your journey,

TRUE FRIENDSHIP.

Those who have never known the depth of human suffering can never know the joy of the heights of bliss, and those who have never known real loneliness can never appreciate a true and genuine friend.
The lads who have no mother,
The lads who have no home,
Oh God take pity on them
Wherever they may roam.

Ah there's no need to say it,
He knows, and He doth care;
'Tis our hearts lack the knowledge
To know them everywhere.

A GOOD APPETITE GREATLY DESIRED

THE OCCASIONAL USE OF A TONIC ENSURES A GOOD APPETITE AND GOOD HEALTH.

Loss of appetite is a common trouble, and indicates that the digestive system is out of order. Lacking a healthy appetite many people go too long without food, or eat sparingly because food seems to distress them, and it is no wonder they complain of being constantly tired unable to stand any strain. All this simply means that the digestive system is not doing its proper work and that the nutriment that should come from the food is not being distributed to the various organs of the body In other words, the blood is growing thin and watery. In such cases what is needed is a tonic and among all medicines there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pill. Take a short treatment with these pills and note how promptly your appetite returns and your power to digest food improves. The value of Dr. Williams Pink Pills in cases of this kind is shown by the experience of Mrs. William Bennett, Cleland Corners, N.S., who says: "For a long time I suffered much from indigestion. I could hardly eat, and anything I did eat disagreed with me. The result was I became badly run down. I suffered greatly from headaches, and often passed sleepless nights. I had taken a great deal of doctor's medicine with very little benefit, and having read much about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I decided to try them. The result has met my best expectations. My digeston is now as good as ever; I sleep well at night, and have gained in flesh, and now when anyone in our family is ill this is the only medicine to take."

The best time to begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the moment you feel the least bit out of sorts. The sooner you do so the sooner you will regain your old time energy. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DAD'S AWFUL FIX.

The tiny maid, held up to hear her father's voice on the telephone, burst into tears. "What are you crying for?" asked her mother.

"Oh, mamma," sobbed the child, "however can we get dadda out of that little hole?"

THE MEDIUM OF THE HEART.

Love went forth on a venture,
And found a wounded soul,
She ransacked her whole heart-treasures,
And poured on him the whole.

Could she? Oh, could she, save him?
She wept, she worked, she prayed,
And heaven returned an answer—
A precious life is saved.

RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is produced by the accumulation of Uric Acid in the blood, and this poisonous substance attacks and inflames the membrane covering the joints and separating the muscles, thus producing severe pains. If the waste products of the human system are not properly carried off, Uric Acid forms and is deposited in the joints and between the different layers of muscles. DR. HENDERSON'S HERB TABLETS will correct this by its action on the kidneys and removing the Uric Acid from the blood. Try them and watch the results. If they fail your money will be refunded.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets are put up three sizes—25c, 50c, and $1.00 per box at Bond's Drug Store and Warne Drug Co., Ltd.

CANADA LIFE BUSINESS EXCEEDS 1920

GAINS OVER PREVIOUS YEAR UNIQUE

Company Enters 75th Year of Service

CANADA LIFE policyholders are scattered far and wide, and it is with the desire of reaching them in the quickest and most readable form that this report is being published in the newspapers by the Company. A booklet containing even more complete particulars will be mailed upon request.

CANADA LIFE HAS RECORD YEAR IN 1921

Annual Statement Reviewed by President H. C. Cox

I am happy to say that in our Company we have been able to reach the objective set at the beginning of the year. Having in mind the large volume of new assurances sold in 1920 we felt we should not be too ambitious in 1921, and consequently fixed as our goal $70.000.000. This figure has been exceeded by $900.000, giving us the handsome increase of $7,900,000, or 12 per cent. over 1920, and bringing the assurance in force to $320.000.000. In view of the general decline of 15 per cent. in new business in 1921 we are proud, but I hope not unduly so, of the fact that ours is, so far as we know the only Canadian company reporting a business in excess of that of the preceding year. Great Britain has again given us a very gratifying contribution, and it will interest you to know that the Province of Quebec has had a large share in our success. Some years ago we commenced issuing policies in French, and have followed this up by publishing the annual statement and all advertising matter in that language. As the Canada Life was the first company to enter Quebec, having done so in 1853, we has been the first to issue in the French language a course of instruction for salesmen, and we have had several requests to allow its use in colleges and schools. We have, of course, very considerable sums invested in that Province.

In the course of the year I visited with the General Superintendent, the offices of the company in Great Britain, in the United States and throughout Western Canada. Everywhere we found in our representatives that healthy optimism and strong assurance of success which surrounds men who have striven out of the fogs of depression and have turned to their own advantage and to that of their institution the lessons to be learned from constantly changing circumstances. The persistent cheerfulness of the life assurance salesman is of untold value not only to himself but to the public with whom he mingles, and enables him to present his proposal with the conviction that it carries with it that relief from worry and that mental repose which leave one free to prosecute the unhampered one's ordinary business or profession, with its normal benefit to the State.

You will remember that two years ago group insurance was introduced in Canada. The channel to which this particular form of coverage was to be directed has, through the widespread curtailment of operation in the industrial world, been largely closed to us, but in its stead there has opened another avenue which has proven interesting and remunerative. This includes employees of many municipalities, of banks and trust companies, of educational and other institutions.

Policy Loans.

Influenced by the prevailing conditions in finance, policy loans, according to available information, have been resorted to in greater measure than before and more particularly in rural districts. Continual warning is being given by all companies in the effort to drive home the danger of impairing the equity in one's policy, and persistent propaganda is carried on looking to the repayment of loans already incurred. With others, this company has experienced an increased demand from this source, but the result of our campaign for repayment or reduction of existing loans has been so marked that the net increase in the aggregate amount thus invested has not been above the average. This is encouraging, and lends color to the belief that the means being adopted to augment our present effort toward decreased terminations and increased conservation will prove of value. It is thought that during the early policy years a constructive and reasoning influence may be effective in keeping the assured informed and interested in his policy. This can be done best from the Home Office, and special machinery has been set up for the purpose. A policy saved is a friend made. So we shall strive to prevent the lapse rather than to secure the reinstatement, upon the theory that it is wiser to lock the stable door before the horse has been stolen.

Surplus Earnings.

It has been our good fortune, even throughout the disturbance of war to be able to report from year to year a continuously increasing earning power, and 1921 maintains the worthy succession. There has been no unusual factor affecting our death ratio, so that the saving as between the losses actually incurred and those provided for has been greater than ever before, and this added to the earnings from other sources aggregates $2,600,285.46. This is the largest surplus earned in the company's history, extending over 74 years, and not only ensures the continuance of our bonuses upon the present scale, but enables a slight increase upon some classes of policy. It is most gratifying that we have been able to achieve this remarkable surplus while accepting seventy millions of new assurances. This experience is unique, and must greatly increase the already large confidence of our members and of the public in our institution.

Sound Investments.

One of the most important factors in the success of a life assurance company is the character of the securities in which its funds are placed and the net rate of interest they yield. I am able to say with great confidence that the investments of the Canada Life are second to those of no other institution anywhere, and that combined with this great safety is a most gratifying interest return. In the early part of the year we were still able to acquire securities of undoubted value at prices approximating those of the previous year, but latterly the market has shown an upward tendency, with a consequent slight decrease in yields. We have, however, been able to employ our investment funds to advantage, and our net rate for the year, 6.17 per cent., indicates another small step on the ascending scale. The demand for mortgage loans continued, and our managers have again exercised fine discretion in their recommendations. Some of these loans are to cover accumulated bank advances, some to enable further development, while still others are required to carry the borrower over the period of stress occasioned by the unhappy reduction in the value of his crop. All loans granted this year have been in only the best districts, and, as usual, upon our own valuations. I venture to reiterate that our farm loans average only 7.06% per acre. The frequently disturbing experiences in some portions of the Western Provinces perhaps you will permit me to say that this company has been particularly well and happily advised since the inception of its loaning operations there, and that consequently we have extremely few if any, loans in the districts which have proven so undesirable alike for the farmer and the investor. The difference between the ultimate price received for wheat and cattle and that anticipated, has, of course, been reflected to some extent in interest payments, but our 10,000 borrowers have, on the whole, done as well as could be expected, and our aggregate collections show a very satisfactory increase over last year. As usual we have not included in the asset described as "interest out-standing" any sums in arrear which appear doubtful of collection. It is unavoidable that amongst so many borrowers some will fall by the wayside, but we have never yet had to accept a net loss upon properties coming into our hands.

The funds arising from our operations in Great Britain we have continued to invest there pending a turn in the exchange situation, and have now in that country securities of $1,567,334, with an average yield of 6.03 per cent.

Your assets have, as usual, been valued upon a most conservative basis, and you will remember the special contingent fund of $200,000, which you have set up as an additional protection and stabiliser.

It was our great misfortune to lose this year a dear friend and colleague in the death of Dr. John Hoskin, K.C., who had been one of your Directors since 1896 and Vice-President for some years. For a time he resided in England, and while there was most helpful as Chairman of the Board in Great Britain. Indeed throughout his association with the company he felt a keen responsibility for its success, and gave most freely of his time and counsel to ensure it.

Seventy-five Years' Service.

We have just entered the company's seventy-fifth year. In honor of this anniversary we have fixed as our objective in new assurances seventy-five millions of dollars, and your Directors have authorised an increase in the limit of risk to be carried upon one life to $75,000. Your officers and representatives in the field are high spirited and hopeful, but would value the support of every policyholder and shareholder in the extension of what is after all a business very personal to each of you and in the progress of which you each have a very lively interest.

The statement which has been submitted for your approval results from the cheerful and continuous effort of all branches of the service, and your Directors desire to cordially thank all who have had a share in it.

My warmest thanks are again rendered to the members of the Directorate ,to our Board in Great Britain, to the officials, the medical directors, the solicitor, the agencies and the loan managers and each individual unit in the Home Office and in the Field, for the courtesy and consideration with which their generous support has been given throughout the year.

MANY PROOFS OF SUCCESS

Business written by this Company in 1921 exceeds the remarkable record of 1920 by 12 per cent., or over $7,600,000, total business in the year amounting to almost $71,000,000.

The total business in force in the Canada Life, now amounts to over $320,000,000.

The excellent rate of interest earned on investments, being 6.17 per cent., which is an increase over the 1920 rate, is in line with the Canada Life policy of "Conservative Progress," and indicates but another step on the ascending scale. This is one of the chief contributors to surplus earnings.

There has been no unusual factor affecting the death rate adversely.

This saving, when added to the earnings from other sources, aggregates $2,600,285.46, the largest surplus earnings in the Company's history, extending over 74 years.

Group Insurance business, secured with the Canada Life in 1921, was double that of 1920, amounting to $5,333,950, and giving insurance protection to 4,501 employees of various firms, municipalities, etc.

Dividends paid to policyholders were very satisfactory in 1921, being $1,513,000.

Facts, such as these, are unmistakable signs of the steady progress which the Canada Life has been making for a great number of years.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

MR. HERBERT C. COX REVIEWS BUSINESS OF 1921 BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR CANADIAN BUSINESS

1921 has had many unusual features—not all pleasant, but, on the other hand, not all unpleasant. The process of readjustment has continued with a further lowering of prices and slackening of trade. Merchants and manufacturers in general have been compelled to accept additional reductions in their inventories, and it seems possible that they have not yet reached a finality in this regard, but the nearer we approach to pre-war levels the more hopeful the outlook for future improvement appears to be. Our foreign trade, like that of other countries, shows a material diminution, but with the mitigating fact that exports are more nearly balancing imports, which is a healthy sign and a step in the right direction. We have still some distance to go, however, before the premium on New York funds can be entirely eliminated, and there will be necessary a still more marked decrease in our purchases abroad, with a concurrent increase in our outside sales, if this is to be accomplished. It is an undertaking in which the individual may share. In the wider field of world exchange the best minds are at work in the effort to devise ways of bringing about stabilization, and it is hoped some degree of success will result. Greater production everywhere would seem to be a prime essential.

The influence of wages upon production is of paramount importance, and the attitude of labor in this regard will have a powerful effect, which will also be reflected in the correlated problem of unemployment. The latter long ago reached the point of seriousness, and the indications for the coming months do not encourage us to look for early improvement unless those seeking work show more willingness to accept it at a wage more commensurate with the altered living costs and which will enable employers to undertake contracts with prospect of a reasonable return. Much risk is involved. When this basis is reached, enabling the product of factory and mill to be turned out at a lower cost, the buyer will be more ready to enter the market, and construction of all kinds will receive a great impetus. Building contracts aggregating many millions of dollars which are dependent upon the labor factor are ready to be placed, while others, which now require national treatment and support.

A National Need.

Much has been said and written, both for and against Canada's National Railway undertaking. We all know the underlying facts leading to the Government's assuming the roads. We all know the difficulties which surrounded and continue to surround their operation. Only constructive criticism is helpful. The assistance and co-operation of its 5,000,000 owners can secure the success of the National Railway, and as our population grows its progress will quicken. An aggressive immigration program is necessary. The peoples of Europe as not seeking new homes in as large numbers as had been anticipated, but Great Britain is fostering a reasonable emigration to the overseas Dominions. Canada has facilities for making her new citizens and should get a good share of a major share of those who will thus leave the homeland, but she must be alive to the fact that our sister Dominions are offering transportation and other inducements which must be offset in some way if we are not to lose out in the race. Men and women in greater number and more quickly than natural increase can provide them have been and are the great need of our country, and a strong policy looking to their rapid and steady acquisition will command a ready support. For many years the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has had an important share in the peopling of our Western Provinces, and they now appear to be about to embark upon a very comprehensive plan involving many millions of dollars and providing for many thousands of settlers. This private enterprise is, of course, of enormous value to the country, but it is hoped the Government will not fail to materially augment it, realizing the responsibility to be one of a national character, which requires national treatment and support.

Soldier Settlement.

Settlement of soldiers on the land is making considerable progress. Up to October last 27,142 returned men had been thus placed, out of a total of 61,824 applicants; 21,000 had obtained loans aggregating $38,500,000, while some 6,000 had come on free Dominion lands without financial assistance. Nearly 900 men have already repaid their loans in full.

The Crop Situation.

The general crop situation has been so thoroughly explored in reports already published that repetition of it is unnecessary and undesirable. I should like to say, however, that banks and lending corporations on the whole, have done everything possible to minimise the hardship of individual and the dislocation of his activities. The dependable conservative customer has been enabled to carry on, and the well-intentioned borrower is not being pressed. Stock likely to repay feeding will be carried through the winter, while the poorer grades are being sent to market. Those who are short will be able to obtain seed, and the perennial hope of the farmer will support him into another year of intense effort, which, we trust, will have its ultimate and full reward. One cannot but be impressed by the recuperative power of the Western farmer and by his determination not to be permanently disheartened by setbacks which are really only temporary, though they may seem to be uncomfortably frequent. This dauntless spirit is the nation's first line of defense and the most potent protection of the important investments made by loaning companies in the grain-growing Provinces.

Field for Life Assurance.

It is no surprise that the altogether unusual amount of life assurance sold on this continent in 1920 should not have been equalled in the last twelve months—the wonder is rather that the shrinkage in volume is only 15 per cent., and in Great Britain about 20 per cent. This is only another indication of the appeal life assurance makes to the public under any and all circumstances. It is one of the great silent stabilising factors in business and in the home. There has been in evidence in the United States for some considerable time a tendency upon the part of bankers to ask for life assurance as collateral security in cases where the personal equation would largely into the granting of credits.

The desirability of such protection has of late been attracting the attention of Canadian bankers, and we look for an increased demand from this source. The life of the borrower is of such importance to the lender that, in our opinion, this form of protection is as necessary as is the insurance of merchandise. Greater co-operation between the banks and insurance companies in this direction could not fail to be of mutual advantage. It is understood that in future the amount of life assurance carried will be a feature of all credit reports issued by two of the leading credit agencies and will serve its influence in determining the general financial status of the individual or corporation under review. This growing realization of the value of life assurance in financial relations is greatly widening the field for the companies, and warrants our belief that there can be no serious recession in their advance from year to year.

There is also an increasing demand for assurances in large volume to provide immediate cash resources out of which estates may meet inheritance taxes, which are now such a burdensome factor in all countries. This is a comparatively new avenue of development, but is full of promise.

Life assurance and what it accomplishes appeals to the common sense of a people, but it is curious that, although no persuasion is required to induce one while alive to provide the daily necessities for his family, much influence must be exerted before he is prevailed upon to make certain similar provision when he has gone. Hence the need for well educated, well trained and well equipped salesmen who can command the respect and confidence of the public and who can portray lucidly and accurately the salient features and advantages of the co-operation made possible through the life assurance company. Happily the standard of character and preparedness in company representatives is rapidly rising and is influencing not only the volume but the selection of business with its effect upon the death rate. Advancing years are bringing larger experience on which to base a forecast of life, and medical directors are consequently able to deal with a greater degree of confidence with individuals offering more than the usual hazard. We are gradually but constantly drawing nearer the great ideal—protection upon some basis for every man. Meanwhile, in spite of the enormous amount of insurance sold annually, we cannot overlook the total inadequacy of the protection carried by the people of this continent, since not more than six in each hundred are sufficiently covered. In Canada the total assurances carried are $3,000,000,000, or slightly more than the National Debt.

Favorable Mortality Experience.

The death losses experienced by the companies in general in the twelve months have been less than usual, and reflect the improved health conditions of the people at large as well as careful medical selection. This is important, since much of the profit returnable to the policyholder arises from the saving made possible by the difference between the actual death losses and those expected and provided for. In the endeavor, however, to effect such saving and its subsequent return to the assured, we must not lose sight of the chief function of life assurance, but must strive to make its protection available in a constantly widening circle.

Government Supervision.

We can be aided or hampered in our service to the public in the measure in which the laws which govern our operations are reasonable and flexible or local and burdensome. The Federal Insurance Act of 1917, with its provisions for supervision, affords ample machinery for the companies and a splendid protection for the assured. This Act is administered with fine capacity, has attained the result required of it and has gained recognition as being most comprehensive and effective in its scope. Each Province has also its own legislation, and an effort is now being made at the suggestion of the Superintendent for Ontario and in conjunction with the revision of his Provincial Act, to secure the adoption by the various Provinces of uniform regulations. This will be desirable and helpful as tending to simplify and clarify the conditions under which the companies operate, while not lessening the thoroughness or value of the inspection and supervision to which they are now subject. The rights and safety of the insured can be and are fully and excellently conserved by one examination of the offices annually, and it is to be hoped that nothing will be done by any Legislature without careful and thorough consideration to multiply this supervision with a consequent heavy and avoidable expense, which must be borne by the policyholder. It is worthy of note that no policyholder has ever lost one dollar by the failure of a Canadian life assurance company.

Institutional Advertising Continued.

An interesting experiment, new to life assurance, but already successful in other businesses, was tried during the last few months in the form of what has been termed "Institutional Advertising" or general publicity in the daily Press throughout the country. The expense was shared by the companies upon an agreed basis and the result has been so favorable that it has been decided to continue the campaign, but on an enlarged scale, for the ensuing year. The undertaking is managed and the copy prepared by a representative committee of the companies—men who have a knowledgeable connection with the business they represent and clearly the public they address. This recognition of a common ground and common aim must create a more healthy atmosphere, in which the prospective assurer will see more clearly the great institution of life assurance with all it conveys and in which the salesman will be free to urge the service he offers rather than the competitive qualities of individual companies. If the people are to be insured as they should be there is not only ample room but great need for every company.

LIFE INSURANCE FOR BUSINESS PROTECTION

The volume of Business Insurance on our books is increasing each year, and a substantial portion of our production for 1921 was made up of life insurance taken for business protection. This form of insurance is more and more taking its place as an important economic factor in the business world, and nearly every class of business activity is recognizing its need and value.

The policies issued for business purposes cover a wide variety of insurance needs. They are taken for various reasons—to provide a cash fund for emergencies, to strengthen credit, to redeem bonds at maturity, to take over the deceased partner's interest, to create a sinking fund, to furnish an investment for surplus funds, to provide for retirement of members, to endow religious, educational or charitable institutions, and many other purposes.

The policies vary in amounts from small sums of two or three thousand dollars up to one million dollars, or more, for all kinds of business organizations, from the small one-man corner grocery or the moderate sized partnership up to the large limited corporation. It is realized that Business Insurance is just as necessary to the many small business concerns found in every city, town and village as it is to the big firms and corporations; in fact the small business is usually in greater need of this protection, as it is more closely related to the home, and often represents the whole estate of the owner, or partners and their families.

It is, therefore, not surprising that business men of to-day are increasingly making use of this form of protection. The success of any progressive concern usually depends on the lives of one or more members whose loss would, in most cases, serious matter for the business. Such men have a value to the business that is far in excess of their salaries, and the cash fund derived from Business Insurance in event of their death helps to solve the matter of readjustment and replacement. Moreover, it is generally known that banks are now placing greater importance on life insurance protection before extending credit to those who apply for loans, and a substantial amount of Business Insurance is effective to strengthen the credit of any business man or firm.

The field for Business Insurance is almost unlimited.

OF INTEREST TO POLICYHOLDERS

In view of the general decline in new business we are proud, but not unduly so, of the fact that ours is, so far as we know, the only Canadian Company reporting a business in excess of that of the preceding year.

The strength and stability of your Company is undisputed, as may be seen from its remarkable record of success, even during 1921. Its assets of over $80,000,000 are invested in the highest class of securities, such as Dominion and Provincial Bonds and Debentures, Mortgage Loans and other investments equally sound and reliable which yield a good rate of interest.

The Canada Life paid in 1921 to policyholders $6,586,000, and notwithstanding these payments made during the year increased its assets by $3,989,000.

A Contingent Fund which was set up some years ago as an additional protection and stabilizing force has been maintained, and is ready at all times for special contingencies.

A particularly good feature of the year was the low percentage of loans on policies.

While a policy is perfectly good security, it is a satisfaction to note that policyholders appreciate the value of keeping their policies intact, and also the advisability of paying off their loans so as not to mortgage this, their best asset.

Frequently a policyholder will pay off a little at a time, thus gradually reducing the indebtedness, and the Company is always ready to assist by accepting these small payments whenever convenient. In the meantime, while the loan exists, there is an easy and convenient way open to most policyholders in good health to insure the loan, so that it will not be deducted from the face of the policy, if death occurs within a certain time, and while the loan is being paid off.

A letter to the Home Office at Toronto will bring particulars as to this.

LIFE INSURANCE TO SAFEGUARD ESTATES

Another development of life insurance service is found in the increasing use of insurance to provide for Succession Duties—the taxes that must be paid to the Government on the value of estates that are passed on to others.

The need of life insurance to clear off Succession Duties, or Inheritance Taxes, has been more fully recognized in the United States, and an enormous volume of business is written each year for this purpose. In Canada this need is only now being brought to the attention of well-to-do men and women in a general way, and there is no doubt that, in this direction, will be found an enlarging field of insurance business.

Not only the estates of millionaires and wealthy people stand in need of life insurance to clear off these Duties, but smaller estates of moderate value also require this provision if the property is to pass on intact without sacrifice and delay. The records of Trust Companies and personal Executors of estates can show many instances where valuable securities, real estate and other holdings of the decedent have of necessity been sold at a loss to provide the funds required for the Duties. Every estate of considerable size and value is depleted by this debt that arises immediately upon death of the owner unless adequate provision is made during his lifetime for payment of these taxes. It is not convenient, or even advisable, to set aside cash funds at a low interest rate to provide for this debt. In fact well-to-do men seldom carry on deposit large sums of money. Almost invariably their money is invested in their business or in securities or property, the value of which depends on the condition of the market, and cannot always be turned into cash and sold profitably. Yet when the time comes that a man's affairs become the affairs of his estate his Executors need available funds to pay the Succession Duties on that estate, and pay them promptly.

A large proportion of estates in Canada are left without available cash funds to pay the Provincial Succession Duties. Where no provision is made for sufficient ready cash, the administration of the estate is necessarily delayed until the required funds to pay the Duties have been obtained by the sale or by mortgage of the estate. It very often happens that this cannot be done within a reasonable time without a considerable sacrifice of value, and often it causes inconvenience and trouble to the beneficiaries.

Life insurance offers the simplest and surest way to provide the needed reserve fund to pay Succession Duties and clear off this debt on the estate so that it can be passed on without loss or delay to those entitled to receive the benefits, free from the dangers and problems that would otherwise have to be met.

Men who are thoughtful and far-seeing try to acquire property, the fruits of which will serve themselves, their families and the community. They endeavor to build up an estate and to make provision for the direction of that estate after they are no longer here to do so themselves. But there is little evidence of foresight nor sound business prudence for a man to provide in his Will for those he wishes to benefit or protect after he passes on, and yet, at the same time, leave them to face the problems of settling together the funds to pay the Duties—with the possibility of much delay, loss and worry. Whether an estate consists mostly of business, or is made up of real estate, or stocks, bonds or other securities, there is the possibility of loss if part of the estate must be sold in order to get available funds. A forced sale is usually a bad sale.

A Life Insurance policy of sufficient amount will not only clear off these tax obligations, but meanwhile, during life, will safeguard home, business and personal interests.

The last act of a man's life, if he is well-to-do, is the act of going into debt unless he insures the immediate cancellation of that debt by means of life insurance. In view of the uncertainty of life, the certainty of debt for taxes, and the need of available funds to clear the estate, it is generally conceded that the only practicable way for a man to safeguard his estate is by means of life insurance, which, for a moderate annual payment, will provide the required funds when needed.

GROUP INSURANCE IN 1921

More Firms Now Provide Insurance Protection for Their Employees

Last Year's Group Business Doubled by the Canada Life

Our second year in the writing of group insurance shows substantial progress in this comparatively new branch of our business; the year's issued business amounting to $5,333,950, as compared with $2,858,450 during the previous year. Twenty-one new groups are included under this group coverage, providing insurance protection for an additional 4,501 employees.

These groups represent various interests: industrial, commercial, governmental and educational. The business firms, who secured group insurance in the Canada Life in 1921, include such varied lines as Furniture, Printing, Publishing, Metal Working, Automobile, Paint, Glass, Oil and other manufactures. Also Banking, Investment, Fire and Marine Insurance and other financial interests are included in our 1921 list of group policyholders. We also issued group insurance on the civic employees of a large Canadian Municipality—the City of Calgary—and provided a substantial portion of the group insurance protection secured by the Provinces of Manitoba and Quebec for the Government employees of those progressive Provinces.

There is every indication that group insurance is here to stay and is rapidly becoming a large and important factor in the life insurance business. It fills a distinct need in the business world by providing a simple plan under which all employees of an employer can be insured—as every worker and producer ought to be. It has extended beyond the industrial and commercial field, where it was largely developed for the welfare of the wage-earner and his family, and now covers employees in Banks, Trust Companies, Investment Offices, Educational Institutions, and even includes employees of cities and Provinces.

The persistency of group business shows the value placed by employers and employees in this form of insurance. Notwithstanding the temporary industrial depression and enforced economy in many lines of trade and commerce, few employers have discontinued their group contracts. The business has been as well maintained as other regular lines of insurance, and policies are carried on even in cases where it is known that the business of the employer is at its lowest ebb and the firm trying to economize in every way. Some of the policies now aggregate smaller amounts of insurance on account of reduced working forces, but such reductions may be regarded as only a temporary condition. All this indicates that group insurance has proven its worth and permanency.

This year we are able to offer a modification of our group scheme, to be known as Wholesale Insurance, to include groups of employees, under fifty in number, and also members of Associations and Lodges, hitherto not eligible for regular group term insurance. A further development of the group plan is the issue of group endowment or pension policies to provide, not only insurance protection for dependents of employees, but to guarantee also a retiring fund or pension for employees upon reaching the time for retirement. The group endowment or pension plan involves a larger premium outlay for the employer, but arrangements are usually made for both employer and employee to contribute to the payment of the premium on a fifty-fifty basis. This endowment-pension plan helps the employee to save, and with the contribution from the employer gives him a stake in the business, thereby tending to develop greater interest and co-operation.

All these forms of group and wholesale insurance are supplemental to the regular field of individual life insurance, and open up new and untold possibilities for life insurance service.

Baketball Girls Request Co-operation of Citizens

NEED FUNDS TO HELP WIN IN GAMES PLAYED OUTSIDE

Girls in the city who are interested in basketball, and there are many of them, outside of the actual players on the different teams, who number probably 100, are anxious to arouse public enthusiasm in the games in the projected schedule which starts to-morrow, when the local team which represents Peterboro in the Ontario Ladies' Basketball Association goes to St. Catharines for the first competition.

Interest in ladies' basketball has been rising in Peterboro for the last two or three years. Last year a City League was formed at the Y.W.C.A. to compete for a silver cup donated by Mrs. E. E. Harvey, which was won by the Normalites, and presented at a banquet held at the Y.W.C.A. to wind up the season's activities. Basketball is a fine indoor sport, and girls working in factories and offices all day or bending over desks in the class-room can find nothing better to improve their physical condition. Miss Jean McLaughlin, physical director at the Y.W.C.A., has the major part of it to do in directing the girls, and the City League, competing again this year for the silver cup, practices on Thursday and Friday evenings at the "Y" under her direction.

This is the first time that a Peterboro team has been entered in the Ontario Ladies' Basketball Asociation, and it will rebound distinctly to the credit of the city if the young ladies are enabled to make a good showing in the three games which take place here and the three games outside. They are selling tickets, three for a dollar, as admission fee to the local games, and are anxious to dispose of as many as possible, as they benefit directly by the sale of all tickets bought before the games, this money being devoted towards defraying the expenses of the team when playing out of town.

A loyal support from the sport-loving public interested in the girls' games would go far towards helping them to success.

Tonight the girls are playing their first game in St. Catharines, which plays a return game here Saturday next.

The line-up for tonight's game is as follows: Forwards; Helen Bulmer (captain) and Ann Bulmer. Centre: Burness Pidgeon. Defence: Carrie Coon and Madeline Pulkinhorn. Spares: Thelma Paxman and Gertrude Kirn. Miss Jean McLaughlin goes with the girls also.

YOUTH OF TODAY MUST BE SERVED

How much money did our grandmothers have for spending, when they were school-girls? It is hard to say, but perhaps it would not be rash to make the assertion that it wasn't very much. Long ago, necessities were the order of the day, and luxuries didn't seem quite as important as now.

Local school-girls have a great fad for having their shoes blackened, or browned, or whitened, as the occasion demands, at some down-town emporium. It may be because the other girls do it, or because there happens to be a handsome young attendant at the counter, or however the case may be, it's the thing to do anyway. And seventy-five cents is the amount they demand for the weekly Saturday afternoon jaunt.

So much for the shoe-shine, and so much for the theatre, and the balance for afternoon tea down town. And then we have the press flooded and sermons with denunciatory epithets levelled at the extravagance of the modern woman. She doesn't learn it all of a sudden, but, like most other things, when she is growing up.

A local school-girl whose allowance had been five dollars per week, for sundry expenses outside of her actual clothing, recently stated that she could not manage with this amount, and requested that it be doubled, and a young lady starting off for a course in Toronto schools demanded a monthly sum of twenty-five dollars as the least she could manage with, this, of course, outside of tuition fees at her school.

Entertainment by St. John's Ladies

St. John's Church Women's Association is holding an old-fashioned party in the Parish Hall next Thursday evening, and the ladies are requesting that everyone attending should come, if possible, in a costume of an older time. Prizes are being given for the best costumes.

Those attending these entertainments in the past have been loud in their praise of the fun and jollity prevailing, and the pleasure derived from consideration of the modes of another day.

There will also be a musical program and an evening of games and guessing contests, with refreshments at the conclusion. The ladies of the society, whose work is mainly a helping on of any activities connected with the church, are interested particularly this year in the payment of the mortgage on the rectory.

Fashion Notes

Colors still lead in silk umbrella styles.

Frosted fruits on plain felt hats are seen in some of the smart shops.

Black jet necklaces are worn at all times of the day and with almost all kinds of costumes.

The fancy for Pailsey prints and weaves is very strongly expressed in the advance showing of spring apparel.

Sleevelets made up may now be purchased to lengthen old frocks. They come in gray shades of georgette, net or lace, and are attached to the short sleeve and drawn in by their velvet running string to the wrist.

Cream which is to whipped should be cold and at least thirty-six hours old.

Two Simple Things To do

Two things you must do in order to accumulate savings:

1. Start a savings account.
2. Keep adding to it.

A savings account in The Bank of Nova Scotia may be opened with a small deposit.

Regular deposits even if not large in amount will soon build up a balance that will stand between you and the needs of the uncertain future.

Investigations Harbor Romance

With regard to the Mothers' Allowance Act, the Toronto Globe, in its issue of January 18th says:

"Every new development in Canadian life seems to bring its own opportunities for adventure and romance and investigators for the Mothers' Allowances Act in outlying districts are finding that, even in their occupation, there is plenty of the picturesque. Miss Farncomb, Chief Inspector, revealed something of the color to be found in the work in an interesting talk before a meeting of the Toronto Chapter, Graduate Nurses' Association held at the Nurses' Residence of the General Hospital.

Mingled with Miss Farncomb's statistics were stories of one heroic investigator in the North, who rides in the caboose of the train from place to place, helps the men wash the dishes; has gone miles on a handcar with two Polacks for company; sleeps in railway stations, "does her work much better than a man" says Miss Farncomb, who adds, "and she isn't a nurse either."

The chief inspector says the work of the 17 investigators, 16 of whom are women, is greatly helped by the rural school nurse, who seconds the investigator's efforts to improve health conditions, thereby making the mother's allowance of more constructive value to her family.

Beneficiaries of the fund are increasing in number rapidly, and last year's expenditure of $775,000 will be largely exceeded in 1922. Among those receiving allowances are 2,504 widows, and 74 women whose husbands are in the asylum, the children benefited by having the mother at home being 8,735.

Incidentally, Miss Farncomb discovered that tuberculosis, with influenza and pneumonia, was responsible for a large percentage of the mortality that had left families dependent on the State.

Miss Farncomb said that in most cases the mothers found it necessary to augment the funds under the act—$40 for two children, $45 for three, $50 for four and $55 for five.

The Difficulties of Women's Societies

Womens societies as a rule encounter many difficulties in the prosecution of their different endeavors to help along various excellent measures. Although many in the community are willing to criticize these societies for their ability to accomplish much in a concrete way, the critics are not willing to lend a helping hand.

A lady who is interested in the bettermen of local films and the eradication of objectionable billboards from public view, related some of her experiences at a recent meeting. A woman friend informed her that it was all very well for some people to like pictures of the "goody-goody" class, but there were many women who preferred spice in theatrical productions.

A man who was appealed to with regard to an objecionable billboard came back with the assertion that it was not half as bad as the spectacles on view at some of the local bathing beaches, an assertion, of course, which could hardly be gainsaid.

Something else that local women have been interested in is the project of opening the Public Library on Sundays. As one lady remarked at a recent meeting "We thought that there was a public demand for this convenience, and now we find out that the attendance is diappointingly slight." The three trial months for this venture are over, but the Board is willing to keep the Library open for the month of January as a final experiment.

Care of the Mentally Deficient has been a plank in platform of the Women's Council for many years and they have been hammering away at it for a considerable length of time. On several occasions, just when victory seemed in their grasp the government has changed, and all their labour went for nought. But they are still "hammering away" and probably sometime in the future success will crown the efforts of many thousands of women who kept right at it through laborious years.

The United Farm Women of Alberta are taking this question, and at a recent convention, demanded that compulsory medical treatment be aforded menally deficient school children. The mentally defective child has been a problem, and an expensive one, for educationalists these many years, and in many cases, it is claimed that proper medical attention would do much to remedy the evil.

For Women

DOCTORS AMAZED AT WONDERS DONE BY NEW MEDICINE

Worth Millions to Suffering Humanity — Works Wonders on Headaches, Indigestion, Constipation, Rheumatism, Kidney Pains, etc.

Your complexion is not clear, you have pains between the shoulder blades, you are constipated, have no energy, no appetite, headaches, rheumatism, etc. These are all the well-known signs that your liver is out of order and is not exiting bile into the bowels, thereby causing all these pains and aches.

Doctors will tell you that 90 per cent. of the people who come to them for treatment have trouble due directly to the Liver. It is simple when you stop to think about it. When your Liver becomes inactive and fails to pour Bile into the intestines, your system is unable to execrete the waste, then the blood begins to distribute this waste throughout the whole system, striking at the weakest organ. Until this Liver trouble is overcome, you cannot expect to have perfect health, and life to you will be a drudgery.

Doctors recommend that you take one Tanated Calomel about fifteen minutes before each meal, or you may take two at bedtime, and you will wake up the next morning feeling tip-top. No sedlitz, salts, or castor oil are necessary to eliminate the Calomel, as it is self-eliminating.

Tanated Calomel is quickly assimilated by the system, and begins to act soon after taking. It has no bad after-effects, as nausea, sick headaches, griping, etc., but acts very mild and smooth, causing a natural elimination of the waste poison, making you look and feel bright, alert, vigorous and vivacious again.

Tanated Calomel is sold by F. C. Weber's Drug Store.

BABY KEN.

Bright as a Sunbeam, Thanks to Virol.

Lamerton, Tavistock, 2.11.19.

Dear Sir,

Here is a photo of Baby Ken — as hard as nails and bright as a sunbeam. He is 8 months old, and weighs 21 lb. He has been a "Virol Baby" from the age of 10 weeks, before which he was very small and thin and could never be satisfied. I usually tell his many admirers that he is a "Virol Baby."

Yours gratefully,
(Signed) (Mrs.) L. A. T.

Virol is used in large quantities in more than 2,500 Hospitals and Infant Clinics. It is invaluable for the expectant and nursing mother herself, whilst for children it supplies those vital principles that are destroyed in the sterilising of milk; it is also a bone and tissue building food of immense value. THE RELIEF BUREAU MET mised to bring the matter before their several societies, the representative from St. Paul's Presbyterian church was uncertain as to action of her society, but thought that each organization should finance its own undertakings, and the member representing the Big Sisterhood reported that, as the funds of this society were donated for charitable purposes, they could do nothing in the way of financial assistance. It is understood that both the Rotary and the Kiwanis Clubs have promised to contribute.

Idea of Bureau.

As considerable comment has been made on the action of the King's Daughters in forming this bureau, and as the King's Daughters have been accused of trying to 'run' the charitable works of the city, several of the members were very anxious that considerable stress be laid on the fact that the idea of the Bureau simply originated with this society, that they intended to step out entirely from any direct management of it as soon as permanent officers should be elected, and that they would act as an investigating committee for new cases only until such time as a committee might be appointed for this branch of the work. Their aim and object, stated simply, was to organize a working basis for the equitable and adequate distribution of relief through the city, and there their work ended.

Need of Co-operation.

The success of the Bureau, and its capacity for rendering service to the community, depended entirely on the co-operation of the members, declared Mr. Leon Fraser, who emphasized the importance of every society, through its accredited representatives, using it in all cases, sending in information for tabulation and referring it in every instance.

Vote of Thanks.

A hearty vote of thanks, moved by the Rev. H. W. Young, seconded by L. Fraser, and tendered the unanimous approval of the meeting, was tendered to Mrs. A. W. Turner and Miss Margaret English for their splendid expenditure of time and energy in establishing the confidential Bureau of Information.

Mrs. Nettie Littell, mother of Audrey, with whom the girl and her children are living, said the boxer's prosperity and success had gone to his head.

"He was as fond of Audrey as a man could be until he had this success. Then he felt that she was not good enough for him. She did not have fine clothes for there was little money, and the children needed her care. He was made much of everywhere, and he gradually grew away from Audrey and the children," Mrs. Littell said.

The grandmother said Tremaine had always purchased candy and ice cream for the children on his visits, and had seemed to love them.

Petits Mechins, Matane Co., Que. Jan. 20.—(Special—Rejoicing that she is again in good health after six years of sufering, Dame Edmond Roy of this place is singing the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"You can tell everyone," says Dame Roy, "that the pain in my side has disappeared and that my strength has come back."

"I suffered for six years," she continues, "I was also troubled with rheumatism, cramps in the muscles, backache and headache. I took only eight boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills."

The reason that Dame Roy got such prompt help from Dodd's Kidney Pills is that every one of her troubles is a symptom of Kidney trouble. Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They strengthen the kidneys to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood.

Lindsay Eliminate Holy Name Juniors

THE MIDGETS PROVE THEIR SUPERIORITY IN HARD BATTLE AT BROCK ST. RINK—FINAL SCORE WAS 6 TO 2.

The Lindsay Midgets won the championship of Section B of the group race last night when they beat the Holy Name squad in a Junior O.H.A. game at Brock street rink by six goals to two. While the final score is hardly indicative of the play, the better team beyond an argument won. The Midgets are fast, strong and aggressive. Not a great hockey team by any means, for their attack is crude and they have no system in working in for a shot, but a close-checking crew that are hard to shake off. And they had the final punch that counts, outlasting the Green shirts and drawing away from them on end.

Lindsay were in front 1 to 0 at the end of the first period and had a shade the better of the argument in the first twenty minutes. It was 2 to 1 in favour of the Midgets at the close of the second, although the Petes looked a lot better in the middle session, and with more accurate shooting would have been ahead when the teams left the ice for their second rest. Lindsay got a lucky counter at the beginning of the third period, but the Holy Name team quickly retaliated, and with the score 3 to 2 it was anybody's game until the Lindsay crew came back with their fourth marker. The homesters were a beaten team from then on and showed it. Some of them forgot to play hockey and began to go after the man instead of the puck, and Lindsay cinched the argument by running in two more goals. They had a couple of hundred supporters with them who went wild with delight as they saw their favourites pull away from their old rivals.

It was a hard fought battle and the pace was fast all the way, the second period being the most spectacular of the three.

The Holy Name team suffered at their own end of the rink because of loose goalkeeping, and in front of the Lindsay nets from poor shooting. Two or three easy goals were registered by the visitors, one of which was pulled into the net by Lebarr. On the other hand the Green Shirts threw away their best opportunities by weak and wild gunnery when in close. These defects, and Lindsay's persistent checking eliminated the Peterborough crew.

For Lindsay Hall, the light-haired defence man, and Chambers, Mills and Williams starred. Hall, a husky youngster, checked cleverly, and the Petes found him a hard man to stop when he tore down the ice. Mills bagged four of Lindsay's gaols and shot nicely all through.

Foley was the best of the home crew, especially after he was moved back to the defence. He did some great rushing and stick-handling, giving his best exhibition of the season, but he spoiled it all by the display of bad temper he made in the last five minutes. Legon tried hard, but he was closely watched by the visitors and found it hard to shake off the persistent checking. Brennan gave his best to pull out a victory for the Green Shirts, and although he dislocated his shoulder in the second period, he refused to quit. McPherson, not used much until the last period, did some fine work in the final twenty minutes.

The checking was close and hard in the first period, with neither squad showing much team work on the attack, with the result that scoring opportunities were few and far between. Lindsay got the only counter half way through the period when Mills carried the rubber down and shot from outside the defence, beating Lebarr cleanly.

The Green Shirts contributed their best hockey in the second period, and on the play should have done better than break even in the matter of goals scored, each team registering once. The Holy Name crew were going at top speed in this session, but their exertions were negatived by wild shooting, and they missed several golden chances. The period was well advanced when Foley finally evened the count by a long shot which bounced in front of McClory and found a resting place in the net. It began to look as if the period would end with a tie score when Chambers took the rubber away from Pethick and going up the side took a chance shot at the net from the corner, the rubber dropping between the posts after striking Lebarr. That left Lindsay 2 to 1 in front at the close of the stanza.

Jerry Coughlin switched his lineup considerably for the final dash, benching Lamore, sending Foley back to the defence, moving Legon to centre and putting McPherson at right wing. It looked like his strongest array of the evening and they opened the period at a lively clip that looked as if they might pull the game out of the fire. But they fell down in the pinches by doing some terrible shooting. It was Lindsay who scored first, Mills getting a lucky break when he drilled one from well out. It was going wide but Lebarr tried to catch it and pulled it down into the net instead. That made it 3 to 1. McPherson evened up for the Petes, but Lindsay came right back with another on a three-man rush, Chambers scoring on a rebound. From then on Lindsay were much the best, Mills scoring the last two goals for them, the first from the scrimmage and the second after Chambers had carried the rubber down, Ranger supplied most of the fireworks at this stage by cracking Williams over the dome. The Lindsay man retaliated with a butt end and Ranger had to go off for repairs. When he came back he slashed Mills over the head and was sent off for the rest of the game.

The teams and summary:

A RECORD-BREAKING TRIP.

J. Robinson, of Niagara Falls, Ont., Performs Remarkable Feat.

The McLaughlin Motor Car Co. Bulletin 2128 has the following:

"At an average speed of a little over 35 miles per hour, J. Robinson, of Niagara Falls, Ontario, performed an amazing feat in a continuous trip from Montreal to Niagara Falls, driving his McLaughlin-Buick 44 Special Roadster, setting a record it will be difficult to equal, and that reflects great credit upon both the driver and the car.

"Mr. Robinson left the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, at 7 o'clock in the morning of Sunday, October 16th, and driving the entire trip himself, a distance of 513 miles, reached his garage at Niagara Falls, Ontario, at 1.30 a.m. Monday.

"The Master Six McLaughlin 1919 model had already 40,000 miles to its credit, and this remarkable record was made under far from ideal conditions. A large portion of the trip was made after dark, and the roads in some places were a severe test to any car.

"After leaving Montreal, Mr. Robinson continued on the Canadian side until reaching Crown Point, where he crossed to the American side. He spent about two hours in the country, where he ran out of gasoline, and another stop of an hour in Malone, N.Y. He also spent about forty-five minutes each at Rochester and Watertown, N.Y."

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

CLEVER PLAYERS APPEAR IN CAST OF PARAMOUNT PICTURE, "THE WILD GOOSE"

Mary MacLaren, Holmes E. Herbert, Dorothy Bernard, Joseph Smiley, Norman Kerry and Rita Rogan Make up the Roster.

When a photoplay production is made by Albert Capellani for Cosmopolitan, it is a certainty that the finest players obtainable will interpret the various roles and that its stage investiture will be all that the most discriminating artistic taste could demand.

Thus it is that for "The Wild Goose," a Paramount picture which will be shown at the Regent Theatre next Monday, one of the best casts ever assembled in a Cosmopolitan production was engaged by Director Capellani. The result was an all round performance of the finest quality.

The principal roles are in the hands of Mary MacLaren and Holmes E. Herbert. Although new to Paramount audiences, Miss MacLaren is an actress of ability who is rapidly forging to the front. She is a sister of Katherine MacDonald who scored heavily in "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," and for a time she appeared with great success in "The Passing Show of 1914" in New York.

Holmes E. Herbert is an actor of fine ability who was on the legitimate stage six years before he engaged in motion picture work. He has been seen in many Paramount pictures and in "The Wild Goose" he is the husband of Diana Manners, the role of the romantic wife portrayed by Miss MacLaren. The dramatic ability of both are fully tested in these roles.

Others in the cast include Norman Kerry, a capable player who was last seen in "Proxies" and "Buried Treasure." Dorothy Bernard, a well known and popular actress, has a strong role, as also has Joseph Smiley, Rita Rogan, a highly talented actress, has a delightful role.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Capitol Offers a Splendid Program for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of Next Week—Tom Meighen, in "Cappy Ricks", Coden and Luken, a Clever Black Face Team, and Marion Hamilton, Scotch Comedienne.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Capitol presents an excellent show. Tom Meighen the poular star will be seen in his liveliest picture, "Cappy Ricks". The vaudeville act will be another clever black face team of singers, dancers and comedians, also Marion Hamilton, Scotch comedienne, just from Scotland. The comedy will be a two reel laugh entitled "Circus Heroes".

Thomas Meighen, Paramount star, followed the footsteps of Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpenier during the filming of "Captain Ricks", his latest picture. He had a punching bag installed in his hotel in Boston and engaged in most strenous exercise.

No, Mr. Meighan is not pugilistically inclined, but frequently motion picture actors have to do things they don't like. In "Cappy Ricks" Peter B. Kyne's sea stories, which the Paramount company adapted to the screen there is a fight—a real one between "Matt Peasley" and "All Hands and Feet Peterson" Mr. Meighan plays the role of "Matt Peasley," hence the training

Mr. Meighan's decision to train for the screen fight came rather suddenly. When he read of the fight in the scenario he didn't think much about it, but when Tom Forman, the director, introduced Ivan Linow, Russian wrestler and prize fighter to Mr. Meighan as "All Hands and Feet Peterson," the situation assumed an entirely different aspect. Linow weighs 225 pounds, has hands like hams, ears beautifully decorated with cauliflowers, and a 30-inch neck.

"I quit fighting when I accidentally killed Bill Downing in Bangor, Maine," said Linow to Meighan "and since that time I have been wrestling. But I can still put up a pretty good scrap if I have to."

"Excuse me a moment please" interrupted Mr. Meighan "I'll be right back."

He went to Tom Forram, who was directing a scene from the state pier.

"When are you going to shoot the fight scene?" he asked nonchalently.

"Tomorrow, if the weather is good,' was the reply.

"Let's put it off a week and shoot another sequence," Mr. Meighan responded. "If I am going to fight that bruiser over there—(pointing to the huge Linow) Ill have to work out some. I haven't had a real fight in a picture in a long time and if I expect to give and take in this one, you must give me time to get my wind tuned up."

So it was arranged to postpone the bout for a week. Thats not a very long time to train, but for a screen fight it's ample. Mr. Meighan went back and to Linow and told him to take things easy for a while.

"You nedn't prepare for the scrap" he explained. "It will not be a hard one for you. As a matter of fact, if you want to get a little stale it will be alright."

Every morning at 7o'clock Meighan worked out for thirty minutes with the punching bag. Tom Forman, who refereed the fight from behind the camera says its a corker. "Cappy Ricks", fight and all will be the feature, Monday night.

'UNDER COVER' BY REX STOCK COMPANY AT THE GRAND.

A two hundred thousand pearl necklace. A corrupt customs chief—a mysterious and gallant hero. His friend, that is loyal tho scared to death. A beautiful girl, who loves the mysterious, but whose love for her sister impels her to testify against him—Noises in the dark. Mysterious signals strang forms creeping into the windows at night, strange signs. People mysteriously attacked, searched, and pitched aside in their own gardens at night, and so on in one furious act after another Oh,Boy, there is something doing every minute in the Rex Stock Company's play next week "Under Cover". But aside from all that it is a great play, good enough to make an actor of the caliber of H. B. Warner. With the dressing, and the stage settings to go with it, we'll say it will be one of the biggest events the Rex Stock Company has attempted.

They call her "The Unloved Wife." It is enough, it is better that we should know her as "The Heart-broken Wife". This girl is one of many. We do not know what is in her heart. It is entirely possible that she is fearful of a man. She may even have entered matrimony, willingly, expectantly—? The important things is ,she is "unloved," all of which is another way of explaining that "The Unloved Wife", the Unusual- Gripping- Fascinating play is at the Grand Theatre, tonight, with matinee for ladies only, with a complete production and an excellent cast of players. The evening performance is for everybody over the age of sixteen.

AT THE ROYAL.

A certain wise man once said, "There is no Royal road to learning." He was right! The only road to learning lies through a forest of application, and is strewn with many bumps of experience. However, there is a Royal road to pleasure and contentment. This road lies through a forest of forgotten troub'es, and is smoothly paved with laughter and brighter thoughts. If you have had a hard week of it, forget your worries by enjoying a few hours at the Royal Theatre tonight. After your mind has been centered on a thrilling photo-drama and your spirits cheered by laughter you will feel better and be in better shape to attend to your duties of the morrow. The laughter-compelling five-reel feature, "From Hicksville to Broadway," is officially termed a drama. It is really a high-class comedy, with an intensely interesting plot. A small town druggist is in love with the beautiful daughter of a nearby farmer. The druggist sells his town property at a big price to a railway. He tells his girl he thinks he will make her a better husband by first sowing a few wild oats in New York. An actress, with four nicks in her wedding ring, comes to the farm to recuperate from a nervous breakdown. She sizes up the young druggist as a false alarm, and advises his fiancee to go to New York and put the young fellow to a test of his constancy, and giving the girl letters to friends of hers in the city. The girl, acting on this advice, meets her lover whilst she poses as an artist's model, a roof garden dancer, etc. The young man is getting letters every week from Hicksville from his old sweetheart, written in New York, and re-mailed at the home town. The girl meets a rich young New York artist, who falls in love with her. Which man does she promise to love, honor and sway? Anyhow, the plot terminates with the wedding march. Larry Semon, the world's great comedian, in his new play called "The Suitor," makes the blue devils of bad humor disappear quicker than small change at a church bazaar. This two-reel comedy is a screamer. From where the stout lady at a ball gets a live lizard inside the decolete back of her gown to where Larry makes his sensational exchange from a swiftly moving motor cycle to an airplane above, this comedy is full of thrills, laughter and pretty girls. The big Western feature, "To a Finish," with Buck Jones in the leading role, is an exceptionally interesting picture. The "Book Agent" comedy should be seen by every woman who answers the bell fifty times a day, only to find it is not a telegram advising her that she has come into a fortune. The whole bill for to-night is clean, cheerful, bright and the best money can provide.

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

The O.H.A. Junior race so far as Peterborough is concerned is over. The P.A.A.A. Juniors vanished on Tuesday night, and the Holy Name youngsters drop into the discard as a result of last night's disaster. The better team won last evening's struggle, although the score does not fairly represent the difference between the two on the night's play. Lindsay had the breaks in getting two of their cheap goals and in the wild shooting of the Petes at close quarters, but their victory was earned by their persistent checking and because they kept their heads better than some of the local players.

From a sporting standpoint the most regrettable feature about the game was that a couple of the Peterborough team, in the dying moments of the tussle, failed to take defeat like sportsmen. The closing episodes left a bad taste in the mouths of a lot of fans. Ranger was the worst offender. He started the fireworks by chopping Williams over the head, and the Lindsay right wing proved himself just as culpable by dropping Ranger with a butt end. When the latter got back on the ice, he viciously slashed Mills over the head, and was properly sent off for the balance of the game. Stuff like that will not win hockey games, nor will it win friends for the players who are guilty of such tactics.

It is not a pleasant duty to have to write paragraphs like the foregoing, but if sport is to be kept clean in Peterborough, somebody has to assume the unwelcome task of rebuking the offenders. It is hoped that there will be no occasion for any more criticism of this kind.

Famous Words of Famous Men:

"You'll have to cut out that smoking."—Police-Sergt. Jack Deannard.

Eugene Hurtubise is advertised to take part in a wrestling match tonight. Friends of the local grappler who may be planning to attend on the strength of his name appearing in the announcements are advised that Mr .Hurtubise has informed The Examiner that he did not authorise the notices that have been published, and that he has no intention of taking part in the programme to-night. So that's that.

Not only are Aura Lee bringing their whole regular line-up to Peterborough, but the Senior O.H.A. leaders will have their full squad with them. Ten men in all will be used, and the Petes, of course, will have the same privilege of using two extra substitutes. There should be few dull moments.

Steve Vair, who officiated in last night's game, and Walter Smaill, the P.A.A.A. sports director, are old hockey friends, and they got into a fanning bee after the first period that might have been going yet if the timers had not located the referee after a long search.The teams got an extra lengthy rest period as a result of the Vair-Smaill confab.

Manager Pilling, of the C.G.E. Toolroom City League outfit, evidently regards the reference in these columns to the regret of many fans at Lornie Rose's signing with the C.G.E. team instead of with the Bankers as a criticism of his team. He writes as follows:

Sir,—Referring to an item in the sporting column of The Examiner of 19th January, re the strengthening of the Bankers'-team, may I say that hockey never was, and never will be, a game of "Alphonso and Gaston." The very essence of the game is a contest both in regard to organising the team and playing the game, and why the Toolroom club is expected to take the part of "Alphonso" is a mystery to me. The writer does not think that the City League was organised for the purpose of bringing out new material, but rather to give the men who are over the junior age limit, and who could not find a place on the Intermediate O.H.A. team, a chance to continue the game, and to have the play of a standard high enough to make it self-supporting so far as expenses are concerned. The Toolroom club has always aimed to be fair and play the game, and I think the "slams" they get from time to time are entirely undalled for. (Signed) J. Pilling.

The C.G.E. management have, of course, a perfect right to sign up any players that are available, and if their team was sending up S.O.S. signals for reinforcements, they were wise in getting the best that was in sight. But similarly the fans have a perfect right to think that it would have been better for the City League if the Bankers had secured Rose. He would have converted them into a team that would have made all the City League outfits step to town. No "slam" at the Electricians was intended when this fact was pointed out.

Some Pests We Meet:

The nut who shouts out "Get him!!" at the hockey matches.

Our old friend Tommy Moffatt, sporting impressario extraordinary, has been heard from. It is a dull season when Tommy is not managing a team or two or running a hockey or a baseball league. This winter finds him in Marmora, and as usual he is busy, for he is secretary of the Trent Valley Hockey League and holding a similar position with the Trent Valley High School League. He should be right in his element as the W. A. Hewitt of the Trent Valley!

Hockey's Tragic Moments:

When a Peterborough player works inside the defence, draws out the goalkeeper—and then misses the open nets.

It is difficult to recall a hockey game in which so many "sloppy" goals were registered as in last night's fixture. Both the Peterborough markers were scored on long, easy shots, while Lindsay scored one in that way. A couple of others from scrimmages, another on a chance shot from an impossible angle that hit Lebarr and carromed into the net, and one even more of a gift than that which the Peterborough net guardian presented to them by deflecting a high and wide shot into the twine.

To-day's Happy Thought:

The Juniors may be out, but the P.A.A.A. are still in the running, and just "rarin' to go." F. D. C.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrup, and saves about $2. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and saves easily $2. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Aura Lee Bringing Whole Squad Here

The Aura Lee team are regarding the game here on Monday night in the right spirit, looking upon it as a splendid work-out for their O.H.A. games, and they are bringing their whole squad to Peterborough. They will have ten men in uniform, and the P.A.A.A. team will be represented by the same number. The game is attracting even more interest than the Dominion Bank fixture this week, and the Rink will be jammed to the doors.

The Aura Lee team will use Thompson and Crook in the nets. Hogarth and Conacher on the defence, Buick, Rodden and Rutherford as the regular forward line, and Meeking, Stephenson and Muston as subs.

BASKETBALL

The Junior O.B.A.A. team had a fast practice last night with the Senior School Class furnishing the opposition. The practice was held with the object of developing defensive play, and as a result of this, only one basket was scored against them in a half-hour's play, while they scored 58 points. A. Elliott and Hardill starred last night, each scoring 9 baskets.

PROVINCIAL LABRATORY WITHOUT CARETAKER

The Property Committee of the Council deputed the chairman, Ald. McIntyre, to interview Robert Wilson, janitor of the city buildings, with respect to the work of taking care of the new Provincial Laboratory. These offices are on the third floor of the City Hall, and it was stated that Mr. Wilson's agreement with the city did not cover the third floor. Dr. McNair has had to make his own arrangtments for the work, but the city is liable for it, and has been asked to arrange to assume it as soon as possible. Ald. McIntyre was instructed to ask Mr. Wilson upon what terms he would take over the laboratory rooms, and if Mr. Wilson does not wish to add them to his daily round, Ald. McIntyre is to ascertain what other arrangements can be made.

INFLUENCE OF HOME AND ENVIRONMENTS

DR. BLAGRAVE ADDRESSES MEETING IN QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL.

A large attendance marked the open meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association last evening, addressed by Rev. Dr. Blagrave on "The Child and the Time".

Dr. Blagrave's short address was marked by the thoughtful eloquence which characterizes his public utterances, and was received with attention by his audience. He spoke on the four-fold education of the child of today, in its spiritual, intellectual, physical and social life. The schools were trying to develop the child in all four ways.

The speaker stressed the influence of the home and its environments an the growing life of the child. It learns from what it sees and hear in its home-life, and its character is molded by the actions and speech of its parents.

The speaker deprecated the example of 'street corner' education, and the tendency of the 'movies' to deaden the finer sensibilities of the child nature, in their presentation of scenes of horror, violence and crime There is an influence exerted also on the child life of to-day to emphasize the mundane view of things, and to teach the child the importance of getting, rather than of serving. Religion, said Dr. Blagrave, comes as naturally to the child as exercise or play. It may be shy about it, but it has a deep religious feeling which only requires the proper training to make the guiding influence of its life.

A pleasant musical programme was rendered by vocal selections by the Misses Florence Harrison and Etta Kemp, instrumental solos by Miss Marjorie Turner and Verne Willard, and a reading by Miss Helen Morrison. A guessing contest and the serving of refershments concluded an enjoyable evening. Mr. A. Mowat occupied the chair.

SORES SPREAD ALL OVER FACES AND HANDS

Mrs. Howard Houlette, Waskatenau, Sask., writes:—"I wish to tell you of the benefit we have received by using your valuable medicine Burdock Blood Bitters.

My children started to break out on their faces in small white pimples which kept getting larger each day. Pus would form under the scabs and they would come off, and each time the sores would be larger; some were as large as a twenty-five cent piece and would spread all over their bodies. I was nearly in despair and sent to the village for a bottle of good blood medicine. The druggist sent me a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, which I commenced giving them at once.

In about ten days I saw an improvement and they grew steadily better each day, and in one month the sores had all disappeared."

All blood and skin diseases are caused by bad blood, and to get it pure and keep it pure you must remove every trace of the impure and morbid matter from the system by a blood cleansing medicine such as a remedy that has been on the market for the past forty-five years, and one without an equal for all diseases and disorders of the blood.

SEES GAY PARIS DICTATE STYLES.

Figaro Flatters French Milady as Fashion Arbiter.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—The influences of French fashions on the world in general, America in particular, is treated in a serio-comic vein by a writer in Figaro, who, addressing the French woman, says:

Madame When announcing to your husband that from henceforth you are going o wear longer skirts, you probably were thinking of the length of material needed and not of the importance of the act you were accomplishing. You did not perhaps realize the consequences, not only to the world of fashion but to the world generally.

"Or, if you did realize them, you had the modesty not to speak of them thus adding to your generous initiative a quiet discretion which shows true merit. You will pretend that in allowing a few extra inches you only thought of modifying your 'line' and of harmonizing your esthetics: unless perhaps you were simply obeying a general order. With all due deference to you, madame, we are going to reveal the international and social importance of your decision.

"You realize, of course, that you, being a Parisian, wearing a longer skirt means that thousands and thousands of women all over the globe also will be wearing longer skirts, for they are all eager to follow your example, estimating that there is no better model to copy. In virtue of this, none of your gestures are indifferent. Whether they copy you two days or ten years later, it is only a question of distance. If the ladies of distant fashionable worlds still rig themselves in bustles it is only because they have not finished trying to resemble their grandmothers.

"But on the other side of the Atlantic a huge country, which is supposed to get ahead of progress, does not wait for the post to initiate her into the change of fashion in your country. She goes as far as to have the details telegraphed to her. Thus your last gown has scarcely been ordered when the ladies of American society already know the secrets connected with it. They heard of the lengthening of your skirts; and theirs have grown longer in consequence. And it is in this way that the effects of your salutory influence are felt.

"American dressmakers, taking statistics of their professional impressions, say that owing to the lengthening of the skirts the business returns in the textile industry will have increased by $60,000,000 They estimate the supplementary manufacture necessitated by this additional amount of stuff at 20,000,000 meters (more than 60,000,000 yards). The statistics and with information particularly valuable at a time when there is so much unemployment; a contingent of 20,000 men will be employed for the sole reason, madame, that you have been kind enough to wear your skirts longer.

"America often proclaims the economic debt that she owes to French fashions. It is only right to attribute to you, madame the merit of the idea which will benefit the textile industry of the United States. It is you who have inspired this commercial recrudescence and you will be feted because of it until, one day, being tired of wearing long skirts, you resolve, inconstant madame, to shorten them again, and at the same time to cause American salaries to fall once more."

Wireless Telephones for Chicago Police; Each Patrolman to Have Pocket Appartus

CHICAGO, January 21.—Every policeman travelling a beat in Chicago is to be equipped with a miniature wireless telephone, a small apparatus to be carried in the pocket, by means of which he can be in communication with headquarters every moment.

The wireless telephone is not exactly an untried experiment. It was employed to some evtent by Secret Service men during the war, and since then great improvements have been made.

The patrolman will be able to receive a message, but he cannot send one. The instrument, which can readily be held in the hand, has a receiver and when properly "tuned in" with headquarters permits the holder to hear his message as distinctly as from a call box under the present system. The receiving antennae will be placed in the lining of the policeman's coat.

The signal that headquarters is calling him is given by a buzzing sound from the antennae, and he then places the receiver to his ear and receives the message.

The adoution of this system gives police headquarters instant supervision over the entire city. Policemen may be despatched to any spot at any time without headquarters being obliged to wait until they "report in" at their patrol boxes, as at present. A few minutes gained in this manner will be of immense value in fighting crime.

Later, with more improved instruments, the patrolman will be able to send messages to his superiors.

Patrol wagons and rifle squads are already being equipped with wireless telephones and can both send and receive from any point in the city.

The first pocket telephones will be distributed in two months, and by the end of the year, it is said the entire force will be supplied

The other issues were quiet. Atlantic Sugar appeared fractionally higher at 25 1-2; Montreal Power sold unchanged at 88 1-2. National Breweries sold a half weaker at 56. A LONG PROCESSION.

The spirit of Edith Cavell at Peace Conference:

"Did a white moth flutter against the window pane?
Did a light wind whisper through the council hall?
The great men looked up, to see if it would come again,
And a listening silence fell upon them all.
Then they seemed to see her, coming with her bandaged eyes:
There was blood upon her dress where her wounds were bare;
So they placed a chair for her, without question or surprise,
For they knew the mighty dead had chosen to send her there.
They chose her, for she knew them all, soldier and little child—
The girls who in an hour grew old had sent a word by her;
Within her quiet hands she held the wrongs unreconciled—
She led a long procession, like a white-robed crucifer."

UNTHINKING.

"Men," she declared contemptuously, "are absolutely lacking in self-control, judgment and good taste."

"Possibly, my dear," he responded; "but just think how many old maids there would be if they were not!"

HE'S A GENTLEMAN.

The little girl travelling with her mother on a Bank street car, was suddenly heard to say to the man next to her: "Da Da." The mother said: "No, dear; that is not your daddy; that's a gentleman."

"The wisest thing we suppose that a man can do for his land,
Is the work that lies under his nose,
With the tools that lie under his hand."

Market News

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Recent sensational features were lacking at opening of today's stock market, but prices soon developed irregularity as Gulf States Steel repeated its recent uncertain course. That stock made an early gain of 1 1-2 points, but almost immediately re-acted three points to seventy.

Texas-Gulf Sulphur, Electric Storage battery, Manhattan elevated and Manhattan Shirt were one to 2 3-4 points higher. Food specialties including corn products as well as chemicals also hardened, but the market for specialties became somewhat unsettled on American Sugars decline of 1 1-2 points.

FARM YOUNG PEOPLE IN CONVENTION HERE

FIFTY DELEGATES REPRESENTING SEVEN CLUBS IN ATTENDANCE

Delegates to the number of about fifty, representing the seven U. F. Y. P. O. Clubs in East Peterborough, gathered in a convention this morning in their rooms, over the United Farmers' Grocery, on Simcoe Street. Mr. Vivian Milburn, ex-president of the Peterborough branch of the United Farm Young People's Club was in the chair, with Miss Ritz Brethen acting as secretary. Miss Pearl Petrie, who was chiefly instrumental in calling the delegation together, took charge of the proceedings, the main attention of the gathering being directed towards the formation of a debating club in Peterborough, to follow up the splendid success of the debating club in Victoria County.

Mr. H. B. Cowan, of the Farm and Dairy, spoke to the meeting on the subject of organization. He referred to the difficulties encountered by Western farmers, and spoke briefly on the qutstion of the tariff.

Mr. G. A. Brethen, M.P. for East Peterborough, also addressed the club, and Mr. Vivian Milburn and Miss Petrie explained the purpose of the gathering, to form a debating club, which would create a sociable spirit among the members, and would be the basis for a debating contest, open to the county.

Discussion of the subject occupied the morning session, which will complete the formation of the proposed club at the afternoon meeting.

TRADE IMPROVEMENT IN WESTERN CITIES

WINNIPEG, Jan. 21.—The beginning of the year has passed with but few assignments, due in some degree to an unwillingness to unduly press on the part of wholesalers. Collections show an improvement. Retail trade in larger cities shows an improvement, but smaller country towns find business still quiet, owing in many instances to retailers being unable to grant credit to any extent. Reports from Regina and Saskatoon, state wholesale conditions are now "fair." Retail trade is still on the quiet side and collections poor. British Columbia advices say "dry goods, furniture and several other lines fair with shipping of spring orders. Boot and shoe business at the coast rather quiet. Hardware shows a slight tendency to improve over December. Retail trade reports are encouraging but weather rather too changeable for improved business. Collections at coast slow to fair."

KEEP LITTLE ONES WELL IN WINTER

Winter is a dangerous season for the little ones. The days are so changeable—one day bright, the next cold and stormy, that the mother is afraid to take the children out for the fresh air and exercise they need so much. In consequence they are often cooped up in overheated, badly ventilated rooms and are soon seized with colds or grippe. What is needed to keep the little ones well is Baby's Own Tablets. They will regulate the stomach and bowels and drive out colds and by their use the baby will be able to get over the winter season in perfect safety. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DON'T NEGLECT LUNG COLDS

Weekly Health Talk No. 14
By A. P. Rogers, D.C.

When colds settle upon the lungs it is an indication of lung weakness which needs immediate attention. A lung cold, if neglected, may easily become lung congestion, and from that to pneumonia is but a step. Fatalities from pneumonia run very high, except where a chiropractor is called at the first inception of the case.

Uncle Ben Says:
Styles may come, and styles may go but one thing always in style is good health.

The chiropractor finds an area of nerve tenderness in cases where the lungs are involved around the third dorsal vertebra, which is between the shoulders. Quite often the nerve tracing shows this nerve tenderness over one, or both sides of the lungs. Usually the chiropractic spinal adjustments are given not only at the third dorsal, but at stomach, liver and kidney place also, as when these organs are of normal activity, they help to dispose of the wastes with which the body is charged, and which would otherwise add to the burden of the diseased lungs.

NO RETURN OF TUBERCULOSIS AFTER THREE YEARS

"I doctored with medical doctors for six years and all said I was tubercular. Three years ago when I finally decided to try chiropractic I was so weak that I had to be helped into the chiropractor's office. I began to improve after the first adjustment and after some months was entirely well. When I started with chiropractic the medical doctors said I would not live six months. In three years I have had no return of the ailment."—Hazel Martin Miller. Chiropractic Research Bureau Statement No. 1297H.

DANCING IN SCHOOLS.
Barrie Baord of Education has put a ban on dancing in the Collegiate Institute, which had become a nuisance. Pupils spent altogether too much time "tripping the light fantastic," and were, moreover, inclined to send to coventry those who would not join in the fun. One way and another, there are surely enough opportunities for dancing nowadays, without introducing it into the schools. —Orillia Packet.

Quite Unnecessary
A rather poor family unexnectedly came in possession of a fortune. They purchased a farm with hens, cows and pigs.
One day a little daughter of the family was showing a visitor about the place.
"Do your hens lay many eggs?" he asked.
"Oh, they can," was the haughty reply, "but in our position they don't have to."

SCIENTIFIC PROOF.
The teacher was having a first grade class in physiology. She asked them if they knew that there was a burning fire in the body all of the time. One little girl spoke up and said:
"Yes'm; when it is a cold day I can see the smoke."

HEALTH

Upon the question of Vertebral Adjustments. Every tissue of the human body is supplied by nerve fibres which emit between the segments of the spine. Every unit or cell of the body is controlled by nerve impulse. The heat of the blood is regulated by a nerve centre; equilibrium and co-ordinated movements are controlled by nerve force. There are openings along the spine through which nerves emit. If a spinal segment becomes slightly displaced an opening is made smaller and a nerve is pressed upon. Pressure upon nerves is the cause for most of the troubles with which the human family is affected. THE CHIROPRACTOR, by carefully examining the spine, is able to locate displaced vertebrae, and by a scientific movement of the hands, adjusts them back to normal position, thus relieving the nerve pressure. No one needs be told the value of good health, and if your nerves are free of pressure you will be healthy.

POPE WROTE TWO FAMOUS PEACE NOTES

"BROAD HUMANITARIANISM" WAS ONE OF THE OUTSTANDING CHARACTERISTICS OF HIS HOLINESS SAID MR. V. J. M'ELDERRY —LOCAL COMMENT.

NEWS FROM VATICAN

His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, speaking of His Holiness, Pope Benedict, said:

"Having been elected almost at the beginning of the world war, his chief work during the four years of his pontificate was the preaching and the practice of charity. His efforts to bring about peace are still in the minds of the public. He wrote two famous peace notes, ordaining prayers for peace to be recited throughout the Catholic world, made extraordinary efforts on behalf of the prisoners of war, and was the direct instigator of many humane measures which made the lot of the wounded and the prisoners less unbearable.

He carried his gifts to charity to such an extent that it was currently related of him that the funds necessary to carry on the maintenance of the Vatican had frequently to be hidden from him.

During his reign, some thirty countries appointed permanent ambassadors to the Holy See.

On Pentecost Sunday of 1920, his Lordship Bishop O'Brien had a private audience with the Pope, and was struck particularly with the kindness and the great simplicity of the Holy Father. He had a surprising fund of information with regard to the minor workings of the church in far-away countries throughout the world. His Holiness was a prodigious worker, and no doubt this hastened his untimely end. He died at the age of 67.

Pius Tenth, his immediate predecessor, who occupied the pontificate for 11 years, was 79 years of age when he died, Pope Leo XIII reigned for 23 years, and Pope Pius IX for thirty years, being the only Pontiff who exceeded the reign of St. Peter. It was commonly thought that no Pope would ever reign as long as the Chief of the Apostles, but Pius IX did so, and a stone commemorating this has been placed in one of the Roman churches.

Requiem High Mass.

Solemn requiem High mass was sung by His Lordship, Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Brien, Bishop of Peterborough, at St. Peter's Cathedral this morning, at 8 o'clock, for His Holiness, Pope Benedict XV.

Official word of the Pope's death was received at the Bishop's palace here last night at 6 o'clock, and the church bells tolled at 6.30.

Pope Benedict XV was born in Genoa, on November 21st, 1854, of noble parentage. He was ordained priest on December 21st, 1878, consecrated Archbishop of Bologna on December 22, 1907, created Cardinal on May 25th, 1914, and elected Pope in the same year, on September 3rd, 1914. He was the 259th successor to the See of Peter.

Rev. W. Harold Young:

"The whole Christian world will sympathize with the Roman Catholic church in the loss of its leader. While we lock as yet the historical perspective necessary to wisely estimate his work, there can be no question as to his earnest efforts to discharge the heavy responsibilities of his exalted position as he saw them. The prayer of Christendom will be that the College of Cardinals may be Divinely guided in the choice of his successor."

Dr. J. V. Gallivan.

Dr. Jas. V. Gallivan, who accompanied Bishop O'Brien to Rome in May, of 1920, had a private audience with His Holiness, and was also present at five different ceremonies of the Church conducted by the Supreme Pontiff. The impression of extreme spirituality imparted by the sight of the Pope seemed to be the outstanding memory in the doctor's mind when recalling his interview with Benedict XV.

HOW THEY MAKE AN ARREST IN NEW YORK—MAGISTRATE ORDERS POLICEMAN PLACED UNDER ARREST — BRUTALITY GROWING.

MAN TELLS OF BEATING

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Patrolman Patrick Lennon, 26 years old, on the police force for one year, attached to the West Thirtieth Street Station, was ordered placed under arrest Saturday in the Jefferson Market Court by Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was paroled in his own custody for examination Thursday.

Owen W. Watkins, 38 years old, a seaman, who lives with his brother at 27 Lincoln Avenue, Brooklyn, when not at sea, charged Lennon with "beating him up" early Wednesday morning. Watkins, who was arrested by Lennon charged with felonious assault, was discharged by the Magistrate.

Lennon, appearing as complainant against Watkins, told the court that at 1.25 o'clock Wednesday morning he heard a police whistle and, running to Tenth Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, saw three men in a fight. Four of them ran, Lennon said, and the fifth, according to Lennon, was Watkins, who punched him in the face, knocked him down and then kicked him on the nose. Lennon said he arrested Watkins in a nearby restaurant later and, with the assistance of another patrolman, locked him up in the West Thirtieth Street Station. At the station house Lennon said he was attended by Dr. Sutton of New York Hospital.

Attack in Restaurant.

Watkins testified that he was waiting for a friend who had offered to take him to his home in the Bronx, Watkins having been unable to find a room in a hotel, went into a nearby restaurant and ordering a cup of coffee and a doughnut sat down to read a magazine. He was in the restaurant about forty minutes, he said, when Lennon and another patrolman entered, and, walking up to him, Lennon said, "I think you're one of those men that have been sticking up restaurants around here lately," and with that he started to beat him up, Watkins said. On the way to the West 130th Street Station, Watkins said, Lennon stoped every few hundred feet and hit him with his nightstick. Watkins testified that Lennon appeared to have been drinking and did not know what he was doing.

The counterman in the restaurant testified that Watkins was in the place for over half an hour before the patrolmen entered and was reading a magazine.

In the prison Watkins disrobed and showed the Magistrate his body, which, according to the witnesses, was a mass of black and blue marks. When arraigned it was necessary to carry Watkins into court. Yesterday he was able to walk with a limp caused by his sore ankle, where he said Lennon had hit him in addition to his body bruises.

INVESTIGATE A LOFT FIRE

ARSON SQUAD RE-ESTABLISHED BY THE NEW YORK FIRE DEPARTMENT — FIRST TURN-OUT

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. — Dense clouds of smoke rolling up from a fire in the three story loft building n 126 and 128 West Thirty-second street last night about 8:30 o'clock poured into Greeley Square stopping traffic and getting into the McAlpin, Martinique and Imperial hotels before windows and doors could be closed. The guests were notified quickly where the fire was, however, and there was no panic. The Hotel Pennsylvania, only half a block from the fire, got none of the smoke because the wind was from the west.

Patrolmas Tauckus of the West Thirtieth street station discovered the fire on the third floor of the building, occupied by Stammer and Kranuz, manufacturers of celluloid buttons. Two alarms were turned in and the fire was got under control after the second and third floors had been destroyed.

The fire was the first attended and investigated by the new business squad of the Fire Department, which has been established by Chief Kenlon to answer all alarms in the loft distrrict and aid Fire Marshal Brophy in investigating cases of suspected arson.

Chief Kenlon said there was nothing whatever suspicious about last night's fire, but that all fires hereafter would be watched by the members of the business squad. The squad was in existence in the administration of Commissioner Robert Adamson, but was abolished later. It has been reorganized, Chief Kenlon said, because of the increase in the number of fires, and in an effort to stop carelessness and other preventable causes of fires.

BUCHANAN INQUEST.

TORONTO, Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press).—Nine persons have been summoned to testify at the inquest Tuesday night on Anderson Buchanan, law student, who died a few days ago after taking "beauty powder."

MANSE WAS THREATENED

FIRE BROKE OUT IN ST. ANDREW'S MANSE YESTERDAY MORNING —FURNACE OVERHEATED.

Fire broke out yesterday morning, about ten o'clock, at St. Andrew's Manse, and did considerable damage before it was finally quenched. A great deal of the hardwood flooring in the lower storey was pulled away in the efforts of the Fire Department to reach the furnace piping, an overheated condition of the furnace having caused the trouble, which was emphasised by the extremely strong wind blowing yesterday morning.

When Mr. Rollins was going over his notes, preparatory to the service in the morning, he smelled the smoke, and discovered that flames were shooting up through the flooring in the hall. He threw several pails of water on the blaze, with no effect, and then telephoned the Fire Department.

Owing to some misunderstanding about the exact number, the fire reels proceeded first to Mr. Dobie's house on Kirk Street ,where no fire was apparent, and then on down Rubidge Street, several blocks below Charlotte Street, with the same result.

Mr. Rollins was compelled to fight his way into the study, filled with smoke, to make a second call on the Fire Department.

Some damage to the lower storey resulted from the efforts of the fire fighters to finally extinguish the blaze, which had by this time made considerable headway, and the hardwood flooring had to be torn up in several places.

The loss is covered with insurance.

Mr. Rollins, with a bandaged hand, which was injured in his efforts to save some valuables, later conducted service in the church as usual. As Mrs. Rollins is visiting her daughter in Ottawa, he was alone in his efforts until neighbours came to his assistance.

IRELAND IS PROGRESSING

ANOTHER STEP TOWARDS PERMANENT PEACE IS CONSUMATED BETWEEN MICHAEL COLLINS AND SIR JAMES CRAIG, DUBLIN, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—"It is a great and decided advance toward Irish union," says The Irish Independent today commenting on the agreement reached between Michael Collins and Sir James Craig, 'and his advance is all greater because an agreement was scarcely hoped for at this early stage of negotiations."

Harbinger of Peace.

BELFAST, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—The Northern Whig, Unionist organ, admits that it hopes agreement reached on the boundary of Ulster and the rest of Ireland is a harbinger of peace, and says that lifting of the boycott of Northern Ireland will be a step in that direction.

"Bitterness engendered by past three years will not disappear in a day," it says, "but it should be the earnest endeavor of everyone desirous of peace and good-will to work toward such an end. Real peace is worth winning, and must be won."

Support the Premier.

BELFAST, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—"All Ulstermen should support Sir James Craig in his wise and courageous action," said Bishop D'Arcy, Primate of Anglican Church in Ireland, yesterday.

"He is pointing the only way to peace and prosperity in Ireland."

End the Conflict.

DUBLIN, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Cardinal Logue said yesterday regarding the agreement between Michael Collins and the Ulster Premier that "the agreement would end the terrible state of affairs in Belfast." He hoped people would have sense and unite in the interests of all.

Press Astonished.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Newspapers voice astonishment at the swift agreement between Sir James Craig and Michael Collins. The Daily News regards it as a miracle and such an object lesson to British statesmanship as history rarely offers. Carson, it declares, will rub his eyes with bewilderment.

"Best News Yet."

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—John Milne Barbour, Sir James Craig's Deputy Finance Minister, described the news of the agreement between Michael Collins and Sir James Craig as "the best news we have yet received and most cheering."

In addition to the arrangement to settle the boundary dispute and to cease the boycott of Ulster in Southern Ireland and of Roman Catholics in Ulster, it was decided by negotiators to devise a better system than the Council of Ireland to deal with problems affecting the whole of Ireland.

BAND TO-NIGHT MARK-ST. RINK. GOOD SKATING.

Wives, Wear 'Em Short If You'd Keep Husbands

CHICAGO, January 23. — The secret—why men leave home—is out.

Men want their eyes pleased. If they can't get the optical illusion at home, they will turn the 'Home, Sweet Home" motto upside down and steal out to knock upon the aesthetic threshold.

In other words, girls, if you would keep your husbands, just jump out of the frying pan into—the sport skirt.

Francine Larrimore, star of Chicago's Rialto, said so to-day. Francine should know. During her stage career, she has seen enough stage-door personages to fill the hall of fame.

Says Francine:

"I never heard of a man 'going to the dogs' for a woman with a greasy skillet in her hand.

"The first thing a wise woman will do when she is married is to go out and buy the best dress she can find. She will live on doughnuts and coffee, and make her husband like 'em for a long time in order to wear silks and feathers.

"If the ever-enduring housewife knew what the women of the stage know, they would consider good clothes more essential than butter, eggs, and bread. We know. We have seen the husbands in action around the stage door."

Asked Francine: "If a man is having the odd dinner where he has no business to be, haven't you always noticed the woman is the case is well dressed?"

No answer.

DENIES THE USE OF THE 3rd DEGREE

NEW YORK POLICE COMMISSIONER SAYS IT IS NEVER USED—NO BRUTALITY BY POLICE.

WHALEY INDICTED

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. — Police Commissioner Enright, in a statement, said that third degree methods were not practiced in the Police Department.

The Commissioner was moved to make this statement by an editorial in the "Nation," which said that the so-called "third degree" is responsible for a large part of the risk run by policemen in the performance of their duty. The Commissioner said:

"There is no brutality or third degree methods in the Police Department, and if the people responsible for the publication of such propaganda will tell me what they mean by third degree methods perhaps I may be able to enlighten them on a few things that they are now guessing at.

"The very publication of such a statement as third degree methods and brutality on the part of the police supplies the vicious element with all kinds of alibis. Luther Boddy, who shot and killed Detectives Miller and Buckley, of the West 135th Street Station, and William Hoey, recently convicted and sentenced for the killing of Policeman Neville, were mentioned in the 'Nation' as being victims of the 'third degree.'

"The negro that killed Policeman Motz read about Boddy's alleged complaint of police brutality and now says he shot Motz on account of the story he read of the brutal treatment given by the police to negro prisoners. Every one knows that this is simply pure rot.

"It is about time that the publishers stop printing articles about police brutality and third degree methods when such stories only tend to give men like Boddy and the man who shot Policeman Motz an alleged excuse for their actions."

Whaley Indicted For Murder.

Frank Whaley, negro, who killed Patrolman Motz in the 135th Street Station on Thursday night, was indicted for murder in the first degree. He is in a cell adioining that of Luth Boddy in the Tombs.

It was a day full of swift action for Whaley, for New York justice moved speedily. Through all the court hearings and transfers from place to place, he moved mildly, and answered questions with great amiability and no great coherence. The police placed no trust in his meekness, however, and most of the day was spent by Whalev handcuffed to two armed men, with others not far off.

GREAT SKATING FOR TUESDAY NIGHT

THE WEATHERMAN WILL LIKELY GIVE BEST ICE FOR SKATING SO FAR THIS SEASON.

So far this season the hockey matches have been favoured with best ice at the Brock Street Rink, but for to-morrow night it would appear from preaictions that there will be excellent ice for skating.

There will be a special band concert, with skating until 10.30, and one of the best crowds of the season is expected. Skating is more popular than ever at Brock Street Rink, but owing to so much hockey, few nights have been available so far.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Verdicts of accidental deaths were returned at this morning's inquest into the deaths of Lieut. Naplean Deloges and Fireman Paul Pressean, who were killed in last night's disastrous fire on Sherbrooke Street. Details of the fire show that two firemen, manning the nozzle of a hose in a temperature of five below zero, became so solidly frozen together that a hammer had to be used before they could be separated. Adam Smith, a resident in the apartments, was forced to lean across a flame three feet wide with his old mother in his arms before he could reach a stairway. It is now found that only Henry Hum, owner of the laundry, is missing.

California Gets Chills, Thrills in Winter Blasts

CALIFORNIA GETS .....

SAN FRANCISCO, January 23. — Central and Southern California residents, chilled by two days of cold, awoke to a warmer temperature yesterday morning, and devoutly hoped the worst was over.

The cold weather was productive of several novelties, for California, including snow flurries, near Los Angeles. Irrigation ditches, ponds and lakes were frozen, and even one arm of San Francisco Bay, kept fresh by the influx of a stream, developed a film of ice. At some points on the shore of the bay proper considerable areas of frothy spray offered new fields of exploration for small boys. Great excitement was caused in Los Angeles, where a woman slipped on the icy pavement and broke her wrist, the first accident of its kind in that city's history.

Heavy Loss to the Crops.

Unaccustomed to severe weather, the temperature which caused Californians to shiver and grumble were only what would have been termed moderate further east. Nevertheless, the marks of 26 and 28 degrees, effective throughout most of the citrus growing district, have been sufficient to cause heavy loss to those crops.

The coldest weather reported, aside from the usual low marks in the high Sierras, was 19 degrees at Willows, Glenn County. But it took less cold than that to force orange and lemon growers into overalls and keep them out all Friday night, tending the smudge pots and orchard heaters on which they depended to mitigate the frost's damage.

Just how much the orange and lemon crops suffered can not be determined for several days, it was said. If the frozen fruit has opportuity to thaw gradually, a smaller loss will be incurred than if to-day's temperature races back to normal. Meanwhile citrus growers are arranging meetings at which steps can be taken to prevent frost-damaged fruit from reaching the market.

HEAVY FIRE DAMAGE AND LIVES LOST

SEVERAL CHINAMEN ARE MISSING —TWO FIREMEN LOST THEIR LIVES IN MONTREAL CONFLAGRATION.

BRIEFS FROM WIRES

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press). — It is feared that several Chinamen, occupants of a laundry at 557 Sherbrooke Street West, in which fire which caused damage of half a million dollars and the deaths of Lieut. Paul Deloges and Fireman Paul Pressau, of the fire department, originated last night, were buried beneath the debris. None of them have been seen since the fire. The suddenness with which the fire spread made it impossible for thirty-three families residing in apartments to save more than their lives.

WATERWAYS PROJECT.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press). — "The feasibility of the St. Lawrence great waterways project is unquestioned," President Harding told the national agricultural conference to-day. "In our own country is presented one of the world's most attractive opportunities for extension of seaways many hundred miles inland. The heart of the continent, with its vast resources in both agriculture and industry, would be brought in communication with all ocean routes by the execution of the St Lawrence Waterway project."

SAVED THE LIVES OF NINETY SOULS.

Captain E. English Gets a Silver Cup.

ST. JOHN'S, NFLD., Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press.)—"Presented to Captain English by the Government of Newfoundland in recognition of his gallant conduct and able seamanship, which resulted in the saving of the lives of all the passengers and crew, numbering ninety souls, on the occasion of the wreck of the S. S. Ethie at Cow Head Newfoundland, December, 1919."

At a function in Government House recently the Governor, Sir C. Alexander Harris, presented a silver cup, bearing the above inscription to Capt. E. English, Jr., now Harbor Master of St. John's. His Excellency stated that the Imperial Board of Trade were sending Capt. English a special letter of recognition of what the English Mercantile Marine Service Association has described as "one of the most gallant deeds performed by British seamen in recent years."

The Ethie, a coastal steamer, left Cow Head, at 8 p.m., December 10 1919, and shortly afterwards ran into a gale which veered from southwest to northwest, and soon increased to hurricane force with blinding snow and biting frost. Caught on a lee shore by the shift of the wind, Capt. English could only put his ship's head off shore and trust to the power of his engines to keep her off the rocks. With a full head of steam she could barely hold her head up to the howling hurricane, for the giant rollers buffetted her unmercifully, breaking over her bows and sweeping along the decks in angry avalanches, and at times hurtling solid masses of icy water over her bridge. Everything movable was swept from her decks.

The little steamer thrashed and floundered, and grew sluggish with the weight of ice forming on her decks, and along her sides. In the bitter weather, unable to see anything in the blind blizzard, Capt. English clung to his reeling bridge, a sturdy figure armored in frozen spray. Below him his ship was practically submerged the greater portion of the time, and often during the long night, he expected battering seas to shatter bridge and wheel-house and leave the laboring ship masterless and helpless. His passengers, seasick and prevented from sleeping by the violent motions of the ship, were utterly miserable.

When at last grey daylight broke, the snow has ceased, but the wind still blew with hurricane strength, and the seas raged nightily. The ship was like a fantastic fabric of crystal, coated with ice from water line to mastheads, and with the main decks covered with ice to the level of the rails. All the boats were smashed, the fragments being frozen in hummocks of ice around the chocks of the boat deck.

And the ship was only a few miles from lee shore, a rugged shore of upstanding cliffs against which the great waves broke, leaping high in foaming cascades, she had, just held her own during the night. The thermometer was at zero and the barometer was still going down.

Red-eyed, his face bloated with frost, Captain English contemplated his iceberg of a ship smashing into the tremendous seas, under a lowering and angry sky, and knew that she would not stand much longer the strain of being driven under a full head of steam into the teeth of the hurricane. She was settling slowly under the weight of ice forming upon her, and, as nearly every sea was rolling over her, it was impossible for men to do anything to relieve her of her burden. She was bound to be driven ashore before the weather broke, and the only course was to try and beach her in a spot where there might be some chance of saving the passengers.

And the sooner the better, for if the snow shut down again it would be impossible to pick out a place to put her ashore.

When the Captain consulted his officers, the purser, Walter Young, told him of a spot where it might be possible to beach her, and he determined to try to make it.

Presently the steamer with her helm hard over was falling off, and as she came broadside on to the gale, the combing surges piled over her, as if they would stamp the life out of her. She rolled wildly, and the seasick and frightened passengers flung from tyheir berths heard the seas crashing overhead as over a tide rock, and thought the end was at hand. But she soon gathered way and turned her head to the shore and fled before the gale and the racing seas.

As he drew in it looked as if the icebergs of a steamer was rushing to her doom, for no opening was visible in the bold and rocky shoreline against which the combers burst in mighty geysers of white water. But when she swung past Martin's Point, a little cove was opened, and into it she drove with the waves on either hand. Soon she struck with a terrible jar, the iceboated spars and funnel crashed to the decks, and lay still like a stricken thing, while a sea making a clean breach over her tafrail swept her from stern to stern. Then lifting to the drive of the next roller she went shoreward again, and struck with another crash, listing heavily to port.

She lay there wedged among the rocks, and the seas continued to break over her—but with their force somewhat spent. She was still a cable's length from dry land, and even if she had had a boat intact, it would have been useless to launch it in the surf under her lee. Captain English, clumsy in his frozen clothes, left his shattered bridge, and soon the crew was tossing over empty kegs with lines attached to them. Wind and sea drove them ashore where men had quickly gathered, and soon a hawser was hauled ashore and set up tight between ship and land. Then a boatswain's chair was rigged to the cable, and presently the passengers were being hauled ashore. Women and children were hauled to the shore one by one, the male passengers followed and finally the ere.

Though nigh exhausted from his long ordeal and badly frost-bitten, Captain English was the last to take his place in the life saving chair and be hauled ashore.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND

BY "SAPPER"
(CYRIL McNEILE)

Had he seen a native—a black man? He had seen no native, and if other people only drank water, they wouldn't either. In fact, the whole affair was scandalous, and he should write to the papers about it. Still muttering, he withdrew, banging his door, and Hugh, glancing up, saw the American detective advancing towards them along the corridor.

"What's the trouble, Captain?" he asked as he joined the group.

"A friend of the management elected to spend the night on the top of my cupboard, Mr. Green," answered Drummond, "and got cramp half-way through."

The American gazed at the wreckage in silence. Then he looked at Hugh, and what he saw on that worthy's face apparently decided him to maintain that policy. In fact, it was not till the night-porter and his attendant minions had at last, and very dubiously, withdrawn, that he again opened his mouth.

"Looks like a hectic night," he murmured. "What happened?" Briefly Hugh told him what had occurred, and the detective whistled softly.

"Blowpipe and poisoned darts," he said shortly, returning the tube to Drummond. "Narrow escape—damned narrow! Look at your pillow."

Hugh looked: embedded in the linen were four pointed splinters similar to the one he held in his hand; by the door were three more, lying on the floor.

"An engaging little bird," he laughed: "but nasty to look at."

He extracted the little pieces of wood and carefully placed them in an empty match-box: the tube he put into his cigarette-case.

"Might come in handy: you never know," he remarked casually.

"They might if you stand quite still," said the American, with a sudden, sharp command in his voice. "Don't move."

Hugh stood motionless, staring at the speaker, who with eyes fixed on his right forearm, had stepped forward. From the loose sleeve of his pyjama coat the detective gently pulled another dart and dropped it into the match-box.

"Not far off getting you that time, Captain," he cried cheerfully. "Now you've got the whole blamed outfit."

II.

It was the Comte de Guy who boarded the boat express at the Gare du Nord the next day: it was Carl Peterson who stepped off the boat express at Boulogne. And it was only Drummond's positive assurance which convinced the American that the two characters were the same man.

He was leaning over the side of the boat reading a telegram when he first saw Hugh ten minutes after the boat had left the harbour; and if he had hoped for a different result to the incident of the night before, no sign of it showed on his face. Instead he waved a cheerful greeting to Drummond.

"This is a pleasant surprise," he remarked affably. "Have you been to Paris too?"

For a moment Drummond looked at him narrowly. Was it a stupid bluff or was the man so sure of his power of disguise that he assumed with certainty he had not been recognised? And if suddenly struck Hugh that, save for that one tell-tale habit—a habit which, in all probability, Peterson himself was unconscious of—he would not have recognised him.

"Yes," he answered lightly. "I came over to see how you behaved yourself!"

"What a pity I didn't know!" said Peterson, with a good-humoured chuckle. He seemed in excellent spirits, as he carefully tore the telegram into tiny pieces and dropped them overboard. "We might have had another of our homely little chats over some supper. Where did you stay?"

"At the Ritz. And you?"

"I always stop at the Bristol," answered Peterson. "Quieter than the Ritz, I think."

"Yes, it was quite dreadful last night," murmured Hugh. "A pal of mine—quite incorrigible—that bird over there"—he pointed to Ted Jerningham, who was strolling up and down the deck with the American—"insisted on dressing up as a waiter." He laughed shortly at the sudden gleam in the other's eye, as he watched Jerningham go past. "Not content with that, he went and dropped the fish over some warrior's boiled shirt, and had to leave in disgrace." He carefully selected a cigarette. "No accountin' for this dressing-up craze, is there, Carl? You'd never be anything but your own sweet self, would you, little one? Always the girls' own friend—tender and true." He laughed softly; from previous experience he knew that this particular form of baiting invariably infuriated Peterson. "Some day, my Carl, you must tell me of your life, and your early struggles amidst all the bitter temptations of this wicked world."

"Some day," snarled Peterson, "I'll —"

"Stop." Drummond held up a protesting hand. "Not that, my Carl—anything but that."

"Anything but what?" said the other savagely.

Strength

Strength of muscle does not indicate strength of nerves. On this account many people who look healthy enough suffer from nervous troubles and cannot understand what is ailing them. Sleeplessness and irritability are among the early symptoms. Indigestion and tired feelings soon follow.

Read this letter from an Ontario man:

Mr. W. L. Gregory, Charles St. E., Ingersoll, Ont., writes: "I had been troubled for quite a while with indigestion. At times there would be a twitching of the nerves of my stomach; and I also found it difficult to get a good night's sleep. I am a moulder, and owing to the nature of my work my system became run-down. I took a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found great benefit from this medicine. They did me a great deal of good. I have not been bothered at all with indigestion since, and can sleep much better. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends, as I think it splendid for anyone run-down and needing a tonic."

PETERBOROUGH TEAM SECOND IN STOCK JUDGING CONTEST

F. C. M'RAE'S ENTRY BEATEN ONLY BY CHAMPION GRENVILLE TRIO AT OTTAWA.

In the Inter-county Live Stock Judging competition at the Ottawa winter fair last week, Peterborough county's team scored high, being second to the Grenville team, which also won the championship last year and the Peter White trophy, of which it retains possession. Peterborough's team, which was under the charge of Mr. F. C. McRae, district representative at Norwood, was composed of Richard Graham, of Lakefield, Norman McConkey of Smith township, and Earl Petrie of Otonabee township.

Twelve teams competed this year in the judging of five classes of live stock, beef and dairy cattle, heavy horses, sheep and swine. Out of the possible total of 3,000 points, Grenville's team secured 2,357 and Peterborough 2,190. In the five classes Grenville lead in all but heavy horses, in which Peterborough corded 503 points to the leaders' 16.

Hastings team was fourth with 2,139points. In the individual scoring Richard Graham of Lakefield topped the list in the sheep judging contest with 191 points out of a possible 200. Norman McConkey was fifth in the beef cattle judging, and Earl Petrie was fourth in the heavy horses results.

For this annual competition the county teams each consisted of three farmers' sons under 26 years who have taken a four to six weeks' course in agriculture under the Provincial Government's district agricultural representatives. The Peterborough team returned from Ottawa quite pleased with their success and satisfied that in running a good second to the strong Grenville team they made a showing in which they may take a just fiable pride.

The team scores were as follows:

DEATH OF POPE BENEDICT FOLLOWED LONG STRUGGLE

PREPARATIONS FOR THE FUNERAL--PILGRIMS VISIT THE VATICAN--FOR THE FIRST TIME IN HISTORY AN ITALIAN CABINET MINISTER VISITED THE VATICAN.

SPECULATION CONCERNING SUCCESSOR

ROME, Jan. 23.—Pope Benedict breathed his last at 5.59 o'clock yesterday morning. The news was hurriedly communicated from the Papal bedchamber to the principal antechamber, and was announced by Monsignor Pizzardo, Deputy Papal Secretary of State, just as the ponderous bells of St. Peter's, overlooking the Vatican courtyard, began tolling the hour of six. Then one by one the bells in Rome's 400 churches, joined in the horologic symphony that marked the passing of the head of the Roman Catholic church.

The end came after a long night of intense agony and suffering, the Pontiff now and then lapsing into delirium throughout the long anxious night. Shortly before midnight he took a little nourishment which seemed momentarily to revive his spirits, but within an hour afterwards he began to sink rapidly. At 1.15 o'clock Dr. Battinstin, emerging from the Pontifical chamber into the ante-room, told the Associated Press correspondent the end was approaching, that already his hands and nose felt cold.

"He will live only three or four hours at the maximum," said the physician.

Struggles at the End.

From that period on the Pope neared the ennd of his life. Breathing became a tragic, agonzing task, as the Supreme Pontiff, who had resisted the severe lung and throat congestion, was now finally too weak to overcome the overwhelming attack any longer. His eyes were half closed as he lapsed into unconsciousness, while the terrible mastery which pneumonia had won over the Holy Father's dogged resistance, a resistance which staggered the members of the Pontifical household and made them marvel at the Pope's nerve stamina, now began its rapid, inexorable extinction of his slender hold on life.

His heart rapidly weakened, and at five o'clock in the morning it was certain that the end was a matter of moments. Accordingly, Cardinals Gasparri, Samper and Pizzardo, and all the Pontifical household, were notified that the end was rapidly approaching. Cardinal Gasparri entered the bed-chamber at 5.50 o'clock, passing through the antechamber, wearing deep furrows on the brow of his head and walking with short, rapid steps to the bedside of the dying Pontiff. He had been there but nine minutes before the Pope breathed his last.

Cardinal Giorgi, Grand Plenipotentiary, attended the Pope throughout the whole night, saying first mass for His Holiness shortly after midnight. He was assisted by Monsignor Respighe, Prefect of Ceremonies, and by Monsignor Testoni, Piermotto and Magnamenti.

Wanted to Dress.

Only half an hour before he died His Holiness tried to lift himself up and wanted to dress himself, but he was so weak he sank back on to the pillow. His hands and feet already were numb and it as plainly seen that death's cold grip had begun its unreleasing grasp upon the Holy Father. It was at this moment that it was decided to call all the Pontifical family to the bedside. The Royal Guards were sent out in due solemnity to notify the Papal Secretary of State of the Pope's hopeless condition.

The correspondent was permitted to remain during the entire sickness of the Pope in one of the adjoining ante-chambers, from which all the Cardinals passing to and from His Holiness' bedside could be seen.

Looking down the narrow passage way leading from the ante-chamber to the Pope's bed chamber, the Royal Guards standing at right attention, were observed at the entrance to the sick room, while the Cardinals passing to and fro were waiting the impending announcement

The Noble Grands.

Two Noble Grands in full dress uniform of striking red, with their gleaming gold belts and high Roman helmets, stand at rigid attention at the foot of the bed. With swords drawn they appear like statues.

At the foot of the bed there are several Prie Dieux, where visitors kneel and offer prayers for the soul of the departed Pontiff. The chairs in the room are upholstered in plain damask. Alongside the wall during the day prelates recited the rosary. Frequently one of them would go to the bedside of the Pontiff, kneel and pray and then, rising, bend over the Pontiff's body and kiss his hands, feet and head.

On the walls of the modestly furnished apartment hang four oil paintings. Beside the bed stands a small table. O that side of the bed from which windows overlook St. Peter's Square there stood through-

ONE KILLED AND EIGHTEEN INJURED WHEN PASSENGER TRAIN LEFT RAILS

Ladies Must Dress in Skirts Before Attending Early Church

OTTAWA, January 23 (Canadian Press).—In future, Ottawa young ladies will not be permitted to attend early morning church garbed in skiing costumes, "without skirts." They will have to attend divine services "properly clothed," and return home to change into athletic costumes before hiking for a joyous day in the snow-covered Gatineau Hills.

This is the edict sent out in warm terms by the Rev. Father O'Gorman, M.C., in Blessed Sacrament Church here yesterday morning. Moreover, Father O'Gorman declared that in the event of any young lady ignoring the warning it would be his duty to put her out. The costume objected to consists of the usual skiing breeches, jersey, and jacket. A man, Father O'Gorman emphasised, would not attend church dressed in a football uniform or rowing togs, and inferred that the same respect for the church would henceforth be demanded from the ladies.

Father O'Gorman won his Military Cross as a chaplain to the Canadian Forces in the late war.

PETERBOROUGH TEAM SECOND IN STOCK JUDGING CONTEST

F. C. M'RAE'S ENTRY BEATEN ONLY BY CHAMPION GRENVILLE TRIO AT OTTAWA.

In the Inter-county Live Stock Judging competition at the Ottawa winter fair last week, Peterborough county's team scored high, being second to the Grenville team, which also won the championship last year and the Peter White trophy, of which it retains possession. Peterborough's team, which was under the charge of Mr. F. C. McRae, district representative at Norwood, was composed of Richard Graham, of Lakefield, Norman McConkey of Smith township, and Earl Petrie of Otonabee township.

Twelve teams competed this year in the judging of five classes of live stock, beef and dairy cattle, heavy horses, sheep and swine. Out of the possible total of 3,000 points, Grenville's team secured 2,357 and Peterborough 2,190. In the five classes Grenville lead in all but heavy horses, in which Peterborough corded 503 points to the leaders' 16. Hastings team was fourth with 2,139points. In the individual scoring Richard Graham of Lakefield topped the list in the sheep judging contest with 191 points out of a possible 200. Norman McConkey was fifth in the beef cattle judging, and Earl Petrie was fourth in the heavy horses results.

For this annual competition the county teams each consisted of three farmers' sons under 26 years who have taken a four to six weeks' course in agriculture under the Provincial Government's district agricultural representatives. The Peterborough team returned from Ottawa quite pleased with their success and satisfied that in running a good second to the strong Grenville team they made a showing in which they may take a just fiable pride.

The team scores were as follows:

THE LATE POPE BENEDICT XV.

In the death of Pope Benedict XV., the Roman Catholic Church has suffered a grievous loss which cannot fail but touch deeply the sympathy of the other members of the great Christian family. The news of his grave illness came with startling suddenness that was only a brief preparation for the swiftly following report of his passing. His last public appearance as an ecclesiastic was in the same humble, priestly function as his first, namely, in the celebration of mass last Sunday, during which he was seized with a chill that quickly developed into influenza and bronchial complications. Onyl with difficulty, the bulletins announced, was he able to continue at the altar until the benediction, and apparently the first signs of his tragic illness were premonitory to him.

The pontificate of Benedict XV. will be remembered as contemporaneous with the world war. His election in September, 1914, thrust him into a position which, with all the great nations in arms, must have bristled with diplomatic difficulties. Even his appeals for peace and the prayers he asked for were questioned in some places. Benedict XV. used his office in helping to secure the exchange of prisoners, and otherwise in trying to relieve some of the distress and suffering caused by the war. And at its conclusion the Vatican found its sphere of influence widened, and to Benedict XV. his Church will especially credit the restoration of official amity with France.

The recent diagnosis by Pope Benedict of the ills affecting the world to-day, of the fundamental causes of unrest, such as social injustice, disregard for authority and the other universal conditions detailed in his pronouncement gave evidence of the breadth of his knowledge, his keen insight and understanding, and his wise counsel in calling widespread attention to and emphasizing those causes. His formal statement was frequently quoted by many who were unaware of its authorship. It is in this field of influence that the death of Benedict XV. will be a loss to society.

GOVERNMENT CAN GO ON.

The withdrawal of Mr. Armstrong in North York is a belated bit of wisdom, forced no doubt by a realization of the fact that the great pressure of public opinion both within the riding and throughout Canada, was flatly against any opposition to the Prime Minister. Nobody wanted a contest save Mr. Armstrong nursing grievance over the now famous liquor in which he figured prior to the general election, and a few thoughtless advisers, and it is a good thing for everybody that better counsels ultimately prevailed. The main thing the people of Canada are concerned with at present is a settling down to work on the part of the new Government. There are many urgent and pressing problems to be dealt with, and it is a matter for rejoicing that the Premier and his Ministers have been returned without a contest, and are now ready to devote their entire energy and time to the larger affairs that call for immediate attention. It would have been unfortunate in the extreme if Canada's business had to stand aside while Cabinet Ministers were being forced to conduct an entirely unnecessary campaign. There is nothing now to interfere with a vigorous administration of public affairs.

DEALING WITH THE EPIDEMIC

One way of dealing with an epidemic is to allow it to run its course until everybody in the community has either contracted the disease or proved immune to it; then the epidemic dies out. That is a sure way, but it is a long way, a costly way, an annoying way, and often a fatal way. We don't want to adopt that policy in Peterborough in regard to the scarlet fever and diphtheria outbreak—there is too much at stake. We don't want to see lives of little children taken each week in order that some people may be spared inconvenience or annoyance. But the fact remains that lives are being sacrificed because of that very reason.

It is time there was an awakening to the fact that the situation is too serious to be trifled with. Many of the cases are of a mild type, and that adds to the danger. People forget that infection from a slight attack of scarlet fever, for instance, may result in a most virulent form of the disease. They are careless as a result. Then our children have been so lightly attacked that it never occurs to them that unless they exercise the necessary precautions, their neighbors' children may be stricken with a much more serious type. This failure to appreciate the necessity of care coupled with open disregard of the quarantine regulations, is responsible for the continuance of this epidemic. A campaign of education on the part of the Board of Health should do much to remove the first difficulty, while a few police court cases might have a decidedly beneficial effect in checking the second practice.

THE MATTER OF GRANTS.

There is a general feeling among the taxpayers of Peterboro that civic expenditures should be cut down to the lowest figure that is compatible with municipal efficiency, and, no doubt, this opinion is shared by the Aldermen. But there are various movements which will look to the council for financial asssitance, and their request for grants constitute a vexing problem for the Council. It is difficult to set a hard and fast policy. If municipal aid were to be cut off altogether some of these organizations would have difficulty in functioning, and yet the Alderman, with his mind upon economy, cannot help but come to the conclusion that a considerable saving could be accomplished if these special grants could be done away with. That would be the simplest way out, but at the same time there is some reason to doubt the wisdom of such a policy. The Playgrounds Association, for instance, propose to wait upon the council to ask the city to assume the cost of this splendid work. The members have carried the burden for five years, and feel that it is time supervised playgrounds were recognized as a civic responsibility. Of the value of such playgrounds to the children of Peterboro and to their parents, there is not the slightest doubt. They have become a necessity and cannot be allowed to pass out. To stop this fine work of looking after the little folks during the summer months would be a decided step backward.

Then there is the band question. The amalgamation of the G.W.V.A. and Rangers' Bands into one organization gives Peterboro a splendid band, which is making fine progress at the rehearsals. The band concerts should be revived in the parks this summer so that the benefit of having a crack musical organization in the city may be enjoyed by everybody. This means a civic grant to the band and it is not likely that the citizens who have missed the weekly concerts would enter any serious objection to a fairly substantial sum being alloted to this purpose.

Similarly other worthy organizations will be seeking civic help. Their requests will make it difficult for the council to arrive at a decision. They are torn between the wish to reduce the municipal expenditure and the anxiety to help a good cause. Usually they yield to the latter.

THE GENOA CONFERENCE NEXT.

Formal invitations to participate in the proposed international financial and economic conference to be held in Genoa in March have been issued by the Italian Government, on whose territory it takes place. Every European nation, except Turkey, is included, and invitations have also been forwarded to the United States, Japan and the South American republics. Should all accept, forty-five nations will be represented, and more than that number will be present should the British Dominions and the Irish Free State express a desire to be included. On the assumption that the delegation and secretariat from each nation will average twenty, this means that about a thousand persons will arrive in Genoa, making the conference the largest and most important ever held in world history. Premier Lloyd George has already announced his intention to attend personally, and his decision will naturally lead to the attendance of the Premiers of the leading Allied Powers. This would also be in accordance with the terms of the resolution adopted at the meeting of the Allied Supreme Council in Cannes, which also pointed out that the resumption of international trade throughout Europe and the development of the resources of all countries are necessary to increase the value of productive employment and to relieve the widespread suffering of the European peoples.

Among the measures suggested to achieve these desirable objects were the removal of all obstacles in the way of trade; the provision of substantial credits for the weaker countries, and the co-operation of all nations in the restoration of normal prosperity. The resolution further laid down certain conditions that the Allied Powers considered to be fundamental. Broadly and briefly, the conditions disclaimed any right on the part of the nations to dictate to each other regarding their individual systems of ownership, internal economy or government, but required that foreign investors must be assured that their property and rights would be respected and the fruits of their enterprise secured to them. Recognition of all public debts was also required, and the proper enforcement of contracts and obligations by law, adequate means of exchange, refraining from propaganda subversive of law and the established political systems in countries other than their own, and, furthermore, that all countries should join in an undertaking to refrain from aggression against their neighbors. The resolution also provided that the Russian Government would be accorded recognition only if it accepted these stipulations.

Although M. Briand, who, as Premier of France, attended the Allied Supreme Council's sessions at Cannes, gave his sanction to the calling of an international economic conference, his successor, Premier Poincare, is not bound by his predecessor's action. The latter has already expressed himself as dissatisfied at the inclusion of Russia and Germany on terms of equality with the Allied Powers. It will, however, rest with his Cabinet whether the invitation which it has just received will be accepted or not on the basis of the Cannes resolution. Belief is expressed in quarters close to the Poincare government that no reply will be given until the United States executive has decided whether it will participate in the Genoa conference. No indication has yet emanated from Washington regarding President Harding's views, but prominent administration officials are said to have stated that it was the desire of the government to know exactly what matters were to come before the conference, and that no decision would be reached until the proposed agenda had been received and studied. One stumbling block may arise out of the inclusion of Russia, and whether this is to be considered as equivalent to the recognition of the Soviet regime. Hitherto the United States Government has declined to have any official dealings with that regime, and it may require a definite understanding that representation at the conference does not imply recognition. President Harding may also require that there be no discussion of any proposal for cancellation of its war loans.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Prosperity is just around the corner.

The winters may be changing, but they still seem to develop the old-time punch occasionally.

Make the quarantine a genuine one, and the present epidemic should soon be checked.

The belief of the Playgrounds Association that the financing of this work should be a civic matter will be shared by many citizens. It scarcely seems fair that the movement, which is of great community value, should have to be carried along by the generosity of a few individuals.

The ending of the North York farce is satisfactory to the majority of Canadians, who would also prefer to see no opposition offered to Mr. Meighen in Grenville.

Agnes McPhail, M.P.P., seems to be a good advertiser. Even her old serge suit serves for a front page item.

A minor problem for the new Minister of Finance is to how to collect an income tax from the boot-leggers.

RAILWAYS UNDER GOVT. OWNERSHIP.

Johannesburg Times: There is evidence all over the Union that producers are today gravely hampered by the high transport charges. In some directions the rates are already strangling industry, and the railwaymen will never convince the public that further increases would be fair or in the national interest. Traffic is being lost simply because the railway charges eat up all the profit on commodities sent to the market. The issue is not one affecting the railway employes alone. It is a national one, because it has a distinct bearing upon the present condition and the future prospects of nearly every enterprise in the Union. Railway rates which are too high mean diminishing industries and decreased employment.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

RIVERSIDE PARK.

Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In your editorial re Riverside park, you evidently miss the point of my letter which is, that as the by-law authorizing the purchase of the park was put before the ratepayers as a by-law to provide a park for East City, and was so understood by them, it is not within the power of the City Council to divert this park permanently to any other use. As for amateur sport, I am heartily in sympathy with it, and think that that park would make an ideal playground for East City boys and girls. Your reference to Alexandra Park, Ottawa, is to my mind not a happy one, as those acquainted with Ottawa know that it is far from being a public park in the ordinary acceptance of the term, being used for exhibition purposes and baseball almost exclusively. It is the least beautiful of Ottawa's parks and is used least by the general public.

Yours, etc.,
GEO. LEADER.

ALADDIN rubbed his lamp and summoned anyone to his presence. This same thing is being done to-day—only Aladdin's lamp has changed to a telephone.

Call the man you long to do business with, by Long Distance, and he is virtually in your presence when he lifts the receiver to listen. Practically, you are face to face. Long Distance makes him more accessible than if he lived next door. The man you might hesitate to borrow a monkey-wrench from greets you cordially when you call him. While others cool their heels in outer offices, waiting, you sell him.

He is in a receptive frame of mind. His curiosity is appealed to. He realizes the conversation will be brief, and lets down the bars. And where a salesman knows his goods there is something in the tones of his voice that carries conviction—puts over the deal. Your goods go through doors that were formerly closed to them.

We were satisfied with the pony post, until the railroad came. The mail and telegraph answered every need until the telephone came. All means of communication have their special uses, but for speed the telephone is best of all. Long Distance reaches more places than there are Post Offices.

Because of the very low rates on Station-to-Station calls after 8.30 P.M. Evening and Night calls by Long Distance are being used more and more for business purposes. It only requires a little planning.

ONE KILLED AND EIGHTEEN INJURED

William Campbell, Ottawa, cut on head, shoulder and arm.

Miss E. McCrury, Oxford Station, cut arm, hand and leg.

Mrs. E. R. Heimer, Ottawa, badly bruised.

Mrs. L. A. Lane, Ottawa, crushed hip.

A Spread Rail.

A relief train from Ottawa brought the injured into the city, and they were immediately removed in ambulances to local hospitals. Although the exact cause of the accident was not determined, it was believed to have been due to a spread rail. A peculiar feature of the crash was that while the engine, mail and baggage cars fell one way down the fifteen foot slope, the next car, a passenger, remained on the track, while the two other coaches went over the embankment on the opposite side.

Asked what he thought happened, Fireman Elliott said that when the engine began to jolt, Engineer White shouted: "What is wrong with her now?" "I looked out my side of the cabin," said the fireman, "shouted that the engine was running on the ties, and when I saw which side she was going over, jumped in the opposite direction."

Stories told by passengers show that the derailment came without warning of any kind. One instant they were rushing on toward Ottawa and the next they were crashing down the embankment on either side of the track. The passengers were hurled from their seats and flung together as the cars rolled. After the crash considerable difficulty was experienced in escaping from the cars, as streams of hot water poured down over the doors. It was necessary to wait a few minutes until this ceased before the uninjured could crawl out. The work of removing the injured was commenced immediately, the windows of the cars being smashed in order to permit their being lifted to safety.

Prompt Action of Helping.

Passengers in the car which remained on the track, although severely shaken up, rushed to the assistance of those in the other coaches, and were instrumental in opening the doors. The relief train from Ottawa took doctors and nurses to the scene, and the injured received treatment at the wreck and on the journey back to the city. Prior to the arrival of the relief train the emergency bandaging was greatly facilitated by Mrs. George Goodwin, of Billings Bridge, who, hearing the crash and cries for help, emptied her medicine chest into a basket and rushed across the fields to administer first aid. Eye-witnesses declare that Mother Superior St. Clement and others who were bleeding freely probably owe their lives to the prompt action taken by Mrs. Goodwin.

Scenes immediately after the wreck were pitiful in the extreme, especially when the wounded were being removed from the wreck to the snow-covered adjoining fields. Coats and blankets were appreciated, and immediately on the arrival of the relief train stretchers were rushed up.

Five of the injured were able to leave hospital this morning, those still on the serious list being George Ellictt, Clare Purdy, Arthur Naud, R. P. King and Wm. Campbell. Sister St. Clements and Sister Mary Charles are confined to Water Street Hospital. They were on their way to the capital to attend the funeral of Archbishop Gauthier.

After the injured were removed to the city, wrecking trains and crews were sent to the wreck. The body of Engineer White was recovered at 7.30 p.m. and taken to a local undertakers. Coroner Craig held a preliminary investigation. The usual coroner's inquiry will be held on January 31.

Smith's Falls and Perth hockey teams, on their way to play in Ottawa, were on the train, two players of the Smith's Falls team being among the injured.

Superintendent H. B. Spencer, of the C.P.R., Ottawa division, informed the Canadian Press that the damages to the track, cars and engine would amount to approximately $10,000. Mr. Spencer stated that the relief train was made up and away in slightly more than an hour after the first notification of the accident.

DEATH OF POPE BENEDICT

out the day a group of prelates and Papal attendants. This group with changes in personnel from time to time, will remain there until the body is removed some time to-night to the Sistine Chapel. The conveyance of the body there will be with solemn ceremonies.

The entire Papal Court was in full dress. The Swiss Guards, who always are dressed in medieval costumes of yellow and blue, with their helmets surmounted by a plume have added a white ruff to their collars. Their uniform is in striking contrast to that of the Noble Guard, which is of dazzling red and gold.

Received Italian Minister.

For the first time in history an Italian Cabinet Minister yesterday was received at the Vatican, when Angelo Mauri, the Minister of Agriculture, went there to inquire the condition of Pope Benedict.

Signor Mauri was cordially received by Monsignor Cremonesi, and by the Master of the Chamber, Caccia-Dominic, who invited him to enter. They retired to an apartment where the minister had a long talk with Monsignor Pizzardo, Papal Under-Secretary of State. Signor Mauri expressed his anxiety over the grave state of the Pontiff, and gave his best wishes for his recovery.

The Minister expressed himself as highly pleased at the welcome that was accorded him by the Vatican officials.

Pilgrims in Rome.

There were many true pilgrims among the crowd of notable persons who came to Rome during the fatal illness of the late Pope Benedict.

Two Franciscan monks arrived from Constantinople, bringing sacred images as tokens of the homage of the Catholics of the Orient to the Pope. They had been a long time on the way, regarded their mission as compelling, and were admitted to the Vatican.

MOURNING IN MEXICO.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 23.—Catholic churches throughout Mexico were ordered draped in mourning, and the number of masses was doubled by the Archbishop of Mexico, Jose Mora y del Rio, on receipts of the news of the Pope's death.

The Archbishop declared that the Pontiff had always taken a great interest in Mexico, both in her spiritual and governmental progress.

FUNERAL CEREMONIES.

ROME, Jan. 23.—Already everyone is recalling the ceremonies of pomp, of which the dead Pontiff will be the centre during the next few days, beginning with the gathering of the Cardinals in the death chamber in order to call the silent figure three times by his Christian name before pronouncing him officially dead. This will be followed by the historic ceremony of removing the fisherman's ring, which will be drawn off the Pope's finger by Cardinal Gasparri, who will destroy it and have it re-set for Benedict's successor. Then will follow the elaborate preparations for the embalment of the body and for the three days' ceremony, during which the body will lie in state in St. Peter's Chapel before burial.

Speculation is already rife concerning a successor. Cardinal Gasparri is among those most prominently mentioned, although the position of the Papal Secretary of State is almost unprecedented.

The College of Cardinals is said to be divided into two fairly even groups on the successor. The two groups represent those who think the next Pope should come from outside of Italy, and those who think he should be a native of the Eternal City. At the moment, the latter group seems to be in the ascendancy, although certain members of the Sacred College show a certain liking for Cardinal Merry Del Val, a native of Italy, and do not hide their sympathies for that choice.

POSSIBLE SUCCESSORS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Two of the princes of the Catholic Church prominently mentioned as possible successors to Pope Benedict are Cardinal Vannutelli and Cardinal Merry Del Val, both of whom have visited Canada as papal delegates, the latter in 1897 and the former in 1910. Both are personally known to high personages in political and ecclesiastical circles, as they have visited many of the chief Canadian centres.

sent him as a handsome man," said the Doctor, "but it is impossible to convey the irpression received when contemplating the small, frail figure of the Pope. A little man, scarcely more than five feet tall, with dark eyes, his whole countenance radiated intense spirituality."

And the little, white-clad figure dominating the scene on the occasion when 60,000 people gathered for the ceremonies attending the canonization of Joan of Arc was another indelible incident on the mind of the speaker.

His Holiness, on the occasion of the private audience granted to Dr. Gallivan, presented him with two beautiful bronze medallions in scarlet morocco cases, bearing the Papal coat of arms. One of these was presented to the doctor, the other sent to Mrs. Gallivan, who was the first Canadian lady to be so honored by Benedict XV.

That the Pontiff's life was shortened owing to anxieties engendered by the war and the conditions following it, is the opinion of Dr. Gallivan.

Mr. V. J. McElderry.

"The untimely death of His Holiness Pope Benedict XV at the comparatively early age of 67 is a matter of sorrow to all Catholics. It was hoped that he might have been spared many useful years in the chair of St. Peter. The estimable qualities of the deceased were known and appreciated throughout the whole world, not onlly by Catholics, but by people of all religions as is witnessed by the many expressions of regret that his death has elicited. His outstanding characteristic was, perhaps, that broad humanitarianism which induced him to strive so earnestly and persistently, and in the face of so many rebuffs, to bring peace to suffering humanity in the recent war. The world has lost a good and wise man; and to the Catholic church his death means the completion of another link in the long chain of Apostolic succession which now extends back into history two thousand years. A vast responsibility devolves upon the Pope as spiritual head of the Universal church and successor to St. Peter. Catholics in all parts of the world will look forward with interest to the appointment of a successor."

Adjutant W. Bunton.

"I desire to express on behalf of the Salvation Army, in Peterborough, our deepest symapthy to every follower of the Catholic faith in the death of such a great man as His Holiness, Pope Benedict XV.

With aching hearts the whole Catholic world mourns, and though our grief is unutterable and though our heads are bowed in woe, let us sorrow not as others that have no hope. We who trust in the living God, believe in the comfort of the Holy Ghost as a very real thing, and we cling to the blessed hope that some day, in God's own time and way, we shall all be united in that better land, so let us look up rejoicing in hope and patient in our deep tribulation, and looking unto Jesus who has the words of eternal life, and will breathe into our hearts and minds the consolation and hope which is beyond the power of earthly friends however dear. Again I would express our deepest sympathy and pray His blessing upon all who sorrow."

Body Moved To-day.

ROME, Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press.)—All that is mortal of Pope Benedict lies to-day in the Sistine Chapel, a beautiful chamber in the Vatican, where the Popes for nearly five hundred years have officiated in State ceremonies and have at last reposed before interment. Removal of the body to-day was one of solemn grandeur. The chapel is not large enough to hold thousands who wish to pay homage to the dead Pontiff, but in it are clustered traditions of hundreds of years.

Late to-day the body was transferred from Sistine Chapel to the Basilica of St. Peter's, where it will remain until final funeral ceremonies.

"Pope of Peace."

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.— (Canadian Press.)— His Excellency Monseigneur Pietro Di Maria, Apostolic delegate here, received many prominent personages yesterday, who called to express their regret at the passing of the head of the Roman Catholic church.

In expressing his sorrow of delegation and Roman Catholic churches of the Dominion at the death of Pope Benedict, the Papal delegate said that his Holiness had been a martyr to work which he had been endeavouring to accomplish for the cause of humanity and the mother church. "The late Pope Benedict can be truly called Pope of Peace," said His Excellency.

(BY HENRY WOOD)

ROME, Jan. 2.—(United Press.. —Three Cardinals were named by political and ecclesiastical authority to-day as the most likely successors to Pope Benedict XV. They are Cardinal Maffi of Pisa, Gasparri, the Cardinal Camerlengo, and Cardinal Merry Del Val, who was to have been Camerlengo - before he with drew. Cardinal Maffi was considered by many the most logical candidate, because at the time of Benedict's election he drew the highest vote on the first few ballots. He is a personal friend of the Italian Royal family, a pariotic Italian and considered the man most likely to carry out Benedict's XV policy of reconstruction.

The actual interment of the late Peniff, which was to have taken place at 5 o'clock, was postponed.

Cardinal Merry Del Val, on another hand has a large following, is not an Italian and his declining to act as Cardinal Camerlengo which must have prejudiced his changes, was considered significant, Cardinal Gasparri, who, has been a Papal Secretary of State, and who now holds the pontifical authority temporarily vested in the Cardinal Camerlengo, was fully as strong a possibility in the public mind.

The sacred college will convene February 2, to elect Benedict's successor.

The Pope Benedict's will designates his nephew the Marquis Giuseppe Della Chiesa, as the sole heir of his personal property. It states that other property of Benedict XV was only held temporarily and returns to the church.

Cardinal Gasparri, as Cardinal Camerlengo, acts as temporary custodian until a new pope is elected.

For the first time in Italian history the official Gazette this evening carries official news of the pope's death in a black lined announcement.

SAILS FOR ROME

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Cardinal O'Connell plans to sail with his party from New York, to-morrow for Naples, on the Steamer President Wilson, to participate in the election of Pope Benedict's successor.

PARIS, Jan 23—(Canadian Press) World Congress of the Irish race to-day passed resolutions of condolences over the death of Pope and depreciating "Vindictiveness of Britain in retaining Irish prisoners in British jails".

The Funeral Service.

ROME, Jan. 23.— The burial of Pope Benedict XV with solemn ceremony, which will extend over a period of ten days, began this evening.

The body of the late Pontiff which lap in state in the sacrament chapel for a brief while to-day, was to be placed in the first of three coffins in which it will finally be interred, and to-night will rest in the vault of St. Peter's.

Thousands had pased the grilled doors of the sacrament chapel and kissed the foot of the dead Pontiff since 9 o'clock, when the body was brought with ceremony from the Throne room of the Vatican.

Late this afternoon the doors of St. Peter's were cosed to permit the actual burial service to begin.

NEW EDUCATIONAL VENTURE A SUCCESS

Correspondence Study Division Halifax Technical College Shows Good Work.

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 23. — (Canad an Press.)—Although the Correspondence Study Division of the Nova Scotia Technical College at Halifax has only been organized a short time, already the student enrollment has more than justified the new venture. At present the Division offers courses in fifty different subjects, and the demand for teaching by correspondence in Nova Scotia is growing rapidly; according to the Superintendent, A. T. Jewett. In spite of the fact that the Department of Technical education established seventeen evening schools for miners in different mining centres of the province, there developed such an insistent demand for correspondence courses in mining that it has been recently decided to add another department.

Retraining Men

The Nova Scotia Technical College began ing by correspondence in 1916, but soon had to discontinue it, because the whole staff and space were required for the retraining of men who were being discharged from the Canadian Expeditionary Force with service disabilities preventing them from returning to their pre-war occupations. How well this institution carried out the work of retraining disabled ex-service men—how, in fact, Nova Scotia was the pioneer province in this kind of work—is another story.

In March, 1921, when the soldier retraining activities fell off sufficiently, the reorganization of the Correspondence Study Division was undertaken. Very little data as to the probable character and extent of the demand for this kind of instruction in the province was available; but a brief prospectus addressed to ex-soldiers who had received re-training at the Technical College brought 335 enquiries for further particulars. This was not considered sufficient evidence of a demand for correspondence instruction, especially as the enquiries came from one class only, and a small proportion of the people who might be expected to want to profit by correspondence instruction. Moreover, it was known that the United States correspondence schools had an enrollment of thousands of students in the province.

Wide Study Range

The Nova Scotia institution was able through the courtesy of the Provincial Institute of Technology and Art, Calgary, Alberta, the State Board of Education of Massachusetts and the University of Wisconsin to make use of courses of instruction already prepared, and to offer a wide range of study courses without delay. At present instruction is being given in six groups of courses, covering fifty subjects. The groups with percentages of enrollment are:

	Percent.
Commercial	36
Industrial	21
Drawing	11
Mathematical	16
General	9
Homemaking	7

As mathematics and drawing are key subjects for a thorough industrial training the percentage of enrollment in these groups should be added to the industrial group, making a total percentage of 48. This showing of 48 per cent. of the students in the industrial group and 36 per cent. in the commercial group is considered very satisfactory, indicating that a large number of mechanics are desirous of obtaining good theoretical knowledge of their work, and are not particularly anxious to change to clerical work. Students in the commercial group include a considerable number of women, while the male students are largely men employed in business establishments eager to learn bookkeeping and accounting, a fact which is said to augur well for the business future of the province.

Many Advantages

A. T. Jewett, who is in charge of the Correspondence Study Division, expresses the opinion that eventually some plan will be worked out whereby a student who works through a correspondence, the content of which has received the approval of a University, and passes a satisfactory examination, may be given credit at the Universities which would lessen the length of attendance usually required. Some such plan would, Mr. Jewett thinks, be a strong incentive to correspondence study, and enable many to obtain the advantages of a University education who cannot afford four or more years to obtain it.

PRINCE OF WALES WILL VISIT CEYLON.

And is Assured of a Hearty Welcome.

LONDON, Jan 23. —(Canadian Press.)—In anticipation of the proposed visit of the Prince of Wales to Ceylon on his way home from Japan in March, interest naturally is directed toward that Island. His Royal Highness is assured of a very hearty welcome in Ceylon. Preparations for this great event in the history of the colony are already well under way, and doubtless the Prince will enjoy his sojourn in thus part of the Empire, whose history goes back as far as the fifth century, B.C.

The traveller in Ceylon, wandering in the ruins of a past civilization, cannot but be impressed by the great lakes which are the vestiges of the irrigation works of kings dead for over 2,000 years. The Portuguese formed settlements in the country in the 16th century; the Dutch followed them in the 17th, and England took possession from the Dutch in the 18th. Today the revenue of between £4,000,000 and £5,000,000 surpasses that of any other Crown Colony.

The 4,497,000 people who form the population of Ceylon—a territory the size of Halland and Belgium—remind one by their racial differences of the Island's transitions through the centuries. The Sinhalese themselves are divided into two sections, those of the Low Country and the Kandyans. The Low Country people have been in touch with Europeans for ages, whereas the Kandyans, living in the interior and resisting invasion, were not subdued until 1815. The Tamils number over a million. The Burghers, descendants of the earlier Dutch settlers who intermarried with the Sinhalese, hold many professional posts. In these they are strongly represented in proportion to their number, 29,000. There are many lawyers and doctors among them, and they form a valuable element in the population. There are 8,400 European inhabitants of Ceylon.

In connection with the recent colonial loans which were floated under the auspices of the Colonial Office in London as Empire assets, the £6,000,000 loan for Ceylon was raised in two portions, and both halves were oversubscribed with a few hours of the issue. Part of this money is to be devoted to repaying advances made by the Government to the Colombo municipality for drainage and waterworks, which are practically completed. Another portion, amounting to about one-half, will be spent on railway development, the new railway being intended to open up an area suitable for growing rice and other food

The chief productions of Ceylon are tea, cocoanuts and rubber. Though cocoanuts occupy the largest area, tea is the most important in respect of the monetary returns. In the middle of the last century Ceylon was devoted to coffee, but owing to an outbreak of disease tea obtained an opening, and now coffee is scarcely grown on the Island. The tea plantations are mainly owned by the Europeans, but some of them are in the possession of the natives. This is the case also with rubber, except that the proportion in European hands is larger. The cocoanut industry, for the most part, is native. Over 4,000,000 acres are cultivated in the Colony, and it is estimated that there are 45,000 acres of rubber.

A notable change has been made in the administration of Ceylon by the recent reform of the Legislative Council, which before 1921 had a permanent official majority. Under an Order-in-Council of August, 1920, the Legislative Council has been reconstructed with a permanent unofficial majority, including a large number of elected members. Thus, in ordinary cases, the representatives of the people can impose their will on the Executive Government. But if the Governor considers a matter to be of paramount importance he can carry out his intentions by the use of the official vote alone, though he must justify his actions with the Secretary of State.

Education has reached a higher level in Ceylon than in many parts of India. Several of the schools are run on lines resembling those of English public schools. A University College was started in 1921, and it may ultimately grow into a full university. The College is associated, more or less, with Oxford University. The Ceylon Medical College is a flourishing institution, and it grants diplomas recognized by the General Medical Council of Great Britain. There are about 300 medical students. The staff is comprised chiefly of Sinhalese, who had their early training in this College.

For a tropical colony Ceylon has a pleasant climate. The hill station of Nuwara Eliya possesses a sanitorium frequented by visitors from the Malay States and other parts of the world. The station claims that its golf links are the finest in the East. Big game is not numerous, but there is a certain amount of elephant shooting, and bear and leopards are to be found in remote parts of the Island.

BERNARD DUPRAS LIKES NEW HOME

BIDS FAIR TO BECOME A STAR BOARDER IN THE LOCAL BASTILE

Bernard Dupras of Renfrew, has such a liking for the quiet sanctum on the hill, that being released on Saturday after serving fifteen days he lost no time this morning in taking steps to be re-instated in comfort once more. The police took him unto themselves Saturday and Sunday night and this morning he could hardly bear to leave the station.

It was a far colder world he stepped out into than when he last had his freedom and he must have ruminated on the cosines of the county jail. He ordered a good breakfast at Charlie Chew's, in fact it was such a good one the bill was $1.10. He tendered a cheque on the Union Bank for $0.50 in payment but unfortunately Detective George Cookman saw the transaction and intervened. Before Magisrate Langley he was charged with attempted forgery and remanded for a week.

GERMANS REVERTING TO TRADE BY BARTER

BERLIN, Jan. 23. — (Associated Press.)—In consequence of the low buying power of the mark, Germans are gradually reverting to trade by barter, or to counting commodities and articles as the real money unit.

It is reported from Pomerania that peasant farmers have pledged themselves to sell eggs and butter at prices measured in pounds of nails. In Berlin, Persian carpets are regarded as money.

DEMAND THAT GERMANS BUILD FRENCH HOMES

PARIS, Jan. 23.—(Associated Press.) —Inhabitants of several devastated villages along the Chemin des Dames have demanded the employment of German material and labor in their reconstruction. They asked the Minister of Liberated Regions to organize a referendum of parishes affected to take a vote on the question.

They asserted that their villages had been neglected by the government for three years.

NO KICK COMING.

Merchant—Look here, that safe you sold me last month you said was a burglar-proof safe, and I found it cracked this morning and rifled of its contents.

Agent—Well, isn't that proof that you've had a burglar?

TWO FACTIONS FRENCH LABOR.

One Advocates Strikes to Bitter End.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—(Associated Press.) —The French Federation of Labor has been for some time practically split into two factions. One is led by Secretary Leon Jouhaux and the other by Communists who regard the present organization as too moderate, and demand that it join the Third Internationale of Moscow.

Now it is faced with the active position of extremists who have taken the name of the French Revolutionary Federation of Labor (La Confederation du Travail Revolutionnaire).

The program of the revolutionary group is the same as that of the old organization in general. It demands the nationalization of public services, such as railroads, and mines and a better share to labor in the profits of industry, but it purposes to gain its ends by methods that are more energetic than those of the old federation.

It advocates general strikes carried to the bitter end, insurrectional movements, international agitation and an intense anti-militarist campaign.

The first act of the new organization is expected to be its formal adhesion to the Third Internationale of Moscow.

A PRECISE MAN.

Gruff voice (at 'phone)—Is Mr. Jones there?

Sweet voice—Yes, do you wish to see him?

Gruff voice—See him? My good girl, this isn't a telescope, it's a telephone.

WANTS TO START EARLY.

BOSTON, Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press.)—A letter from Jack Quinn, under contract to pitch for the Boston Americans this season, was received Saturday by Secretary Graver of the Red Sox, which is at variance with the reported statement by Quinn in Chicago that he had jumped his contract and decided to play semi-professional ball.

Secretary Graver said that Quinn in the letter asked Harry Frazee, owner of the Red Sox, for permission to report at Hot Springs ahead of any of the other pitchers in order that he might take a course of treatment and baths there. According to Graver, Quinn said that his arm "feels good, in fact better than it has for two seasons."

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH FOR EIGHT YEARS

The cause of this trouble is the fermentation of food in the stomach which generates a gas that is very frequently belched up. There is also a rumbling of the bowels and a discharge of gas therefrom, there is a constant retching, and the meals are frequently vomited. There is a burning pain in the stomach, the appetite is fickle, the tongue coated, the breath bad, constipation is generally present and the sufferer becomes weak, nervous, depressed and exceedingly miserable.

The blame lies with a sluggish liver, as it holds back the bile which is so necessary to promote the movement of the bowels, and when the bile gets into the blood a badly disordered condition of the stomach, liver and bowels will surely follow.

Keep your liver active and you will always enjoy good health.

Mrs. Agnes Gallant, Reserve Mines, N.S., writes:—"I had been a great sufferer for eight years, from catarrh of the stomach. I tried several, so-called, catarrh remedies without relief until a friend advised me to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills which I did, and four vials completely relieved me. That was six years ago, and I have had no return of my old trouble."

Price, 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS, USE SALTS

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water — you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

The front pews were occupied by C Company, Northumbrland Regiment, with their officers, and returned men of the district. The music was in charge of the Northumberland Regiment band, under the efficient leadership of Mr. R. T. Cowell.

The Names.

The following names are engraved on the beautiful bronze tablet, which is an honour to the church:

Harry Brewer.
Angus Clark.
Garnet V. Dolmar
Albert O. Hardy.
David Heath.
Stewart Lasher.
William J. Salter.
R. R. Simpson.
Isaac Smith.
William Bateson.
Harry Williams

The Addresses.

Owing to the condition of the roads, Col. O. Flynn was unable to be present. Rev. Kenny's address was most eloquent and impressive, and in it he paid a glowing tribute to those whom we were about to honour. These brave men are here not for our applause, but for our imitation, declared the speaker. They fought from a sense of duty and patriotism for liberty, yet greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. Sixty thousand Canadian lads sleep beneath the poppies, and the late war dug over 11,000,000 graves. The speaker declared he did not preach the gospel of hate, but wished to see all nations cemented together with love. We can never repay the debt we owe those fallen heroes. Instead of our honouring them, they honoured us.

Major Bygott made a very fitting and impressive address, dealing with the hardships experienced by some families, in one family five sons having joined his company. Three of those who enlisted were mere boys, yet felt it was their duty. It was his conviction that those who fell will receive their reward. He, too, felt the debt of gratitude we owe these boys.

An air of solemnity pervaded the entire service, which will not soon be forgotten, and this tablet will remain, as long as the church remains, as a lasting tribute to the brave men who died that we might live.

Will Speak Next Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Daly, Superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, who is stationed at Port Hope, will occupy the pulpit of St. Andrew's Church in the morning on Sunday, 29th January, and in the evening in the Methodist Church. Mr. Daly is an able speaker, and his address will be of interest.

Passed Away.

There passed away in Campbellford on Friday, 20th January, at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Alonzo Dunk, Mrs. Peter Clark, aged 74 years, after a short illness. The deceased was born in Seymour Township, daughter of the late John Clark. The late Mrs. Clark was a woman of good, Christian character, and was beloved by all who knew her.

She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Alonzo Dunk, and one brother, Mr. William J. Clark, Sebastopol Street.

The funeral was conducted at the house yesterday afternoon, interment taking place in Clark's Cemetery, Seymour West. The family have the sympathy of all in their bereavement.

Firemen Called Out.

Yesterday morning about 10.30 the fire alarm was given, which proved to be only a burning chimney at the home of Mr. Stewart, Saskatoon Avenue. In the afternoon the alarm was again sounded, this time at the home of Mr. Charles Hankinson, Grand Road. The fire originated from an oil stove. A strong wind was blowing, and despite all the efforts of the firemen and friends, the house, which was a frame structure, and practically all the contents, was a total loss, with some insurance.

The townspeople sympathise with Mr. and Mrs. Hankinson and family in their loss.

SOON HAD HIM FEELING LIKE DIFFERENT MAN

WELL KNOWN SALESMAN SAYS HIS STRENGTH AND ENERGY SEEMED TO LEAVE HIM AFTER AN ATTACK OF THE 'FLU.'

HEALTH RESTORED OVER TWO YEARS AGO TROTTER DECLARES HE HAS FELT FINE EVER SINCE AND WORK IS REAL PLEASURE

"Tanlac soon had me feeling like a new man, and I gained twenty pounds in weight on four bottles," said Lawrence E. Trotter, well-known salesman for the Lawler's Bakery, residing at 15 Wardell St., Toronto, Ont.

"Two and a half years ago when the 'flu' epidemic was at its worst I went down with it, and was in bed for two weeks. When I got up I was thin and weak, had no appetite at all and was so nervous I could scarcely sleep any. I had no strength or energy to do a thing, and as I was eating hardlly anything, I couldn't seem to take a start to mend.

"I had read a great deal about Tanlac being good to build a person up, so I got a bottle and it seemed that my appetite got better the first day I started taking it. I soon went back on the job feeling fine, even better than I did before I had the 'flu.' Since then I've been telling people about Tanlac constantly, for it did me so much good I think everybody ought to know about it."

NOTE— Tanlac Vegetable Pills are an essential and vitally important part of the Tanlac treatment. You cannot hope to get the most satisfactory results from Tanlac without first establishing a free and regular movement of the bowels. Tanlac Vegetable Pills are absolutely free from calomel and are sold on a positive guarantee to give satisfaction.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

POLITICAL DEVELOPMENTS.

LONDON, Jan. 23. Canadian Press. —The latest political developments in the Empire is embodied in a white paper containing a draft of a proposed constitution for Southern Rhodesia which was recently hammered out between Winston Churchill, the Secretary of State for Colonial affairs, representatives of the people of Rhodesia, and the present ruling authority, namely the British South African Company.

A THREE HOUR FIGHT.

TRALEE, Ireland, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—An attempt on Friday to seize a police automobile, when one civilian and one constable were wounded, led to a three hours' fight Saturday night between police and Republicans. Several participants were wounded.

The police with rifles, revolvers and bombs, rushed through the streets of the town in an armored car. Many people ran into the churches for shelter and remained there throughout the night. Meanwhile the Republicans engaged the police in combat in Nelson street. The fighting was ended by the arrival of the military. Many windows were shatered by bullets or the concussion from the bombs.

A STORM WARNING.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—The following storm warning was issued yesterday by the Weather Bureau:

"Advisory 10 a.m. northwest storm warning displayed Atlantic Coast at and north of Sandy Hook; strong northwest and west winds and gales this afternoon and to-night on the North Atlantic Coast. Disturbances central over St. Lawrence Valley, moving rapidly eastward."

CONFERRED WITH LANDIS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.— (Canadian Press.)—"Babe" Ruth Saturday conferred with Judge Kenesaw M. Landis over the Yankee outfielder's $3,000 fine and suspension until May 20, for playing post-season games, but the possibility of mitigation of the punishment was not discussed, according to an announcement by Leslie O'Connor, the Judge's secretary.

The home run hitter was informed, however, that the Baseball Commissioner had no objection to Ruth taking the spring training trip with his club, provided there was no objection from the club.

THE MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—There was no change in the local grain market Saturday. A moderate business is passing in flour. There was nothing new in the millfeed situation and the market for rolled oats is steady. Further depression is shown in the egg market, prices declining 5c. to 6c. per dozen Saturday. There is a better feeling in the buttter market, but business in cheese continues very dull.

CENTREVILLE U.F.O. DEBATE, SOCIAL AND DANCE.

On Friday night last the U.F.O. Club had another gala night, which proved a great success.

George Berry occupied the chair and was supported by the Rev. A. H. McConnachie, who delivered a short address on the art of debating. Mrs. McLaren contributed an Irish recitation with great effect. Bert Byers and Clifford Emberson favored with songs, which were heartily encored.

The debate was then staged, the subject being, "Resolved that travel is more educative than reading." Affirmative, Edmund Morrison and Ida Pue; negative, Richmond Morrison and Connie McConnachie. Four good papers were submitted and the judges decided in favour of the negative. The dance was then called, and continued till 2 a.m.

In the course of the evening lunch was served by the ladies in their usual good style. The Municipal Hall is becoming too small for these events. The club must be satisfied that these meetings are serving a community need and bringing together a representative crowd of citizens. The next meeting is timed for Friday, Feb. 3rd.

A Social Evening.

The social evening given in the S. S. hall of the Methodist church on Friday at 8 p.m., by the "Boneka" Adult Bible Class, of which Miss Patience Byam is the teacher, proved a most enjoyable and successful event. Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Ross Edmunds.
Secretary—Miss Mary Widdis.

Two contests were engaged in during the social hour, one of which, cleverly arranged by Miss Brock, brought out the names of all the members of the class in the answers. Refreshments were served at the close and all agreed that a thoroughly enjoyable evening had been spent. Those present were: Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sayles, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. "Deserved Tribute to Miss Winslow"

The following letter has just been received from the Director-General of the American College of Surgeons, Franklin H. Martin, M.D., by Miss Victoria Winslow, lady superintendent o fthe Medicine Hat General Hospital, and is a well-deserved tribute to her work done in this city.

My Dear Miss Winslow,—You are aware of the fact, no doubt, that your hospital appears on the 1921 list of hospitals meeting the minimum standard of the College. This recognition by the college is, we feel assured, a well-deserved one. Hospital standardization, in essence, is the desire for the welfare of the patient felt by the combined medical and hospital professions, a desire put into action and made practicable. Your splendid work and the fruits of it, which are apparent in your community, must afford you more gratification than the stamp of our approval ever can. However it gives us real pleasure to recognize and commemorate the stand for better hospital service which you have made.

There are yet further advances to be made in the hospital, just as in medicine itself. While the co-operation of the medical and hospital professions, however, these advances cannot fail to become realized.

With very good wishes for a successful year, I am

Very sincerely yours
(Signed) Franklyn H. Martin.

The other item refers to an address of appreciation presented to Miss Winslow by the chairman of the hospital board on her retirement from the staff

Miss Victoria L. Winslow, Lady Superintendent of Medicine Hat General Hospital:

Dear Miss Winslow: The Board of Directors of the Medicine Hat General Hospital received the news of your resignation as Superintendent of their training school for nurses with a great deal of regret.

Since coming here several years ago you have maintained and increased the prestige and reputation of the school in the city and district and throughout the province.

We have noted with pride and pleasure the high standing in which our graduates are regarded wherever they go.

The Board has also appreciated very much the great interest you have taken and the practical work you have done in connection with all other departments of the hospital. It particularly wishes to express its appreciation of your excellent work and management during the trying time of the influenza epidemic.

Appreciating to the full these various activities of yours, the Board is desirous of expressing in some small and they feel inadequate way, these feeling of regard and appreciation.

As a mark of their esteem they would like you to accept this wrist watch.

The Board requests that you may be long spared to note the time of day by it and wishes you all possible success and happiness in any future sphere of work in which you may engage.

The address was signed by a committee of the Board of Directors appointed by the latter to represent them in the matter.

Gentlemen:-

The results which can be obtained by newspaper advertising are reflected, in a large way, in the growth and prosperity of the Canadian Postum Cereal Company, Ltd. From the start of its advertising experience, the Postum Company has been a consistent user of newspaper advertising space. During these years, our newspaper schedules have constantly increased in volume and have been carried through with practically no interruptions. It might be said, in a general way, that the advertising policy of this institution is founded on newspaper publicity.

It is the belief of our organization that the present world events have increased the value of the newspaper as an advertising medium. Newspapers are followed closely for developments with regard to foreign policies and the settlement of the many international problems. Such a reader interest cannot help but put newspaper advertising on a more substantial value basis than ever before.

In keeping with our past policies, our newspaper advertising schedules are being steadily maintained and we are looking forward to active campaigns during the year 1922.

Yours very truly,

CANADIAN POSTUM CEREAL COMPANY, Ltd.

FOREIGNERS LEARN PRICES GO UP

But They Never Come Down in Berlin.

BERLIN, [illegible] — (Associated Press.)—Foreigners sojourning in Berlin have learned that "prices go up, but never come down," regardless of the rise or fall of the German mark. Visitors here, compelled to live in the first-class hotels, may secure rooms at prices which they consider reasonable compared with home prices, but the illusion of "cheapness" soon vanishes.

At least once a month prices are advanced, and the usual increase is 100 percent. The notice of increase is sent the day before the new rates are effective. There is no recourse but to pay The only furnished rooms or apartments to be had are in the suburbs, and are impracticable because of the frequent strikes on the transportation lines.

Disadvantages of living in second class hotels, in addition to the absence of modern conveniences, are multiplied by the restlessness of the workers. Hardly a week passes without a strike of electric workers, porters, cooks, maids—in which case the hotels, as well as the office buildings in which the foreigners must work, are dark and without service.

Within the last three months there have been strikes on the underground and surface railways, in the electric power plants, of all the employes in restaurants, the chauffeurs, as well as workmen in such trades as tailoring, printing and other lines. The last strike was called by the janitors of apartment and office buildings which were left without heat during the coldest days of the winter.

And to every bill which the patrons of the hotels and restaurants must pay there is added a diversity of taxes or surcharges for the state, the city, or the help. Also, tips are still expected and received, although hotel and restaurant employes recently consented to abolish the tip when granted a ten percent commission on all bills, an increase in wages, and a percentage of the weekly incomes of their employers.

NOT CERTAIN JOHNSON KILLED TECUMSEH

It has been commonly accepted that Tecumseh was killed in battle at the Thames in Ontario by Col. R. M. Johnson, afterward Vice-President of the United States, but it is not at all certain that Col. Johnson killed him, or even positively that he fell actually in that battle. That he disappeared at the time of the battle, October 5, 1813, is certain, and a body, supposed to be his, was found after that engagement.

There is an old book printed by the Miami Printing and Publishing Co., of Cincinnati, written by Col. William Stanley Hatch, entitled "A Chapter of the History of the War of 1912," in which this reference is made to the death of Tecumseh:

"Col. Johnson informed me, and he so repeatedly stated during the canvass of 1840 for the vice-presidency, that he did not pretend to say that the Indian referred to as killed by him was Tecumseh; he was not acquainted with Tecumseh's personal appearance. All that he knew was that a tall athletic warrior confronted him as he led a charge with his 20 men, and him he slew with his pistol."

Col. Hatch closes his book with this paragraph: "Here on the Thames this heroic chieftain, the greatest of his race, fell. Yet no Indian I have met, and I have interrogated many, and no white man that I have seen has with certainty known of it."

TWO TYPES OF PEOPLE IN NORWAY

There are two types of people in Norway—the tall, hardy blond, and a short, dark race. The blonds are descended from a people who originally came from the Caucasian Mountains. The dark race inhabited the peninsula at an early period and the darker types are descendants from these people.

Honesty, simplicity and kindliness are three virtues for which the Norwegians are especially noted. From their brave Viking ancestors they inherit their fearlessness and love of the sea. Norwegian society bears the reputation of being the most democratic in the whole of Europe. There are no privileged classes and no orders of nobility. Almost three-fourths of the people live in rural communities along the coast and fiords. There are very few in the interior, and many of the high, bare mountains are wholly uninhabited.

The people are very religious, and Norway is considered the most Christian and most Protestant country in the world.

DON'T NEGLECT BRONCHITIS

The principal symptom of bronchitis is a cough which is dry, harsh and hacking, accompanied with rapid wheezing, and a feeling of tightness through the chest.

There is a raising of phlegm, especially in the morning after rising from bed. This phlegm is at first light color, but as the trouble progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color and is sometimes streaked with blodd.

In

you will find a remedy that will stimulate the weakened bronchial organs, subdue the inflammation, soothe the irritated parts, loosen the phlegm and mucous, and help nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulation.

Mr. John H. Root, 40 Maple Ave., Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with bronchitis and I had a very bad cough. I had it so long I was beginning to get afraid of other developments. I tried all kinds of cough remedies without relief. I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Wood's Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle, and it convinced me to believe that I had at last gotten the right medicine. I used several bottles and am practically well. I have recommended it to others since, and good results followed."

Be sure and get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it; price, 35c, and 60c, a bottle; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

28 DIFFERENT METHODS FOR KILLING CHURCHES

1. Don't come to the meeting.
2. But if you do come, come late.
3. If the weather doesn't suit you don't think of coming.
4. If you attend a meeting find fault with the preaching the work of the officers and the others.
5. Never accept an office, as it is easier to criticise than to do things.
6. Nevertheless get sore if you are not appointed on a committee; but if you are, do not attend the committee meetings.
7. If asked by the chairman to give your opinion regarding some important matter, tell him you have nothing to say. After the meeting tell everyone how things ought to be done.
8. Do nothing more than is absolutely necessary; but when other members roll up their sleeves willingly and unselfishly use their ability to help matters along, howl that the church is run by a clique.
9. Hold back your dues as long as possible, or don't pay them at all.
10. Don't bother about getting new members. Let the pastor do that.
11. When a supper is given tell everybody money is being wasted on blow-outs, which make a big noise and accomplish nothing.
12. When no suppers are given say the church is dead and needs a can tied to it.
13. If you get any tickets don't pay for them.
14. If you don't receive a bill for your dues, don't pay.
15. If you receive a bill you've paid, resign from the church.
16. Don't tell the church how it can help you, but if it doesn't help you, resign.
17. If you receive benefit without joining, don't think of joining.
18. If the church doesn't correct abuses in your neighborhood, howl that nothing is done.
19. If it calls attention to abuses of your own, resign.
20. Keep your eyes open for something wrong and when you find it, resign.
21. At every opportunity threaten to quit, and get your friends to resign.
22. When you attend a meeting vote to do something, and then go home and do the opposite.
23. Agree to everything said at the meeting and disagree with it outside.
24. When asked for information don't give it.
25. Then kick because the church hasn't complete information.
26. Get all the church can give you, but don't give it anything except your condemnation.
27. Talk co-operation for the other fellow with you, but never co-operate with him.
28. When everything else fails, condemn the pastor.

NEED FOR CO-OPERATION.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.— (Canadian Press.)—Speaking at the University Club here Saturday evening, Lord Lee, of Fareham, First Lord of the Admiralty, and one of the members of the British delegation to the conference on the limitation of armaments at Washington, suggested that it would be a profound mistake for Canada or for anyone in Canada to assume that they have no concern in the British Navy, and added that the need for co-operation in the Empire Navy from every part of the Empire still remains almost as vital as it was before the Washington Conference.

All Set For the Big Game of the Year

With fast ice assured for to-night's game and Aura Lee bringing down their full line-up, the clash between the Senior O.H.A. leaders and the P.A.A.A. intermediates at Brock street rink should be by long odds the most interesting hockey engagement of the season. The Petes worked out on Saturday afternoon and are in the best of shape for the test to-night. Lornie Rose has recovered from the crack on the leg which disabled him last Monday night, and the rest of the squad are in the pink of condition. The game is called for 8.30 o'clock. The Aura Lee team have secured a special Pullman and will dress on the train so that they will be all ready to don their skates and jump on to the ice when they reach the rink.

Either John R. Roach or Steve Vair will referee. The teams will be as follows:

CANADIENS WENT DOWN TO DEFEAT

SCORE STOOD TORONTO 5, CANADIENS 3, IN HOCKEY FEATURE AT MONTREAL SATURDAY.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Babe Dye's rib-cracking shots, the Randall-Noble combination and the impregnable Roach in goal were too much for Canadiens in the Mount Royal arena here Saturday night, and when the final gong rang the score stood Toronto 5, Canadiens 3. The game did not lack excitement, rushes from either end of the rink almost invariably resulting in dangerous shooting. There was another sort of excitement when Sprague Cleghorn knocked Randall down with his fist during an argument in the third period, and when Dye had to retire for the latter part of the second period after an encounter with Sprague behind the Toronto goal. Cleghorn got five minutes on the boards for each of these offences, and received another two minutes when he swung his stick in the air. Dye's first tally in the second period turned out to be no tally at all, according to the goal referee. There was considerable dispute about the matter while the crowd howled to the players to proceed.

Fooling Around.

The game started rather slowly, with a good bit of feeling around and fussy stick-handling by both teams. Noble scored the first goal on a pass from Dye after nine minutes of play. Canadiens' combination was very poor, and they made numerous false passes. Their individual playing was much better, and Roach made some wonderful saves. Randall scored the next one for Toronto and made the next one with a little flop after Vezina had skated out of the goal to meet Denneny. In spite of Toronto's solid defence and back checking, Canadiens had lots of chances.

In the second period, Berlinquette started for Canadiens and had not been on the ice for more than two minutes when he scored. It was not Roach's fault when Odie Cleghorn scored a few minutes later. The game got a good deal faster about this time. Referee Smeaton was watching things closely, and faced off the puck when Odie Cleghorn and Randall butted into each other. Then Dye apparently scored a magnificent long shot that went over Vezina's foot. Three minutes later Corbeau announced a protest, indicating that the goal referee had not called Dye's goal. Smeaton allowed the goal referee's ruling, and would not call it a goal. Cameron skated through Canadiens and had a nice shot at Vezina, who saved by skating out to meet him. Boucher went off for two minutes when he knocked Roach off his feet behind the Toronto nets. Cleghorn got his first five minutes near the end of this period.

Fine Hockey Here.

Starting with four men, the Canadiens played fine hockey. Toronto did not exert themselves, and the game slowed up at the beginning of the third period. Vezina just saved skating into a shot of Dye's, an unexpected pass from Randall.

Boucher scored on a pass from Bouchard in five minutes. It was during this period that S. Cleghorn and Randall had their little fracas, for which Cleghorn got five minutes and Randall two minutes.

A NEW INDUSTRY TO LOCATE IN LINDSAY

LINDSAY, Jan. 23.—A new industry, the Canadian Vitex Feed and Milling Co., Limited, has decided to locate here, and has purchased the Canadian Cereal Flour Mills, Ltd., property. They expect to have the plant operating in sixty days, and will manufacture concentrated balanced mixed feed for poultry and livestock. The company will also be jobbers for bran, shorts, flour and all mill feeds, and wholesalers of feed store supplies.

Sports

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

The weather man has supplied the one thing that was needed to make to-night's game between the Aura Lee Senior O.H.A. team and the P.A.A.A. Intermediates the hockey event of the season. The teams could not have shown their wares to good advantage on soft ice, and both outfits are tickled to death at the certainty of a lightning fast surface. As a result, the fans should see even faster hockey than in the game a week ago, for the Aura Lee team is stronger than the Dominion Bank outfit, and the Petes have benefited a lot by their clash with the Toronto gang last week, and will do their darndest to beat the Senior O.H.A. leaders. A fan who finds a vacant corner in the rink at 8.30 o'clock to-night will be lucky.

It is not definitely known who will referee to-night's game. John Ross Roach, who officiated last week, is anxious to handle the Aura Lee-Peterborough clash, but the St. Pats management is frowning upon the idea of their players acting as referees. In case Roach is unable to act, there will be no difficulty about an official, for Steve Van is coming down to see the game, and will manipulate the bell if Roach can't. A party of fifteen will accompany the Aura Lee team to Peterborough.

The wrestling match scheduled for Saturday night was left at the post. In other words, it never got started. The promoters called the affair off early in the evening, and the police won the only fall when there was trouble over the rent of the hall. The bouts never had a chance to succeed, for a man who could sell Peterborough people $1.50 seats for a wrestling match could sell electric fans in the Arctic Circle.

Famous Words of Famous Men:

"Another word, and you're out of the game."—Alex. Kay.

The City League game this week should be of more than usual interest. Old rivals, C.G.E. Toolroom and Wm. Hamilton's meet in the first game and the loser will be knocked out of the running in the first half of the League race, while the winner will have a chance of getting into a tie with Lakeviews. If the Bankers stop the leaders in the second game of the double-header, there will be plenty of excitement in that first clash, while the Bankers-Lakeview bout should also be a real struggle. A Lakeview victory gives the red and white team the championship of the first section.

This morning's mail brought the Sporting Editor a letter from a former well-known Peterborough hockey and baseball player, Roy ("Lark") Smyth, who sends his regards to the P.A.A.A. from far away Oklahoma City, Okla. Speaking of the new sport organisation, Roy says, "I sincerely hope it may surpass fondest expectations, and may the Intermediates be the first winners." He himself has not been on skates at all for four years, but his interest in the game is as keen as ever.

The Lindsay-Lakefield junior series for the championship of the group should be easy for the Midgets, although Lakefield will battle until the final bell rings. After that, Lindsay's road may not be a bed of roses. Up in Scugogville they think they have a championship outfit. They may have, but junior hockey must have deteriorated a lot in a year if an outfit like the Midgets could go through and win. Their best asset is their close checking, but that would not be enough to win for them against teams like Varsity and Aura Lee Juniors.

Some Pests We Meet:

The individual who hisses the referee every time he calls an offside against the home team.

Last week Peterborough fans gave the Dominion Bank team a fine reception, and the visiting players appreciated the applause that their efforts won from the crowd. It is to be hoped that a similar sporting spirit will be shown to-night. The Aura Lee team are an aggregation of expert hockeyists who live up to their club slogan: "Play the Game."

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

Thomas Meighan in His Newest 6-Reel Feature, "Cappy Ricks." Coden & Luken, a Clever Black Face Singing and Dancing Team. Marion Hamilton, Scotch Comedienne.

To-night, also Tuesday and Wednesday, the Capitol offers a splendid show. Tom Meighan, the popular star, in his very newest 6-reel picture, "Cappy Ricks," will head the big programme. Coden & Luken, a clever black face singing and dancing act, Marion Hamilton, Scotch Comedienne "Circus Heroes," will furnish the laughs.

Ivan Linow, cast in the role of Captain Peterson, otherwise known as "Hands and Feet," in the Thomas Meighan Paramount picture, "Cappy Ricks," which will be shown to-day, weighs 230 pounds, and is by profession a wrestler.

The first day he arrived at the eastern studios where many of the scenes of the picture were made, Mr. Meighan was told that one scene called for a rough and tumble fight between himself and Linow.

Mr. Meighan did not appear at the studio the next day. But on the second day he showed up smiling. Asked where he had been, the star replied that he had been visiting Jack Dempsey's training camp near Atlantic City.

"If I have to fight a bird like that," said Meighan, indicating Linow, "I want professional advice. What's more, I got it and intend to use it." From then on, until the time of the fight scenes Meighan punched a bag and pulled weights in his hotel.

"Cappy Ricks" throbs with action and several warm fist-fights. Agnes Ayres is leading woman, and heads a strong cast, including Charles Abbe, Hugh Cameron, John Sainpolis, Paul Everton, Eugenie Woodward, and others.

Usual prices, including 350 leather-covered balcony seats at 16 cents.

Fan-Fan.

AT THE GRAND.

"THE UNLOVED WIFE."

The Grand Opera House was filled on Saturday afternoon for the ladies' matinee of "The Unloved Wife," and a good house witnessed its presentation in the evening.

"Well balanced" was the adjective applied to this attractive little play by the manager of the Grand himself, and perhaps this is the best best description of a production that held the interest of its audiences from start to finish of its three acts.

Melodrama and comedy, pathos and thrills were mingled in a play that sounded the human note from beginning to end. Tears were plentiful during the afternoon, when the ladies wept to their heart's content over the woes of Cicely Courtney, played with splendid effect by the charming Lottie Salisbury. Cicely marries the modern St. Elmo, Godfrey Matthews as Mr. John Pennington, a tall, romantic figure who revenges himself, through her, for the slight inflicted upon him in his youth by her "butterfly" mother, Mrs. Marian Courtney, played by Miss Florence Hackett. This lady, with her absolutely selfish viewpoint at all times and her ineradicable conceit, was presented with some really excellent acting.

The little crippled sister, Phoebe, enacted by Isabelle Leonard, was a pathetic, sweet figure, who received much applause on her later appearance, cured and well after her operation, and Jim Plunkett, "the boy next door," her rustic swain, brought down the house with his bashful ecstasies.

Two whimsical and lovable old figures were Fred Merrill and Mrs. Marie del Vecchio as Grandpa Driscoll, and Grandma Bunny, his wife, grandparents of John Pennington. The irascible old gentleman, who barks at all the world but his little old "sweetheart," and the little lady herself, in gray, fichued gown, curls and cap with the pink rose, who dances the minuet before company, and essays the 'shimmy' when unobserved, afforded some delightful comedy for an appreciative audience.

REX STOCK COMPANY.

When the popular REX and Co. open their usual three-nights engagement at the Grand to-night, their large following will witness one of the greatest stage successes in recent years. The 4th big feature play to be presented is Mr. H. B. Warner's mytsery story, "UNDER COVER," in which this eminent actor starred for three seasons, during which period he produced it in New York City for a run of 14 months. The mystery is very similar to the present day sensational success still running in New York and Chicago, known as "The Bat." This style of play is becoming more popular every year, and "Under Cover" is still considered one of the best written. Rex and his clever company give a really good performance of this story, and every member of the cast has a very responsible role to portray, as there is not a really small part in the play. Rex himself is happily cast in a part entirely different from anything he has heretofore essayed in Peterborough. There is plenty of good comedy and some startling situations and lines, and the plot is very unusual. New specialities will be given between acts, and as seats are selling fast, would advise all to secure their seats as early as possible.

AT THE REGENT.

FAMOUS NOVEL SCREENED
"The Wild Goose" by Gouverneur Morris, to be Seen Here.

Gouverneur Morris' fine novel, "The Wild Goose," recently published by Charles Scribners Sons, of New York and which has been extensively sold, has been picturized by Cosmopolitan for Paramount, and it will be shown at the Regent Theatre to-day. Mary MacLaren and Holmes E. Herbert play the leading roles.

"The Wild Goose" was first published in serial form in Hearst's Magazine, whose circulation is 500,000 a month, beginning in September, 1918. The story caught on immediately and was widely read. Mr. Morris's other stories have found great favor with magazine readers. He was born in 1876 in New York City. He attended Yale University at New Haven, Conn., and graduated with a B.A. degree in 1898. Among the most noted of his works are "The Penalty," "When My Ship Comes In," and "The Goddess."

AT THE ROYAL.

A CABANNE HIT

To-night the Royal again justifies its claim to present the best show in Canada not only for the price but for any price of admission. In our six reel feature called "The Barricade", W. C. Cabanne, the brilliant young director has made the hit of his career. This powerful preachment against the shams of society includes in the cast Kenneth Harlan and Katherine Spencer. The seventh episode of the million dollar serial 'Breaking Through" is most exciting. The heroine Bettina, keeps an audience on edge from start to finish by her wonderful acting and death defying dare devil staunts. This serial has a host of friends in the city. Then we have the five reel romance called "The Inner Chamber" with Alice Joyce, that favorite of moviedom in the leading part. No expense was spared to make this picture one of the best ever screened. It depicts the struggles of a girl in her fight for happiness. The climax comes as a surprise and the ending is unusually effective. Dan Cupid in checking up one night, finds two of his arrows, pointed by love and feathered by matrimony, missing. It softly sings a rondelay of harvest time and resumes his hunt for other lives. Jimmy Aubrey, the funniest of comedians in the tourist not only keeps an audience in laughter but is seen in one scene having more trouble with a live bear than the director had ever anticipated. This is a program that will please the most exacting.

THIS WEEK'S CITY LEAGUE GAMES

Hamilton's and C. G. E. Toolroom play the first game in the City Hockey League bill on Wednesday night, and it will be a battle royal. The losing team will be eliminated from the fight for first half honors, and this fact, added to the uncertainty of the result of the second game betwen Lakeviews and bankers will keep both teams going at top speed.

A win for Bankers will bring about a tie betwen the Lakeviews and the winners of the Hamilton-s-C.G.E. game, and a victory for the redskins will give them the first half without a loss. Elwood Coombs will referee.

HOCKEY

The Junior school league games at the Brock street rink on Saturday morning were a great success and the kids turned in some nice hockey. Following were the scores:

St. Peter's A.	0
Imm. Conception	0
King George	1
Central	4
Queen Mary	2
Prince of Wales	1
St. Peter's B	2
King Edward	0
Sacred Heart	3

Ted Jackson and Gordon Webb handled the games.

The Lakeview City League team will practice between 6 and 7 o'clock to-morrow night. All Lakeview players are expected out at this workout, which will be held at the Brock St. Rink.

RANGERS HOCKEY TEAM PLAY WARSAW TO-NIGHT

The Peterboro Rangers hockey team journey to Warsaw to-night to meet the village aggregation and a fast game is predicted. On the 6th the team handed "B' Co. a beating 6-5. On Friday night they again meet "B' Co., on Wednesday night they play the band, and on Thursday night, the Rayhestos Co. The line up for the game with Warsaw to-night will be: Goal, Dwyer, defence, Fredenburg and Schwerdt; forwards, Smith and Mason; centre, Meighen; subs., Blondin and Shannon.

On Saturday the Speedy Six defeated Blewett's team 22 to 7. The week previous the Speedsters handed the H. N. S. Midgets a trimming —13 to 5.

War between Peru and Chile over Taona and Africa would just about make the geography the innocent third party.

LOCAL BASKETBALL GIRLS AT ST. KITTS

PETERBORD LOST IN FIRST GAME OF SCHEDULE BY A SCORE OF 21-12.

The local basketball team representing Peterborough in the Ontario Ladies' Basketball Association, went to St. Catharines on Saturday, for the first game of their schedule, the resulting score being 21-12 in favor of the rival aggregation.

The game, which was somewhat of a tryout for the local players, showed a good, clean type of playing, Peterborough's weak point being their insistence on playing a defensive contest, and trying to constantly check their opponents, instead of playing a forward game. The score stood at 15-8 at the end of the first period, the St. Catharines team evidencing splendid combination.

Miss Burness Pidgeon, at centre, starred for the Peterborough team, getting in some excellent long shots in the second half.

The line-up for Peterborough was: Forwards, Helen Bulmer captain) and Ann Bulmer; centre, Burness Pidgeon; defence, Carrie Coon and Madeline Pulkinghorn. Spares, Thelma Paxman and Gertrude Kirn. Miss Jean McLaughlin, of the Y.W.C.A. staff, accompanied the girls as manager.

The St. Catharines line-up included the two Misses Farmer, Miss Ancell and Miss Margaret McBeth.

St. Catharines team represents the St. Catharines Sports Club, an organization of about 70 girl members, and is sending their players here next Saturday for a return bout, to be played at the Y.M.C.A. in the evening.

Market News

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Speculative issues rallied moderately at the opening of to-day's Stock Market. Steels and Equipments manifested some relaxation from last Saturday's selling pressure. Gulf States, Replogle Midvale and United States Steels rose large fractions. Sugars, Coppers and Rails also improved, but Oils and Motors were lower. Foreign exchanges were irregular, although London's markets were firm on successful underwriting of new Eastern European loans.

Reactions of one to two points in domestic and foreign oils gave the market a heavy tone during the first hour. This was further emphasized by the selling of minor steels and equipments; also motors and their specialties and popular tobaccos and chemicals. The market rallied irregularly before noon under lead of Gulf States Steel, which advanced 7 1-2 points on renewed buying of sugars, textiles, Amer. Can., Amer. Ice and local tractions. Of the latter Manhatton Elevated and Interborough Consolidated Preferred was the strongest, rising 2 1-2 and 3 points respectively. Call money opened at 5 per cent.

Conflicting movements characterized early afternoon trading. An abrupt fall in Gulf States steel and Manhattan Elevated of nearly five points from the high level of the morning, and a drop of almost ten points in Virginia Iron Coal & Coke unsettled the list for the time, but subsequently active bidding for Sugars and equipments infused steadier tone all around.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, January 23, Canadian Press. — Sterling Exchange was heavy. Demand 4.20 5-8. Canadian dollar 5 1-8 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, January 23, Canadian Press. — Opening wheat quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 3-8c higher with May 1.16 to 1.16 1-4 and July 1.03 to 1.03 1-4 were followed by moderate gains all around. Liberal receipts made the corn market relatively easy. After opening at 1-4 off to 1-8 advance, May 53 1-2 to 53 5-8, the market kept close to the initial range.

Oats paralleled action of wheat, starting unchanged to 1-4 higher; May 39 1-4 to 39 3-8 and then scored a slight general advance.

TORONTO CATTLE MARKET.

TORONTO, Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press). — Cattle market receipts, 3,423; trade slow. Quotations: Heavy beef steers and choice butcher steers $6.50 to $7; butcher cows, medium, $3 to $4; calves, $11 to $12.50; lambs, $11 to $12; hogs, selects, $11.75.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Trading was fairly active on the local Stock Exchange during the first half-hour this morning. Steel issues came in for most attention. B. F. Steel sold unchanged at 10. Dominion Bridge a half stronger at 58, and Steel of Canada a half weaker at 58. Paper stocks were quiet. Brompton apneared a quarter weaker at 18 3-4, which was the only one to be traded in. Other leaders were quiet. Atlantic Sugar sold a quarter higher at 24 3-4, and Brazilian a quarter weaker at 30½. Detroit Railway was strong and registered a point gain to 69. Toronto Railway gained a quarter at 77¼.

TORONTO STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press). — In contrast with active sessions last week, the local Stock Exchange was a very dull affair this morning, trading falling away so much that only two stocks recorded sales of over a hundred shares. Trading in Stamps Preferred was restricted to odd lots, but quotations registered a degree of ¼ points from Saturday. Brazilian was ½ higher at 30 3-4, Toronto Railway unchanged at 72, Burt Common ¼ higher at 109½. Dullness extended to the War Loan group and the Bank section, with prices holding steady.

BOAT ON ROCKS.

PRESCOTT, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press). — Fifty passengers of the ferry steamer Ferdinand suffered harrowing experiences Saturday, when the boat ran on the rocks about two hundred yards below Ogdensburg lighthouse in a thick fog. They were marooned until yesterday owing to the dense fog, but none of them were injured.

WAS MURDERER A MASTER SPY.

Question Raised by a Member of the Paris Bar.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—(Associated Press.)—The idea that Henri D. Landru may have been a master spy who employed as his agents the 10 women he is convicted of murdering has been advanced by Henry Javal, a member of the Paris bar.

This suggestion is advanced in an effort to account for the fact that no direct evidence of the murders was brought out at Landru's trial. The absence of this evidence has caused a feeling of uncertainty by most Parisiens in regard to this mysterious case and numerous attempts have been made to solve the mystery on some other basis than murder.

Developing his theory, Maitre Javal says:

"Eleven persons, 10 fiancees and the son of one of them, have disappeared. Landru alone knows what has become of them, and he says nothing. By his silence he puts his head at stake. This can only mean that the truth, were it known, would be as fatal for him. But the whole affair takes on another complexion if we imagine, for the sake of argument, that his victims were his accomplices in crime, and that crime espionage.

"Let us suppose," he continues, "that during the war Landru was a German spy-recruiting agent. He prefers to work through women. At once this explains his meetings, sometimes five in the same day, with hundreds of women, of whom he chooses only a few, and those few without friends or relatives who might be surprised at their long absence. He takes a lonely villa as far from other habitations as possible where he can receive them. There he fabricates false identity papers for them, keeping their own, and sends them forth on their missions of treason. Arrested, Landru says nothing, and his "victims" naturally do not break the silence.

"Can you imagine, by any other hypothesis," Maitre Javal concludes, "why so careful, calculating a criminal as Landru should burn the bodies of his victims with great difficulty and yet neglect to throw into the all-consuming flames such damaging evidence as their identity papers?

"And does not this theory explain why he should keep such an incriminating document as the diary, in which reference to his victims is made by initials other than their own? He needed their identity papers and the entries in his diary to show to those who employed him as a recruiter of spies."

MARCHED INTO BATTLE WITH HANDS TIED

British and American Members Spanish Foreign Legion Harshly Treated.

LONDON, Jan. 23. — (Associated Press.)—The charge that American and British members of the Spanish Foreign Legion were marched into battle with their hands tied behind them was been denied by the Spanish Ambassador here, Senor Don Merry del Val. The Ambassador said that was field punishment resorted to when confinement to barracks was not practicable but he denied that any of the men actually came under fire in that condition.

Other charges of bad faith and treatment made by the Americans and British soldiers who quit the foreign legion in October and November also were answered by the Ambassador. In explanation of the charge that the enlistment bonus of 200 pesetas was not paid to them he said the Spanish custom was to withhold part of this bonus as a guarantee against desertion and that a deduction was also made, according to custom, from the men's daily pay to meet the cost of their uniforms and messing.

Thirteen Americans and about 55 British members of the Spanish Foreign Legion quit that service in October and November and on arriving in Paris and London complained of hardships and cruel treatment. The Americans said that none of the promises made in recruiting in the United States were carried out, that they received only one peseta a day instead of four as promised and that food cooked in olive oil made them ill. They also criticize the sanitary conditions in the Moroccan service and described the hospital arrangements as deplorable.

GOSPEL HALL NOTES.
About seventy-five Christians gathered in the Hall Sunday night just for prayer, preceding the farewell message of Mr. A. E. Ainslie in the Regent Theatre at 8.15. The theatre was well filled to hear Mr. Ainslie. His subject was the "Age of Reason," taken from the Prophet Isaiah. "Come now and reason together," said the Lord. Though your sins are as scarlet they shall be made as white as snow, though they be red like crimson they shall be as wool." The address was powerful and full of consistent illustrations, showing God as seeking to reason with man; and the speaker showed the difference between reason and instinct. Reason, he said, belonged to man and instinct to the animal.
The music was of a very high order. The Hartshorn quartette sang "The Sinner and the Song." Miss Elsie Wells contributed "The Upper Garden," Mr. G. W. Mulligan sang "Calvary," and the Gospel Hall male quartette rendered "Let Him In."

FOOTBALL IN OLD COUNTRY

OVERWHELMING VICTORY FOR WALES AGAINST ENGLAND AT CARDIFF — LATTER TURNED TABLES AT SWANSEA.

ASSOCIATION LEAGUES

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(By Canadian Press Cable).—The rugby football International match at Cardiff in which Wales gained an overwhelming victory by 28 to 6 over England; and the Association Football amateur International match at Swansea in which England turned the tables on Wales by 7 goals to nil were the main features of Saturday's football. The result of the rugby International caused disappointment in England as all indications at the English and Welsh trial matches foreshadowed another English victory.
Following continuous rain the game at Cardiff was waterlogged. An attendance of 40,000 spectators watched a ding-dong struggle at the outset between the rival backs, but the Welsh forwards soon asserted their superiority. Whitfield scored the first try for Wales and before the interval Bowen, Huddlestone, Delahay and Parker added trice, Ross converting the last. Lowe gained a try for England. At the interval the scope stood 27-3 in favor of Wales. The Welsh continued to have most of the game in the second half, but Day and Hammett tackle finely preventing scoring for a time. After Ross had struck the bar with a penalty kick, Palmer, following up, scored a try for Wales which Ross converted. The Welsh forwards now completed dominated the game, the English backs being chiefly employed in defence. Passing by the Welsh backs ended in Richards getting an unconverted try, then from scrimmage, Evans got another unconverted try for Wales, while just before the end Day got over for England.
In the Association International game the English amateurs overwhelmed the Welsh amateurs in a brilliant game, no less than six out of even goals for England being scored in the second half.

SOCCER GAMES.
LONDON, January 23. Canadian Press Cable. — The games in the Association Football Leagues attracted great attention on Saturday, although several were postponed owing to bad weather which influenced the play generally. The feature of recent soccer games is the recovery of Woolwich Arsenal. This Club drew with Burnley on Saturday after a creditable match under most wretched weather conditions. All three divisions witnessed heavy scoring. Cardiff headed the list of big scores in its match against Bradford City. Liverpool achieved a hard victory over Huddersfield on the muddies ground of he season. Birmingham who have apparently lost their form weer again defeated but the most amazing home defeat was sustained by Bolton who went down to nil before Chelsea after having beaten Chelsea 2-0 early last week. This is largely due to the illness of 6 Bolton players with the influenza. Both the crowd and the players caused a great uproar in the second half of the match by protesting against the referee ordering the Bolton forward Buchan off the grounds
West Bromwich upheld the honor of Midland football by handsomely beating Tottenham by 3 clear goals through being better able to adapt themselves to the heavy ground.

MOTOR CLUB HAD MEETING LAST NIGHT

PRESIDENT'S REPORT INDICATED PROGRESS DURING THE PAST YEAR—MEMBERSHIP TRIPLED —INTERESTING ADDRESSES.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The Peterborough Motor Club held their annual meeting last night in the Chamber of Commerce. The President, Mr. R. Cotton, gave his report of the work accomplished by the club during the past year. The membership has been tripled, jumping from 71 to 226. Through representations made by the association, a new set of traffic regulations have been secured. Fifty road signs have been placed in the city and surrounding district. Up-to-date road reports for the whole province have been received by the association during the past year, which have been of great assistance to motorists. Mr. Cotton suggested that strong representations be made to the County and Township Councils to improve the approaches to the city, which are about the worst in the country. The Association has been of great service to tourists from all parts of the Continent, giving information pertaining to Peterborough and the district.

Outings have been given to the inmates of the House of Providence, the Children's Aid Shelter, Protestant Home, St. Vincent's Orphanage and to various conventions held in the city.

In closing, Mr. Cotton drew the attention of the meeting to the re-

MEMBERS OF THE U.F.O. DISCUSS CONSOLIDATED SCHOOLS—LOSERS PUT UP SUPPER.

The semi-monthly meeting of the U.F.O. was held last evening in the U.F.W.O. rooms on Simcoe street, with a good attendance.

The main feature of the programme was the first debate held under the auspices of the U.F.O. Club, on the resolution, "That Consolidated Schools are in the Best Interests of the Community." The affirmative was taken by Messrs. Chas. Moore and Allan Brown, and the negative by Messrs. Chas. Brown and Ephriam Brown. The judge, Mr. F. E. Ellis, awarded the decision to the negative. Some very interesting material was submitted in the course of the discussion.

The report of the membership contest was submitted at the regular business session which took place at this meeting, with Mr. Fred Cann's side as the winning team.

The losers in this contest provided the winners with an oyster supper, which was served at the conclusion of the business session, to nearly 80 guests. Mr. Howard Quinn, president of the Peterborough U.F.O., occupied the chair, and a very pleasant social hour was spent with impromptu speeches. Miss Pearl Petrie rendered a very well-received reading.

ROTARIANS HAD WEEKLY CONFERENCE

A PROPOSAL TO GET BEHIND THE BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT IN THE CITY—ADDRESS BY REV. JAMES ROLLINS—THE VISITORS.

PLAN THEATRE NIGHT

(By F. H. Dobbin).

Rotary met, as usual, on Monday noon, and cheerfully tackled the duties of the occasion. Rotarian Claude Rogers filled the chair, in the absence of Rotarian Chairman Fred. Roy, confined to the house for the week past. Expressions of concern passed about the room at the absence of the chairman.

Attention was called to the meeting on Monday evening next, at the rooms of the Board of Commerce. The object is to get behind and under the Boy Scout movement in the city and give it a needed boost. Several citizens with good intention have been tutoring along the Scouts, but the work calls for more men on the brakes. That men's men to pump, using a simile from the old hand fire engine days. Come to the meeting and help the boys.

A little encouragement is often a helpful thing. So the Kiwanis Club was commended in its proposition to secure Armour Hill lands as a public park and for purposes. The scheme is not as yet clearly defined, but it will go through. Always a good thing for a club to have a stock job on hand to work at. The Chairman briefly reviewed what had been done and the Secretary was instructed by the gathering to write to Kiwanis and express the satisfaction of Rotary and what was in hand. And, further, if it came to the point where a lift was needed to send in word to that effect.

A Big Mogul.

President McCullough, of Fort William, who is the High Mogul of Rotary on this continent, wrote and congratulated the Peterborough club on its good attendance record for December. Stood sixth in all Canadian clubs. Honed it would keep up.

Presently Mr. William McElroy, now of Detroit, and once of the C.P.R. in Peterborough, was detected having his dinner in the main dining-room. He was hailed and brought across and greeted all around the tables and obliged with a song, just to remind the gathering of old days and old songs. Twenty years have not done any harm to Mr. McElroy's singing voice, and his song was as welcome as ever. He is recognized as the premier

The Battle of New York

"HARDING IN BROOKLYN EAGLE."

INFLUENZA RETURNS; THIRTY CASES A DAY

NOT EPIDEMIC, BUT DR. COPELAND ADVICES WATCHFULNESS --TONSILITIS MORE FREQUENT THAN USUAL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Influenza cases have been reported to the Health Department in the last three days at the rate of thirty cases a day, while cases of grip, tonsilitis, severe colds and pneumonia have been far more numerous than is common, Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland said.

"There is no epidemic," he said. "Damp weather and lack of sunlight increases susceptibility to these diseases, which are always present. The absence of sunlight lowers resistance, so that many are unable to throw off such attacks in ordinary stages, as they ordinarily would.

"Influenza is showing a serious increase and is undoubtedly occurring at a rate considerable above thirty a day, as many cases are not reported. This is the same disease that we suffered in 1918, and is just as deadly at present, the only difference being that it is not epidemic. But there is a tremendous amount of influenza in Paris and London, and we have to be very watchful here. It is essential to take great care with any suspected case of influenza and to take proper care of colds. Any man or woman suffering from a touch of fever should stay away from work and avoid mingling with his fellows."

SEES BEAUTY AS COCKTAIL

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF FEMININE IN ART SHARPLY CRITICIZED BY HIS COLLEAGUES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—"The beautiful woman in art is a cocktail, a mixture." — Kees Van Dongen, French portrait painter.

"The beautiful woman in art is one who makes upon the beholder's mind the impression he has when he falls in love with a girl."—George Bellos, American portrait painter.

"The beautiful woman in art is the woman who is most simple and natural who is herself."—Helen M. Turner, American portrait painter.

It may be American seriousness, as contrasted with Gallic levity, but whatever the reason, the fact is that American art, as represented by two of its distinguished exponents, George Bellows and Miss Helen M. Turner, reprobates utterly Kees Van Dongen's slightly intoxicating analysis of the quality of feminine beauty.

"Cocktail Epoch"

"The charm of our time is that everything may be mixed," declares Von Dongen. "It is truly a cocktail epoch. Take the beautiful woman of today, the very modern woman, so gowned that her dress forms part of herself. Look at the neatness of her bobbed hair, the complicated simplicity of her jewels, her Louis XV heels, which make the woman a goddess.

"Place her in a setting which may be Chinese, Negro or modern. Add lighting that may be glaring or softened, music jazzy or classical. Mix according to the recipe and by your science of values, by your art, you can be beautiful."

BOARDS MET TO DISCUSS CONDITIONS

AN EPIDEMIC OF FEAR MAINLY IN PETERBOROUGH DECLARES SCHOOL TRUSTEE J. M. GREENE —ALARM NOT WARRANTED.

PARLEY PUBLIC BODIES

A parley last night between the local Board of Health and Board of Education, at which both bodies were fully represented, resulted in a mutual agreement for co-operation in educating the public to understand the symptoms of such contagious diseases as scarlet fever and diphtheria, and to recognise the importance of following out to the very letter quarantine and other precautionary measures as may be prescribed by the authorities. This will be accomplished in part by the distribution of that literature on scarlet fever and diphtheria so advantageously used in Toronto, and of which M. O. H. Dr. T. W. H. Young has already arranged to secure a supply. This educative campaign will also be conducted through the press.

In illustration of the need for such a campaign, both Dr. Neal and Dr. Young declared these diseases to find their origin and spread in no small measure to ignorance, which also has been responsible for even some deaths resulting from a physician being called in too late to save life.

On the suggestion of Trustee Mrs. Kate Morris, the Board of Health will also publish reports weekly on the health of the city during the prevalence of contagious diseases.

While at times a spirit of aggressiveness on the part of some members of the Education Board to the Board of Health and their M.O.H. was slightly evident, and although the latter gentleman, and Dr. A. W. McPherson, the schools physician, crossed swords on the question of the M.O.H.'s duties, the impression conveyed to an observer of the proceedings was that the local situation as to scarlet fever and diphtheria seems not so bad as reported, and that much of the alarmist reports current is not confirmed by positive evidence. In any event, Dr. Young gave his assurance that, basing his opinion on the number of these cases in this city reported by him, the local M.O.H., since last September Provincial Officer of Health Dr. McCullough, of Toronto, had advised Dr. Young not to close the schools, which advice he intends following.

Another result of this parley was the conclusion by both interested bodies—the Board of Health and the Education Board—to work together in evolving and enforcing measures for preventing the spread of scarlet fever and diphtheria, and stamping them out entirely.

Not Eye to Eye.

During the deliberations, it was quite apparent that Drs. Young and McPherson do not see eye to eye on the queried possibility of carriers again developing diphtheria germs within a short time after negative test swabs have been taken from their throats. Then again, once during the evening Chairman G. H. Duncan felt impelled to remind some present that Dr. Young, M.O.H., was not under arraignment before a court of inquiry, but the meeting had been called for unity and co-operation in leaving no stone unturned for combating and eliminating those

BUICK CONTINUES TO HOLD PLACE OF HONOR AT NEW YORK MOTOR SHOW

For the fourth consecutive year Buick has been awarded first choice of space at the New York National Automobile Show. This honor is conferred each year by the automobile manufacturers, who are the members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, upon the members having done the greatest volume of business during the previous year. The figures on which the 1922 award was made proved Buick to be the largest builder of six-cylinder cars in the world.

What the Buick car means to the people of United States, the McLaughlin-Buick Canada's Standard car means to the people of Canada. A quality car built on quality basis enables the McLaughlin Motor Co., to sell it at the present low prices.

Canada's confidence in McLaughlin-Buick is expressed in the number of McLaughlin cars seen every day in every locality working under all conditions.

Constant service at all times is the ideal built in each and every car.

The McLaughlin factory, Oshawa, has been forced to run their factory from sixteen to twenty-four hours per day, working two and three shifts to keep pace with the great demand.

Mr. A. Brown of this city, their representative, gives a local emphasis to this when he states that his orders for new cars since the first of August is over double that of last year for the same period.

ONE DRINK OF SWAMP WHISKEY IS USUALLY ENOUGH FOR MOST PEOPLE

BEN H. SPENCE WAS IN THE CITY YESTERDAY IN CONNECTION WITH THE PROHIBITION MOVEMENT—LESS ILLEGAL TRANSACTION IN LIQUOR SINCE THE O.T.A. WENT ON THE STATUTE BOOKS.

"There was more liquor sold illegally before prohibition than there is now," Ben H. Spence Chairman of the Dominion Alliance told the Examiner in a few minutes interview at the White House yesterday afternoon before he returned to Toronto.

Mr. Spence declared that bootlegging and illicit prescriptions were not affecting the real purposes of the O.T.A. to any great extent. Much was made of the illicit traffic in wet goods by their enemies, but Mr. Spence declared the illegal trading did not represent anything like the infractions under the former law in pre-prohibition days. By that, he said, he meant selling after hours, selling to black-listers, etc.

Prohibition Advancing.

"The prohibitionists are progressing everywhere, he said. "We are organizing in different parts of the country for educational purposes, and to-day we formed a city and district organization here."

Drugs have not taken the place of alcoholic stimulants, he said, as he rushed to catch his train. Swamp whiskey he did not believe to be a menace to the smooth working of the Act for it was of such a uniformly low grade one drink was enough for most people.

JUDGMENT GIVEN CEREAL COMPANY

SUIT INVOLVED SALE OF THREE CARLOADS OF CLOVER AND A FALLING MARKET.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 24.—Judgment for $720 was granted the Peterborough Cereal Company by Mr. Justice MacLennan in the Superior Court yesterday against the Mile End Milling Co., Ltd., in an action to recover $4,683.08 alleged due for breach of contract. The Peterborough Company alleged the Mile End concern agreed to purchase five carloads Saskatoon and two of Reindeer per barrel in November 1920. Later the order was changed to read three carloads Saskatoon an dtwo of Reindeer. Later still the Mile End mills wrote the Peterborough Company asking that in view of the falling market they would be accorded "the same treatment as they were receiving from other mills. That of being invoiced with the market price prevailing at date of shipment.

"If you do not wish to invoice five cars of flour on order at market price when shipped, please cancel order," the letter concludes.

Instead of accepting this as a

THE EXTENSION CRICKET PLACE

MATTER DISCUSSED BY THE BOARD OF WORKS — GRAVEL FOR SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT

The Board of Works, in session last night, discussed the extension of Cricket Place through to Mark street by acquiring the property of W. J. Rome, 42 Mark street.

Ald. Harry Gainey, who is a resident of Cricket Place, at present a blind street, moved that the Mayor and Ald. Stocker, the chairman, interview Mr. Rome and find the cost to the city of acquiring this property.

So the work may be proceeded with without delay and the gravel moved while it can be taken across the river on the ice, the Board instructed the City Engineer to purchase gravel from the Chamberlen Estate through Mr. H. B. Rye and have 200 yards delivered at the sewage disposal plant site, 15 cents an hour to be paid and $1.00 a yard for loading aid drawing, the teams to be paid on the certificate of the City Engineer.

City Engineer Parsons reported that Mr. Rye would charge 15 cents a yard. He said he believed team-

Shenk Buys House Shenk Sold Shenk, Rents Soar

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—One landlord can't raise the rent three times in one year and get away with it, at least not in New York.

But three successive landlords can raise the rent once each, which amounts to the same thing as far as the tenant is concerned. And when a landlord triples his own personality, and thereby tries to triple his rentals—then Samuel Untermyer, nemesis of gouging landlords and crooked contractors, steps in.

The landlord system, as shown in evidence extracted from one of the most "successful" apartment house owners by the Lockwood Housing Investigation Committee here, is simple.

HE TRIPLES HIMSELF.

"Mr. A. owns a house that brings him $50 a month rent for each apartment. He raises the rent to $65 a month, and then sells the house to the 'B. Realty Co.,' which boosts the rent to $100."

The "B. Realty Co." sells the house to the "C. Realty Corporation," which jacks up the monthly gouge to $150. Actually "Mr. A.," the 'B. Realty Co." and the "C. Realty Corporation" are all the same man. He sells himself the same house over and over again.

Joseph Shenk, owner of dozens of apartment houses in the exclusive and not-so-exclusive sections of Upper Manhattan, testified before the committee that as "Mr. Shenk," he collected rents from 24 big buildings owned by the "Shenk Realty & Construction Co." and the "Penant Realty Co.," from 56 other apartment houses owned by the Ardmore Estates, of which he is the principal stockholder, and from several other corporations owned outright or in in part by himself.

He asserted that his only revenue was a 3 per cent. commission on his collections.

UNTERMYER DELVES DEEP.

"Why," asked Untermyer pointedly, "hasn't Shenk paid Mr. Shenk any dividends on the stock of Mr. Shenk's corporations? Who collects the rents for the Shenk company?" Untermyer persisted.

"Shenk," the witness answered.

"And the Penant company collects for the Ardmore estates?"

"Yes."

"And the Ardmore Estates is Shenk?"

"Yes."

"And the Penant company is Shenk?"

"Yes."

Shenk was called as "one of 10 landlords" who have more than 10,000 rent cases in the courts at the present time. It was testified previously that there were 3,000 suits still pending in connection with Shenk's realty holdings, with the tenants' money still in the hands of the court.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND

BY "SAPPER"
(CYRIL McNEILE)

"I felt it in my bones," answered Drummond, "that you were once more on the point of mentioning my decease. I couldn't bear it, Carl: on this beautiful morning I should burst into tears. It would be the seventeenth time that that sad event has been alluded to either by you or our Henry; and I'm reluctantly beginning to think that you'll have to hire an assassin, and take lessons from him." He looked thoughtfully at the other, and an unholy joy began to dawn on his face. "I see you have thrown away your cigar, Carl. May I offer you a cigarette? No? . . . But why so brusque? Can it be—oh no! surely not—can it be that my little pet is feeling icky-boo? Face going green—slight perspiration—collar tight—only the yawning stage between him and his breakfast! Some people have all the fun of the fair. And I thought of asking you to join me below at lunch. There's some excellent fat pork."

A few minutes later, Jerningham and the American found him leaning by himself against the rail, still laughing weakly.

"I ask no more of life," he remarked when he could speak. "Anything else that may come will be an anti-climax."

"What's happened?" asked Jerningham.

"It's happening," said Drummond joyfully. "It couldn't possibly be over yet. Peterson, our one and only Carl, has been overcome by the waves. And when he's feeling a little better I'll take him a bit of crackling." Once he gave way to unrestrained mirth, which finally subsided sufficiently to allow him to stagger below and feed.

At the top of the stairs leading to the luncheon saloon, he paused, and glanced into the secret place reserved for those who have from early childhood voted for a Channel tunnel.

"There he is," he whispered ecstatically, "our little Carl, busy recalling his past. It may be vulgar, Ted: doubtless it is. I don't care. Such trifles matter not in the supreme moments of one's life; and I can imagine of only one more supreme than this."

"What's that?" asked Ted, firmly piloting him down the stairs.

"The moment when he and Henry sit side by side and recall their pasts together," murmured Hugh solemnly. "Think of it, man—think of it! Each cursin' the other between spasms. My hat! What a wonderful, lovely dream to treasure through the weary years!" He gazed abstractedly at the waiter, "Roast beef—underdone," he remarked "and take a plate of cold fat up to the silence room above. The third gentleman from the door would like to look at it."

But the third gentleman from the door, even in the midst of his agony, was consoled by one reflection.

"Should it be necessary, letter awaits him." So had run the telegram, which he had scattered to the winds right under Drummond's nose. And it was necessary. The mutton-headed young sweep had managed to escape again: though Petro had assured him that the wretched native had never yet failed. And he personally had seen the man clamber on to the top of the cupboard.

For a moment his furious rage overcame his sufferings. Next time . . . next time . . . and then the seventh wave of several seventh waves arrived. He had a fleeting glimpse of the scoundrel Drummond, apparently on the . . . the end of a see-saw, watching him delightedly from outside; then, with a dreadful groan, he snatched his new basin, just supplied by a phlegmatic steward, from the scoundrel next him, who had endeavoured to appropriate it.

OSTEOPATHIC RESULTS FROM ACTUAL EXPERIENCE.

ASTHMA.

Among the early cures affected by osteopathy was that of a severe case of asthma, treated at Kirksville, Mo., the birthplace of osteopathy.

The case was so severe and of such long standing that its ready cure (in fact by a single adjustment) by Dr. Still, the father of osteopathy, attracted wide attention.

Ever since that time asthma has been numbered among the ailments for which the system of adjustment, known as osteopathy, proves the quickest and most certain cure.

The majority of all asthmatic cases yield very readily to osteopathic method of spinal adjustment.

CAMPBELLFORD SENIORS DEFEAT HAVELOCK 11 TO 5

INTER-TOWN RIVALRY BROKE OUT IN HOCKEY—FAST CLEAN GAME BUT COMBINATION WAS ONLY PATCHY—GOOD MATERIAL BUT LACKING FACILITIES FOR DEVELOPMENT.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 24.—Playing together as a team for the first time, and with comparatively little practice, Campbellford's seniors defeated Havelock here last night by the score of 11 goals to 5. The historic rivalry between the two towns brought out a large crowd that went home with their previous opinion crystallised into conviction that Campbellford should have been in the O.H.A. this winter. It was not so much the actual performance last night that left this impression, for there were a lot of ragged spots in the play ,as it was the evidence of what the team could do if they were given proper encouragement and ample opportunity for practice. But the players state that the rink management has not lent them the assistance necessarry to get into shape and for that reason the ambitions they might have entertained were aborted.

The teams were:

Havelock—Goal, Hooper; defence, Armstrong and McGill; centre, Bill Brinkman; left wing, Rogers; right wing, Anderson; subs., C. Brennan and Owens.

Referee—Pat. Kelly.

Campbellford led all the way 5 to 4 at the end of the first period, 9 to 5 at the end of the second period, and 11 to 5 at the finish.

Havelock appeared to be outclassed at the beginning, but were only slow in getting started. They got the first goal in less than a minute, and Bun Kerr made it two shortly afterward. Weston started a rush with Schnarr for the third. Anderson put Havelock in the running, and McGill scored another for them on a neat combination with Rogers. Weston went from end to end on a fast, clever play. Hooper blocked the shot, but Kerr slammed the rebound past him.

Rogers beat Stewart with an easy shot from outside and Charlie Brennan tied it up on a combination run with Rogers. Hill flopped a slow one past Hooper from behind a scrimmage screen just as the whistle blew.

The second period went scoreless for ten minutes, with both teams working for the break. Campbellford's gunners were shooting wildly. Kelly allowed a disputed goal, but the arbiter behind the net was ebicted. Schnarr an d Kerr scored one apiece and Brennan made it 8 to 5 with a long wing shot. Graham, Kerr, and Hill went down in a row with the prettiest combination of the night, carried the puck right in, Hill scoring on a pass from Graham.

Both goalkeepers stepped into the limelight in the last period. Stewart saved when Anderson and Brennan went close in, and Schnarr and Kerr carried the puck back. Schnarr boomed it against the end of the rink. A minute later he was on top of Hooper, but the Havelock man made a great stop. Havelock's line rallied, but Stewart blocked four

They arrived about 7 o'clock, were met at the hall by Mrs. Kemp and conducted to the rink, where they spent over an hour's skating. They then returned to the hall, where an enjoyable lunch was served by the Guides of Warkworth. Afterwards each put on a pantomime of two familiar books, Anne of Green Gables by Campbellford and Purple Springs by Warkworth. The visitors returned about 12.30. The pantomime was so acceptable there is talk of repeating it and inviting the parents of the girls.

TRIAL SELF MUTILATION

FRENCH FORMER UNDER SECRETARY OF STATE FACES COURT-MARTIAL TRIAL.

NANCY, France, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press.) — The court martial trial of Ernest Vilgrain, former Under Secretary of State in the Food Ministry, opened here yesterday. He was arested in January 3, under the formal charge of "abandonment of his post before the enemy and voluntary self-mutilation."

As the trial opened the accused gave "former Under Secretary of State," as his profession.

M. Vilgrains arrest followed a recent interpellation by Deputy Bathe in the Chamber of Deputies in Paris, who charged Vilgrain with having unlawfully mutilated himself at the beginning of the war in order to escape military service. Vilgrain's explanation was that a man in a French uniform attacked him and that during the struggle Vilgrain's own revolver was fired, the bullet wounding him in the hand.

WANT NO GERMANS ON RECONSTRUCTION WORK.

PARIS, January 24 (Associated Press.)— Residents of some of the war-devastated districts of France are divided almost evenly as to whether German labour should be employed in reconstruction work. This question was submitted to the vote of some 400 families residing in a dozen villages in the district of Chaulnes.

As the result, 51 per cent. opposed it and 49 per cent. favoured it. The opposition was based mostly upon dislike of having Germans freely circulating in the district, as it would be impossible to keep them in barracks.

M. Loucheur, Minister of Liberated Regions, has said it would be impossible to consider a general scheme for employing German labour unless 80 per cent. of the French residents of the district were in favour of it.

Claims Against United Statss

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Claims of the Russian Soviet Government against the United States and European nations amounting to billions of ruble, reported from Moscow to be in preparation for presentation at the Genoa Economic conference, were described as "preposterous" to-day by High Treasury officials.

Such claims, it was said, were wholly impractical, and were of the same nature as if this country should enter claims against Russia for her conduct during the war. Should such claims be made by Soviet Russia, officials believed they would be offset by counter-claims on the basis that Russia had not done her share in the war against Germany.

WITNESS IN MURDER CASE

CHIEF OF POLICE ON HIS WAY TO IDENTIFY AN IMPORTANT WITNESS IN PRESTON CASE.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 24. — (Canadian Press.)— That the chief of police of Qalifax, N.S., was on his way to this city to identify Harry G. Heffler, a witness in the trial of Clarence W. Loud, for the murder of Patrolman James A. Preston on April 9, last, was announced last night by District Attorney Saltonstall.

Heffler, as a defence witness, has told of seeing four men with an automobile near the spot where Preston's body was found. Testimony by Heffler and other to-day was to the effect that he had given different names and conflicting addresses at various times in applying for licenses in this State.

In reply to questions by the District Attorney, Heffler said he had used the name of Harry Gladstone Mullen after the marriage of his mother to a man of that name, but that he had subsequently resumed the name orf Heffler. He asserted that in Halifax, his former home, there were four men called Harry Heffler.

NEW STATE PROGRESSING

THE AGREEMENT REACHED BY MICHAEL COLLINS AND SIR JAMES CRAIG IS OF UTMOST SIGNIFICANCE.

LONDON, Jan. 24. — (Canadian Press). — Announcement was made last levening that substantial progress had been made yesterday concerning the arrangements for establishing the new Irish Free State. The utmost significance is attached in official circles to the fact that before the Free State has come fully into being, Sir James Craig, the Ulster leader, and Michael Collins have reached an agreement which is considered to be fraught with good possibilities for the future of Ireland.

It transpires that Mr. Collins and Sir James met Saturday in the room of Winston Spencer Churchill, the Colonial Secretary, at the Colonial Office. After the exchange of greetings between the two Irish leaders, Mr. Churchill withdrew from the room so that they might endeavor to arrive at a mutually satisfactory arrangement by themselves. The agreement was reached after a few hours, and the negotiators then proceeded to Downing Street to see Premier Lloyd George.

THE IRISH CONGRESS.

PARIS, Jan. 24. — (Canadian Press).—The World Irish Congress, in the absence of any concrete question on its programme, spent the first session yesterday in academic discussion of education and the spread of Irish culture abroad.

Eamon De Valera, former President of the Dail Eireann, made a brief appearance on the platform yesterday afternoon, taking occasion to invite rich Irishmen in foreign coun-

THOSE FREIGHT RATES.

A pressing problem that affects the East a great deal and the West to a much greater extent is the question of freight rates. They form an intolerable burden to the people of the Prairie Provinces, a burden that may be judged by the fact that on the grain shipped by the western farmers in the autumn of last year they had to pay $11,000,000 more in freight rates than they would have paid on the same amount of grain four years ago. When the difference in the price of grain is taken into consideration, this increase in transportation charges is seen as a staggering blow to the Prairie Provinces, and until the rates are materially reduced it will be useless to expect much improvement in the conditions in the West. The present high rates affect westerners not only in reducing their profits upon their grain, but in adding enormously to the cost of the necessities they must buy from the East. In slang terms, they are caught "coming and going," and it is high time the burden was to a considerable extent lifted from their shoulders.

WHY NO CANADIANS?

One of Sam Hunter's cartoons in The Globe recently depicted Jack Canuck presenting a number of questions to the new Premier, in which, among others, was the query, "Why in the last census was there no opportunity of registering native-born Canadians as such, instead of under the nationality of their ancestors?" The questions is a timely one, and although there are often matters of more immediate importance, the new Government may perhaps find time to discuss this matter, which caused so much disapproval during the taking of the census last year. Why are there no Canadians? Why should the people of this country be officially listed as a conglomeraiton of European immigrants, the people of each nationality being regarded as a separate group? Why, for instance, should a man whose ancestors for three or four generations back were born in this country not be able to describe his children under the census regulations as Canadians? Professor D. C. Harvey of Manitoba University, speaking not long ago at Port Arthur, dealt with this point. His family, he said, represented the fifth generation born in Canada, yet they could not be listed as Canadians. In some cases, it was almost impossible for a man to indicate his nationality. His ancestors for two or three generations back had been born here, and the enumerator had to back trail as far as the fourth generation—often a mere matter of guess work—to locate a national classification for people who recognized no other country than Canada as their own.

NEGLECTED OPPORTUNITIES.

Although Peterborough's stock judging team did not win first place in the competition at the Ottawa Winter Fair, their score as a close second to the Grenville County team, twice champions of Eastern Ontario, is an achievement upon which the three local young farmers and their instructor, Mr. F. C. McRae, district representative at Norwood of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, are to be congratulated. It is a pleasure to know that of the thirty-six contestants from twelve Eastern Ontario counties, all of them selected no doubt for their individual qualifications and special abilities, Peterborough's three took second place. The county and the city, too, are proud of them, and hope that their success will be an incentive to other farmers of this district. The element of youth is stressed because the age limit in the competition is twenty-six years.

A question prompted by this event is how many farmers of Ontario and of Peterborough County, to come right home to our own townships, appreciate the opportunities for self-improvement in their industry which the Government provides for them? In the cities, if an ambitious machinist or an office assistant aspires to a position above the average in their respective occupations, they have no expert at their beck and call to answer their difficulties, to map out a course of studies for their leisure hours at home, and generally to direct and assist them in their lone efforts.

Does the young aggressive agriculturist ever realize that many an earnest city youth who is preparing to give life the best that's in him, and blow for blow if it be a battle, looks enviously but ungrudgingly upon the instructional facilities offered comparatively lavishly to the boys in the country? Here's a technical expert at Norwood who organizes school fairs, holds short educational courses, and otherwise helps the farmers in new and progressive farm methods, stimulates their interest and is ready to respond whenever called upon. And what is furnished the farmers of Peterborough County is likewise provided in nearly all the counties of Ontario.

The city boy who is eager to succeed has to pay out of his own funds for special correspondence courses in the subjects he is taking up. The farm youth of similar character has an expert at his command, special courses provided for him, numerous reports and pamphlets written by the leaders of his own industry or profession to give agriculture a fitting term in the country where it takes prominence, and has other benefits which it sometimes seems are used and taken advantage of by only the few. And the cost of this service amounts practically nothing. The upkeep of the Department of Agriculture is borne both by city and rural taxpayers.

There is no desire to strike an invidious note in this comment, but merely to remind those young farmers, and there may be many of them who perhaps are complaining of their lot, that if they are not succeeding the fault may be largely theirs. It seems safe to assume that Earl Petrie, Richard Graham and Robert McConkey, Peterborough County's team in the stock judging competition, are not of that class, and that they are well on their way to make their mark as successful farmers.

Almost any man has a job lot of experience on hand that he would gladly dispose of at 90 per cent. below cost.

THE LONDON APPOINTMENT.

While it is difficult at long range to accurately survey the whole situation, it must be admitted that the summary dismissal of the Deputy-Sheriff at London after twenty-eight years' service causes more explanation than has hitherto been given. It is claimed that the new Sheriff, Donald Graham, left a 200-acre farm to accept the position of Sheriff, and it is singular that his first act should be to dismiss an official who for nearly three decades has been connected with the work of the Sheriff's office. Of Mr. Watterworth, the Deputy who has been turned out without warning, it is said that he has made a life study of his duties and that for the past four and a half years the whole work of the office was carried on by him, as the late Sheriff was not capable to looking after the duties of the position. Promotion in the public service was one of the reforms advocated by the United Farmers. It is unfortunate that the Government has seen fit to ignore this principle altogether in the London appointment, and not only has introduced patronage by bringing in a prosperous farmer to fill the position, but has done even worse by dismissing a public servant who in the course of ordinary justice would have been promoted instead of being turned out in the cold. Efficiency in the civil service cannot be counted upon if those who devote themselves conscientiously to their duties have nothing to look forward to but a curt necessity.

THE PESSIMISM OF BEATTY.

President Beatty, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is not enamored of the merits of public ownership, especially in relation to the operation of railway systems. This, perhaps, is not unnatural, considering his present position and past experience; but, in his pamphlet, the Springs of Business Activity, published by the Alexander Hamilton institute, he appears to state his case a little too positively for general acceptation. The experiences of the various Governments during the war, which undertook to run the railways on their own responsibility, were such as to weaken public confidence in their business capacity, he says. "We had had a practical demonstration of Government operation on a large scale and the conviction of its weakness became widespread. There has been a complete reaction in public opinion as to the merits of Government action in business affairs." This is hardly fair. Elsewhere in the same pamphlet Mr. Beatty lays emphasis on the fact that all ordinary business standards were waived in the one great consideration—the winning of the war. The Governments were not concerned to make a commercial success of their railway operation, but to utilize the railways to the very best advantage in the great military effort which was being made. That effort undoubtedly seriously impaired, and in some cases almost crippled the railway systems, but the reason is well understood and the Governments can hardly be held to account for the abnormal circumstances with which they were called upon to deal.

As a concrete example of a profitable and satisfactory service under state ownership, in times of peace, there is the outstanding case of the Belgian railways, which, in competition with private lines, not only beat them in efficiency and cheapness of service, but succeeded in putting the majority of them out of business. Anyone who has traveled over the Belgian state lines in pre-war days knows how extraordinarily cheap was the fare and how convenient the service. Just prior to the war the average passenger fare in Belgium was slightly under seven-tenths of a cent per mile, third-class fare being only one-half cent per mile. A fortnightly ticket, entitling one to travel any time, day or night, and all the time, if one so desired, throughout that period, to any part of the country, could be bought for less than $7. Naturally, the Belgians were very strong for public ownership.

Notwithstanding his prejudice against Government control, however, Mr. Beatty's pamphlet is a most stimulating one, and well repays thoughtful perusal. With its main arguments few will disagree—that the personal element counts for most in business and in private life, that the highest efficiency comes from individual effort, and that the greatest incentive to such effort is the hope of personal advantage. The question is whether these incentives cannot be successfully preserved under a properly-managed scheme of public ownership. The assertion that they cannot is often made, but that assertion is not proven. Mr. Beatty propounds one aphorism which can be heartily endorsed by all, irrespective of their views on public ownership, and that is "that service should be the cardinal policy of good business." It is noteworthy, too, that the word" service" is the only word in the whole pamphlet which is capitalized, and it is capitalized in three different places. Service—that is the sum and substance of the argument. When private companies do not give us satisfactory service, it may become wise and necessary to serve ourselves, and in serving ourselves, why should we despair of success? One reason for failure is this very sentiment of pessimism and lack of faith, with its consequent half-hearted effort. The determination to succeed and to eliminate the possible causes of failure is the people's best guarantee that they will win through.—Hamilton Spectator.

No Appetite

Nervous exhaustion leads to distaste for food. The nerves of the stomach are weak, digestion fails and you become generally upset and out of sorts.

The secret of complete restoration is in getting the nervous system fully built up.

Mrs. R. Cheney, 208 Richmond St., Chatham, Ont., writes:

"I was troubled with indigestion, which caused me many sleepless nights. I would be in terrible distress at times, and would get no relief for two or three hours. For sixteen months I ate nothing but Shredded Wheat biscuits, as I dare not eat anything else. I did not know what to do, as I had tried so many different remedies, as well as doctors' medicines, without gaining permanent relief. Finally I got some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and while on the second box noticed that I was improving. I continued the treatment until I am now fully restored, and have returned to my regular diet. My husband has also taken Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with splendid results, so we are glad to recommend it to others."

FARM YOUNG FOLK ORGANIZE STRONG COUNTY ASSOCATION

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR EAST PETERBORO — INTERESTING DEBATES AT ANNUAL CONVENTION U. F. Y. P. O.—REPRESENTATIVE CITY MEN ADDRESS GATHERING AT AFTERNOON SESSION

For about an hour preceding the convention of the East Peterborough U.F.O. in the city on Saturday, the out-of-town delegates were given an educational treat by a tour of the Quaker Oats plant. The meeting opened with the Lord's prayer, and the singing of "O Canada."

The opening address, by Mr. H. B. Cowan, of the Farm & Dairy, was very instructive.

Before introducing his subject, "Need of Organization among Farmers," Mr. Cowan remarked that he was pleased to see the meeting open with prayer. He then went on to deal with his subject. Citing Canada as an example, he pointed out that the farmers were usually the first people to flock into a new land, when it is opened up. Gradually villages sprung up, growing into towns and cities, and the farmer becomes so engrossed in his own problems that the city man begins to take advantage of, and, "puts one over on him", when possible.

He referred to the difficulties encountered by farmers in the West in connection with the grain elevators, and cars, and in passing paused to tell a story of the time when wheat prices were at rock bottom. Just as the fights and hardships of the farmers in Western Canada were ended by organization on their part, so the struggles of the farmers of Eastern Canada today may be ended by organization.

Mr. Cowan spoke briefly on the tariff question. He regards it as a question to be dealt with, in all its perplexities and "I am convinced" he said, that the farmers are on the right track to its solution, and am hopeful for the success of the new farmers' movement. The acid test of co-operative enterprise is efficiency. Farmers must have efficient co-operation and organization for success in their movements."

Advantages Outlined

In a few words, the chairman welcomed the delegates to the convention, and briefly outlined its advantages.

Miss Pearl Petrie outlined the objects of the convention, and explained some of the questions to be discussed. "The object of this convention," she said, is to discuss various problems which arise in the clubs' work, and to devise a means of solving them; to confer about young peoples' work, and to help each other in making the clubs more live and vital factors in their communities.

Some of the problems brought forward were: The county debating contest, topics for debates, suitable games and plays for young peoples' clubs, mock trials and parliaments, and impromptu debating.

Miss Petrie desired everyone to join in the discussions, and voice their own opinions. She remarked that everyone's opinion was necessary for a really true democracy.

County Debating

Mr. Milburn then explained why it was advisable to have a county debating contest, and moved that such a contest be held in Peterboro County. "At present", he declared, we are unable to fully voice the opinions of our party now in power. To hold our position, it is necessary that those in office have a backing of men who are able debaters, quick thinkers, and full of initiative. We also wish to create a sociable spirit among the clubs, and to derive benefits from each others knowledge."

Mr. E. Elliott of Norwood, warmly seconded Mr. Milburn's motion, said, "For some years the amount of public speaking and oral composition taught in our schools, has gradually been increasing, people are beginning to realize the value of being able to voice their own in public. Debating is largely impromptu speech, and as the value of a county debating contest can easily be seen. Quickness of thought, to defeat an opponent's point, is absolutely necessary.

Mr. Mathews, Centre Dummer and Mr. Brethen, M.P., for East Peterboro, both warmly endorsed the idea. It will promote the growth of the young people to new leaders, be highly beneficial to the county as well as the young people themselves.

Mr. Brethen remarked that it was a form of education recognized by men of high intellectual and social standing.

The motion was here carried.

Who May Debate

The most question of interest was, who may debate? Many difficulties arose to face the delegates, and at this juncture the rules as set forth for Brant County U.F.O. debaters, were duly criticized and examined. After much debate and discussion, the rules were finally amended to the young people of Peterborough County, and the meeting adjourned till 1.30.

Afternoon Session

Promptly at the appointed time, the afternoon session was opened, and in the temporary absence of the chairman a few impromptu debates were conducted, with mirth provoking results.

The meeting was opened formally by singing the 'Maple Leaf".

Mrs. Simpson of Peterboro U.F.W.O. congratulated the delegates on their good attendance, and told them a little about the U.F.O. convention which was held in Toronto last December. In closing she urged the young people to "carry on."

The discussion re debating contest was then re-opened, and carried on at intervals during the remainder of the session.

Debating Executive

It was decided to appoint a county executive to decide all matters pertaining to the bating contest.

Moved by Miss Petrie, seconded by Mrs. McMillan of Havelock, that the executive be composed of Mr. A. T. Brown, B.S.A.; Mr. H. B. Cowan, and Mr Smithson This carried unanimously

The rules were again discussed, and finally 8 rules in all were moved and carried, to the entire satisfaction of all present.

Short Talks

Mr. A. T. Brown, B.S.A., gave a short talk on "Conducting a Debate" and it was decided that some of the subjects for debates, as outlined in Leaflet No. 1, issued by the O.A.C. be used.

Mr. Smithson was appointed to inform the U.F.O.s and U.F.W.O.'s of West Peterboro and give any who so desired a chance to send one member to participate in the Inter-county debate.

A county association was formed through which all the clubs in East Peterboro might keep in touch with one another.

Officers Elected

The following officers were The following officers were elected:

President—Miss P. H. Petrie.
Secretary—Miss R. Brethen.
Vice President—Mr. Crow.

Land Question

Mr. H. B. Cowan, gave an instructive address on the "Land Question."

By illustrations he showed how the man who owns land gets power, and how a few people getting monoply of different industries, etc., they may become wealthy, and live by the toil of others. These idle rich are one of the questions of our present day society.

When a new district opens up every man has a equal chance, he went on to say. But if one man has a post office or a village start up near his land, then his land instantly becomes more valuable than that of his neighbor who is further away. Thus the man who buys his land also pays for the use of the post office store, or whatever it may be.

The farmers help to make work for men in the city by creating a demand for implements, etc. Increasing numbers in a city create a demand for more space for factories, etc. Thus, the farmer, is indirectly increasing the land values in the city, while the land owner erects a building and makes the tenant pay the taxes. And so the farmer increases the land value, and allows the land owner to make him, or his son or daughter, pay for the increase.

"Farmers are beginning to realize" Mr. Cowan continued, "that they have an interest in this problem. When they do realize it fully, it will be up to the city man to look after himself."

A heary vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Cowan for his kindness, and for his sympathetic interest in the young people's problems.

Educating Themselves

In his opening address, Mr. F. D. Kerr, K.C., said he was pleased to see the young farmers co-operating and educating themselves. "I feel sure that you will be a benefit to the community. By living as they do, isolated and hard workers, farmers are apt to become shy of voicing their own opinions. This shyness is not through any lack of abiltiy or understanding, howevere.

"A mock trial or Parliament is a good means of bringing out one's ability."

In his usual witty manner, Mr. Kerr here described the proceedings of a mock trial or parliament, and gave the necessary directions with regard to the attire of each, and equipment necessary. A mock trial largely upon the resourcefullness and ingenuity of those participating It also calls for wit of a friendly kind to amuse the listeners.

In closing, Mr. Kerr begged the young people to keep their fun free from anything coarse or rough. "Your sole objects as Canadian, is to improve yourselves for better citizens".

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Kerr.

Organization

Mr. Smithson, complimented the young people on their co-operation and organization. The co-operation of everyone is necessary, he asserted, to keep the club going. The rural people will be judged by the way they present their views. Don't try to distort other people's views, but present yours in such a manner that you opponent will respect them.

Question Drawer

A committee was appointed to open the question drawer, and much information as derived from the questions asked and answered.

It was decided to ban all dancing at regular meetings and if this pleasure desired a special night should be given over to it.

It was moved, seconded and carried that it be left with the County Executive to appoint a time for the meeting of the next convention.

The convention closed with the singing of "Doxology" and "God Save the King".

The farmers of Ontario, at least, have no fear of the future while there is such an organization as the U.F.Y.P.O. in progress, composed of energetic, healthy-minded young people who are ready to help them along by their willingness to take on their shoulders the responsibilities of better citizenship.

Efficient organization and co-operation is their watchword.

Lost His Horse

When R. Cooney, who lives about four miles north of Stirling, on Friday last left his horse tied up in front of his home for a few moments the snap unfastened from the halter and the horse began roaming around in the field dragging the cutter after him.

The result was that one of the cutter's shafts was broken and its jagged edge entered into the horse's juglar vein with such a force that the animal bled to death.

HERE IS A WHALE OF A FISH STORY

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(Canadian Press).—This is not the season for fish stories, but a whale story may be allowed to pass. It is the story of an ocean battlefield strewn with dead and dying monsters of the deep, supposedly the result of fierce encounter between sword-fish and whales, the latter being the defeated army—or navy. Captain G. Eves ed Poole, M. B. E., a Commissioner in the Gold Coast Colony, is the author of the story, which is contained in a letter received from him by his brother, C. E. Poole, Southampton.

Here is the story as related by Captain Poole:

"On the voyage out the most extraordinary phenomenon was witnessed by us all. Between Sierra Leone and Sekondi we steamed through for over on hour, a blood-red sea, and saw some hundreds of whales dead or dying on the surface of the water. Some were just able to move slowly along; few, if any, could move quickly. There must have been a sanquinary battle, supposed to have been put up by sword fish. It was a most appalling sight, and the extent of the bloody expanse must have represented the death of many more whales than were visible No one on our ship had ever seen or even heard of anything approaching such a spectacle before."

CAMPBELLFORD SENIORS, ETC.

shots in succession. Finally Kerr put one through the defence, and Weston scored the last on a dash to Kerr the puck changing sticks four times.

Well Balanced.

Campbellford showed a well-balanced team from goal to centre. The regular forwards, Kerr, Schnarr, and Hill, are fast and shifty, but naturally they lacked consistent team work as a result of lack of practice. The defence backed them up well, Weston especially blocking and rushing well. He looked the best stick-handler on the ice.

Havelock's best were McGill, Rogers, and Brennan. The first two are slow starters, but hard to stop. A noticeable weakness in the visitors' play was their tendency to circle around with the puck, even when the corkscrew style seemed unnecessary. But they are a hard-checking outfit, and show a turn or combination that would be more effective if it were carried straight ahead more often. They reported three of their best men missing, and promise a different score in the return game.

Pat Kelly was strictly neutral, and handled the game well. It was commendably clean, the offences being only a few trips and some of these appeared unintentional.

tries to endow professorships in universities and create scholarships for children of the Irish race to complete their education in Ireland.

The slowness of the Congress to crystallize and get to work on definite plans was explained by its organizers as due to the fact that it was planned before Ireland became a Free State, so that naturally the programme had to be radically altered. The idea of the leaders is to make use of the existing Irish organization in every country to form a world league through which to work for the spread of Irish culture, to educate Irish descendants everywhere in Irish history, and help in Ireland's economic interests.

FIRST SKYSCRAPER IN HAMBURG, GERMANY

HAMBURG, Jan. 21.—(Canadian Press).—The first skyscraper in Germany will soon be constructed in the old business section of the city of Hamburg. It will be 16 stories high, topping the highest building in Germany at this time by five stories.

Architects believe the erection of this building will institute the era of skyscrapers in Germany, and expect to see a number of similar buildings constructed within the next few years.

Unusual difficulties must be overcome. The city water plant is equipped to furnish water only to the 11th story and this brought up the question of fire danger and insurance, as well as the probability of financial loss in view of difficulties in renting offices on the five higher floors.

Despite these difficulties the promoters have secured permission to erect the structure "provided the building does not destroy the architecural symmetry" of the streets.

EASIEST WAY TO REMOVE UGLY HAIRY GROWTHS

(Beauty Culture.)

Here is a method for removing hair from arms, neck or face that is unfailing and is quite inexpensive: Mix a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water and spread on hair surface. After 2 or 3 minutes, rub it off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. No harm or inconvenience results from this treatment, but be careful to get genuine delatone and mix fresh.

MOTHER INSISTS SON IS NOT ACTUALLY DEAD

LONDON, Jan. 22 — (Canadian Press).— For the past five years, Mrs. Symonds, of Leightonroad, Kentish Town, N. W., has travelled about the country for her son, Private E. G. Symonds, of the 11th Rifle Brigade, who was reported killed in France in 1916, refusing to believe that he is actually dead.

The mother insists that some one else was buried by mistake in his name, and that his long absence is explained by loss of memory.

Two years ago, Mrs. Symonds declares, she saw her son on the Thames Embankment. 'I spoke to him, but he didn't know me, and he disappeared before I could do anything. I said to a policeman, "That's my "dead" son I was speaking to"—but it was too late then. I wish I hadn't let him go. I ought to have held on to him."

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the 'fruity' taste of 'California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine 'California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babes and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

A SERIOUS CHARGE

PROHIBITION MEETING.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—The Alberta delegation to the annual meeting of the Social Service Council of Canada, which meets in convention here Tuesday, will press for greater activity by the council in the matter of prohibition, H. H. Hull, of the Edmonton Council, stated here. "The great menace to the prohibition movement in Alberta," he said, "is the legal supply of alcohol. This alcohol is shipped to bootleggers who make bootleg whiskey, camauflaged to look like real Scotch and Irish liquors."

ATTACKS LLOYD GEORGE

LONDON, January 24. Canadian 24. Canadian Press. — Viscount Grey, attacking Lloyd George's method of transacting foreign affairs by conferences, asserted that the Supreme Council of the Allies has destroyed trust and confidence between France and Great Britain, and "lately has been fatal to a French Premier."

He said the re-establishment of good relations with France was the most vital thing in European politics to-day and until they were restored no programme to reconstruct Europe would succeed.

He advocated a return to the "more quiet and saner methods."

THE ARMS CONFERENCE.

WASHINGTON, January 24. — Canadian Press. — A sweeping disclaimer of any pledge against the territoritl integrity of Russia, coupled with a pledge to withdraw the Japanese troops stationed in Siberia as soon as orderly conditions are restored, was presented to the Arms Conference Far Eastern Committee yesterday by the Japanese delegation and was received with a general show of satisfaction by the representatives of the other principal powers.

Constipation

It is a disease-producing malady, and if not corrected may result in serious complications. In good health the bowels should move freely at least once every day, carrying away the waste products from the Blood and Liver. If this function fails or is irregular, the work of removing the poisons falls on the Skin and Kidneys, with the result of the latter organs becoming congested and clogged. The Blood becomes poisoned, Indigestion sets in, the Kidneys become deranged, and a severe if not fatal illness is brought on. DR. HENDERSON'S HERB TABLETS correct this trouble by its action on the Liver, causing a healthy flow of Bile, and exerting a soothing and toning influence on the whole Intestinal Track.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets are put up in three sizes—25c, 50c, $1.00 per Box. For sale at Warne's Drug Store, Peterborough.

WEDDING CURIOUS AFFAIR IN TIBET

A wedding ceremony in Tibet is a complicated and curious affair. Early in the morning of the wedding day the father and mother give a farewell banquet in the house of the bride. After the banquet the priest preaches to the bride, standing before her. Here and there in his sermon he inserts a story which deeply impresses the bride. When it is all over she leaves her father's house on horseback, that is, of course, among the higher cirles, and proceeds to the house of the bridegroom, where an imitation sword is thrown at her to intimidate evil spirits.

Further ceremonies take place and some milk is brought out. After drinking it the bride is admitted. She marries all the brothers in one family and at the same time or at intervals, but sometimes the bride and her brothers-in-law live together at their pleasure without having any formal ceremony to celebrate their weddings. In the best families care is taken to see that all the brothers are not at home at the same time. If one brother is at home the other absents himself.

INEXHAUSTIBLE FISH SUPPLY DOES NOT MEAN PERMANENCY OF SPECIES

FEW CHOICE KINDS COMPELLED TO BEAR BURDEN OF MAN'S TOLL ON RESOURCE--UTILIZATION OF GREATER VARIETY IS CONSISTENT ECONOMY.

The supply of seafoods which may be obtained from our fishing areas is literally inexhaustible. When it is know that scientists estimate the quantity caught for human consumption is but five per cent of the total annual destruction by natural agencies, the truth of this will be more readily appreciated. It is calculated that about 7,000,000,000 herrings are captured for food each year throughout the world. Cod is caught also in great abundance. There is aggregate of all species taken by fishermen in all parts of the world would be inconceivable. These tremendous numbers tend to agitate a fear for the future of the industry, but it is dissipated upon closer investigation. Marine species propagate in vast numbers, some depositing millions of eggs each season, comparatively few falling below 25,000 potential descendents. Nature makes provision for wastage and destruction by natural enemies, so that man's utilization of the vast food sreource inappreciably affects nature's balance.

Why Hatcheries

Some might be tempted to ask why it is necessary for the government to maintain artificial fish hatcheries to conserve certain valuable species. This is readily explained. The statement of inexhaustibility refers to the species of the sea collectively. Such fish as salmon, though they spend much of their life and reach maturity in the sea, must get back to the upper stretches of the rivers to spawn. Indeed they can only be caught when they are on their way to these waters to reproduce Also the fish in all our extensive interior fresh waters are of limited reproductive powers, and so can readily be overfished. The government in such instances employs close seasons when the fish are spawning and supplements this by artificial methods of developing eggs. To appreciate the efficacy of the latter a few additional facts must be known. In nature it is estimated that from five to eight per cent of the eggs laid by the female fish are fertilized and matured. By the artificial system the percentage is increased to as high as ninety-eight per cent. With the same number of parent fish the hatcheries can produce an infinitely greater number of offspring than could be relied upon in nature.

The Department at Ottawa operates thirty-six hatcheries across Canada, and eleven subsidiary stations. Each year more than a billion eggs are hatched. This may seem small in comparison with nature's propagation in general, but when it is considered that the billion is confined to commercially valuable species, the work is better appreciated.

Table Limitation

The point to which all this leads is that the restrictive regulations of the government and a costly system of conservation, are due entirely to the fish consumers' limitation of species for the table. The sturgeon has suffered seriously from this cause. There is danger of the Pacific salmon disappearing in the course of a few years. The halibut is being pursued farther afield. In street parlance these and some other species are being 'played to death.'

National Fish Day

As National Fish Day—February 1—approaches it is timely to reflect upon this situation. Why will our people not take advantage of the vast variety of fishes? Hundreds of delicious edible fishes caught by our fishermen never reach land. These men must make a living and it is useless to bring the food ashore if people will not buy it. At the same time the vast economic waste is deplorable. Only sixty to seventy per cent of our total catch is merchandizable. The specially selected species must bear the expense which otherwise would be carried by a great number of species. In other words consumers are compelled to pay higher prices because fishermen must spend time to pick out the species their epicurean tastes demand.

A great variety of fishes now unknown to the consumer could be readily placed upon the market in abundance. If the people would utilize this food, it could be procured cheaply. The trouble seems to be that consumers will not experiment with natural foods, although they do not hesitate to sample all manner of prepared foods, some of dubious value, at incomparably higher prices.

GRAVE SITUATION

LONDONDERRY, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Alderman Hugh O'Doherty, Sinn Fein Mayor of Londonderry, expressed the opinion that a grave situation would be created if Londonderry was not included in the Free State, with which he said its interests economically were indissolubly bound. The Mayor said he feared for the city's peace if Londonderry was left out.

A HAMILTON BOY LEADS ALL JOCKEYS.

Has Ridden Most Horses to Victory.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—To a Hamilton, Ont., boy has fallen the honor of leading all jockeys of the tracks of this continent in the number of horses ridden to victory. It is not often that a lad of seventeen leads the field in his chosen line of sport, but little Charlie (Chick) Lang has just been conceded that distinction. Almost any day one may pick up a newspaper and read, "Lang Rides Four More Winners." His remarkable series of recent successes has brought the Canadian boy into the sporting limelight and both race track followers and sporting writers are unanimous in declaring him the leading rider of the day.

Lang was born in Hamilton. From his school boy days he was a lover of horses and he learned to ride while still a youngster. It was during one of the meetings at Hamilton that James Arthur, the well-known trainer, picked him up and gave him his start as a professional jockey. The boy's close attention to business, his willingness to learn, and the quick way in which he grasped ideas made their appeal to Arthur. Where boys usually spend years in the stable learning the A.B.C's of the game, Lang was put into the maiden class of jockeys after eight months' work. It was last May that he scored his first win, accomplishing it a month after he had had his first mount. From then on to the last of 1921 he rode 135 winners.

The Hamilton boy's habits are the very best. Arthur says, and besides riding he enjoys only such diversions as boys of his age would. Fame and fortune have not turned his head and his personality is so strong that everyone he meets becomes his friend. He is the first at the track in the morning to give the horses their workouts and the last to leave it after the last racer has been tucked away for the night.

The sporting editor of The Globe, commenting on the spectacular career of the young Canadian jockey, says:

"To the followers of the turf the development of such a genius in the racehorse world is welcomed. All too long the turf has been without many boys who can make claim to premiership in the game. Time was when the jockey list was filled with names of really great riders. Nowadays it's the performance of one horse or another, which is the attraction. There are no more McLaughlins, Tod Sloans, Grover Fullers, Willie Sims, Joe Notters, or Johnny Loftuses. And that is why the daily achievements of this young boy are watched so closely.

"Young Lang must be a genius of his genie. He has been around the thoroughbreds only a little more than a year. To be exact, it is just a year and five months since Jim Arthur discovered him. And to come in that little space of time to be the leading jockey on the American turf is an achievement that is unprecedented in the annals of turf history.

"Racing experts who have seen the boy riding declare that even yet he has much to learn. He has a good seat, they say, and a fine pair of hands, a fair judge of pace for the length of time he has been riding, but that he lacks the finishing powers so necessary in many races. But the boy is ambitious energetic, a student of his game, and unless he is spoiled by his success, he is destined to occupy the place in the fancy of the sport's followers that Walter Miller, Herman Radke, and the like did in their day."

QUEEN VICTORIA'S DOLLS ON EXHIBIT.

Form Interesting Part of Royal Dolls' Display in London.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—(By Canadian Press.)—Queen Victoria's dolls, collected by her when a girl and not so very long before she was called to rule over Britain, form an interesting part of the exhibition of Royal toys in London Museum The dolls are small, with plain faces, painted exactly alike, and made of wood. Distinction is given to them by their dresses, varied according to the character represented—Court ladies, opera singers, dancers, and historical personages. There are about 100 dolls in Queen Victoria's collection, and half of them were dressed by the Queen herself when she was Princess Victoria. The others were the work of her governess.

The young Princess Victoria was devoted to dolls, and derived great pleasure from playing with them. Her painstaking industry, as well as good taste, may be seen in the delicate needlework of the embroidery on most of the costumes. The materials are comparatively simple and inexpensive, but she evidently made the most of them by minute decoration and finish. A noticeable feature of the Victorian dolls is the number of lady dolls carrying babies. One stately lady in an elaborate court dress of white satin has in her arms two infants like twins.

Queen Mary's doll's house is another feature of the loan exhibition of Royal toys at the Museum. It was a present from her mother, the Duchess of Teck. The miniature furniture and fittings,—gifts or purchases made in the course of several years—were personally arranged by her Majesty when she was a girl. The house is between three feet and four feet high, and about three feet in width. The front opens like two doors on hinges, disclosing the interior of the ground floor and two upper floors. On one side of the hall is the kitchen, and on the other is the dining room. Upstairs are the drawing room and the music room, and on the top floor bedroom and nursery.

Each room in Queen Mary's doll's house is provided with its appropriate furniture—tables, chairs, cabinets, pictures—of the tiniest and daintiest kind. On the centre table in the drawing room are diminutive copies of the Bible and the History of England. The little kitchen has a range, cooking utensils, and a dresser with breakfast and dinner ware. In the nursery are miniature toys.

As the favorite plaything of little girls has always been the doll, so for boys who know they are boys the oldest and most popular toy would seem to be the wooden horse. A toy which King George V. played with—just added to the exhibits at the Museum—has the horse for its central and most imposing feature. It is a striking model of a Royal coach. The coachman in Royal livery is seated on a hammercloth of scarlet and gold, and there are two gorgeous footmen standing behind. Finest of all, however, are the six prancing horses attached to the coach. This toy belonged not only to George V. as a child, but was also the plaything of his brother, the Duke of Clarence.

MESSAGE FROM KING

LONDON, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—King George yesterday, sent a message of sympathy to Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, on the death of Pope Benedict The mesage was sent through Count De Salis, British Minister at the Vatican.

Be Suspicious of Tender Gums
Be suspicious of any tenderness or bleeding of the gums. This is usually the first stage of Pyorrhea—an insidious disease of the gums that destroys the teeth and undermines bodily health.
Gradually the gums become spongy. They inflame, then shrink, thus exposing the unenameled tooth-base to the ravages of decay. Tiny openings in the gums form gateways for disease germs to enter the system.
Medical science has traced many ills to these infecting germs in the gums weakened by Pyorrhea.
They are now known to be a frequent cause of indigestion, anaemia, rheumatism and other serious conditions.
So watch carefully for that first tenderness or bleeding of the gums. Try Forhan's immediately. It positively prevents Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease) if used in time and used consistently.
And in preventing Pyorrhea—it guards against other ills.
Forhan's (For the Gums) cleans teeth scientifically as well. Brush your teeth with it. It keeps them white and clean.
If gum shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment. 35c and 60c tubes in Canada and U. S. If your druggist cannot supply you, send price to us direct and we will mail tubes postpaid.

CHURCH SERVICES AT MARK STREET

(Contributed

Splendid congregations assembled on Sabbath notwithstanding sickness and the storm. The choir was out in force and did excellent work.

"The Measure of a Mustard Seed" was the subject of the morning sermon and was based on the words of Christ found in Matt. XVII 20. "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard, ye shall say unto this mountain, remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you." The following is a synopsis of the sermon.

A little boy learns from his teacher at Sunday School the story of the mustard seed. On his way home the boy stops abruptly at the foot of a difficult hill, and orders the natural barrier to remove. The hill holds its ground. The boy blusters, shakes his fist, stamps his foot, but he is compelled to climb over the barrier On his arrival home he puts his arms about his mother's neck and says: "Mother, how big is a mustard seed?" Do you get the idea? "Faith without works is dead."

A Grain of Mustard Seed

This was the smallest of seeds. It has been supposed by some, therefore, that He meant to say, if ye have the smallest or feeblest faith that is genuine, ye can do all things The mustard seed produced the largest of all herbs. Others thought that Jesus meant, if you have increasing expanding enlarged faith, growing and strengthening from small beginnings you can perform the most difficult undertaking. There is a principle of vitality in the grain of seed stretching forward to great results, which illustrate the nature of faith. Our faith should be like that This is probably the true meaning.

Home and Pulpit

What a tremendous responsibility rests upon the home, the Sunday School, and the Church today. How dare any teacher allow a pupil to go from the Sunday School with such a monstrous idea of the teaching of Jesus. How easy for that boy's teacher to show that Jesus meant mountains of difficulty, oppression, superstition, false systems of religion, slavery war, and immortality. These mighty barriers that have stood in the way of the advancing Kingdom of God, are being hurled down like mountains torn asunder by volcanic power. Oh, how my Scottish mother impressed the great truths of God upon my boyish mind, yonder among the heather hills of my native land. When the rattling thunder rolled along the peak of Old Ben Nevis, and I was afraid, she would put her arm about me and say "Dinna fret ma wee laddie, that's the voice of God, and the lightning is the flashing of His 'ee". No, no; nothing can shake these foundations, laid by loving hands, through faith in God, in boyhood's tender years. "Feed my sheep". "Feed my lambs' Are the words of the Great Shepherd.

Faith Never Contrary to Reason.

No, faith is never contrary to reason, and it is always in harmony with the will of God. To remove mountains is a proverbial expression among the Jews, and when they had a mind to extol any of their doctors, they were used to say of him that he plucked up mountains by the roots. Faith is the gift of God. You remember that the Apostles did not always have the power to work miracles, it depended on the will of God. On this occasion nine disciples were defeated by one devil. Christ allowed this to take place for a purpose. Now, God never gives you a faith to wear as a ribbon or a badge. When He gives you this faith it will make you very humble and very submissive. You remember two weeks ago this morning the power of a mighty faith came down upon us, and we prayed that God would save a boy of our church who seemed to be very near death. How did God answer that prayer? He gave one of the best medical doctors in this city the key to the situation, and that boy is on the way to recovery. Our faith was in harmony with reason and the will of God.

How Faith Works ?

When passing around and along the north shore of Lake Superior on my way to the west, I was thrilled by the feats of engineering displayed. In some places the train ran along the edge of the perpendicular cliffs, far above the water of the lake; other places tunnels were cut. There is a tunnel in the Rock Mountains 12 miles long. Sometimes the train rushes into the tunnel from mists and vapours and darkness, or pouring rain and rushing tempest. But on the other side there is the sunshine and the balmy zephyr, the song of birds and the bloom of flowers, the soft blue skies and the far away meadows of living green, that hail us on every side as we speed on toward the great sea of peace. You see the builders of the C.P.R. did not sit down and weep because they could not pluck up mountains. They cut their way by faith around the difficulty or straight through. So if you are old and weak just lean back on the broad bosom of God and rest. There are people who would move heaven and earth and hell in order to get rid of a respectable fever without going to a doctor. Do you call that faith? I call it folly. God works by human agency always.

How Big is Your Faith.

Faith is the gift of God, so is our eyesight. A faith that asks what is contrary to reason is vain. Faith that comes from God was all human means. I am not responsible for the amount of faith that God gives me, any more than I am responsible for the clearness of my vision. Show us your faith by your works. Never mind the epidemic, the city physicians can look after that. You show us your faith by helping to feed the hungry and cloth the shivering and cheer the discouraged, and help little children to enjoy childhood. Are you "on the job" for God and the people, or are you an innovation in this city? God give us living faith.

DANGER OF JUST LETTING A COLD RUN ITS COURSE

Common Coughs and Colds That Hang on Persistently Are Apt to Lead to Serious Complications, Declare Authorities.

Public Warned to Beware of a Three Days' Cough and Break It Up Before It's Too Late, by Taking Asprolax, the New Scientific Discovery.

Money Refunded in Every Instance Where Asprolax Fails to Bring Relief.

Leading authorities are using every effort to arouse the public to the danger of letting common colds just run their course, for it is now definitely known that many serious lung complications, such as pneumonia, grippe, etc., are the direct result of colds that hang on persistently.

Colds are curable and preventable and it is a duty everyone owes himself as well as his neighbors to break up any cold they may contract, before some serious disease gets him in its clutches. It is pointed out that a three days' cough is nature's warning and the time for immediate action has arrived.

Of all the cough and cold remedies, Asprolax, the new scientific treatment, which has been accomplishing such remarkable results all over the United States and Canada, probably provides the safest, surest and quickest, as well as the most practical, treatment for colds yet discovered.

According to the statements of thousands who have used it, Asprolax is almost magical in its effect. The first dose usually stops the tendency to sneezing and coughing, and relieves the feeling of discomfort, and the second and third doses usually suffice to stop the progress of a cold altogether.

The wonderful efficiency of Asprolax in breaking up a cold is best shown by the fact that all druggists are instructed to refund money in any case where it fails to give satisfactory results after three doses have been taken.

HIS RHEUMATISM GONE HE REJOICES

MR. MIKE KARAIM PRAISES DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Saskatchewan Man Who Suffered For Two Years Gives the Reason Why He Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Stoney Lake, Sask., Jan. 23.—(Special.)—"I suffered for two years from rheumatism but I am glad to tell you I am well again." In these words Mr. Mike Karaim, a respected resident of this place, gives the reason why he recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills to all his friends.

"I spent a lot of money on other medicines before I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills," Mr. Karaim continued, "I only used two boxes of them and now I feel fine."

Rheumatism is caused by Uric Acid in the blood. The natural way to treat it is to strengthen the kidneys so they will do their full work and strain all the uric acid out of the blood.

Dodd's Kidney Pills make strong healthy kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills have been in use in Canada for more than a quarter of a century. They have grown in popularity year by year because of the work they have done.

Ask your neighbors about Dodd's Kidney Pills.

AN INNOVATION IN MEN'S CLOTHING.

Canadian Costumes May Lead in America.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.— (Canadian Press.)—Are Canadian customers going to capture the leadership of the American continent? This is the question which is occupying the attention of the New York clothing men who attended the recent convention of the International Association of Clothing Designers.

The cause of all the excitement is the "Sweep Pleat" coat. It is declared to be something which has made the New York designers, accustomed to turning out the sartorial novelties demanded by the Broadwayites, sit up and take notice. They fear for their laurels, for the "sweep pleat" style was introduced to the designers at the convention by a Canadian, Ralph Grossman, of Montreal. And it seems bound to appeal to the taste of gay New York. Here is how one New York paper describes this innovation in masculine attire:

"The 'Sweep Pleat' is a sport coat basically, but it is more than that, much more, and then some, consisting of the pleats under the arms, which allow a luxuriously easy swing of the arm to the golfer, the cop, or the rider. The pleats moreover look like an accordion of such modest dimensions, and for so brief a flashing moment as the arm is swung, that they may, with fairish accuracy, be called 'invisible.' It is these arm pit insertions which name the novel coat the 'sweep pleat.'"

The introduction of this garment at the Designers Convention by Mr. Grossman occasioned the only excitement of the meeting. "A dent as deep as the Sweep Pleat's armpits was put in in the convention audience by the Canadan brother's invention," one account declares. "The Sweep Pleat was doned by a dozen volunteer living "forms" and the air of the Blue Room of the McAlpin Hotel punctured with picturesque gestures symbolizing golf, the police force in action, and Tod Sloan at the Derby. So great was the demand for tests of the Sweep Pleat that the audience had to be called to order and finally quiet was restored."

There are no radical or startling cuts or colors in the styles for the coming season as displayed at the convention. The colors are almost uniformly subdued, varying only from garvish green to browns that are dull if not dark, with a predominance of soft, unpatterned grays. There are no plaids or checks customarily qualified with an adjective implying sound instead of size, and there are few innovations of line differing noticeably from these of last year and of this.

The tendency to "form fitting" lines is emphasized rather than diminished, implying that the one time "box cut" is dead to stay; while in the overcoats, subdued as the suits in colors, prevailing "youthful" line is noticeable through the apparently lasting and growing influence of the heavily belted and large buckled overcoat."

THERE IS NO NATIONAL HOLIDAY

Christmas is not a national holiday. New Year's Day is not a national holiday. Thanksgiving Day is not a national holiday. The Fourth of July is not a national holiday. Neither is Memorial Day. Neither is Washington's birthday. Neither is any other day.

There is no such day as a national holiday in the United States. A United States statute would be required to constitute a particular day as a national holiday, and Congress has stopped short of this action, numerous constitutional lawyers insisting that such an act belongs to the powers of several states and not to the general government.

The Fourth of July is not strictly a national holiday, though it is a nationwide holiday, having been made a holiday by acts of all the states and by the common consent and usage of the people.

FROM THE ORIENT.

VICTORIA, January 24. — Canadain Press. — With 360 passengers on board the Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Asia docked yesterday 9 days and 6 hours from Yokohama.

Among the passengers on board was General Charles G. Treat of the American forces in the Philippines, and commander of the American forces on the Italain front during the war.

HEAVIER PENALTIES

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—Canadian Press).—Attorney General's department is said to have under consideration introduction of legislation at coming session providing more severe penalties than present law permits for persons guilty of selling bad liquor. Law would then recognize distinction between good and bad bootleggers. Those who sell inferior liquor it is said will be dealt with not only as law breakers but as menace to public health, and even lives of their customers.

TYPHUS EPIDEMIC GAINING GROUND.

Affects Polish Camp on Russian Border.

WARSAW, Jan 24.—(Associated Press)—Government inspectors say there is much typhus among the thousands of Polish men, women and children who are being repatriated from Russia through the camp at Baranowicze, is becoming more widespread as it does each winter as the cold weather sets in.

Repatriation of the Polish population which was withdrawn by Russian armies in 1915 in their retreat is scarcely half finished. It be- last July. Estimates of the number to be repatriated vary from 600,000 by Polish Commission to 1,300,000 by the Russian evacuation commission. It is estimated that more than 300,000 already have passed through the Baranowicze camp alone and that the total number returned to date is approximately 450,000. The care of these people is in the hands of the Polish government aided by several welfare organizations.

These refugees have been dying in such numbers at the Baranowicze camp that the authorities have found it necessary to bury the victims in great trenches. Of 62,000 who passed through the station in November it is estimated by Polish health officials that 1,500 died after reaching the camp. Doctors attribute the majority of deaths to disease contracted enroute and brough about by exposure and lack of proper nourishment.

CARGO OF WHISKEY.

BOSTON, Jan. 24. — (Canadian Press.)—The British steamer Harbinger, with a cargo of whiskey for Nassau, resumed her voyage down the Atlantic coast yesterday. The vessel, which has called at other New England ports on her voyage from St. John, N.B., put in her last Friday.

The Harbinger left port unattended by the Coast Guard cutter which has escorted her down the United States coast, but Coast Guard officials were asked to watch for her.

RADIUM IN CANADA

SASKATOON, Sask. Jan 24.—(Canadian Press).—Deposits of pitchblend, the mineral which contains radium, may shortly be lacated in the country north of The Pas, according to S. S. Reynolds, the mining engineer who located the Mandy Mine. Mr. Reynolds is awaiting reports from a trapper upon a barren ridge in the north country on which the snow does not lie in the winter. It was discovered by him last year that a similar ridge in Northern Ontario contained a considerable deposit of the precious ore, the radium emanations melting the snow that fell on the ride. The Ontario samples have already responded actively to a photographic test.

DENTISTS CONVENTION.

MONTREAL, Jan. 24. —At the afternoon session yesterday cancer was one of the subjects discussed and Dr. A. T. Bazin, of McGill University pointed out that while very little is known of cancer, the practical point for the student of dentistry was that sharp edges of teeth, roots that caused irritation to the tongue or cheek, rough overhanging fillings, crowns or bridges that cause irritation all seem to produce a tendency towards the development of cancer.

MAY CLOSE THEATRES IN HAVANA SOON.

HAVANA, Cuba, January 24 (Associated Press). — Theatre and moving picture managements are threatening to close their houses as a protest against what they declare is an enormous increase in illegal gambling. Athletic and other exhibitions upon which bets can be made have become so common, they claim, that the public has neither the money nor the desire to buy tickets for amusements where the wagering thrill is absent.

Commercial bodies also are supporting a campaign to limit betting to those enterprises licensed under the tourist encouragement law.

GRAY AFRICAN PARROT RECITES LORD'S PRAYER

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—While the Red Star liner Kroonland was pounding her way through heavy seas bound to this port from Antwerp a steward tapped on the door of the ship's surgeon and announced that "Baby" was awfully seasick.

"I'll be right down," replied Dr. Giddings. "That's strange," he added to himself. "Infants are seldom seasick."

On going to the stateroom the surgeon found that "Baby" was a grey African parrot that could repeat the Lord's Prayer in English and in the African Congo.

"Polly sick?" asked the doctor.

"Dry, dry, dry," squawked the parrot.

"I suggest," said Dr. Giddings to its owner, that you give Baby a quarter of a teaspoonful of cognac every hour for twenty hours.

The bird's owner, Miss Beulah McMillan, a missionary from the Congo, who is an advocate of prohibition, made an exception in the case of the parrot and the cognac saved its life.

When the Kroonland docked Baby was well— and happy.

Friend—Do thoughts that came to you long ago ever return?

FAMINE FACING THE UKRAINIANS.

Russia's Flour Bin Empty Four Years.

KIEV, Ukrainia, Jan. 24.—(Associated Press)—The Ukraine has been long known as Russia's sugar bowl and flour bin but the sugar bowl has been empty three or four years and now the flour and cornmeal are so low that it is doubtful whether the Ukrainians will have enough bread to carry themselves through to another harvest. The hungry folks from the Kolga famine district have invaded the Ukraine by hundreds of thousands. Moscow and Petrograd have drawn on its bread supply to the limit of their power.

The Ukrainians are however a fighting, independent lot, who have stubbornly resisted requisition and defeated plans to divert their foodstuffs in large quantities to other parts of Russia. These requistions and general dissatisfaction with conditions have played a large part in limiting the Ukrainian food supply.

Besides the snows were so late in coming last fall that much of the grain seed was frozen in the ground before the snows came to give it protection. Consequently the Ukraine faces the possibility of a small grain yield next year. Even an extraordinary spring sowing cannot compensate for the unfavorable condition of the crops planted last fall.

The attitude of the Ukraine toward Moscow is of far greater importance than that of all the other so-called "federated" republics because of its great wealth and common boundaries with Poland and Rumania. Moscow apparently regards the Ukrainian republic as a federated part of the government having its headquarters in Moscow. But Ukrainia, probably under pressure of the intense Ukraine nationalistic sentiment, holds that it is quite independent of Moscow and aspires to support diplomatic negotiations with European powers to obtain recognition as an independent nation.

M. Rakovsky, the Rumanian Socialist Soviet republic, has been able, with Moscow's aid, to suppress [illegible] the larger movements against Russian dominaton of the Ukraine, but, nevertheless, the idea of complete independence of Moscow seems but to be uppermost in the minds of little Russians, peasants, merchants, laborers and professional classes alike.

Communism exists in the Ukraine in a much diluted form. M. Zinovieff, chairman of the executive committee of the Third International, and other high priests of Marxism visit little Russia occasionally and try to whip it into line with the Third International and the Moscow program. But the Ukrainians still aspire for independence.

There is a very wide fabric range and color listing is equally generous.

BELGRADE VIEING WITH BUCHAREST.

Each Wants Title, "Paris of the Balkans."

BELGRADE, Jan. 24.—(Associated Press)—Belgrade now vieing with Bucharest for the title of "Paris of the Balkans". The city is [illegible] rapidly tranformed from a sleepy, melancholy, unattractive, provincial town to something like a European capital. Its store are full of luxuries, jewels, rich furs, silks, lingerie, expensive confections perfumes and cosmetics. Everybody seems to have ample money to buy these articles. A tide of prosperity is now flowing through the country.

There is not sufficient room in the capital for the thousands of Slavs who want to come here from the united Provinces. Several thousand new buildings are under construction, the streets are being repaved, parks, public squares and an esplanade are planned, a new Royal Palace and a new Parliament building are nearing completion, the construction of a great stadium is contemplated, and the government is offering prizes of 500,000 francs for the best plan for the improvement and the beautification of the city.

"You won't know Belgrade in another five years," its citizens say proudly. "We shall have a capital worthy of a nation of 13,000,000 people and a city that will attract Europeans."

It is a city of strong contrasts. In the heart of the business, banking and shopping sections the visitor sees many peasants, herdsmen and hand-made farm carts drawn by the immemorial ox.

An American visitor was startled to see an aged ex-soldier carrying a coffin on his back through the crowded shopping district of the capital. It was explained that the Serbian undertakers made their deliveries of coffins to their patrons in this fashion. Such incongruities are constantly to be seen in the capital.

vocalist of all C.P.R. city agents.

Theatre night for Rotary was referred to. At the Allen Theatre, now known as the Royal. Wednesday of this week. All come. Proceeds for the Boys' Camp.

Rev. Jas. Rollins, pastor of St Andrew's Church, was the speaker of the day. There was nothing in manner, address or comment to remind the Rotarians that the speaker had been ejected, by fire, the day previous from house and home. And it is remembered that while the firemen were ripping up hardwood floors, knocking down partitions and generally indulging in a profuse wrecking of the premises, Rev. Mr. Rollins presided as usual at the morning service in St. Andrew's, just alongside the Manse.

Address on "Business."

His topic to the Rotarians was "Business." Eminently fitted for Rotarians to listen to. Nearly all Rotarians are steeped in business of one kind or another and appreciated the address. Making the definition that the biggest thing in business was "Service," Rev. Mr. Rollins went on and drew the lessons to be learned when service was applied to business. He had considered business and believed he could make certain suggestions that would stand up under test in the field of business. These he proceeded to enlarge upon, with comment that appealed to the meeting.

The address as a whole was all too short, for it presented a view that appealed to business men as thoroughly tenable and sound. It included the claim that business should develop the man just as well as the man should develop business. Development of men by a business created good for all. If confined to the man's individual effort then it was selfish. Development was a sort of welfare work in the business end that had been neglected, and was now coming into its own. Under such conditions the business office became a technical school in which men were trained. The whole address was one that should be reproduced if space would permit.

It may be recalled that the songsters of the Club were bidden to compose for Club use a song or ditty. The following sample was laid on the table, and presently tried out. The soloist had the song and the company the chorus. As a gem of purest ray serene, it is as follows:

"We'll sing a song of Rotary and most of it is guff.
We're Peterborough fellows and made of Rotary stuff:
We're young as any youngster
we're also old and tough.
If we only warbled ditties it would hardly be enough."

A breathless and expectant public is advised that the air, to which the words will be sung is that well-known convival refrain, "The Son of a Gambolier."

CONVENTION TO-NIGHT.

KINGSTON, January 24. Canadian Press. — The Conservatives and the Liberals of Kingston meet to-night to select candidates for the provincial bye-election on Feb. 6. It is said that W. F. Nickle, K.C., ex-M.P. P., and ex-M.P. has consented to allow his name to go before the Conservative convention and he will likely be unanimously chosen.

It is commonly reported that R. F. Elliott, chairman of the Utilities Commission, might be the choice of the Liberals. R. G. Armstrong, Independent, and William Fleet, labor, are already in the ring, so it looks like a four cornered fight.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one or two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

THE secret of getting well is finding the right medicine. The fact that Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin has the largest sale in the world would seem to prove that several million people find it THEIR right medicine. Miss Evelyn A. Craig of Sherbrooke, Que., once a semi-invalid, says Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup turned her sickness into health.

THE GAMBLER'S FAMILY

One time on the street car I overheard two men who had been playing the races talking. One of them said, "Well, I lost—lost the money that was to have bought my little 'feller's new suit and shoes." His conscience was hurting him—he was picturing his little "feller's" disappointment when the new things he needed so much and had been promised, failed to materialize.

'Tis the women and children of the gambler who pay the price of the losses. 'Tis the wife who must keep the home going with no income when the man's betting judgment goes wrong.

'Tis the family of the small gambler who suffers the most. The big one managed to "get away" with it somehow when luck is against him, though even then the wife does not know whether she can spend the winter at a Florida resort or stay in cramped retirement in a city flat. But she has enough clothes and other things purchased when her husband is successful to carry her over the unlucky times, so she does not suffer from material things as her lesser sister does.

Aside from the pinch of poverty, there is the moral suffering and degradation the wife and children must endure—"the gambler's wife," "the gambler's child," women whisper, and gaze with curiosity and draw aside their skirts.

'Tis the lure of "easy money" that tempts the gambler and urges him on. He gambles and wins—what an easy way to live! Why work. His mental viewpoint becomes perverted. He is no longer a useful citizen. His wife feels the disgrace keenly. His children suffer under the stigma when they are old enough to realize it. His sons either follow in his footsteps or with the results of the example before them, shun the career with scorn and shame.

Ask any gambler's wife if she wants him to continue his uncertain and dishonest way of providing for her and see what she will say.

BREAK UP CONCERN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, introduced in the Senate yesterday a resolution directing the Attorney-General to inform the Senate whether the Department of Justice "contemplates any separate action" against the International Harvester Company, "for the purpose of effectively restoring competitive conditions" between the various corporations making up that concern. Objection was made to immediate consideration, and Mr. Norris announced he would seek action to-day.

HEADS THAT ACHE AND PAIN

It is hard to drag along with a head that aches and pains all the time.

In nine cases out of ten, persistent headaches are due to poisoned blood, the blood being rendered impure through some derangement of the stomach, liver or bowels, but no matter which organ is to blame the cause must be removed before permanent relief can be obtained.

which has been on the market for the past forty five years, removes the cause of the headache by starting the organs of elimination acting freely, and when the impurities are carried off from the system, purified blood circulates in the brain cells, and the aches and pains vanish.

Miss Clara Murphy, Centre Dummer, Ont., writes: "My system was greatly run down and my blood out of order. I suffered a great deal from severe pains in my head which made me feel very miserable. After having tried other remedies I purchased a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and was very glad to notice a decided improvement in my health. I took another bottle and it has done me an enormous amount of good. I have recommended it to some of my friends who were in a similar condition and they all say it is a wonderful remedy."

OLD-FASHIONED DIPLOMACY.

PARIS, Jan. 24. — (Canadian Press).—The fact that France has been regularly outvoted in the Allied Supreme Council is discussed in many authoritative quarters here as the real reason why Premier Poincare has shown a preference for old-fashioned diplomatic negotiations to settle pending peace questions. Since these negotiations concern all the Allies interested in reparations, there is no question of secrecy, it is pointed out.

SEES BEAUTY

To which Miss Turner said bluntly: "I never in my life read such perfect nonsense."

While even stronger comments came from George Bellows.

"I won't allow that cocktail figure at all." Mr. Bellows protested savagely. "A cocktail has an effect only on the body, not on the mind or the soul, whereas the effect of a work art should be mental and spiritual.

"Life Is Beauty"

"Beauty in art is measured by the success of the artist's attempt to give life to what is dead, to put on canvas a living, lovable woman. She need not be beautiful at all in the sense in which the tired business man uses the word.

"In creating a beautiful portrait what an artist tries to give is a beautiful order of things.

"The hands, the dress, the nose, the background, are just as important as the face, and go to make up the beautiful order of things. Proportion, rhythm, harmony—it is on these qualities that the beautiful woman in art depends."

"And aren't they equally important to the beautiful woman in Nature?" was asked. "Shouldn't she try to express them, if she as well as her portrait painter—wishes to create the impression of beauty?"

"Certainly, he said. "The men and the women who wish to appear attractive should cultivate proportion, rhythm, harmony. Also intelligence is a most important factor in beauty. I never have known a beautiful woman who wasn't also intelligent."

Mr. Bellows deplored Van Dongen's "flippancy" and remarked that, far from being interested in legs, "artists dodge the full-length portrait today on account of the short skirt which cuts the figure in two. If women are going to wear legs, why shouldn't they wear tights, instead of something that is neither skirt nor pants?"

"When a woman is most herself, when she is a most simple and natural, she is most beautiful," Miss Turner summed up, after reading Kees Van Dongen's opinion. "I loathe high heels and bobbed hair, which Mr. Van Dongen seems to find so charateristic of modern beauty, because they are artificial affections. The professional beauty, whose every movement is a conscious pose, seems to me not beautiful at all.

"Real beauty is a spirit. It is what shines through the surface of colored and molded flesh, and it often makes an old woman more beautiful than a young one.

"As for the modern artist's looking for special beauty in feet and legs—the only reason why we notice them more than formerly is because they are so thrust upon us that we can't help it!" Miss Turner ended with something suspiciously resembling a sniff.

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixure at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound and ¼ ounces of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a grey-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

HURT BY TREE.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—While chopping wood in forest at Martinville, P. Etreault was seriously hurt by a falling branch and his condition is critical.

BOARDS MEET

contagious diseases at present invading the community.

Number of Cases.

This meeting had been called by Chairman Geo. H. Duncan, of the local Health Board, by request of the Education Board, to discuss the alleged contagious disease epidemic, and he (the chairman) invited suggestions from all present as to ways and means for stamping out scarlet fever and diphtheria. He declared that both the Board of Health and their M. O. H. are doing their uttermost in this respect, and that the latter is a busy man from day to day, with this end in view. If these diseases are spreading, he said, it is due to the citizens themselves not taking the necessary precautions and following health rules prescribed by the authorities. The chairman also opined that in some cases, due to hard times, the calling in of a physician is delayed for expense consideration until too late.

As to breaking quarantine, Chairman Duncan said the Health Board gets reports of such breaches of the Health Act but those reporting them will neither give names nor back up their statements with concrete evidence. He "heard" to-day, he said, of one doctor allowing a contagious diseased patient to travel in a street car to the hospital, and of another woman leaving a diphtheria-stricken house in a taxi to visit her son, ill in the hospital with scarlet fever. All kinds of such alarming rumours reach his ears from time to time, but no one will "back them up."

"We are here," Mr. Duncan concluded, "to do our duty fearlessly in devising ways and means for stamping out this epidemic, if epidemic there be, and I invite your co-operation."

School Trustee J. A. McKone advanced that the general feeling prevailing is that these diseases are not abating; and if the M. O. H. or others can show that 'things are not running wild," that feeling of alarm will be eliminated.

M. O. H. Dr. Young submitted that since September last there had been seven deaths from scarlet fever and four from diphtheria. At present in this city there are 32 houses quarantined for scarlet fever and 15 for diphtheria; of the latter, six are empty carriers. From September till and including this month, the number of these cases has been and is, as follows:

Diphtheria—In September, 24; October, 64; November, 30; December, 24; this month, 16.

Scarlet fever—Septmber, 20; October, 43; November, 42; December, 39; January, 26.

Some of these cases were those of out-of-town patients, and Dr. Young considered this record of death a low one, and that these scourges are decreasing in number. Then, he pointed out, in some cases death was due to complications. For instance, two had Bright's disease, one diabetes, and one child left for the hospital but four hours before death, due to delay in getting medical advice. He did not think these figures warranted the assumption that an epidemic prevails.

Parents Alarmed.

School Trustee J. M. Greene said that reports to the School Board at their regular meeting in January showed considerable decrease in attendance due, perhaps, to the health situation, or reports thereon.

School Inspector Mowat declared that at school opening after holidays the attendance was very good; but now there are 240 absentees, either from diphtheria or scarlet fever, or fear of same—only 7 from East City school, 17 from King Edward, and 50 to 60 from each of the other schools. There were reported three cases of scarlet fever or diphtheria among school children in the first week of January, eight the second week, and 10 to-day; this showed a small increase so far as school children were concerned.

Epidemic of Fear.

Basing his conclusion on the foregoing figures, School Trustee J. M. Greene sizes the present situation up not as an epidemic of contagious diseases, but an epidemic of fear, not warranted by conditions. He points out that with a school roll of over 3,000, 240 absentees do not offer food for justified alarm among parents.

Breaking Quarantine.

School Trustee J. W. Worth had heard of children returning to school before their homes had been fumigated after contagious disease.

Dr. Young—"Can you name such cases?"

Mr. Worth — "No, they are only rumors to me."

ToMr. Worth, Dr. Young replied that before quarantine is lifted he must have from the attending physician a certificate, either in writing or by 'phone, that the premises have been properly disinfected, that everything is clean and wholesome, and that the inhabitants are free of disease in every way.

Chairman of the Board of Health Duncan here interjected that rumor has it that there is a serious epidemic in town; scarlet fever and diphtheria are reported worse than they really are, and people, being alarmed, are keeping their children home from school. He hoped the result of this meeting would be to allay that alarm and encourage parents to return their little ones to school.

School Trustee Jos. Wearing wanted to know were there many cases of mild attacks of the diseases in question where a medical man had not been called in and the prescribed precautions not taken. He had heard of some cases, and positively knew of one.

To Dr. Young, Mr. Wearing replied that he had not reported either the rumors in the one case he was positive of.

Dr. Young said there had been some evasions of the Health Act reported to him by the doctors. And here the M.O.H. declared that that same Health Act provides that any citizens knowing of a breach of same must report to either the M.O.H., the Board of Health, or the Sanitary Inspector. But, he said, ignorant people are not always to blame, for they do not recognize scarlet fever in a rash when they see it; consequently the case is concealed till the last moment.

Save It's An Epidemic.

Dr. McPherson, talking in his relation to the Board of Education as schools' physician, said that it was his duty to safeguard the children's health, and in discharge of that duty he contended that the existing situation in regard to scarlet fever and diphtheria is an epidemic, more or less, both from the standpoint of deaths and the number of cases—something which should not be minimized nor withheld from the public.

Dr. McPherson here went on to say that Dr. Young's figures were misleading, inasmuch as during October, a great number of school children carriers had been reported in—there have been 60 or 70 carriers in the schools reported. If the number of carriers had not been eliminated from Dr. Young's report we should be better able to pronounce on the situation, and conclude whether there are or not more cases than there should be.

Dr. McPherson here criticized the M.O.H. regarding his supervision of release of quarantine, for which, he asserted, he (the M.O.H.) is responsible, and no one else. Dr. McPherson also declared that in a certain number of cases children returning to school from homes that had been quarantined had been found infected with diphtheria. There should be no returning to school, he said, until every member of the family had been thoroughly swabbed and a negative analysis reported.

Dr. McPherson next criticized the M. O. H. for not supplying disinfectants to every infected house, and seeing that it is used. Then, he declared, the M.O.H. should give the certificate of health and not family practitioners, who are not paid for safeguarding the public.

Dr. Young, in reply, declared that in his knowledge, he had allowed no child to return to school from a diphtheria - infected home until swabs found as required by the Act. As for some carriers, he asserted that one can get two swabs negative and then in a few days find germs.

Dr. McPherson did not agree with Dr. Young in this regard, and declared that he could name four cases where positive swabs were found and the children asserted that no swabs had been taken from them at home.

Dr. Young—"Give me the names of those children."

Dr. McPherson promised to do this.

As for fumigating homes in which contagious diseases have existed, Dr. Young declared that in all cases of straightened circumstances the parties are allowed disinfecting agencies free. The Sanitary Inspector attends to this in his instructions.

Breach of Act.

Reverting again to the question of breaking quarantine, Dr. Young said there are many rumors to that effect, but with no positive backing, and one can't haul people into court without evidence. He had only found two or three violation approximately, and the guilty ones have either returned to quarantine when threatened with the police after having the need for the measure explained to them.

To Dr. McPherson, the M.O.H. replied that he did not have to supervise disinfecting, and he asserted that quarantine has been maintained here better than in Toronto.

Mr. J. W. Worth—"My house was quarantined, and neither the doctor, nor the M.O.H., nor the Inspector knows whether it has been disinfected or not. In fact, he declared, the card was removed before the premises had been fumigated."

School Trustee Wearing thought Mr. Worth's own physician must have been lax in his case.

Dr. Young — "The Provincial Officer of Health is authority that where absolute clealiness of patient and premises is observed during infection, on complete recovery, there really is no need for fumigation, although, of course, it does no harm."

Trustee Wearing—"My house was fumigated."

School Trustee Mrs. Morris remarked that there are many cases where homes are never clean.

Dr. Young—It's not my duty to see that homes are clean."

Mrs. Morris wanted to be made clear exactly what Dr. Young's (M.O.H) duties are Is it not, she enquired, his duty to see that homes are made safe for ingress or egress in cases where for lack of facilities or intelligence the cleanliness and care have not been what they should have been?

Dr. Young replied that where a contagious disease infected child has been kept clean with antiseptics during illness and the premises, utensils, etc, also maintained in a thoroughly clearly condition, on recovery he does not insist on fumigation, which is not necessary.

Keep Schools Open

School Trustee McKone queried were it advisable to close the schools in face of Inspector Mowat's report of scarlet fever and diphtheria cases among the children this month.

Dr. Young replied in the negative for if kept from school the children invariably run more or less at large while at school they are under supervision by teachers, the schools' doctor and the schools' nurse.

The M.O.H. here asserted that his policy re attending physicians reporting for release of quarantine is exactly the same as that pursued in Toronto. Also that Provincial Health Officer Dr. McCullough advises that there is no need for closing Peterborough's Schools.

While Trustee Joseph Wearing held no brief for Dr. Young, still in justice he had to admit that when his (Mr. Wearing's) youngster, broke quarantine, the M.O.H. was after him so vigorously that he thought Dr. Young very much on the job.

Chairmain Duncan believed that Dr. Young is doing his duty as he sees it, otherwise he would be first to move for his dismissal.

Dr. Young here cited figures for the four weeks in December last and the first three weeks this January in support of his contention that comparatively there is less contagious disease among school children now schools are open than when closed during the Christmas and New Year's holidays. He also took occasion to refer to the health act which provides, that when in "his opinion" a house should be fumigated he shall through the Sanitary Inspector order disinfecting done, and at the municipality's expense if necessary.

Eliminate Friction

School Trustee Roland Denne here advised an educative campaign re contagous diseases, for parents—through the press, and schools the elimination of all friction, and active cooperation between all public bodies concerned to eradicate the diseases in question

Chairman Duncan here fell in line with Trustee Mrs. Morris' suggestion that the Board of Health submit weekly reports of health conditions, which he advanced, might be published in the press. Taking the M.O.H.'s statement he opined that a decrease in cases is shown, and he found no real cause for prevalent alarm. Any spread of such diseases is mainly due to carelessness on the part of parents, who should be educated on the need of due precaution.

Trustee Dr. F. C. Neal declared the greatest cause for these diseases and in some cases death resulting is ignorance on the part of parents. Quarantine, he added, is always a difficult problem, for some people will follow prescriptions while others have to be intimidated by the police.

Question of Isolation.

The M.O.H. here explained that in cases where dwelling conditions lend themselves to isolating a contagious patient in one part of the house it is permissable to quarantine that section only; in which event members of the family who do not come in contact with the patient may pursue their ordinary avocations. He added that while in some cases he advises fumigation such action is not always necessary by reason of cleanly conditions. But School Inspector Mowat contends that all dwellings in which contagious disease has been located, should be fumigated, and that negative swabs should be taken from every member of that family before the quarantine is lifted.

The Mayor and E. F. Mason of the Board of Health each expressed their appreciation of this conference with the Board of Education, to whom they offered hearty cooperation in any suggestions that may be advanced in furtherance of community health, in elimination of scarlet fever and diphtheria, together with allaying all unnecessary public alarm.

The attendance consisted of the following:

Education Board, Chairman A. A. Fowler, J. W. Worth, E. B. Fowler, J. A. McKone, J. M Greene, Inspector A Mowat, Mrs. Kate Morris, Dr. Neal, Roland Denne, Joseph Wearing and Secretary Thompson.

Board of Health, Chairman Geo. H Duncan, E. F. Mason, Jas. Lynch, Mayor Taylor, M.O.H. Dr. Young and Sanitary Inspector Chas. Stapleton.

One or two of the aldermen put in an appearance late in the evening following a board of works meeting in the council's committee room.

THE PRINCE

Micawber, perhaps the most futile and amusing of all literary creations, was the Prince of Procrastinators.

He was always just about to make a spring. He constantly told David Copperfield that he was contemplating a vigorous leap forward.

But he was never outside a network of overdue bills and bankruptcy. His life was lived within the shadow of the debtor's prison.

And the moral of it all. Any act which is vital and excellent should be carried out at once. For instance, the policy of Assurance which you think of taking up, say, next month, will not help much if anything untoward should happen to you between now and then.

The Secretary-Treasurer presented his report, which showed a balance on hand of $8.18.

Value of Good Roads.

The first speaker of the evening, Dr. P. E. Doolittle, president of the Canadian Motor League, was called on to address the meeting. Dr. Doolittle spoke warmly of the wonderful attractions to tourists that we have to the north of us. If our roads were improved it would bring a great number of American tourists who would become advertisers of our district, and the money that the tourists would spend here would amply repay any outlay we would make for good roads. "The American business man will pinch a dime until the eagle squawks, in business, but there is no one who spends more freely when he relaxes for a holiday," said the speaker. Dr. Doolittle told of the trips taken by the Michigan Pikers' Association through Northern Ontario. The speaker is a very interesting and fluent speaker and his address delighted everyone.

Legislation Required.

Mr. W. G. Robertson, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Motor League, gave a short outline of the work of the Association during the past few years, and the troubles they were to encounter in the near future. Legislation is needed to force all vehicles to carry lights at night so as to prevent accidents, as well as the removal of the law against using or carrying spotlights. Mr. Robertson spoke of the persecution of motorists by traffic officials. He believed that these officials should be paid a salary instead of on the commission basis. At the annual meeting of the Association in Toronto next week the question of whether or not to oppose the legislation to place a tax of one or two cents a gallon on gasoline will come up.

Officers Elected.

The officers for the coming year were then elected. The new officers are as follows: Hon. President, Mr. H. O. Fisk; President, Mr. R. Cotton; Vice-President, Mr. D. R. Wren; Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. L. Fraser; Directors: Messrs. C. R. Banks, A. W. Blade, H. Bestard, C. A. White, E. W. Borbridge, J. W. Brightman, W. H. Bradburn, E. B. Fowler, R. J. G. Sutherland, R. H. Turner, W. D. Tyrer and J. J. Duffus.

It was decided that the local Association should take a stand for or agains the legislation putting a further tax on gasoline. It was decided to oppose it.

After a very hearty vote of thanks to the speakers the meeting adjourned.

Statistics reveal that 100,000, or 5 per cent., of the approximately 2,000,000 men and women more than 50 years of age who are leading lives of single-blessedness will marry.

BY THE WAY

A recent whipping administered at Antlers, Okla., the home town of Maj. Victor M. Locke, Jr., superintendent of the five civilized tribes and one of the leading members of the Choctaw tribe, served to recall to the Indian superintendent's mind a custom that many years ago was pursued by the Choctaws to punish their members when found doing evil.

The punishment consisted of a public thrashing for the offender, and Superintendent Locke well remembers the last legal punishment of this kind administered by the Choctaws. It took place in 1899 at Alikachi, and the victim was a full blood who had been convicted in the tribal courts of stealing a "roan setting hen." The chicken in question was a Dominique hen. There was no word in the Choctaw language for Dominique, so the indictment was worded to read "roan" hen instead, that being the nearest accurate description that could be supplied.

The Indian was given 30 lashes on the bare back with hickory switches

Superintendent Locke says that up to 1900 the Choctaw tribe kept three whipping posts to control offenders. One was located at Alikachi, another on the forks of Boggy Creek, and a third three miles south of Wilburton. Although the Choctaws had jails, they were seldom used, as trials moved so swift and sentences were so quickly imposed that the jails were of little use.

Under the old Choctaw law a person convicted of horse stealing was given 100 lashes for the first offense. If the offense was repeated and the defendant convicted, he was shot to death. The Choctaws never resort to hanging.

In the Cherokee nation capital punishment was executed by hanging.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back Its Color and Lustre With Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

OBITUARY

JOHN ORMISTAN.

Mr. John Ormistan, aged 94, died at his home, 92 London Street, this morning. Deceased leaves a widow, two brothers. Andrew, of Toronto, and James, of Regina, and one sister, Mrs. C. Johnson, of Norwood. The remains will leave for Norwood to-morrow at noon for interment.

The death of Mr. Ormistan is the first break in the ranks of the Peterborough street railway.

INFANT SON.

The death occurred yesterday of Donald Warren, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Warren, Aylmer street. Interment in Little Lake cemeteryy.

INSTRUCTIVE EVENING IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

A comprehensive lecture, illustrated by a series of moving pictures of the Canadian Rockies and Canadian National Parks, arranged by the Dominion Government, was given in St. Paul's Church Monday night by Rev. Frank Forster, B.A., official lecturer for the Canadian National Parks Commission. The church was fairly well filled, and the occasion proved of decided interest. In moving a vote of thanks to Rev. Forster, Mr. F. D. Kerr, K.C., voiced the thought that came to so many who saw the pictures that Canadians are hardly as well acquainted with their own country as they should be.

The moving pictures covered the mountain area about Banff and the National Park very completely, and were splendid examples of the photographic art. A trip up the Pacific Coast to Skagway revealed the beauties of the rugged British Columbia Coast. Rev. Robert Pogue officiated as chairman.

Representing the Dairy Marketing Committee of Eleven of Chicago, which is investigating the co-operative sale of dairy products, E. B. Heaton, the secretary, and Professor C. Leeson yesterday investigated the workings of the United Dairymen, Ltd., which was organised by Mr. H. B. Cowan of this city.

The Chicago dairymen were much interested in the business of the company, which has enjoyed a phenomenal growth, and last year by total sales of $1,500,000, and handling the cheese from 155 factories, became the third largest business of its kind in the world.

The outlook for continued success is good, and the Chicago men spent several hours with Mr. Cowan in going thoroughly into the difficulties as well as the prospects of the co-operative trade. They left last night for Ottawa to glean further information about Canadian dairy industries.

Market News

NEW YORK, January 24 (Canadian Press). — Gulf States Steel continued to feature the stock market in to-day's early dealings, rising 21 1-2 points. Electric Storage Batteries, another recent favourite, made similar gain, and Manhattan Elevated recovered part of yesterday's reaction. In general, the list was uneven. Mexican Petroleum losing a large fraction, while various specialties, including Coca Cola and Central Leather were in further demand. Pacific Rails also improved, but Grangers, notably Chicago and North-Western, eased slightly.

Preliminary quotations in leading foreign exchanges were irregular.

Gulf States Steel failed to make further headway, but Electric Storage Battery extended its rise to 6 1-2 points. Food and sugar specialties, notably Corn Products and Cuba Cane Preferred also was strong, but South Porto Rico Sugar broke sharply. General Asphalt strengthened on the declaration of regular preferred dividend. Shippings were brought forward before noon, Mercantile Marine Preferred, American International and United Fruit gaining 1 to 1 1-2 points. Soft spots included Lackawanna and Replogle Steels. American Car, Houston Oil, Montana Power, and Endicott Johnston.

Call money opened at 5 per cent.

Speculation broadened in the afternoon, and buying for both accounts became lively following the drop in call money rates. Spirited bidding for the steel group carried them up 1 to 2 points generally, with Gulf Steel rising 5 points. Sugar, motor, car, and paper issues were also lifted 1 to 3 points. Liquidation of American Sumatra Tobacco forced it down 1 point, preferred 2, and Consolidated Cigar Preferred 3 1-4.

Hedging sales of corn were less numerous than has been the rule of late. Corn market therefore tended to advance opening 1-8c to 3-8c higher, and then scoring additional upturns. Oats climbed in value with other grain starting unchanged to 1-4 up, May 39 1-4 to 39 3-8, and continued to ascend.

P.A.A.A. CREW MAKE GOOD SHOWING AGAINST THE SENIOR O.H.A. LEADERS

ANOTHER SPLENDID EXHIBITION OF HOCKEY DELIGHTS BIG CROWD — PETES SHOW CONSIDERABLE IMPROVEMENT OVER LAST WEEK'S DISPLAY BUT ARE BEATEN 9 TO 4.

The Aura Lee team slipped into town last night and showed their complete line up for the benefit of fifteen hundred fans at the Brock St. rink. Incidentally Dick Carroll's smooth working machine which is out in front in the senior O. H. A. race, with four straight wins to their credit, beat the P.A.A.A. Intermediates 9 to 4. But the homesters, although they were shy the services of Ray Rose, temporarily on the hospital list through a cold, came out of the battle with a considerable share of glory. They gave the crack Aura Lee outfit a harder tussle than the score indicates. Half way home the visitors were only 4 to 3 in front, and although outscored 5 to 1 for the balance of the game, the Petes had a large share of the play.

It was in the final punch in front of the nets that the greatest superiority of the visiors lay. They broke in lightning fashion, slung rapid passes from one to another in bewildering style, and shot hard and accurately. This clever work on the attack was pretty to watch and it got enough goals for them to win by a comfortable margin on end in spite of the fact that the Petes were often on the aggressive and never stopped trying until the final gong.

Individually and as a team the homesters did much better work than against the Dominion Bank team last week. True the margin against them was larger but they were opposed by a complete senior team with the strongest line up the visitors could put on the ice, and in the face of this opposition they had a bigger part in the play than the final figures indicate. They lacked the cleverness in close that made every Aura Lee dash a dangerous one, but they showed speed and puck-carrying ability, and their shooting was better than in any game this season. The experience gained in these two exhibition games will stand them in good stead in their O.H.A. campaign, and no finer preparation for the coming League fixtures could have been arranged.

Aura Lee lived up to their promises and brought their most formidable array of talent. Thompson guarded the nets for two periods and Crook finished the game between the posts, both giving a clever performance. They had a lot of work to do for the Petes were coming in fast and pumping them fast and accurately at the nets. In front of them Hogarth and Conacher formed a splendid defence, being almost impossible to draw out, while both of the rear guard rushed nicely. All five forwards used were good. Burch, Rodden and Stephenson started as the regular line with Rutherford and Meeking as subs., and the attack looked equally as strong, no matter what combination of forwards was employed. In fact, Dalton Meeking appeared to be the most dangerous man of the five and was very effective in working in for a shot. Rodden contributed some of his spectacular stick handling and rushed in with three nice goals while the rest of the crew were always going and always threatening.

For the Petes everybody did their finest to hold their flying visitors in check. Murray made a host of clever saves, many of them at close range, and the defence handled themselves nicely. The fast breaking Aura Lees were coming in on them on many occasions unhampered by back checking and Parker and Thornton had their hands full to meet such a fast moving and well planned attack.

On the forward line one is inclined to give the honors to Frank Collins, for the youngsters turned in a sparkling performance. He rushed cleverly, was in on top of the nets persistently, and his neat poke checking spoiled many an Aura Lee rush. Best of all he was going just as hard as ever when the game terminated. Burgess and Lorne Rose worked in fine style along the boards against two of the cleverest wing men in the Senior O.H.A. while McElroy, Jackson and Halpin did good work when called upon.

The game was handled by Steve Vair, who while usually an efficient referee, was not up to his accustomed standard last night, and Aura Lee got a couple of offside goals as a result. The only penalty of the evening was handed out to Parker for a trip, although there had been a number of similar spills that went unnoticed.

The ice was hard and fast, giving the teams every opportunity to display their best hockey.

The teams:

Referee, Steve Vair.

It was fast going from the initial face-off and both Thompson and Murary were called on early. The Petes were dangerous on their first rush, but Thompson beat them. Then Hogarth flashed down alone and his bullet drive from outside the defence tore past Murray for the first counter.

The Petes came back and Thompson had to save cleverly on shots by Parker and Rose. Aura Lee were playing the same every man back defence used by the Dominion Bank and it was just about as effective as before, enabling the forwards to break clear when they stopped a Peterborough attack. Rodden and Burch got away by this means, and a clever back pass to Burch and a quick, low shot that passed between Murray's pads, gave the visitors another counter.

Shortly afterwards Rutherford carried the puck down nicely, and his accurate pass to Burch enabled the clever centre to register at close range. Aura Lee 3, Peterborough 0.

The Petes broke into the scoring column at this stage. Parker got away for a nice rush, and although Thompson went on his knees to stop the shot and cleared quickly, Parker recovered the rubber and batted it through for the first Peterborough marker.

Lornie Rose made it 3 to 2 a little later on a quick dash down the boards, and an accurate wing shot that gave Thompson no chance to save. The figures remained at 3 to 2 when the period ended.

The Petes had as much of the play in the early stages of the second period as had the red shirts, but it was Aura Lee who scored first, Stephenson taking the rubber down and Rodden driving the puck home in the mix-up that followed.

A little later an Aura Lee shot hit the cross bar at the top of the nets and the Petes broke away for a nice rush, Collins completing the play when he brought the rubber around the post to fool Thompson. That made it 4 to 3 and the Aura Lee crew, who claimed a goal over the cross bar incident, buzzed around like hornets for the next few minutes. Meeking scored two clever goals in quick order, both of them on offside passes, and the end of the period found the figures 6 to 3.

Aura Lee were the first to score in the last session, Rodden doing the trick on a neat pass that left a clear road to the nets. Collins got that one back for the Petes when he poked one through at close range after a rush by Pete Thornton. The last two goals of the evening went to Aura Lee, both on two man dashes, Meeking getting the first and Rodden hanging up the second.

The summary:

STINSON AND BERTAUD BREAK WORLD'S RECORD IN SENSATIONAL ENDURANCE FLIGHT

Left to right: Eddie Stinson and Lloyd Bertaud just after they landed. The two were up in the air for 26 hours, 5 minutes and 32 seconds, thus breaking the previous record of 24 hours, 19 minutes, 17 seconds. They went up from Hazelhurst Field, Mineola, L. I., at 9.12.22 on December 29, and came down December 30th, at 11.17.50. This flight was sensational inasmuch as the couple started badly handicapped by a raging storm and most of the time they flew in the teeth of an 80 mile gale. It was an exciting flight and they had quite a tale to tell of the weather they encountered in the higher altitude.

ROBIN IS NATIVE IN THREE CONTINENTS

English robins have namesakes in three continents, for in China and New Zealand as well as in America, settlers from England gave the familiar name to a native bird. The American migratory thrush recalls by its reddish breast the brighter gorget of the English species. Though duller of plumage the New Zealand robin earned the name by its tameness; and there is a touch of the same friendly nature in the Chinese bird.

Several English birds are distinguished by a human nickname; tom-tit, jackdaw, magpie, jenny wren, and even philip sparrow. But only the robin redbreast has made friends so thoroughly with man that its full name is almost forgotten, while its nickname is coextensive with the English language.

SOLD DRUGS ILLEGALLY

MONTREAL, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Dr. Malcolm Amos Lafrance, of 706 St. Catherine Street East, this city, was sentenced here to serve one year in jail for having sold cocaine illegally. It was proved at the physician's trial some weeks ago that he had sold between 11 and 12 ounces of the drug to a man who had paid him in raised United States bank bills to a supposed value in Canadian funds of $750. Dr. Lafrance laid a complaint that he had been defrauded and his complaint led to his own arrest on a charge of selling drugs.

DEPRECATES DESIRE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Lord Lee, First Lord of the Admiralty, deprecated Premier Poincaire's published desire to return to old diplomacy in his address here last night as a guest of honor at a dinner given by English-speaking Union of the United States.

He declared that if the Armament Conference should fail "it would spell bankruptcy of statesmanship and triumphs of everything for everything for which revolutionaries are working and waiting."

RENT PARK TO P.A.A.A. FOR $800

PARKS COMMITTEE RECOMMEND THIS PROPOSAL TO THE CITY COUNCIL.

The Parks committee of the City Council, after a conference with a committee from the P.A.A.A. last night, passed a resolution recommending to the Council that Riverside Park be rented to the Athletic Association for the year for $800.

Dr. A. W. McPherson, president of the P.A.A.A. said the Association wished to be of service to the City Council in dealing with the control and supervision of Riverside Park. The Association was representative of the whole city, and if given control of Riverside park, would encourage and assist all branches of recreation.

Ald. H. Gainey, chairman of the Parks committee, spoke in favor of a proposal to rent the grounds to the P.A.A.A. and his stand was approved by Mayor Taylor. All the aldermen present were in sympathy with the proposal and when the rental was fixed at $800, the resolution was passed unanimously.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

WILD GEESE FLY AS "THE WILD GOOSE" IS FILMED

Director Capellani Says It Was Good Omen as Picture Amply Proves.

Was it a good omen when, during the filming of "The Wild Goose" at the Cosmopolitan studio in New York, a flock of wild geese passed over the studio on their flight south, honking merrily. Albert Capellani, the director, says yes, and the result it seems, was the Paramount picture which will be shown at the Regent theatre next Monday.

There is an old saying among ornithologists that a wild goose never was known to desert its mate and that their devotion endures until death. This theory has been made the basis of a powerful story by Gouverneur Morris, the author, which was further strengthened in the picturization. The theme deals with the marital troubles of a wealthy architect because of his romantic minded wife's infatuation with another man.

The development of the story is rapid and there are numerous dramatic moments that thrill the spectator. Mary MacLaren, is the wife and Halmes E. Herbert the husband. The cast is excellent and it includes such players as Dorothy Bernard, Joseph Smiley, Norman Kerry and Rita Rogan, the remarkable child actress.

AT THE CAPITOL.

A regular "he man" role is the one enacted by Thomas Meighan in "Cappy Ricks" at the Capitol this week. "One of the most interesting pictures seen here in some time," is the verdict of a seasoned 'movie' fan.

The popular star has a part that suits him to perfection in this roistering tale of the sea, throbbing with action, with its hero a massive sea-fighter ,a two-fisted fighting man, and one who pits his keen wits against the sharp mind of old "Cappy" in a contest that keeps the interest alive through every reel of a dramatic and thrilling production. Th fight between Matt Peasley and "Hands and Feet," the 230 lb. Captain Ole Peterson, and a fight with the elements on a storm-tossed sea provide some real, red-blooded action.

Percy and Ferdie, the Hallroom boys, have a crackerjack comedy in "Circus Heroes,' getting mixed up with a lion in all manner of laughable situations, and finally disappearing in the distance walking carefully within a couple of barrels.

Marion Hamilton, Scotch comedienne, and Cohen and Luken, the latter a couple of excellent black-face artists with a splendid repertoire of songs and dances and a good talking act, supplied the vaudeville.

AT THE GRAND.

H. B. Warner's mystery play, "Under Cover", a four-act production which gives the Rex Stock Company a chance for displaying their several talents along lines a little out of the ordinary, is the attraction at the Grand Opera House to-night and to-morrow.

Interest is held right up to the last minute in a production which calls forth some excellent acting on the part of everyone in the cast. Rex holds the stage as the gentleman smuggler, whose audacious display of a wonderful pearl necklace mystifies his audience. With dramatic suddenness, he turns the tables in the third act on the triumphant detective who is about to arrest him, and incidentally makes a quick getaway.

Miss Zana Vaughn does some fine emotional acting in a difficult role, and her gowns are as striking as usual.

Mr. Wm. Yule is the browbeating detective, who forces the heroine to act as his unwilling accomplice through fear of her sister's arrest. But his triumphant career through three acts is cut sadly short in a denouement that exposes his real character and leaves the victims of his energy high and dry in a final satisfactory close-up.

A. J. Cole is the thirsty Patrick Harrington of the production, with Florence Winters as his wife, and Blanche Park has a five minute role as a deaf and dumb smuggler, who is unterrified by third degree methods but returns to speech at the thought of the other woman's perfidy. "When one woman is nice to another, she means mischief," is her final parting shot.

Hazel Williams and William Seymour provide the entreacte vaudeville specialties, and the Park kiddies do some new songs and a Sailor dance. These small performers are giving some excellent little numbers

ALICE JOYCE IN SENSATIONAL PLAY

You should see the five reel romance, featuring Alice Joyce, named the Inner Chamber. This play portrays in realistic manner the trials of a beautiful girl who sets out in life to earn an honest living as a stenographer. Her first employer is an insurance broker. His efforts, at the office, to force unwanted attention on the girl fail. He pretends illness and sends for the girl to take dictation at his country residence. Here, with the connivance of his Japanese valet, he attempts to force wine on the girl. She refuses the wine, but says she will take champagne if he will open a fresh bottle. Thinking he sees a solution of his evil designs he goes to the cellar for the "bottled bubbles of delight." During his absence the girl escapes. She next secures a position with a lady who is one of society's leaders, as paino teacher. The lady's society friends are given to gossip and their unfounded scandal loses the girl her place. She then accepts a position in "Little Italy," a restaurant frequented by "near Bohemians." Here she meets and is wooed by a successful young Italian surgeon. On the day of her wedding, that is attended by her husband's rich friends of the 400 jealous gossipers relate lies, told in "half truths,' of the bride's past. The young doctor's fiery Italian blood is fired by evil and passionate jealousy as he overhears these malicious gossip mongers, and he attempts to shoot his bride of an hour. Failing in this, but thinking he shot her, the doctor shoots himself. This tragedy, however, does not spoil the end of the story, as the girl's fight for her good name culminates in a second and more happy venture into the world's greatest gamble.

Katherine Spencer in "The Barricade," a five reel feature drama, shows up some of the shams and inane deceits of modern society. This is an illustrative and highly emotional play of real life.

Jimmy Aubrey in the Tourist, a two-reel comedy, is better than ever, and "that's saying some!"

Beftina, in the big serial, "Breaking Through," held the audience spellbound last night.

Sports

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

Last night's game with Aura Lee was another such clever exhibition as the Dominion Bank-P.A.A.A. clash a week ago, and the fifteen hundred fans present were delighted with the hockey displayed, and satisfied with the showing made by the Petes against the undefeated pace-setters of the Senior O.H.A. race. No one expected the P.A.A.A. squad to beat Dick Carroll's team, who were at full strength, and that the blue and white crew without the services of Ray Rose, who was ill, were able to give the fleet visitors a lively battle for the honours, was enough for the home fans.

Peterborough saw the full Aura Lee strength. It was the strongest line-up they could put into action; in fact, much stronger than the team used by Aura Lee against Argonauts in their last Senior O.H.A., for three of the regulars were given a rest in that engagement. They worked both their goalkeepers, Thompson guarding the nets for the first two periods and Cook wearing the big pads in the last session. It was the entire team that the Aura Lee management declare will win the Allan Cup; so that the P.A.A.A. squad were stacked up against no ordinary opposition. The game was fine training for the Petes, and a good night's hockey for the fans. The Aura Lee management deserve the thanks of the local followers of the game for living up to their promises and bringing a complete team. Too often Toronto outfits have disappointed the fans in outside towns by sending out an outfit of substitutes and juniors, with only a couple of regulars in line.

Meeking, the Barrie boy, who was one of the Aura Lee subs last night, is a brother of the well-known Gordon and Harry Meeking, and has the same dangerous ability in working in on the defence. It was Meeking who scored the winning goal for Aura Lee against Varsity, and he came through with several nice counters last night. He loafs a lot, and is always a menace when he flashes in for a shot.

Famous Words of Famous Men:

"Hamilton may keep her mountain so long as Port Hope has her Hills."—Sandy Lockington.

Frank Collins is the handy man of the P.A.A.A. squad. Last week when Lornie Rose was a casualty, Collins finished the game at left wing, and last night he was called upon to play centre in the absence of Ray Rose, and turned in a fine game. He is a youngster who keeps both his eyes and ears open, and is developing fast. The way he used the poke check last night showed how much he had picked up from the Dominion Bank crew.

Some fans profess to think that the Aura Lee crew could have piled up a bigger score if they had so desired. Don't believe that bunk. They were out there trying all they knew all through the engagement, and got every counter they could bag. They were lucky to get nine at that, for more vigilant refereeing would not have allowed the last two markers in the second period. Meeking was loafing on both those plays, and in each case the pass from which he scored was offside.

Some Pests We Meet:

The guy who is always telling us what is going to happen to the Petes when they meet So-and-So.

Peterborough hockey players will be sorry to learn of the death in Lindsay yesterday of John Haugh, who a few years ago was one of the stars of the Lindsay Midgets. Haugh played defence against Peterborough in many a junior and intermediate battle, and always gave a good account of himself.

Harris Ardiel, who once upon a time was a resident of Peterborough, accompanied the Aura Lee team last night. Mr. Ardiel, who is the manager of the Dominion Bank team which was here last week, is also connected with the Aura Lee management. He is a great admirer of the red shirts, and declared that the Peterborough fans last night saw the Allan Cup team, amateur champions of Canada for 1922, in action. Incidentally Mr. Ardiel is somewhat of a practical joker, for he was responsible for a paragraph which appeared in The Globe last week, stating that Lakefield had called the atention of the O.H.A. to the bad lighting in the Peterborough Rink.

Lakefield will play their first game of the inter-sectional series with Lindsay in Scugogville on Thursday night. It looks like a busy evening for Louie Sabatino.

The Toronto Granites are very anxious to secure a game in Peterborough, and Pete Campbell, the former local boy, who is prominently connected with the fast senior outfit, has had the wires hot all morning trying to arrange a clash with the P.A.A.A. for Monday or Tuesday night. The good reports brought back by the Dominion Bank team of their treatment here has made all the Toronto outfits eager for an engagement.

To-day's Happy Thought:

After playing teams like Aura Lee, an ordinary intermediate outfit should look easy to the Petes. F. D. C.

PETERBORO AND DISTRICT FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION

Football interest is now growing and it is rumoured that its enthusiasts are falling in line with the other organizations of Amateur Sports and probably in the near future will be one of the principal spokes in the Peterboro Amateur Athletic Association.

A meeting will be held tomorrow evening (Wednesday) in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms over the Dominion Bank, at 7.45 pm. and the Executive and the general public are urgently asked to attend this meeting. Considerable business has to be transacted immediately for the benefit of the Soccer season of 1922. A good attendance is hoped for, when a definite programme can be announced. All clubs intending to join the league are asked to make their entries at this evening.

The coming season should be one of the best and the Executive hope to put on some real attractions. Several of the best Toronto teams have already signified their willingness to visit Peterboro, including the Dominion Champions, (Toronto, Scottish), Ulster United, Willys Overland and All Scots.

Prospects were never brighter and officials, players and supporters can accomplish a great season's success by rallying and working in harmony with one another.

CURLING

DETROIT TOURISTS HERE.

Four rinks of Detroit curlers played afternoon and evening games here yesterday, losing by a total of 24 points as follows:

Peterborough.		Detroit.
T. Brightman Skip	21	N. K. Cornwall Skip 10
D. Davidson Skip	9	J. Craig Skip 13
W. G. Norrow Skip	9	Dr. Duffield Skip 13

And in the evening:

G. H. Giroux Skip	16	Dr. Duffield Skip 7
R. M. Hamilton Skip	13	W. M. McIlroy Skip 12

The visitors left at midnight for Ottawa after a hospitable reception. The Detroit curlers have made friends here during their former visits, and as for "Bill" McIlroy, he probably claims Peterborough as his old home town.

KIWANIANS MET TODAY

MR. FRANK WHITEHOUSE WAS PRESENTED WITH A GOLD MOUNTED CANE — THE ADDRESSES.

The Kiwanis Club held their weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel to-day. Just before the speakers for the day were called upon, Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., on behalf of the members of the Kiwanis Club, presented President Frank Whitehouse with a gold-mounted cane, on the eve of his leaving for overseas within the next few weeks. Mr. Whitehouse replied, expressing his deep appreciation of the gift.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, the first speaker, spoke of the work of lawyers and judges, who are, as Mr. Kerr pointed out, responsible for our "Common Law" and the constitution of our country. During the twenty-six years he has been a member of the profession, he has come to believe that all but a few lawyers are inspired, or rather, they have a lode-star which they follow. Benjamin C. F. Butler paid a tribute to English law and to the members of the profession generally, in speaking, at a banquet, when he said that the laws of the United States came originally from England.

The Common Law is passed by no Parliament or any other group of men but is the gathered wisdom of a thousand years. Mr. Kerr believed that any agreement amongst the nations would in the end come through the work of lawyers and judges.

Earle H. Davison, field secretary of the Boy Scouts' Association, asked for the support of the Kiwanis Club in the work of thoroughly organizing the boys of the city in the Scouts. Mr. Davison was assured that he could depend upon the support and help of the Club.

AGREEMENT BETWEEN VATICAN AND THE GOVT.

Such a Policy is Generally Favored in Rome.

ROME, Jan. 24. — (Canadian Press).—Agreement between the Vatican and the Government is generaly favored here, and the reception of a Cabinet Minister at the Vatican and half mastings of the flag on quirinal in mournings for the Pope and commented upon as significant of such a possibility.

Newspapers express the hope that the next Pope may be one who will put an end to long discord between the church and the Italian Government. Seemingly for that reason, Cardinal Maffi, Archbishop of Pisa, is universally favored by Italians and in virtually all newspapers his name appears at head of the list for the Tiara of St. Peter.

Popolo Rommeo says it is in possession of a secret circular sent out by Premier Bonomi to prefects, urging them to use tact and reserve toward all Cardinals, giving them every facility for making the journey to Rome.

Reeve John Clarke, of Galway, and Reeve Robert Shaw, of Harvey, nominated Reeve Strickland and his election was made unanimous.

BLOOD MARKS IN CAR SLAIN MAN'S BROTHER

Adjourned Inquest Into Death of Delorme Opens.

MONTREAL, Jan. 24.— (Canadian Press.)—The first witness called to-day in the adjourned inquest into the death of Raoul Delorme, the murdered Ottawa student, was Detective Lajoie, who produced a Bayard revolver loaded with six cartridges and a box of 22 cartridges, which he said he had found in the car of Abbe Delorme, half brother of the murdered man. He also produced a 38 Iver Johnson revolver, and he said he had found what appeared to be marks of blood on the cushions of the Abbe's car.

Oscar Haynes, armourer, said he had sold Abbe Delorme an automatic revolver on December 27th last.

Chief of Police Lepage produced a bullet which he said had been given him by Dr. Derome, city autophist. Handed the bullet, Haynes said it fitted exactly the automatic he had sold te Abbe.

Big Insurance.

Evidence of a twenty-five thousand dollar insurance policy taken out by young Delorme was then heard. It was supplied by Theophicle Marot, actuary of the La Sauvegarde Life Insurance Company. He said that arrangements for the policy were made on December 19 and the policy was dated January 2.

Abbe said he would speak to his brother about it when he returned from Ottawa as he wanted the boy to have money.

Witness said that the Abbe came to his office with the student, and application for a $25,000 policy was made out. When he came to talk about payment in event of the policy becoming a claim, witness said he said: "You are young, in your place I would make it payable to my heirs. You can then dispose of it by will or otherwise."

This was done. The company applied for a reassurance at another company. Later he received a 'phone call from Father Delorme asking if the policy was ready, as he wanted to give it as a present to his brother. He secured the policy and handed it to Father Delorme at his house. Young Delorme was present at the time.

WANTED IN STATES ON MURDER CHARGE

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Russell Morrow, a young man who is serving three months imprisonment in Toronto jail, for attempting to blackmail J. B. Cronk, manager of Allen Theatre, some time ago was to-day identified as being wanted in Jackson, Mich., where he was serving fifteen years imprisonment for murder. Circular forwarded to chiefs of police all over continent, said he escaped from jail in Jackson. He was convicted of shooting a sheriff's assistant through the head and when confronted to-day, by Detectives Stewart and Tuft, said, "Yes, I plugged the beggar, but it was in self defence."

APPROXIMATELY.

Pokus—What difference did a couple of nights more or less make in those days?

FUNERAL OF MAXWELL KENNEDY.

The funeral of the late Maxwell D. Kennedy, who died suddenly in Montreal, was held on Wednesday afternoon from the residence of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, Water Street. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Young, of the George Street Church. Touching tributes to the character and ideals of the deceased were paid by several speakers. Rev. A. E. Thomas, of St. James' Church, Montreal, Mr. W. H. Goodwin, head of Goodwins, Limited, and leader of the Bible Class in which Mr. Kennedy was interested in Montreal, Rev. Dr. Orchard, Principal of Trinity College School, Port Hope, and Rev. Dr. Hincks, of Toronto, an intimate friend, all spoke of his earnestness, sincerity and real worth. The words that were spoken, the wealth of floral tributes, and the host of messages of sympathy which came from all parts of the country to the sorrowing parents bore eloquent testimony to the regard in which Maxwell Kennedy was held by all who knew him. From Edmonton came word that the Exchange was being closed for the hour of the service, and expressions of condolence came from far and near. Interment took place in the family lot in Little Lake Cemetery.

HEART WOULD BEAT LIKE A TRIP HAMMER

Heart trouble has of late years become very prevalent. Sometimes a pain catches you in the region of the heart, now and then your heart skips beats, palpitates, throbs, or beats with such rapidity and violence you think it is going to burst.

You have weak and dizzy spells, sinking sensations, are nervous irritable and depressed, and if you attempt to walk up stairs or any distance you get all out of breath.

We know of no remedy that will do so much to make the heart regain strength and vigor, regulate its beat and restore it to a healthy and normal condition as will

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. Chadwick, Delhi, Ont., writes, "I had palpitation of the heart, and the least exercise such as going upstairs or up a hill, my heart would beat like a trip hammer and at times I was dizzy-headed and had a sinking sensation as if my time were near.

A friend suggested I try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I procured three boxes and by the time the first one was used I began to improve. In all I took six boxes, and now, although in my 66th year I feel like a young girl; no dizziness or heart-thumping and can walk miles without fatigue. At time of sickness I weighed 120 pounds, now I weigh 150."

Price, 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by the T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PREVENTION OF DISEASE

DR. N. H. SUTTON ADDRESSED THE PRINCE OF WALES HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION—CORRECTION OF BAD HABITS

THE CARE OF COLDS

The Prince of Wales Home and School Association held a very successful and well-attended open meeting last evening, presided over by Mrs P. H. Neville.

The feature of the programme was the timely and interesting address delivered by Dr. N. H. Sutton, on "Prevention of Disease."

The speaker, in a brief discourse brought out several methods of preventing disease in children. He emphasised particularly the importance of building up their resistance, taking care that they should not contract slight colds, curing minor ailments at their inception, instead of allowing them to gain headway in the system, and paying particular attention to the condition of their throats, were points emphasised by Dr. Sutton, who stressed also the avoidance of mouth-breathing in children. Care of the nose, throat, and mouth, and correction of bad habits in breathing were the important items.

Carriers, said the doctor, were those whose resistance was strong enough to allow them to entirely dislodge the germs from their systems, a statement which upheld the argument that a built-up system would provide sufficient resistance to throw off the disease altogether.

An enjoyable musical programme was afforded by a piano duet by Misses Edna Allin and Olga Johnson, vocal solos by Miss E. Eagleson, Mr. James Browne, and Master Kenneth McCannan, a violin selection by Winnie Evans, and a reading by Mr. M. N. Clark, at the conclusion of which refreshments were served.

THIEF STOLE A $2,000 VIOLIN

SYMPHONY DIRECTOR TWICE A VICTIM OF ROBBER—ENTERED APARTMENT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Rene Pollain, Assistant Director of the New York Symphony Orchestra, whose pocket was picked in the west side subway by a clever thief, returned home last night to find that his apartment had been ransacked. The thief took jewelry belonging to Mrs. Pollain, and made away with the musician's most treasured possession, a very old Nicolo Gagliano violin and several less valuable instruments.

The Pollains occupy a third floor apartment at 1,835 Seventh Avenue near 113th Street. Acompanied by Mrs. Pollain, he started for Morristown for a concert under the auspices of the Morristown Friday Evening Club, and before his subway train had reached the Pennsylvania Station he found that a bundle of letters had disappeared from his drawers had been turned out on the

The musician congragulated himself that the thief had not taken anything of greater value and went on to Morristown. When he and Mrs. Pollain reached home after midnight, they found that the door of their apartment had been jimmied open. In their apartment bureau drawers had ben turned out on the floor, clothing strewn about, and even mattresses and carpets upturned in a systematically thorough search.

Mr. Pollain's first thought was for his best violin, the Gagliona, worth about $2,000, but, as he described it, "worth much more to me". The instrument was gone, with its case, as was a viola, a cumbersome instrument for a thief to carry off, and three valuable violin bogs, a Sartory, a Bernadel and a de Navey. The instrinsic value of the viola was about $1,000, but its sentimental worth Mr. Pollain fixed at ten times that sum.

The thief also took five rings with old settings from Mrs. Pollain's jewel case, a gold watch and other pieces of jewelry. The loss was reported immediately to the police of the West 126rd. Street Station and detectives weer assigned to the case. The police believe that the pickpocket was also the robber of the apartment and had seized the opportunity to loot the place as Mr. Pollain was obviously on his way out of town.

They pointed out that the "lay" for many a robbery is obtained through stolen correspodence. With Mr. Pollains address on the envelopes, the pickpocket evidently went directly to the apartment, where he worked at leisure.

WOMAN FELL 18 STORIES

MRS. F. W. SHERWOOD PLUNGES TO HER DEATH FROM HER ROOM TO ADJOINING ROOF—SUFFERED FINANCIAL LOSS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—Just before noon yesterday, William F. Shanahan Assistant Manager of the Hotel Commodore, received a telephone message from a guest in an upper floor on the north side of the hotel. Mr. Shannon slammed the receiver back on the hook and sprang for the door.

"I just saw a body fall past my window"; and agitated voice had called. "Somebody must have jumped—"

Before he could open the door, the telephone rang again and a guest in a room on the first bedroom floor, so excited as to be hardly able to speak, told the assistant manager that a woman had fallen on the roof of a low building right outside his window.

Mr. Shanahahn raced for te stairs. Behind him the teelphone, unheeded now, rang frantically. He reached the first bedroom floor where a crowd of guests and employees told him the location of the room he sought.

Stopping only to order a bell boy to send for an ambulance and to tell another to summon the police, he went inside the room and crossed to a window. Just without lay the body of a middle-aged woman clad in black. She was huddled on the tile roof of the arcade that leads from Lexington Avenue to the Grand Central Terminal.

Patrolman Quiets Guests.

Patrolman John J. Lynch of the East Fifty-first Street station arrived at about the same time as Dr. H. Brodsky of Flower Hospital. The patrolman helped the doctor get the body inside and then he returned to the hall outside the room to help quiet the guests. Dr. Brodsky pronounced the woman dead.

From Mr. Shanahan, it was learned that it was the guest of the hotel who had been killed. She was a Mrs. F. W. Sherwood of Berkeley Cal., who had been living in Room 1998 at the Commodore since last January. She had stayed at the hotel before, coming there from the Manhattan, after that hotel had been changed to an office building. The Assistant Manager had no idea whether Mrs. Sherwood had jumped from the window or had fallen out. She was clad in a black waist and skirt, but wore neither shoes nor stockings.

The body was taken to the East

POISON PEN FIEND FOUND

SISTER OF TULLE GENDARMERIE CAPTAIN NAMED BY GRAPHOLOGIST AS CITY'S POISON PEN FIEND.

GIRL BBOKE DOWN

PARIS, Jan. 25.—Science has at last revealed to the eyes of the law the person believed to be "Tiger's Eyes", who during the last three years has, through an unceasing campaign of poisoned letters, turned the happy city of Tulle into a shambles of gossip in which the good names of all wives and mothers were slaughtered.

Perhaps the most interesting aspect of the scientific finding is the fact that it coincides with a forecast made last August by a visiting clair voyant, who predicted the arrest of two women, one of whom would be the sister of an official in the prefecture. Yesterday Dr. Locard, a graphologist, attached to the Prefecture of Lyons, named as the writed of the flood of slanderous letters Mlle. Angele Laval. This young woman is a sister of a Captain af the gendarmerie, and it is believed her mother also will be implicated in the writing of the poisoned documents.

This strange coincidence offers a certain amount of vindication of Examining Magistrate Richard, who several weeks ago sought the aid of occultism in the search for the guilty person. It is now known that the Magistrate suspected Mlle Laval and as it was occulistism which had first directed attention toward her, he wished to confirm the evidence through occultism.

The scientific indication of Mlle. Laval's guilt followed an exhaustive examination of the writing in the two hundred poisoned missives and the study of the handwrting of dozens of suspects. The doctor found it almost impossible to secure an undisguised specimen of the young woman's handwriting. It was only after a stormy session lasting several hours, during which Mlle. Laval broke down and wept a number of times, that she was coerced into writing naturally the phrases which had occurred in the letters. After a comparison of this writing with the phrase in the original letters, the expert rendered to the Magistrate a decision in which he declared there was no doubt that Mlle. Laval was the author of the heartless campaign.

The Tulle poison pen mystery, because of its long duration and its dire effects, has occupied the attention of the French people mor than any other internal happening outside of M. Briand's resignation during the last month. The campaign was brought sharply to the attention of the nation last month by the death of an official in the Prefecture followed shortly by the insanity of a second official, the mental derangement of a third and the nervous breakdown of a fourth, all the result of the secret and malicious attacks.

Railways Will Save $50,000,000 As a Result of New Clerk Rules

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Although opposed by the three railroad members of the United States Railroad Labor Board, provision for time and a half pay after nine hours of work was retained in rules governing railway clerks issued by the board, which also authorized an eight-hour day within a spread of twelve hours. The new rules become effective Feb. 1.

The railroad members, and a dissenting opinion, held that punitive overtime within ten hours was "unjust, unfair, unreasonable and burdened the carrier with an uneconomical condition."

It is estimated that the reduction in overtime pay will save the railroads $50,000,000 a year. The decision affects 300,000 clerks, freight handlers and station agents.

The new rules supplant the national agreement under Federal control. This provided time and one-half pay for over eight hours, which the roads contended was particularly burdensome where only intermittent service was required but which extended over eight hours. The "split trick," created by the new rules will remove this objection, it is thought.

The railroad representatives favored straight time for the ninth and tenth hours of work, holding that ten hours service was usually required of many station employes coming under the clerks' rules, and that these employes were formerly paid a monthly rate for all services rendered. With a shorter day than ten hours, they said, the carrier could not "meet the demands of the public with economy and efficiency."

Note of Optimism at Mfrs. Annual Banquet

President W. S. Fisher of Canadian Manufacturers' Association Sees Great Future for Canada in Development of Her Vast Resources—Urges Courage and Fortitude Under Present Depression—Advises Women to Demand Canadian Goods

A somewhat unique and decidedly appropriate feature at the annual banquet of the local branch of the Canadian Mnufacturers' Association in the Empress Hotel, last night, was a presentation to each visitor of souvenir sets of their visit consisting of samples of Peterborough's own products, presented by J. J. Turner for the local manufacturers. And so, as a memento of his visit here, each of the out-of-town guests will carry home with him the following: Smith' bag of flour, manufactured by the Peterborough Cereal Co., Silk Union Jack by J. J. Turner & Sons, roll of wax paper by the Canadian Nashua Gummed and Coated Paper Co., two small paddles by the Peterborough Canoe Co., a watch fob by B. F. Ackerman Son & Co., a novel business card illustrating a watch by the Western Clock Co., steel tape line watch fob by De Laval Co., Limited, set of keys by Peterborough Lock Co., a small blanket by Canadian Woollens Limited. Apart from these President W. S. Fisher of the .M.A., was the exclusive recipient of a huge brass key bearing the inscription "Peterborough" and "Welcome", made by the Peterborough Lock Company.

The occasion was also marked by an excellent menu, irresistibly tempting, and vocal contributions by Messrs. Douglas Carlisle and Maurice Park, while the altogether successful function was graced by the presence of the following Canadian Manufacturers' Associations' executive officials: President W. S. Fisher of St. John's, N.B., General Manager J. E. Walsh of Toronto, J. R. K. Bristol, manager of the Tariff Department and H. D. McDonnell, legal secretary, both also of Toronto. Other out-of-town visitors were, J. McCrae of the McCrae Machinery and Foundry Co., Lindsay; G. Flavelle of Flavelle's Ltd, Lindsay; W. D. Plant of the Hastings Foundry, who could visualize the time when Peterborough would extend as far as Hastings.

The after-dinner speeches by the C.M.A. officials were all comprehensively instructive and illummative in their definition of the organizations functioning in the interests of Canadian trade and industry, collectively ad individually.

President Fisher

Following are a few well-turned phrases in recognition of the local hospitality accorded him in Peterborough. President Fisher eulogized the work of the C.M.A... and its excutive as eminently satisfactory and constructive in the members' interests. He next emphasized Canada's problm in building up a great nation from its scattered units, a problem made more difficult by any of those units lying along the border line of the wealthiest nation on earth. Turning to existing industrial depression the president urged taking a lesson from the broad vision of those railway-building and pastoral pioneers of early Canada, and applying similar courage, fortitude and enterprise as exhibited by them to our own business enterprises of whatever nature. For, he enquired, is there any trade difficulty today which can measure up to the stupendous problems our forefathers battled with. In her fields, forests, mines and seas (inland and coast) Canada he asserted has the sources of wealth for developing a great and prosperous nation, and with the addition to those resources of the busy work shops which have grown and are growing with wonderful rapidity since confederation, he found no room for stressed pessimism regarding an early trade revival or in eventually solving those vexed problems created by scattered centres and connecting transportation over 3,000 miles of country from coast to coast. What we want mainly, he said, is some optimism for our future; and Canadians can afford to indulge in a sane optimism born of confidence in themselves and the vast possibilities of their country, coupled with a spirit of pride in Canadian products and fortitude under present-day trade exigencies In such circumstances he declared there is every reason for optimism both individually and collectively.

For the ladies, President Fisher had a special message, and that is to see that their purchases are Canadin goods. For, he said, it is the women who buy 90 per cent. of the commodities we need, and were they but to insist on Canadian goods, wherever obtainable the problem of keeping the home fires burning and their own factories busy will have been solved. He emphasized the importance of women recognizing in this regard their potentiality for diverting that tide of trade now flowing into the United States back into Canada—into Canadian workshops—and thus finding steady employment for Canadian people, encouraging manufacturers to continue turning out products, and in the near future elimnating all need for government doles or other assistance to a considerable army of unemployed.

After stressing the need also for an adequately balanced country and nation regarding suitable transportation and trade and industrial conditions, the speaker lauded Canadians' ambition that Canada should be the great imperial highway from Britain to the Orient, via Canadian rail, steamers, and ports on the Atlantic and the Pacific. He also advised encouragement of desirable immigration and advised an extension of the glad hand to such immigrants.

In conclusion, the president urged that Canadians strive to develop in their children not only confidence in the possibilities and resources of this country, but also those high ideals which all admire. They should be educated up to a desire for Canada developing into a great nation; and then with unity of purpose, high idealism and that broad vision held by our forefathers there is hardly a limit to progressive achievement by Canadians to which they may not in time aspire and reach.

Manager C. M. A.

J. E. Walsh, general manager of the C. M. A., spoke at length on the scope of the organisation's operations, and its strength; and his treatment of the C. M. A.'s achievements and problems was acceptably exhaustive. To-day, he explained, there are 61 stenographers engaged in the head office and 750 members in Canada working on committees, functioning on many questions affecting the interests of the whole association, such as foreign and domestic trade, and commercial relations, preference within the Empire, the made in Canada policy, etc. The C. M. A., he asserted, is not a combine; it fosters trade, industry, and commerce, and offers its services to manufacturers and exporters

MARY GARDEN IS INDULGENT

"LORD HELP ME FROM BOSSING A TENOR!" HER COMMENT ON READING MURATORE INTERVIEW.

A ZOOLOGICAL IMAGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 25. — The Chicago Opera Company, at the close of its present brief season, will quit New York never to return, according to Mary Garden, director of the company, who has arrived from Chicago.

The enthusiasm for opera in Chicago and in the West has given the Chicago Opera Company a field sufficient in itself and the organization has no need to come to New York any more, Miss Garden explained. She said that hostility between the Chicago Opera Company and the Metropolitan always developed when the Western company invaded this territory, and that the "showing of teeth" by stars and backers of the two companies was absurd. The cordial appreciation her company had experienced in Chicago and in the West now gave the company the financial security which had been lacking, she said.

Miss Garden said she would continue at the head of the company. Talk of dissension and trouble in the company, she said, was all based on trivialities. Miss Garden discussed her rebellious stars in a kindly tone—like an indulgent parent making the best of the shocking behavior of her wicked children.

When a published interview was shown in which Muratore was alleged to have used a figure of speech in which Miss Garden was compared to "a floating frog," she exclaimed:

"A floating frog! Not me! I sink or go to the top; I never float. What a curious simile. Let me see that. Frogs are not very pretty and they make a damn noise when they sing."

She was told that it was the apparent purpose of this zoological image to convey the impression that, as director of the company, she barely had her head above water—the frequent condition of a frog.

"That isn't true, either," Miss Garden said. Reading the purported interview further, she exclaimed:

"O, dear me! It says here that he detests publicity. Isn't it a pity!"

Other despatches from Chicago indicated that Miss Garden was having trouble with Polacco, the conductor, but she said:

"What a lot of talk. Mr. Polacco is a great, great conductor. I have no trouble with him. I have no trouble with anybody — not even with Mr. Muratore. The only time that I have the pleasure of looking on his face is when I am on the stage with him."

The Soprano and the Tenor.

When she was asked if Muratore would sing, she said:

"I don't know. Lord help me from bossing a tenor!"

Dropping that subject, Miss Garden said:

"The Metropolitan Opera Company has been in this city for more than forty years, and is absolutely establisihed. The Chicago Opera Company has been in existence for only ten years. During the early period of its growth it has been supported by the enormous gifts of the McCormicks.

ADVISER TO LATE SULTAN

ABOUL HAMID'S AID IS VISITING IN THE STATES—SEES NO HOPE OF PEACE IN NEAR EAST.

DETROIT, Jan. 25.—Staying in Detroit is a venerable and remarkable man, Dr. Luigi Bari Sabungi, a Syrian, and an unusually vigorous man for his 80 odd years. For 18 years he was an intimate associate of Abdul Hamid, late Sultan of Turkey, being his private secretary and political adviser while also acting as tutor to the Sultan's eldest son. In the affairs of the Near East he has, in the last half century, played a conspicuous part. He first visited this country in 1872, when he was collecting material for a religious painting which he displays and utilizes in connection with lectures on religious subjects. The painting is 14 x 8 feet, contains some 666 figures and constitutes a pictorial religious history of the world. It was designed by Dr. Sabungi, and required seven years to complete by several noted painters.

"On my first visit to this country I met Horace Greeley," he said. "In getting material for the picture I went to Salt Lake City and became well acquainted with Brigham Young. Of all the men I have met I consider him the greatest as a religious leader.

"In politics the greatest man I ever met was Abdul Hamid. The world was against him, he was hated and mistrusted and he knew it, yet he kept Europe from uniting against him for 32 years; he prevented the Balkan States from reaching any mutual agreement; he retained his hold in Europe, and despite overwhelming odds, held together a nation made up of an amazing diversity of jealous, warring races.

"No Peace With Turks."

"I have conducted seven newspapers at various places through the Turkish Empire, in Turkish, Arabic and English. I have gone through eight massacres.

"Abdul Hamid in private life was a gentleman, good hearted, exceedingly polite, grateful of the slightest kindness. He was fond of Americans, and his relation with ambassadors from this country was invariably intimate. He considered the British his bitterest enemy, and he detested their statesmen for having, by alleged false pretenses, secured from him Egypt and Cyprus. Early in his sultancy he abolished capital punishment.

"As long as there is Turkish rule in Eastern Europe there will never be peace either there or in Asia. The Turks in Asia Minor can not form a substantial nation because the country is inhabited by different races always hostile to each other, besides scarcely 5 per cent. can read and write. Turkey brought upon itself partition.

"Syria stands little chance of worrying the world with its troubles. The inhabitants are so diverse, so hostile and suspicious of one another that united action for any end is impossible. The history of the country shows that home rule never existed. Jews, Assyrians, Babylonians, Greeks, Romans, Arabs, Turks and French have alternated as the dominant political force.

CHICAGO CRIME WAVE.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25. — (Canadian Press). — Chicago showed its first serious wave of crime for 1922 last night. Four negro bandits invaded the drug store of E. L. Two jewellery stores were burglarized, twenty-eight hold-ups occurred and more than a score of minor crimes were committed. In all cases the perpetrators escaped.

RUM-RUNNING CASE.

BOSTON, January 25 (Canadian Press). — The defence in the case of five men charged with landing illicit liquors at Plymouth and Boston from the former Canadian fishing schooner Golden West rested to-day.

Tony Carbone, of Plymouth, one of the defendants, was the last witness. He said the liquor seized at Plymouth as part of the lot landed there was the remnant of the stick of a liquor store which he had operated in pre-Prohibition days.

Carbone accounted for the fact that he was on the dock at St. Pierre, Miquelon, when the Golden West took on her cargo of alcohol, and preceded her in arrival at this port, by saying that he was working at St. Pierre for a man who owned the cargo, but several days after the schooner left, decided that he wanted to return to his Plymouth home for Christmas.

STEAMER UNDER GUARD.

NEWPORT, R.I., January 25 (Canadian Press). —The British steamer Harbinger, liquor-laden, arrived here to-day under convoy of the Coastguard cutter Acushnet. She has made several stops at United States ports, although her manifest shows her cargo consigned from St. John, N.B., to the Bahamas, and has been under official surveillance constantly.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND
BY "SAPPER"
(CYRIL McNEILE)

IV

"Walk right in Mr. Green," said Hugh, as, three hours later, they got out of a taxi in Half Moon Street. "This is my little rabbit-hutch."

He followed the American up the stairs, and produced his latchkey. But before he could even insert it in the hole the door was flung open, and Peter Darrell stood facing him with evident relief in his face.

"Thank the Lord you've come, old son," he cried, with a brief look at the detective. "There's something doing down at Godalming I don't like."

He followed Hugh into the sitting-room.

"At twelve o'clock to-day Toby rang up. He was talking quite ordinarily—you know the sort of rot he usually gets off his chest—when suddenly he stopped quite short and said, 'My God! What do you want?' I could tell he'd looked up, because his voice was muffled. Then there was the sound of a scuffle, I heard Toby curse, then nothing more. I rang and rang and rang—no answer."

"What did you do?" Drummond, with a letter in his hand which he had taken off the mantelpiece, was listening grimly.

"Algy was here. He motored straight off to see if he could find out what was wrong. I stopped here to tell you."

"Anything through from him?"

"Not a word. There's foul play, or I'll eat my hat."

But Hugh did not answer. With a look on his face which even Peter had never seen before, he was reading the letter. It was short and to the point, but he read it three times before he spoke.

"When did this come?" he asked.

"An hour ago," answered the other. "I very nearly opened it."

"Read it," said Hugh. He handed it to Peter and went to the door.

"Denny," he shouted, "I want my car round at once." Then he came back into the room. "If they've hurt one hair of her head," he said, his voice full of a smouldering fury, "I'll murder that gang one by one with my bare hands."

"Say, Captain, may I see this letter?" said the American; and Hugh nodded.

"'For pity's sake, come at once,'" read the detective aloud. "'The bearer of this is trustworthy.'" He thoughtfully picked his teeth. "Girl's writing. Do you know her?"

"My fiancee," said Hugh shortly.

"Certain?" snapped the American.

"Certain!" cried Hugh. "Of course I am. I know every curl of every letter."

"There is such a thing as forgery," remarked the detective dispassionately.

"Damn it, man," exploded Hugh; "do you imagine I don't know my own girl's writing?"

"A good many bank cashiers have mistaken their customers' writing before now," said the other, unmoved. "I don't like it, Captain. A girl in real trouble wouldn't put in that bit about the bearer."

"You go to hell," remarked Hugh briefly. "I'm going to Godalming."

"Well," drawled the American, "not knowing Godalming, I don't know who scores. But, if you go there—I come too."

"And me," said Peter, brightening up.

Hugh grinned.

"Not you, old son. If Mr. Green will come, I'll be delighted; but I want you here at headquarters."

He turned round as his servant put his head in at the door.

"Car here, sir. Do you want a bag packed?"

"No—only my revolver. Are you ready, Mr. Green?"

"Sure thing," said the American. "I always am."

"Then we'll move." And Peter, watching the car resignedly from the window, saw the American grip his seat with both hands, and then raise them suddenly in silent prayer, while an elderly charlady fled with a scream to the safety of the area below.

They did the trip in well under the hour, and the detective got out of the car with a faint sigh of relief.

"You've missed your vocation, Captain," he murmured. "If you pushed a bath-chair it would be safer for all parties. I bolted two bits of gum in that excursion."

But Drummond was already out of earshot, dodging rapidly through the bushes on his way to The Larches; and when the American finally overtook him, he was standing by a side-door knocking hard on the panels.

"Seems kind of empty," said the detective thoughtfully, as the minutes went by and no one came. "Why not try the front door?"

"Because it's in sight of the other house," said Hugh briefly. "I'm going to break in."

LITTLE WANT ADS.

At this time of the year, there are any number of things that are badly needed, either by the man or woman.

These things can be done without, but the Summer is going to be not quite so happy without them, and they need not cost you nearly as much as you think, if you only use the Want Ads. to get them.

So many people lose a vast amount of pleasure simply because they have never learned the value of a simple little appeal to the Examiner Want Ad. Column. Don't let this bright month of June go by without satisfying little extra Summer wants through the Want Ads.

DEFEAT OF CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL LOSS TO DUMMER

Public School Inspector Lees Gives Details of Government Grants That Would Have Been Available — Offered Higher Education to Children of Warsaw District.

Report to County Council.

In his annual report to the County Council at the opening session on Tuesday afternoon, Public School Inspector Richard Lees explained minutely the circumstances surrounding the Dummer Consolidated School vote, and also made a recommendation that a comprehensive report on the school affairs of the county be published and widely distributed.

The report follows:

I beg respectfully to submit the following report on the schools of the inspectorate of Peterborough East for the year 1921.

During the year there were in operation 70 rural schools with 71 teachers, 3 village schools with 16 teachers and one suburban school with 7 teachers, making a total of 94 teachers. In the performance of my duties I made 223 half-day visits and attended 8 public meetings called for various purposes. All the schools were visited at least twice with the exception of No. 5, Chandos, which was closed for a part of the year. Of the 70 rural schools 7 were open for less than the full school year.

Pedagogical Features.

The qualifications of teachers in December last was as follows:

Asphodel—Second class, 5; district, 1; temporary, 1.

Belmont and Methuen—Second, 3; third, 4; district, 2; temporary, 6.

Burleigh and Anstruther—District, 4; temporary, 2.

Chandos—Third, 4; district, 1; temporary, 3.

Douro—First, 1; second, 7; third, 2; no certificate, 1.

Dummer—Second, 4; temporary, 3; no certificate, 1.

Otonabee—Second, 12; third, 2.

In the township of North Monaghan and the villages all the teachers hold second-class certificates.

As compared with last year, this shows a decrease of temporary certificates from 17 to 15, which is not very encouraging when account is taken of the fact that there were 11 in 1917 when teachers were very much scarcer and harder to get than last year. There seems little doubt but that teachers with some professional training could have been secured for all the schools last midsummer had trustees gone about it in good time and in a proper manner.

Salaries Increased.

Salaries have been very greatly increased, thanks largely to the liberal grants that have been paid and to the mode of distribution that has tended to encourage higher salaries. The salaries paid rural school teachers have now reached a standard that has been advocated for some time by those that believed the remuneration of Public School teachers has always been too low to secure competent and efficient service. With the higher salaries, the larger number entering the teaching profession and the tendency to longer terms of service that will result, there should be no difficulty for trustees who are alert and anxious to secure trained teachers.

New Act Fruiting.

The School Attendance Act has now been in force for two years and should be beginning to bear fruit. I am pleased to report that several of the attendance officers are taking their duties seriously and are earnest and zealous in the performance of their duties. A careful consideration of the returns shows an increase in the average attendance for last year over the previous year in all the townships except Asphodel. That increase varies from about 2 per cent. in Belmont and North Monaghan to about 12 per cent. in Dummer. But attendance depends to so large an extent on local conditions that it is difficult to estimate how much of this is due to the operation of the School Attendance Act. I have no doubt though that it is having a beneficial effect, which will increase as time goes on Committee Had Latitude.

Reeve Coughlin gave the following review of the committee's work last year together with a few recommendations as follows:

"In the first place, your board appreciate the latitude given by the 1921 Council to provide for general improvements.

"We visited the institution the statutory number of times and endeavoured not only to look after the general conduct of affairs, but also to carry into effect the improvements that were suggested by the Council. The sleeping apartments for men had become congested, and in order properly to provide for additional room, the heating had to be extended, and acting on the report of the boiler inspector, we had considerable repairs made to the boiler.

"As pointed out by the Provincial inspector, the House is kept in a very satisfactory manner.

"Following the inspector's report, we decidedly concur with him in referring to the satisfactory manner in which T. Jewell carried out his contract re painting, and we would say that, although his tender was very little over half of the next lowest tender, the work and material are entirely satisfactory. We would suggest that the bottom flat and the upper flat be painted during the winter months when much lower prices can be obtained when all outside painting is at a standstill.

"We are pleased to report that the old people are apparently happy and have all necessary comfort supplied.

"As the inmates grow older the duties that devolve upon the Matron increase, and it will be necessary to provide help as the occasion requires. Conditions in general reflect great credit on Superintendent and Matron.

"The stock with regard to condition is an evidence of constant care."

THE WEATHER

Last night's lowest temperature was 21 degrees below zero, and at daybreak this Wednesday morning it was still 20 degrees below. This is the third cold day in succession. On Monday we had it 10 below; Tuesday 11 below, and Wednesday 21 below.—W. P.

J. C. STRICKLAND, LAKEFIELD REEVE, THE NEW WARDEN.

Elected By Acclamation at the Opening of the January Session of the County Council—Nominated By Veteran Members.

Reeve J. F. Strickland of Lakefield was elected Warden of the county by acclamation at the opening of the present sessions of the County Council on Tuesday afternoon.

In nominating him, Reeve John Clarke of Galway said that Lakefield had not had a Warden for more than thirty years, and in Reeve Strickland they had a representative who was fully qualified for the position. 'I feel sure he will fill that position with due honour," said Mr. Clarke.

Reeve Robert Shaw of Harvey seconded this nomination, also paying Mr. Strickland a neat tribute upon his work in the County Council, and referring to the esteem in which he was held by his colleagues.

No other name was proposed, the Council according Reeve Strickland the further honour of making his election to the Wardenship uncontested and unanimous.

After the usual brief ceremony, including the taking of the declaration of office, Warden Strickland assumed his new position, thanked the mover and seconder of his nomination and the other members of the Council for the honour they had conferred on him, and stated that to the best of his ability he would endeavour to prove himself worthy of their confidence.

"There is not much chance of me going far wrong with so many experienced Councillors around me. I shall need your assistance and I hope that I will receive your heartiest co-operation."

Warden Strickland has earned the preference given him by the County Council, not only by the extent of his experience as a member, but also by his ability and his serious discharge of his duties in the ranks. Several other Councillors had been mentioned for the Wardenship this year, particularly Reeve Eason of Otonabee and Reeve Clark, and it is a special compliment to Warden Strickland that he was elected by acclamation.

The County Council has a little custom which indicates men's natural propensity for ceremonial. Upon the Clerk announcing the result of the election, the new Warden retires to an ante-chamber, accompanied by his proposers, signs the declaration papers of his office, and returns gowned to assume the Warden's chair. This is perhaps a reflection of the good old English formality and the recognition of the real import of municipal honours and responsibility as shown by the robes and other insignia worn by mayors in the Old Country. It is betraying no secret to mention that in following that tradition the County Council contents itself with a robe that looks very much like a lawyer's gown, and a guess may be hazarded that it is the property of E. A. Peck, County Solicitor. It serves as a symbol, and if it does happen to be a lawyer's gown, it loses none of its significance thereby. It might very well be velvet and ermine to represent adequately the Wardenship of this county. But without elaborating this idea, the new Warden usually wears the black gown during the opening session. Warden Strickland, however, after his address of thanks to the Council remarked that he would feel more comfortable with it off, and suited the word with the action of removing it. The gesture was quite evidently a concession to comfort and not to any particular democratic impulse.

SIXTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF MR. AND MRS. PEARCE

Mr. J. B. Pearce Has Been Associated With Social and Business Life of Norwood For Many Years—Active in Public Affairs.

Enjoys Good Health.

Today Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pearce of Norwood are celebrating the 60th anniversary of their wedding day.

Mr. Pearce was born in Norwood on March 16th, 1840, and has lived there ever since, having been associated with the social and business life of the community for the last 82 years.

He was for fifteen years bailiff of the Second Division Court, operated the Norwood Foundry and Machine Shop and carried on a general store business for many years, and was also interested in marketing square timber and lumber for the Quebec market, having been president for thirty years of the Pearce Company of Marmora, a sash and door factory, employing forty hands.

Mr. Pearce was appointed postmaster at Norwood in 1886, filling the office for 35 consecutive years, with his son as his present successor.

The First Reeve.

He was the first reeve elected in Norwood in 1878, and for 26 years represented Norwood in the County Council.

He has held the post of warden, the census commissioner for East Peterborough, of trustee for the Norwood High and Public Schools, was director of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society for fifty years and president of the East Peterborough Liberal-Conservative Association for twenty years. Mr. Pearce in his time declined, on account of business, three unanimous Conservative nominations to the House of Commons.

Mr. Pearce is still strong and hearty, and takes an interest in the business and social affairs of his native town. Mrs. Pearce, formerly Lois Ann Dafoe of Richmond, Lennox County, at the age of eighty-one years, is almost as active as ever.

Although it was not deemed advisable by the family to hold a big celebration on the occasion of their diamond jubilee, the festivities today being simply an informal reception to friends and relatives desirous of paying their respects to the old people, who were married on January 25th, 1862.

Five children of Mr. and Mrs. Pearce are still living—Mrs. W. A. F. Campbell, of Port Hope; the Misses Blanche and Helen, of Norwood; Charles P. Pearce, of Turnbull Cove, B. C., and Jos. F. Pearce, of Norwood. Their youngest son, Russel Soerry Pearce, served in the South African War, and was killed in the Great War in France, December 27, 1915.

BELGIUM AT CONFERENCE.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press.)—Premier Theunys, answering an interpellation in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday regarding the Genoa Conference, said Belgium must be represented there even if the Conference had only one chance in a hundred for success. This was necessary, he declared, because Belgian prosperity was not dependent solely upon German reparations payments, which would reimburse Belguim for only one-fifth of her reparations expenditure, but upon general prosperity.

INVESTIGATE ALL GOVERNMENT WORK.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 25.—(By Canadian Press—No action has yet been taken by the government toward ordering the commencement of work on certain contracts, awarded by the late government, and on which instructions were issued either not to commence or to stop work, where such was already under way. Among these were the contracts for the construction of an ice breaker at the Vickers Yards in Montreal, and the building of drydocks at Vancouver, B.C. Investigations are understood to be under way by the public works department as to the advisability and necessity of preceding with the drydock contracts at the present time and under present conditions. Until these investigations are reported no work is to be done.

In regard to the ice breaker contract, regarding which a reputation from Montreal met the minister of labor this morning, it is understood that the Montreal man were informed that the government dd not intend at present ordering the contract to be proceeded with as a means of combatting unemployment. The matter of unemployment relief, it was stated, was being cared for separately and this and other contracts were being reviewed before there was any decision as to whether or not work on the was to be allowed to proceed.

ELECTION OF A NEW POPE

Cardinals Agree That the Next Pope Should Be An Italian — The Coming Conclave.

WASHINGTON, January 25 (Canadian Press). — As a result of the death of Cardinal Almaraz y Santos, Archbishop of Toledo, Spain, which occurred one day after the death of the Pope, it was said here to-day that the Non-Italian cardinals who will enter the next conclave will be reduced to 29 as against 31 Italians.

It is considered probable here that Cardinal O'Connell, who is said to belong to the group supporting the election of Cardinal Merry Del Val, will not arrive before the proclamation of the new Pope, nor will Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, who is said to be one of the group supporting the election of Cardinal Gasparri.

Other cardinals who, it is believed now, probably will not participate in the opening of the conclave, are Begin, Archbishop of Quebec, Cav-

ACTIVITIES NEW LEAGUE

An "Irish Olympaid" Will Be Held in Dublin Next August — Yesterday's Meeting.

PARIS, Jan. 25. — (Canadian Press.)—An "Irish Olympied" will be held in Dublin next August, following the Irish Horse Show, under the auspices of the International Irish League, organization of which was decided upon at yesterday's session of the World Congress of the Irish Race.

This will be the first manifestation of the activities of this new organization for advancing the interests of Ireland and the Irish race abroad. Details of other features of the League has also been decided to be fixed at subsequent meetings of the Congress here, but it is announced that a triennial conclave of the League has also eben decided upon and that the first conclave will be held in Dublin in 1925.

The second day's session of the Congress was devoted entirely to practical questions.

Yesterday afternoon the Congress approved a request to the Irish Government for permission to institute in Ireland, through the international organization, a permanent memorial of the good will of the Irish abroad. It was suggested this memorial take the form of establishing in each county of Ireland a technical institute supplemented by gifts to Irish universities and laboratories.

The League will revive the custom of observing an "Old Home Town Week," among the Irish in foreign countries.

It was decided to recommend to the Irish Government that the Government itself undertake to organize and manage Irish participation in all foreign industrial exhibitions.

The delegates indicated that they had great expectations of the Olympied decided upon for next summer in Dublin. Eamon De Valera is particularly interested in this branch of the work, as he has always taken a prominent part in the organization of athletics in Ireland.

The social features of the Congress have been brilliant affairs. An Irish concert held here filled the festal hall at the principal hotel where the Congress meets while Mr. De Valera, Countess Merkievicz, Miss Mary MacSwiney and others of the leading delegates held a largely attended reception here last evening.

NORTHCLIFFE REVIEWS THE CONDITIONS

Shocked at the Change of Demeanor and Acts Towards the Whites in India — Makes Suggestions.

Recognize the Sultan.

BOMBAY, Jan. 25. — (Canadian Press).—Lord Northcliffe, the British newspaper publisher, gave Reuter's to-day an analysis of the situation in India, after an examination lasting ten days, which he says he believe approximately represents the views of the Government and the leading newspaper publicists of India.

"Returning to India after 25 years absence," said Lord Northcliffe in his analysis, "I am shocked at the change of demeanor and sets toward the whites by both Hindus and Mahammedans, especially those of them who formerly were most friendly. For the first time in Indian history they are acting in close combination. I interrogated more than 100 Moslems of every class and sect and they are unanimous."

Lord Northcliffe enumerated the various districts he had visited, and said that in all of them, as well as in the Dutch Indies, the attitude of the Moslems was one of sullen silence or outspoken hostility. He said one distinguished loyal Mohammedan judge told him the most dangerous sign was that women were becoming infected with anti-British poison, adding that all students of Islam knew what that meant. Lord Nortcliffe, noting the large number of Indians wearing white caps, denoting their aherence to the principles of M. K. Gandhi, the Non-Cooperationist leader, said:

Demand Arrest Gandhi

"The loyal Mohammedans demand the instant arrest of Gandhi, saying this would prevent extremist outbreaks. But peace cannot be assured until the Moslem question is adjusted. The Moslems bitterly resent our attitude, after having caused Moslem to fight Moslem to Mesopotamia. The recent loan to Greece is especially resented".

Lord Northcliffe explained the demands of the moderate Moslems substantially as follows:

All Moslem countries intensely

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 25TH, 1922.

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW WARDEN.

The election of Reeve J. C. Strickland of Lakefield as Warden of Peterborough County is an event upon which Mr. Strickland himself, the village of Lakefield and the county are equally to be congratulated. The unanimous selection of Reeve Strickland is an occasion of historic importance inasmuch as he is the first Lakefield man in thirty years to preside over the deliberations of the County Council. If his ability to discharge the duties of his responsible position, there is not the slightest doubt. Mr. Strickland has in his own municipality proved an energetic and conscientious Reeve, who has enjoyed the respect and good-will of his fellow citizens in an unusual degree. As a member of the County Council, he has been equally successful, and his selection yesterday is a testimony to the manner in which he has discharged his responsibilities in connection with the county government. He should prove of splendid public service as Warden this year, and the work of the county body with Mr. Strickland at the helm will be watched with interest.

A CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION.

The conference between the Board of Health and the Board of Education on Monday night has resulted in the adoption of one of the suggestions advocated by The Examiner as a means of dealing with the outbreak of contagious diseases, the instituting of a campaign of education for the benefit of the public. Literature in regard to scarlet fever and diphtheria will be distributed, and the press will also be used to lay the facts before the people. Undoubtedly much can be accomplished by such an effort. There is considerable ignorance on the part of many people in regard to contagious diseases. They fail to recognize the danger and defer calling in medical aid until it is almost too late to save the patient. In less serious cases they do not notify the authorities at all, averting the inconvenience of being quarantined and, at the same time, constituting themselves a source of danger to the community. The educational campaign that is to be followed will draw the attention of the public to these and other important facts and will emphasize the absolute necessity for the sake of the general health of rigidly carrying out the spirit as well to the letter of the quarantine regulations. The advice of the health authorities should not be lightly disregarded. The conditions are such as to require the co-operation of the citizens generally in the work of stamping out these dangerous diseases.

THE PATRONAGE EVIL.

Hon. Edmund Bristol, who was Minister without Portfolio in the late Government, is reported to have advocated at a rally of Conservatives in Toronto the other day a return to the patronage system in the matter of political appointments and the abolition of the present method by which such appointments are made by the Civic Service Commission. Mr. Bristol is taken to task by the staunchly Conservative Ottawa Journal, which declares that "no greater mistake could be made by the Conservative party, or any party, than to commit itself to Mr. Bristol's idea." The Examiner heartily agrees with that statement. There is no desire on the part of any body, except a few politicians and a few job-hunting camp followers, to see Canada return to the old game of patronage, which allowed the private member to select from the friends who helped to elect him the men to carry on the work of the civil service. Usually the ability of the man or his fitness for the position to which he was being appointed was the last thing to be considered. He was measured by the yard stick of party loyalty and never viewed in the light of his ability to discharge the duties for which he was selected. Any system of promotion was unable to function with such a policy in force. There was nothing for the civil servant to look forward to; possibly he might serve half his life as a deputy postmaster, for instance, and then find a political stalwart with no experience whatever brought in to fill a vacancy that in any other business would have been looked after by the promotion of the deputy. Mr. Bristol's ideas are out of joint with the times; theories such as he advocates will not help to restore his own prestige or add to the strength of the party of which he is a member.

THE CITY MANAGER PLAN.

There may be various opinions as to the best method of civic government, although there is a general tendency to condemn the system under which Peterborough is governed as antiquated and unsound. The city manager plan is one substitute for the existing system that now and then is brought to the attention of the public, and it affords a good deal of food for thought. Woodstock, N. B., is one place that has gone further than discussing the question. For several years Woodstock's public affairs have been under the control of a manager, and although the New Brunswick town is the smallest centre to try the experiment, the results have been gratifying. According to The Carleton Sentinel, a summary of the business for the year shows improvement in the showing of each department, and the town manager, R. F. Armstrong, is able to announce a credit balance of $8,421, which is an unusual feat in municipal financing. The views of Mayor Mair are of interest. He says:

"I spent two years at this board under the old conditions. I have followed the affairs of the town very closely this year, and I am thoroughly convinced that the town of Woodstock has been losing annually from $2,500 to $4,000 in uncollected taxes and water rates. It was no uncommon thing to carry over a defaulters' list of $3,500 to $4,000 and re-assess the second time the man that had already paid. Year after year bonds were issued for $1,000 and $2,000 to cover payments that should have been paid out of current revenue. The showing made by our manager, both last year, but particularly this year, in the face of adverse conditions, is conclusive proof that the system is right. I feel that had we adopted the manager system years ago, the town of Woodstock would have been many thousands of dollars better off."

THE CURE FOR EUROPE'S ILLS.

Lloyd George has crowned his efforts in the cause of world peace, for which he has labored doggedly and assiduously since the Armistice, by blunt and straightforward speech. At a great mass-meeting of his political followers held in London he dealt with the economic conditions of Europe in terms of its fundamentals—peace and stability.

Without peace it is love's labor lost to talk economics, was the gist of his appeal. Hundreds of experts have propounded financial schemes and put forward credit plans, but the men of commerce for whom they were projected have not seized upon them with that enthusiasm which is a basic condition of their success.

"Schemes may expedite and schemes may facilitate," said the British Premier, "but without peace every scheme must fail."

How urgent is the need for peace is indicated in the few black strokes with which Lloyd George outlined existing conditions. In Britain today there are more than two million unemployed, while in the United States there are many more. Yet the need for goods was never greater than it is today. Goods cannot be sold and men cannot be employed in manufacturing them unless there is a restoration of international confidence and there can be no confidence between nations while rumors of war persist.

Lloyd George was not exaggerating the position when he declared that the burdens of Europe will grow greater than the nations can bear and bankruptcy will stare the world in the face, unless action is taken not only by one single Power, not by an alliance of Powers, nor by the Supreme Council, but by the joint and mutual operation of all the Powers.

* * * *

How is this co-operation to be achieved? After three years of effort in which every avenue that might lead to stability has been explored, the British Premier finds that the only way lies in bringing the nations to the test of reason and not of force. Britain tried the settlement-by-force policy in Russia and entrenched Lenin and Trotzky, enemies of good government and order, more strongly in the saddle. Europe was loth to abandon the methods which had ruled in her councils for centuries and hampered the work at Paris and distorted democracy into strange images in the Treaty of Versailles by the bargaining of the statesmen, the secret pacts of the Cabals.

Yet Versailles, through the positive injustice of some of its clauses and the impossibility of enforcing others, brought about the remedy for the disease which it had itself perpetuated. Economic experts, boundary commissions and the like were a natural corollary of the Versailles Treaty and in turn they paved the way for the larger conferences. The insistent, continued calls for meetings in Paris and London blazed the trail for Washington and emphasized the importance of Genoa.

M. Poincare on the day following his accession to the Premiership announced that there must be a final meeting of the Supreme Council and that after that the foreign policy of France would be conducted in the channels of pre-war days. It is with France rather than with his Liberal followers that Lloyd George pleads when he says:

"There are those who want to go back to the old days of diplomatic notes and exchanges, and they say, 'Let us get rid of conferences. Let us interchange dispatches and letters.' What follows? Each party states his own point of view, and instead of bringing the parties together it too often hardens them in their convictions. You cannot have it out with a letter. You cannot argue with a dispatch. You cannot reason with a diplomatic message. Come face to face and I have profound belief in the ultimate reason of man."—Montreal Star.

THE ROOT OF EUROPE'S DISEASE.

London Daily Chronicle: You cannot separate armaments and general policy from the problems of restoring European solvency. It is not only that armaments are one of the chief causes of insolvency, but there is also another reason that applies more specifically to us and France. How could we (for example) make financial arrangements for the benefit of France if there were any reason to think that some of this advantage might rebound on us in the form of naval insecurity from submarines, or on Italy, whose formula has been equality with France at sea? On the other hand, a France ready to disarm and to co-operate in a genuine peace policy in Europe might have anything else in reason added to her.

THE LIGHTLY TAXED HUN.

London Daily Mail: The real secret of the trouble is that the clause in the Versailles Treaty has never been enforced which lays down that "the German scheme of taxation is to be fully as heavy proportionately as that of any of the Allied Powers." If it had been, we should not have had the exchange chaos, and two million unemployed would not be walking the streets here because the produce of British labor is undersold by unfair German competition. Our income tax—not the German one—would be cut in half because the people who made the war would be made to pay as they should for the enormous damage and misery which they caused.

CROP REPORT

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Reports concerning fall wheat from Elgin, Welland, Bruce, North Simcoe, Peel, Halton, Dundas, Victoria and Kenora are to the effect that as far as can be judged at this time the condition of the crop is all that could be desired.

Hay is being purchased in small quantities in Welland at $20 a ton.

Clover seed is selling in Elgin at from $10 to $12 a bushel.

Victoria says that a number of enquiries have been received regarding Huban sweet clover. A local farmer in that county has some Grimm alfalfa seed of good quality for sale.

Farmers applying for help to representatives are offering considerably smaller rates of wages than those prevailing in recent years.

North Simcoe states that farmers with silos report that live stock never looked better, owing largely to the excellent quality of the ensilage this season.

Kenora says: "The live stock situation is practically at a stand-still; the stock is being fed mostly on roughage, while a few farmers are purchasing re-cleaned screening from the Terminal Elevators. Where this has been fed to dairy cattle the farmer reports an increase of two pounds of butter a week from three head of cattle."

The demand for milk in the county of Dundas has been falling off. The condensery at Chesterville is now taking in only a comparatively small quantity, and Montreal appears to be over-supplied.

Fort William has the following to say regarding dairy winter conditions in that district: "The milk flow is keeping up remarkably well this winter, and the supply is somewhat greater than the demand. The farmers are now receiving 20c per gal. for milk, $1.20 per gal. for coffee cream, $1.85 per gal. for whipping cream. The Crescent Creamery Co. of Port Arthur are offering 40c per lb. butter fat for sweet cream, 33c per lb. butter fat for No. 1 sour cream and 31½c per lb. butter fat for No. 2 sour cream."

Bruce says: "A few car-loads of bacon type hogs were loaded this week at $10.50 f.o.b. generally. They were fed too long, and were too heavy for market demands. Had they been marketed a month ago, considerable numbers of them would have made excellent bacon."

Victoria is of the opinion that there will be sufficient feed with most farmers to run live stock through to the grass, although a few are short.

Welland has the following to say on the subject of feed: "A large majority of the farmers are purchasing mill feeds and coarse grain. As a rule, they have sufficient rough feed on hand, but lack sufficient grain and concentrates. Corn is being brought in in car-load lots and selling around 70c per bushel."

Farmers up north are not averse to cold weather, judging from the following from the Kenora representative: "The thermometer has been registering around 10 below zero of late, with a result that the lakes and rivers are sufficiently frozen for heavy teaming, with a result that several farmers are now in the bush with their teams."

MARKET FOR EGGS

OTTAWA, January 25. Canadian Press. — The market is slightly steadier and firmer for fresh but is weaker for storage. Receipts of the fresh are increasing but the consumption is much better at the lower prices. The United States markets are firmer for fresh but the storage situation is very dull and weak.

Futures storage packed April delivery at Chicago, were offered yesterday at 23c.

Toronto, fresh, firm and unchanged; storage lower; extras 35c; firsts 32c; seconds 25c. Poultry dull and featureless.

Montreal, firm for specials at 50c to 52c; States fresh 45c. Sales of fresh reported at 47c f.o.b. Ontario country points.

Western markets remained unchanged.

I'm So Tired

Fatigue is the result of poisons in the blood. So when the kidneys fail to purify the blood one of the first indications is unusual and persistent tired feelings and pains in the back.

Neglected kidney troubles lead to years of suffering from rheumatism or develop into such fatal ailments as Bright's disease.

The kidney action is promptly corrected by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills — the best known regulator of kidneys, liver and bowels.

Mrs. John Ireland, R.R. No. 2, King, Ont., writes:

alcanti, Archbishop of Rio de Janeiro, and Prisco, Archbishop of Naples. In such an event there will be but 55 cardinals present at the conclave on 2nd February.

It is expected that on the first ballots the votes will be dispersed so that no one will even approach the two-thirds vote of 36 required. The first ballot, it was said to-day, would certainly show votes for Gasparri, De Lai, Pompilj, La Fontaine, Boggiani, Lualdi, Ma , Merry Del Val, and Mercier.

The Second Ballot.

The second ballot, however, it was added, would probably reveal the two strongest candidates, although neither perhaps would approach the prescribed two-thirds. If the necessary vote is not received by a candidate on the third or fourth ballot, it is most likely that at the fifth ballot, on the morning of 4th February, the majority of the Sacred College will agree on a candidate outside of those who have received insufficient votes in the two previous days.

Should this prove to be the case, a week from Saturday, shortly before noon, throughout the thousand rooms of the Vatican the cry will ring out of: 'Habemus Pontificem."

The assertion was made here today that any impression that a kind of rivalry exists between the Italian and the so-called foreign cardinals over the selection of a Pope of Italian or non-Italian origin was mistaken. Most of the foreign cardinals agree on the advisability that the next Pope should be an Italian, because of tradition. (Only 48 Popes were foreigners out of 260, because the seat of the Papacy is in Italy. When it was in Avignon, the Popes were French; and because of the neutrality which the Italians succeeded in maintaining in the most momentous periods in the history of the Papacy.)

The coming conclave is an example of the difficulty of electing a Pope from outside Italy. The most popular foreign candidate now, it is considered, will be Cardinal Mercier, but he is expected here to receive at the outside only the votes of the five French cardinals, two English, two Poles, one Canadian, one Portuguese, one Czecho-Slovak, and perhaps half the Italians, making a total of less than 28 votes, insufficient to be elected.

This figure probably could not be augmented, it is said, as the cardinals of Germany, Austria, Hungary, Spain, Holland, and at least half of Italy, who have not sympathised with the attitude of the Belgian member of the Sacred College during the war, would not vote for him.

The only possibility of returning now, after several centuries, to a non-Italian Pope, it is believed, lies in the selection of Cardinal Merry Del Val, who, because of his long sojourn in Rome, is considered as an Italian. Yet, his election is considered improbable.

LIVER TROUBLE

BAD BILIOUS ATTACKS

When your liver becomes sluggish and inactive your whole health suffers. Your bowels become constipated, the tongue coated, the breath bad, the stomach foul and sick, and bilious spells occur on account of the liver holding back the bile which is so essential to promote the movement of the bowels, and the bile gets into the blood instead of passing out through the usual channel.

The only way to keep the liver active and working properly, and thus get rid of the nasty bilious attacks, is to keep the bowels regular by using MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS.

They are purely vegetable, small and easy to take, work smoothly and gently, and there is nothing of the griping, weakening and sickening effects of the old fashioned purgatives.

Mr. John S. Caron ,Donavon, Sa . writes: "I was troubled with my liver and had severe bilious attacks. A friend advised me to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, so I took two vials and have had no more attacks."

resent the British policy regarding Turkey. They feel most dee the slight which they consider has been put upon the Caliphate. They revere the Sultan as Roman Catholics revere the Pope, and regard the disintegration of Turkey in Europe and Asia much as Catholics would regard the fall of the Holy See. Moderate Moslems, whose fingers are on the pulse of Moslem feeling told him, Lord Northcliffe said, that if the following program were instantly carried out it would heal the wounded sentiments and restore peace and tranquility in India:

First—The British should again recognize the Sultan as the head of Islam and the warden of the Holy palaces at Mecca, Medina and Bagdd, and grant access to them by all Moslems.

Second—Adrianople should be returned to Turkey.

Third —The whole of Asia Minor should be handed over to Turkey, not excepting Smyrna, for the Turks regard Asia Minor as their homeland, and, while they had no legitimate grievance regarding the loss by the fortunes of war of their empire of Irak and Arabia, they resent the splitting up of the land of their birth.

Two Objections

"The moderate Mohammedans," continued the British publisher's analysis, "admit that two objections could be raised against this scheme, but both can, according to them, be discounted. The first is that, as Bagdad is under British occupation it would be incompatible to grant the Sultan any influence there; but the Mohammedans say that his wardenship would be purely nominal and would extend scarcely a quarter of a mile.

"The second objection is that Greater Armenia lies within that portion of Asia which the Turks regard particularly as their own and we cannot allow the Armenians to fall again under Turkish rule.

"The moderate Mohammedans advance two solutions to this last objection. The first and easiest would be to create an Armenian independent state, with a British Resident to protect it, similarly to some of the native states in India. The second solution, I gather, is to invite the Armenians to leave what th Moslems call the bleak an... impoverished country and migrate southward around the Gulf of Alexandretta, where they would be protected from the north and west by the Taurus Mountains and we would protect them from the sea.

"I consider that the opinion of Indian Mohammedans and well-informed Englishmen is that by the above plan we should show ourselves protectors of alien religions and play the game by our Indian Mohammedan people who maintain that they played it so gallantly by us during the war."

In concluding his analysis, Lord Northcliffe said:

"I express no opinions, but the Moslem situation here is much uglier than the home press appears to know. I submitted this statement to official, commercial and press authorities, who, while not necessarily approving of the details, insisist upon the urgency of a complete and rapid settlement of the Moslem impasse."

DEFEAT OF CONSOLIDATED

and its working becomes better understood. No effort is being spared by the Provincial School Attendance Officer to make the Act as effective as possible, but it is quite manifest that its success will depend on the energy, tact and faithfulness of the local officers. This is a matter of great importance and one in which there is much need for improvement. The Act and those entrusted with its administration should receive the most hearty support of school trustees, municipal councils and all who are interested in the public welfare.

Question of Attendance.

Part I. of the Adolescent School Attendance Act came into operation in September. It is yet too soon to say what effect it is going to have on the attendance at the rural schools. During last term there was no noticeable change, but as the Act comes more fully into operation there will probably arise, in many places, the necessity for fifth book classes unless Continuation Schools are established at convenient centres. Should this latter result follow, they will be a great benefit to the communities that secure them.

The Warsaw Incident.

The discussion of the question of the consolidation of rural schools which has gone on in some sections of the inspectorate for a number of years, culminated during last year in a vote being taken on a proposal to consolidate two sections at Warsaw. As this was the first vote to be taken in this district and as the question is one of interest to many, it may not be out of place to go somewhat fully into particulars of this case. The proposed agreement was between sections No. 3 and No. 5 in the township of Dummer.

The plan was to erect a two-room school at or near Warsaw and to transport the children of section No. 5 to the new school. This could have been done very easily and conveniently as there are only about a dozen and the distance about four miles. The combined assessment of the two sections is just over $150,000. It was proposed to erect a building to cost about $16,000. Of that sum the Government grants would have paid $10,200, leaving $5,800 to be provided for by the sections.

Protest Was Upheld.

The question of consolidation had been under discussion in that locality for some five years. Numerous public meetings had been held at some seven or eight of which representatives of the Department of Education were present besides local speakers. It was felt by those who had the matter in charge that all had been reached who could be by public discussion and the time had arrived for a decision. Accordingly arrangements were made for taking a vote simultaneously in the two sections. This was done on October 24th. At Warsaw the agreement was approved by a large majority and at No. 5 16 voted in favor and 12 against. On a protest being entered, this vote was set aside on the ground that 4 of those who voted in favor were not ratepayers in the section. A new vote was taken on December 12th when the scheme was defeated by a vote of 27 against to 13 in favor.

New Schools Needed.

In view of these facts, it is worth while to give some consideration to conditions in section No. 5. This section is one that has never been able to afford adequate educational facilities. The building is old, unsuited for school purposes and in poor repair. The equipment and school accommodations are among the poorest in the inspectorate. For the past ten years the school had not had a qualified teacher, the nearest approach being for six months in 1918 when a teacher holding a limited third-class certificate was in charge. For some years the section levy for school purposes was 4½ mills, till last year when it was lower. It will be higher than even the figure quoted when the section secures a qualified teacher and provides adequate accommodation.

What Was Rejected.

Had consolidation gone into effect there would have been about 60 pupils for the combined school. It was planned to employ two teachers, one of whom would have given part time to pupils who had passed the entrance examination. Estimating the salaries of the two teachers at $2,200, which is $300 more than the two sections were paying last term, the school would have received in grants about enough to meet the outlay for salaries. The township would have continued to pay $1,000. Regular Government grants would have been $620 on salaries, $130 on certificates, $200 special to consolidated schools and from $200 to $400 for the fifth class work, according to the extent to which it developed. That means that only the upkeep of the premises and the cost of transportation would have had to be met by the sections. One rig would have been required for transportation, and judging from what is being done elsewhere, it could have been secured for $500 or less. Of this the Government would have paid 30 per cent. It would, therefore, appear that the new school could have been maintained by a rate lower than will be paid for the very inferior school the section has now. The part of the cost of building to be borne by the sections would have added to the tax rate from 2 to 3 mills, but that is very much less than the rate that will be required to provide new buildings as will have to be done in both of the sections in the near future.

By their action school section No. 5 threw away an opportunity to secure a school with modern appointments, complete equipment and qualified competent teachers as well as a chance for capable and ambitious children to secure two or three years' schooling beyond the entrance examination without going away from home, and at a cost no greater than they are paying at present. Not only that, but they rejected an offer of more than $10,000 to be immediately spent in the community for the benefit of education. I have to confess that I know no reason why they did so except that some other members of the community wanted these things.

Non-Residents a Factor.

It is worthy of note that of the 27 who voted to reject the agreement 12 are not residents of the section. I am also informed that among them they have only two children attending school, and that the majority had never attended any of the meetings held to consider the question and so knew nothing of the merits of the matter.

Inform the People.

In my opinion it would be in the interests of education in the county to have a comprehensive report issued for distribution. This report should contain a detailed statement of the amount of grant received by each school section, the qualification of all the teachers and the salaries paid them, as well as the statements of the inspectors and any other information relating to educational matters that would be of intefest or use to trustees or ratepayers. I beg, respectfully, to recommend that such a work be undertaken and that either the committee on schools or a sub-committee be appointed to attend to the details.

I am
Respectfully yours,
RICHARD LEES,
P. S. Inspector,
Peterborough East.

ROME, January 25 (Canadian Press). — For another day the Pope will lie in tate. The funeral ceremonial will thus be delayed until to-morrow. Fully a million people have filed past the catafalque in St. Peter's to view the body of the late Pontiff.

NO UNEMPLOYMENT.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.— (Canadian Press.)—Seepherin Hebert, ex-president of the local board of trade, addressing the Wholesale Merchandise Brokers' Association here, asserted that there was practically no unemployment in France, a county from which he has just returned. Every one there was working, he said, and as a result there was a gradual rehabilitation of the country, despite a burden of taxation that made the Canadian income tax look tiny.

THE DELORME INQUEST.

MONTREAL, January 25 (Canadian Press). — Rev. Adelard Delorme stated last night that he did not believe any of the evidence given at the inquest yesterday in connection with the death of his half-brother, Raoul Delorme, revealed any new angle in the case.

TURNED HIS SON OUT OF THE HOUSE

TORONTO, Jan. 25.— (Canadian Press.)—Testifying at the adjourned inquest into the death of her son, Anderson Buchanan, following the taking of what was said to have been "beauty powder," Mrs. Jessie Buchanan last night told of the unhappy relations which had existed between herself and her husband and described how Mr. Buchanan had turned his son out of the house in July, 1919. Son and father had not lived in the same house since.

Asked why the father had turned the boy out she caused a mild sensation by replying: "Because he followed him along the Hamilton highway on a motor cycle when he had a lady in his car."

"Do you know the woman?" she was asked.

"Yes, I do." She also stated that she had obtained alimony judgment agains ther husband some time ago and that he was about four hundred dollars in arrears of payment.

PETERBORO WON THE DISTRICT CUP GROUP

Defeated Lindsay By 18 Shots and Qualified For Provincial Play-Off.

The Peterborough Curling Club balanced the score with Lindsay by defeating their two District Cup rinks in the primary round play-off by 18 shots here on Tuesday afternoon. In the two O.C.A. clashes this winter the old rivals have run close to last year's form, Lindsay taking the Tankard honors of the district and giving them another chance for the Provincial honors, in which they were runners-up last season. On the other hand, Peterborough won the Governor-General's trophy in the District Cup competition, and by taking the group yesterday they have an opportunity of retaining possession of the big mug if that is not too much to expect.

The rinks and scores were:

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF CAVAN AND SOUTH MONAGHAN SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION—PERSONALS.

MILLBROOK, January 25. — The 31st annual convention of the Cavan and South Monaghan Sunday School Association was held in Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook to-day, the opening session beginning at 2:30 p.m.

Rev. R. M. Paterson of Frazerville, led in the devotional exercises, and immediately afterward reports from the schools were called for, the following responding: Bensfort, Bailieboro, Springville, Frazerville, Cavanville, Millbrook, Presbyterian and Methodist, Fairmount, Carmel, Ebenezer, Cavan Centre, Mt. Pleasant Methodist and Presbyterian.

Rev. G. S. Gervan then gave a brief address on Young Peoples' Work in the Rural District, leaving the major portion of his time for a discussion which proved to be very interesting particularly along the line of organized week night activities for boys provided in the C. S. E. T. programme.

Rev. W. P. Fletcher of Toronto, of the Ontario Religious Educational Council, also gave an excellent address emphasizing the need of teacher-training for leaders in our Sunday schools. Mr. Fletcher also conducted a Round Table Conference, which brought forth many helpful suggestions along the line of practical work in the rural schools.

Tea was served in the basement by ladies in the church and everybody was given a cordial invitation to remain. During supper the girls belonging to the C.G.I.T. group of the church under Mr. Brown's leadership, sang some of their songs and afterwards Rev. Mr. Fletcher led all the delegates in community singing, a thoroughly enjoyable social horu being spent round the tea tabless.

The evening session opened with a song service at 7:30 led by Rev. Mr. Tucker, who also had charge of the worship period, Rev. Mr. Scott of Omemee, leading in the opening prayer.

The Nominating Commitee, consisting of Messrs. J. L. Byam, F. Clarke, B. Sharpe, W. Lunn, F. aFllis, J. Seymour, H. Lang, E. Dawson, A. E. Byers and James Douglas, then brought in their report. The following are the officers for the ensuing year:

Pres., Mr. James Seymour, Fairmount; Vice-President, Mr. William Deyell, Millbrook; Sec.-Treas., Mr. James Douglas, Cavan; Supt. of Children's Dept., Mrs. J. Douglas, Cavan; Supt. of Girls' Section, Miss M. V. Brown, Millbrook; Supt. of Adult Dept., Mr. Bruce Sharpe, Ida; Supt .of House Dept., Mrs. R. M. Hooton, Fairmount; Supt of Teacher Training Dept., Rev. R. M. Paterson, Frazerville; Supt. of Missionary Department, Mrs. R. H. Howden, Ida; Supt. of Temperance Dept., Mr. B. Elliott, Cavan.

The retiring president, Mr. J. L. Byam, who had occupied the chair during the afternoon session, then introduced the president-elect, Mr. J. Seymour, who in a few well-chosen remarks, expressed his appreciation of his appointment to so responsible a position and called upon the next speaker, Miss M. V. Brown, who gave an excellent talk on "C.G.I.T. work in the Sunday school," emphasizing the infinite value of girl life, and the four-fold development made possible through the Canadian Girls-in-Training programme.

A beautiful quartette, "My Anchor Holds," by Rev. G. S. and Mrs. Gervan and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, was sung before Rev. Mr. Fletcher gave the concluding address on "Research work in the 'teen age boy and girl problem as it affects the Sunday school."

Speaking of the fact that great advances have been made during recent years in conquering the diseases that affect the body, Mr. Fletcher said we are yet along way from combatting successfully the ills that attack the soul. Not one half of the pupils enrolled stay in our Sunday schools; seventy-six per cent. of those that enter go away in their 'teen years, leaving the church also. There is no other institution on earth that could stand such losses and not be wiped out in a brief period. Why do more boys leave than girls, and why go in their 'teen years? It is certainly not God's fault since His will is that "not one of these should perish." Primarily it isn't the boy's fault either. Perhaps one reason why we have let them drift is because even in our thinking we have been tainted with the old lie that a boy is less religious, naturally, than a girl, but God never created one sex for a religious life, and another sex for an irreligious life; it is no more difficult for a mother to teach her little son to lisp his evening prayer at her knee, than to teach the little daughter to do so. How is it that so many more boys learn to smoke than girls? There is no physical reason for it since God has not endowed them with any particular faculty for this habit that a girl hasn't got. Or swearing either. The real reason is because big boys and men are doing these things, and there is a period in every boy's life when through every part of his being God is calling him to be a man, and initiation of older fellow beings naturally follows. They leave Sunday school for identically the same reason; bigger fellows have gone ahead of them, and their fathers set the example before them again.

"If the boy once gets the idea that Sunday school is the place for women and kids he won't stay, and I don't blame him."

The speaker closed with a strong plea for men to be willing to make any necessary sacrifice and take charge of classes of 'teen age boys since red-blooded, Christian manhood in thier leaders is an absolute requisite, and to be robbed of this is is to be robbed of their God-given right. God has only one way of saving boys and girls and that is by human agency; failing that even Calvary will be bereft of its power.

After prayer and votes of thanks to the ladies of the church, the choir, and officials, the convention closed with the benediction, pronounced by Rev. Mr. Scott, of Omemee.

The place of next meeting is left to the executive, but the Association in future is to be called "The Cavan and South Monaghan Religious Education Council, Auxiliary to the Ontario Religious Education Council," in order to comply with the request of the Toronto office.

Spring Wall Paper

THEY are bedecked with foliage, flowers and birds and all that is symbolical of the springtime. Vista scenes show green glades, winding rivers, sequestered pools, and sunken Italian gardens. Dense foliage almost obscures tumbling cascades or stands alone and claims all the prominence. Birds in summer bowers, of roses, violets or other delicately tinted flowers, perch on limbs and prepare to sing their song, or are poised to swoop down on some inviting branch. They could not be better designed to give beauty and gladness to a wall and reflect their radiance throughout the room.

Suitable Paper for the Down-Stair Rooms—

THE living-room, parlor, dining-room, den or hall would take on a new dignity, not to say freshness, if done with this handsome all-over pattern. The foliage takes the form of large leaves and shows pretty blendings of mild blue with shaded fawn tones. Priced at 65c a roll.

An interesting subject is supplied by this Paper. It is a sunken garden screened with tall trees and a dense undergrowth. You can have light grey blended with blue, or deep brown with just a little blue intermingled. Priced at 60c roll.

Here is a pattern in three different colors. They are all the same design—large leaves cover the entire ground and are undershot with a different tone. You can have tan with a gold ground, or gold with pink and blue, light fawn with gold and gold with tan. These are 90c a roll. The same at 75c a roll shows a blue ground with dull green leaves. It has the appearance of a soft pile fabric such as velvet. Ideal for dining-room walls.

Suitable Paper for the Bedroom—

DAINTY is the adjective that properly describes this design. It shows a satin stripe over-printed with tiny flowers, viands and birds. You can have pink, yellow or blue. The price is 40c roll.

Even at 25c a pretty pattern can be had. It possesses a light grey ground with over-printed moss roses in little clusters. Choice of pink, yellow and blue.

The misty beauty of shadow effects always makes a strong appeal and a pretty room. Narrow satin stripes with delicately tinted flowers in rose or tan. Priced at 45c a roll.

A fine copy of an English chintz comes at 50c a roll. Very flowery and relieved here and there with that bird of gay plumage, the Bird of Paradise. Obtainable with blue or pink predominating.

SOVIET RUSSIA LACKS LEADERS.

Industrial Reconstruction is Suffering.

MOSCOW, Jan. 25.—(Associated Press).—Russia's lack of constructive leadership for its industrial and [illegible] reconstruction becomes more apparent every day, and the necessity for inducing refugees to return is clearer to the Bolshevists, perhaps, than to non-Bolshevists who have less knowledge of the inefficiency of government departments and the difficulties the Communists have behind the scenes.

Premier Lenine had repeatedly stressed the desirabiltiy of attracting back to Russia the 2,000,000 Russians who have fled to other countries and represent the cream of Russian intelligence. The engineers, scientists, bankers, teacher and merchant are greatly needed.

Lett, Esthonians and Lithunians played a large part in the business life of old Russia. They had enjoyed the benefits of both Swedish and German culture. Many of them are highly trained specialists and managers and directors of various enterprises. But they have nearly all left disorganized Russia and taken up residence in the new Baltic states.

Baltic merchants will not re-enter trade in Russia for they lack confidence in the Communist government. Manufacturers are unwilling to resume their old work under government concessions. Even property-owners, are unwilling to take back their apartment houses and hotels under the proposed concession plan. Consequently the new economic policy is falling far short of expectation.

Free domestic trade is not entirely free. The term is misleadng. It is impossible for merchants to ship goods at will on Russian railways. Permits are required for each shipment. It is difficult to get these. The pilfering on rail lines is extensive. There is no insurance.

It is largely through the goods carried by hand that markets in the great cities are supplied. Railway men carry flour and sugar from Ukraine to eke out an existence. It brings a better price in Moscow and Petrograd. Meat is also carried to the cities by railway employees and regular dealers who employ carriers.

Lenine's insistence that the goverment must win the confidence and support of the intelligent classes is generally regarded as a preparation for further movements to the right in governmental policies as soon as it is possible to make them without disrupting the Communist party utterly.

The Communist party is rapidly becoming a party in the sense that the United States and England have parties. Its important leaders show daily signs of making further concession to the hostile majority which will have nothing to do with Communist principles, or half-Communist schemes, such as the concession plan of letting factories to old owners.

The building up of the Far Eastern Republic at Chita under Bolshevist domination, but with general elections and right of private property, is looked upon in Russia as an indication of revised policies which will eventually be adopted in European Russia.

BETHANY AND THE DISTRICT

The reports from the different appointments were given and proved more than satisfactory, an invitation was unanimously given Rev. J. E. Beckel for a fourth year's stay on the circuit. Mr. Beckel thanked the board for their kind invitation and accepted (subject to the Stationing Committee which meets at General Conference in June at Whitby.)

Through the kindness of the ladies a lunch of sandwich, cake, pie, and coffee, was provided for the men at the close of the meeting.

Special Meetings.

The reports of the different committees in charge of the series of special meetings which commence on Jan. 29th, also were satisfactory. Everything is in readiness for a good time of spiritual uplift in connection with the church. The speakers secured for these meetings are Rev. M. Hinton, Hastings, Rev. S. Rorke, Cavan and Mr. and Mrs. N. Duetta, Trenton. Mrs. Duetta will lead in the service of song.

NEWS FROM APSLEY AND THE DISTRICT.

Many Social Activities in the Village—Men's Social Club Re-organized.

APSLEY, Jan. 25.—There can be no complaint of lack of social activities in Apsley this winter, at least four organizations now being in active operation, namely, the A.Y.P. A., the Methodist Ladies' Aid, the G. W.V.A. and the Apsley Social and Athletic Club, besides the local Orange Lodge, which continues to flourish.

Men's Social Club.

The Apsley Men's Social Club held its annual meeting in the parish room on Wednesday evening with a goodly number of its members present. The secretary's report showed that a great number of the members were behind in their monthly dues and it was decided to reorganize on a different basis, the membership fee being fixed at $1 per year, payable in advance instead of an entrance fee of 25 cents and 10c. per month as last year. A resolution was also passed changing the name to the Apsley Social and Athletic Club, so that football, baseball and tennis could all be combined under the one organization. Four of the members vounteered to provide fuel for heating the room on club nights. The following officers were elected: Pres., Rev. C. E. Spence; Vice-Pres., Vernal Windsor; Sec.-Treas., E. C. Spence; Caretaker, Alf. Mitchell; Committee, C. Smith, R. Hales, P. Willis, Stewart Brown, J. Lean, R. H. Knox, R. Brown. The club will be open on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 10 o'clock.

A Minstrel Show.

A nigger minstrel entertainment was given in the Parish Hall on Friday evening and provided two hours of continuous fun and laughter. The programme consisted of selections by the jazz band, dialogues, clog-dancing, songs and choruses, jokes and conundrums, concluding with a farce, "The Nigger Storekeeper," which was well acted by H. Lean, E. L. Blackwell, W. Hall and P. Willis. The remaining minstrels were E. T. Shewen (middleman), E. L. Spence and Alf. Mitchell. During the intermission refreshments were served, after which Mrs. Kylie sang most effectively, and Mrs. Shewen and Miss M. Spence played a violin duet, receiving vociferous encores. The proceeds were divided equally between the G.W.V.A. and the parsonage fund.

Held a Debate.

The debate "Is poultry raising profitable in this north country," scheduled for the A.Y.P.A. meeting on Saturday, created much interest and produced a good attendance. For the affirmative Mrs. Spence and Miss Ruby Windsor had prepared excellent papers, the former dealing chiefly with the care and management of poultry to produce profitable results, and the latter giving market prices of the products and transportation costs. For the negative, Mrs. Downing read a paper showing that it would not be profitable if one had to buy feed, a view in which Mr. W. Scott concurred, while Mr. Blackwell thought the chief obstacle to profit was the cost of marketing.

The concensus of opinion was that the affirmative argument won, and judging from the remarks expressed by the members, as a result of the debate, poultry raising in Apsley may become quite an industry.

Old Time Blizzard.

Early Sunday morning an old-time blizzard struck this district and lasted for twelve hours, piling up the snow in big drifts and making the roads impassable. As a result almost every one stayed indoors and church services in outside districts were cancelled.

The wind calmed down about 6 p.m. and the thermometer dropped rapidly from zero to 20 below by 10 p.m. At eight o'clock Monday morning it was 36 below, the coldest this winter so far.

INTER-EMPIRE TRADE.

MONTREAL, January 25 (Canadian Press). — A general plea for inter-Empire trade, coupled with a suggestion that Scottish woollen traders should push their business here, even if, on account of tariff, they have to establish branches in Canada, was made by Sir Charles Gordon at a luncheon here, at which the delegates of the Scottish Woollen Trade-Mark Association, Ltd., were the guests of honour.

Replying for the delegation, W. Thow Munro, of Munro & Company, Edinburgh, spoke of the difficulty of securing protection against false Scottish woollens, and at the same time declared that they would not lower their standards in order to compete with inferior goods.

The delegation will spend six days in Canada, three of them in this city, and will then go to the United States where they will spend thirty days.

AMEND AUSTRALIAN CONSTITUTION NOW.

Federal Convention Called to Consider Question.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 23. —(Canadian Press.)—The question of amending the constitution of the Commonwealth of Australia is again to the forefront, and Premier Hughes has introduced a bill to provide for the creation of a Federal Convention to study the constitution which was adopted in 1900, and report on the various proposals for amending it. According to Mr. Hughes' plan the Convention would consist of 75 members chosen by the electors of the seventy-five Federal constituencies, eighteen members selected from the sitting members of the two Houses of the Federal Parliament, and eighteen members appointed by and from among the members of the six State Legislatures.

When the Labor Party became a power in Commonwealth politics it found that its Federal program of social legislation clashed with State rights, and it presently began an agitation to alter the Federal Constitution. Mr. Hughes, then an outstanding figure in the Labor movement, drafted the plank in the Party's platform, demanding the enlargement of the Commonwealth powers.

When the Fisher Labor Government came into office in 1910 it arranged for a referendum on the question of giving the Commonwealth Parliament various powers vested in the State Legislatures. The Labor program was:

1.—To so amend the Constitution as to give the Commonwealth Parliament full power to deal with all industrial matters, employment, wages and working conditions throughout Australia instead of only power to apply the provisions of the Federal Conciliation and Arbitration Acts to labor disputes extending over more than one State.

2.—To enlarge the powers of the Commonwealth Parliament so as to give it jurisdiction over all trade and commerce inter-state trade.

3.—To give the Commonwealth Parliament full power over the creation, regulation or dissolution of all corporations, instead of only over foreign corporations doing business in Australia.

4.—To extend the Commonwealth parliament's powers so as to enable it to exercise control over any enterprise declared to be of a monopolistic character by a majority vote of both Federal Houses.

Mr. Hughes urged that the Labor Government could not carry out the program on which it was elected unless the Commonwealth Parliament was granted large powers. But the Labor Party, though hardly a year in office, had already lost ground, and when the plebiscite was taken in April, 1911, the electors refused to give it the increased powers it wanted. When the Labor administration went to the country in 1913, it submitted its scheme for wider Commonwealth powers in a modified form to a referendum at the general election, and the administration as well as its constitutional proposals were defeated.

In 1914 the Labor Party was returned to office, and, taking up the question of altering the Constitution again, put through both Houses a bill providing for another referendum on practically the same questions as before. But the war being then in progress, the government was told to devote its whole attention to recruiting and not force an issue which had previously been fought on party lines, and the plebiscite was postponed, the States agreeing, on their part, to allow the Commonwealth to exercise extra powers for war purposes.

In 1916 Mr. Hughes, following the split in the Labor Party over conscription, formed his Nationalist Coalition government, and, finding himself in alliance with the Liberals who had been the chief champions of state rights, induced the new Nationalist Party to adopt, as a compromise, a plank favoring the creation of a Federal Convention to examine the constitution. In the press of other matters the question of altering the Constitution was allowed to languish until the Inter-State Labor Conference, recently held at Brisbane, brought it forcibly to public attention again by unanimously adopting the following platform:

Commonwealth Constitution to be amended to provide:

(a) Unlimited legislative power for the Commonwealth Parliament and such delegated powers to States or provinces as the Commonwealth may determine from time to time;

(b) Commonwealth Parliament to be vested with authority to create new States or Provinces;

(c) Senate to be abolished.

(d) High Court of Australia to have final jurisdiction in all Australian causes;

(e) Principle of adult suffrage to be embodied in the Constitution;

(f) Initiative and referendum.

In presenting his bill providing for a Federal Convention Mr. Hughes said his object was to remove the question of Constitutional amendment from party politics, but as his proposal involves elections throughout Australia some doubt is expressed as to whether his purpose will be achieved. When the Convention reports—and it will be given a year after its creation to do so—its recommendations must be approved by majorities in the Senate and the House of Representatives, and ratified by a referendum of the electors in all the States before they can become effective.

At present the Nationalist and Country Parties have a majority over the Labor Party, and it is considered unlikely that the proposed Convention will make any drastic changes in the Constitution.

LOCAL ASSOCIATION IN TEMPERANCE CAUSE.

To Co-operate With Provincial and Dominion Societies.

(Contributed).

A meeting was held Monday afternoon at the Y.M.C.A. in the interest of temperance, to discuss the advisability of forming an association to watch the working of the O.T.A. and to work for a more complete and more holeproof prohibition law. The chair was taken at 3.30 p.m. by Mr. A. B. Cunningham and on motion Mr G. Leader was chosen secretary of the meeting.

Mr. Ben Spence and Mr. C. J. Bell, of the Dominion Alliance, were present.

Mr. Spence gave some very interesting facts regarding the working of the present law and although admitted by him to be faulty yet, he declared it had succeeded in reducing to a very great extent the evils of he drink traffic.

The most outstanding abuse he mentioned as the practice of the medical profession selling prescriptions for liquor in cases where it was patent to anybody that it was required for beverage purposes and not medicinal purposes. Seventy-three per cent. of the doctors he said, prescribed up to forty per cent the maximumb allowed under the act, but only five really overstepped the legal limit.

It was felt that a change should be made in the act limiting the maximum amount of liquor under one prescription to eight ounces, which it was stated was the wish of members of the medical profession themselves. Mr. Spence also declared, popular opinion to the contrary notwithstanding that the number of breaches of the O.T.A. in Toronto were less than the number of breaches of the license law before prohibition. The transportation clauses of the O.T.A. were also the subject of discussion as well as the need of educating public opinion as to the benefits derived from prohibition so as not to leave the field to the propaganda of the liquor interests.

After discussion, it was felt that it was imperative that an association should be formed to watch the interests of temperance locally, and to cooperate with provincial and dominion societies.

On motion of Mr. J. M. Greene, seconded by Mr. Lees, it was decided to form an organisation to be known as the Peterboro City and County Prohibition Association. Mr. A. B. Cunningham was elected President, Mr. H. B. Cowan, Secretary and Mr. J. M. Green, Treasurer. These to select a vice-president from each township in the county and with them to form the executive Fifty-first street station where it was later viewed by Medical Examiner Gonzales.

Nothing could be learned to indicate a reason for suicide, if death was not accidental. Police investigations, however, brought to light the fact that Mrs. Sherwood had been in some sort of financial difficulties, caused, it was said, by the failure of some securities in which she was interested.

Had Daughters at Wellesley

Mr. Shanahan said he did not know whether Mrs. Sherwood had been interested in the stock market. He said that so far as her financial dealings with the Commodore were concerned she was alright. Always quiet, Mrs. Sherwood was not well known in the hotel, he said, but those who knew her liked and respected her.

The hotel authorities learned that a daughter, Miss Agnes Sherwood, was a student of Wellesley College, Wellesley Mass. They telegraphed her at once and she replied she would come to New York immediately.

Mrs. Sherwood had fallen eighteen stories to her death, a distance of more than 200 feet.

ARMY OF GERMANS BANKRUPT TO-DAY.

Suffer From Craze For Speculation in Stocks.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.— (Associated Press)—Thousands of Germans have been bankrupted by the recent craze for speculating in the stock market. The losers were not limited to wage earners and professional men with inadequate incomes but included many comparatively wealthy men.

The workmen and professional men claim that speculation is not a vice but necessity for men whose incomes are 3,000 marks a month or less. They say they "plunged" in the market in the hope of being able to win enough to pay their bills or buy their clothing for themselves or a dress for their wives.

Some who lost their earnings in this way have disappeared from their positions. Others are making the round of their acquaintances in an effort to borrow and the remainder are stolidly facing debts which they cannot hope to pay. Grocers and butchers generally have closed all credit accounts.

One of the speculators who lost his monthly salary of 2,00 marks in stock market speculation said:

"We have to gamble. We cannot buy anything but the barest necessities on what we earn and when prices go up and money for even the necessaries is lacking, we take a chance rather hopelessliy thinking that our condition cannot be much worse and that we might have luck.

DISMISSED THE CHARGE.

MONTREAL, January 25 (Canadian Press). — Judge Lanctot dismissed the charge of perjury preferred against J. Rodolphe Trempe, a Court House employee, who was alleged to have declared falsely in an affidavit that he had seen Aglibert Theoret, farmer candidate in Leval-Two Mountains County in the recent Federal election, enter the headquarters of the National Liberal-Conservative Party in this city on 25th November last. The affidavit, which was read at meetings prior to polling day, is stated by Mr. Theoret to have seriously prejudiced his chances of election, and following his defeat by J. J. A. Ethier, the charge of perjury was pressed. Trempe showed that he had acted under a misapprehension.

HAMILTON'S AND C.G.E. AT FULL STRENGTH FOR TONIGHT'S GAME

City Hocke; League patrons will get their moneys worth to-night — and then some. Hamilton's and C. G. E. Toolroom have always made it a real battle, and to-night's contest promises much. These teams play at eight o'clock. It is unlikely that the back divisions will show any changes over the defences of a week ago, but the attacking lines will be stronger. Hamilton's have E. Foley, Frank Collins, Leith Bartley and the Graham brothers, while the C.G.E. have Lornie Rose, Lefty McElroy, Ranger, Williams and Butler. I will be a thriller from gong to gong.

Bankers and Lakeyews meet in the second game, and a win for Lakeviews will give them the championship of the first half and a place in the finals. But the Bankers may stop the Redshirts and make a play-off necessary between the Lakeviews and the winner of the Hamiltons-C. G.. game. Refere, Coombs will start the first game promptly at eight o'clock.

RICKARD CLAIMS STORIES UNTRUE

TRIAL OF PROMOTER WILL BE HELD WEDNESDAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Charges that "Tex" Rickard's arrest on basis of stories told by three little girls was ordered after a very superficial investigation were made by his counsel today.

Investigation by representativcs of Rickard has shown that two of the three girls concerned in the case have previously told stories which proved to be untrue, according to Rickard's attorneys.

Officers of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children who caused Rickard's arrest refused to reply to these charges, saying that they preferred to wait until all the facts were brought out at the trial, which has been set for today.

Rickard's friends intimated the charges were a "frame-up" by enemies of Rickard, who desired to discredit him and force him out of Madison Square Garden, which he leased, or to give boxing a "black eye," throughout America.

Officers of the children's society said it would have been impossible for the girl accusers of Rickard to concoct such a detailed story against the wealthy promoter.

State boxing authorities have decided to withhold judgment until after Rickard's case has been heard in court.

HOW THEY STAND

Picton came through with a real win at Trenton last night, and will now play home-and-home games with the Petes for group honors. In the Lakeshore group, Oshawa defeated Whitby. The main bout will be put on at Port Hope Friday night, with the Oshawans as invaders. The team that wins this game cinches the group title.

Uxbridge and Markham won away from home, and indications point to a play-off for this group. Uxbridge has a home game with Port Perry on Friday night, and Markham goes to Cannington. The leaders should win these engagements.

Sports

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

It's Picton or Peterborough for this group in the O.H.A. intermediate race. The Picton gang pulled the unexpected last night when they waltzed into Trenton and walloped the homesters 5 goals to 2, thereby winning the series by a total score of 12 goals to 9. They looked to have about the same chance as a livery horse in a race with Man o' War, for Trenton had won the last two games played between the two teams, and with the final bout on their own ice dish it looked like a mere formality to grab off the series. Here are the scores of the four games:

At Picton ..... Picton 3—Trenton 1
At Trenton ..... Picton 2—Trenton 3
At Picton ..... Picton 2—Trenton 3
At Trenton ..... Picton 5—Trenton 2

Evidently the Picton hockey team has the same fighting spirit as the Picton baseball club—a spirit that has carried them through to the Intermediate O.B.A.A. championship two years in succession. That gang of ball tossers never knew when they were beaten, and the hockey outfit, which is composed for the most part of the same players, is evidently animated by a similar bigness of heart. The P.A.A.A. gang should not overlook that fact, for a fighting team, no matter how much they may be lacking a hockey finesse, are a tough aggregation to tuck away.

Hockey fans will be making a mistake if they fail to see to-night's double-header in the City Hockey League. The C.G.E. and Wm. Hamilton teams, who are on same friendly terms as were De Valera and Mike Collins in the Irish peace debate in the Dail, clash in the first game. They won't know then whether they are playing for second place in the first section or for a play-off with Lakeviews for the championship of the first series—depending upon what happens between the Bankers and Lakeviews in the second game—but that won't make any digerence, for the teams will tear into each other from the initial face-off. With Mickey Murray and Frank Collins on the Hamilton line-up, and Lornie Rose and Grover Halpin playing for the C.G.E., the teams will be at full strength. The championship of the first section depends upon the second game. Lakeviews win the honours if they beat the Bankers—otherwise the redsikns and the winners of the Hamilton-C.G.E. game will be tied.

Famous Words of Famous Men:

"Don't spoil my evening."—Mickey Murray.

Maritime Province hockey players are a novelty in Ontario, and for the first time since Peterborough has been connected with the O. H. A. the Petes have had a Bluenose player on their line-up—in fact, the P.A.A.A. have had two, for Tamplet, the junior goalie, like Burgess, the intermediate right wing, comes from down by the sea. The Lakeviews will introduce a third Bluenose to-night in the person of Art Tingley, who will sub for the red shirts in the game with the Bankers.

Joe Dwyer is slated to perform in the nets for the Bankers in the City League to-night. The city loop is well equipped with good goalers, with Murray, Legros, Bergoine, and Dwyer in action.

As Ring Lardner Would Say It.

The board of Strategy wich is running this P.a.A.a. team wich I have nicknamed the Petes are lible to get our boys into a bad habit if they don't quit stacking them against teams wich they aint expected to beat. 1st they brings this dominion Bank krew here. Now they ain't nobody in these Times of finnachial stress can afford to get in wrong with the banks so of course the Toronto outfit wich I called the visiters won. 2nd they signs artikles with the Aurora lees. That bunch of birds have only played the argonots and a few other week sisters aint lost a game and naturaly they won't take no chances of having the P.a.A.a. trim them, so they have a claws put in the agreement that they won't come unless the Petes promise to let them win. But I of these nites Mister Smaill's boys is going to be dropped into a O.h.A. game where they can't play with their fingers crossed and before they can get acusstomed to the idea that this is a game they are expected to win the other guys is lible to knock them for a row of penalty boxes. And a couple of mistakes or two like that generally means that you and Mister Hewit's league part company.

The Junor City League and the two School Leagues are now operating smoothly, and some good hockey is being played by the kids in the various organisations. The effect of this nursing of young material will be seen in a year or two.

To-day's Happy Thought:

Picton's victory means that the Petes will travel farther in the O.H.A. race than if Trenton had won. (This is easy, if you study it on a map.)

LEGISLATION FOR "FLEXIBLE TARIFF."

Will Harding Secure Its Enactment?

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press)—Interest continues to be keen here in the question whether President Harding will succeed in getting legislation for the "flexible tariff" which he has recommended in his messages and which he is demanding of the leaders.

In the recent conference which the U.S. president has had with the republican leaders of the Senate he has urged the enactment of such legislation as will enable him to raise or lower tariff duties to meet changing conditions. In raising or lowering duties, he would be guided by the recommendations of the Tariff Commission, whose duty it is constantly to keep in touch with the the workings here and abroad. At least, he would have the advantage of the information and recommendations of the tariff commission, which, in the United States has so far proved a rather perfunctory piece of governmental machinery.

Under the surface in Congress, there is intense opposition to the flexible tariff proposition which the President advocates. It is, in fact, not a new plan. In past years it has been advocated in one form or another. It has always met with objections from high tariff men in Congress. The U.S. constitution says that all laws for raising revenue hall originate in the House of Representatives. In atual practice, such laws originate in the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives which submits its plans to the House for its ratification or rejection.

The House has always been jealous of its power over the tariff and revenue bills—the tariff being a method of raising revenues. To say that the Presiden can raise a duty 50 per cent, as Mr. Harding proposes would greatly add to the power of the executive over revenue matters, and correspondingly detract from the Congressional authority.

Under such circumstances there is acute interest in the question of whether a really flexible tariff measure will be passed for reasons connected with the relations between the president and Congress in addition to the reasons relating to the use which the Congress in addition to the reasons relating to the use which the president might make of a tariff which he could raise or lower. If the flexible tariff law is enacted there is no doubt the executive will make use of it to a large extent in making trade and tariff arains with other countries. He will be given a weapon which he can use with great force to drive other countries into making such bargains.

The high tariff men in Congress are now quietly trying to find ways to take the teeth out of the flexible tariff idea. Their opposition to a flexible tariff is not much due to a fear that the president would lower duties below what they want as that on principle the would rather trust Congress as a permanent proposition to maintain high duties than to trust the executive authority, from one administration to another, to do so.

TWO HUGE ICE-BREAKING BOATS.

Sent By Britain to Russian Port.

REVAL, Esthonia, Jan. 25.—(Associated Press)—Two huge ice-breaking cruisers, the Alexander Nevsky and the Sviatagoi have been sent to Petrograd by British naval authorities to keep that Russian port open this winter if possible.

They were built for Russia in the war and were used by the Allies at Archangel and in the White Sea during the occupancy of the Archangel district by American and other Allied troops.

It is said that their names will be changed to Lenine and Trotosky. They are the largest ice-breakers in the world and are so constructed as to break the ice around them by rolling aswell as by pushing through the ice ahead of tthem.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"ENCHANTMENT."

Real Theatre Erected For Scenes in Marion Davies' New Cosmopolitan Production.

A complete and real theatre was erecte dfor one of the episodes in "Enchantment," the Paramount-Cosmopolitan picture starring Marion Davies which will be seen at the Capitol Theatre beginning tomorrow.

In the story by Frank R. Adams, originally called "Manhandling Ethel," Forrest Stanley, who is Miss Davies' leading man, is a star actor. He plays the part of Petruchio in Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew."

The picture flashes to that amusing scene in the play wherein Petruchio brings Katherine to his home following their marriage. With swagger and belligerent gesture he hurries her into the house, leading her by the harness into which he has forced her. Katherine is hungry and expresses a wish for food. The chef brings in a roast turkey with which he has taken much pains for the bride's first meal in her new home. Then comes the droll and surprising coup of Petruchio, hitherto gentle and thoughtful to his servitors.

He smashes the platter over the chef's head. This was chosen as the only scene to be picturized from the play as it is the one best known to theatregoers and there is much fun in it.

The theatre was regular in every way. The stage is shown and one whole section of the boxes. In one of the boxes is the theatre party containing Ethel (Marion Davies), her father (Tom Lewis), her mother (Edith Shayne), Tommy (Arthur Rankin), and two other youths whom the popular Ethel invited to the birthday party in honor of her father.

When the extras took their places in the orchestra they found real seats of solid comfort, done in dark red. Orchestra, audience, stage and play within a play form one of the most realistic settings ever seen in a picture.

Besides this splendid 7-reel production, the usual excellent short-reel subjects, comedies, etc., and a first-class novelty vaudeville act, Charles Mannito & Co., clever jugglers, hand balancers and musical act, combined with the excellent music of the splendid Capitol Concert Orchestra, will complete a first-class show for the last three days of this week.

AT THE ROYAL.

To-night the Peterborough Rotary Club has secured the Royal Theatre and presents a splendid programme. The Rotary Club, with commendable enterprise and patriotic spirit, seeks to help along the Canadian boy whose financial status prevents him from accomplishing all a wished for result. The Club believes that one of the best ways in which to build up a boy's physique and incidentally his mental strength, is by giving him a few weeks' camping in the fresh air. To assist in raising a fund to attain this ambition the Club is holding this entertainment at the Royal Theatre. The proceeds of this entertainment will be used to help boys who cannot afford, it to have a few weeks in health giving fresh air.

AT THE REGENT.

Hoot Gibson has another name of course—Ed. Gibson. But no one has called him Ed. for years. "Hoot" has stuck and "Hoot" he'll always be.

This bright, new star of Universal Western dramas was born in Tekamah, Nebraska. As a boy he was so fond of the saddle that his father once had to deprive him of his pony to get him to do work around the ranch. It was a hard life for Hoot when he had to give up his mount for a week and tread the rough ground on his own feet without a single chance to do those daredevil riding stunts for which, even as a boy, he had gained a reputation.

Later, he joined Bud Atkinson's circus and went to Australia. Then, in 1911, he went into motion pictures with Selig, Kalem and then Universal. After years of experience the best of his work can be seen in "The Fire Eater," the Universal special attraction at the Regent Theatre to-morrow. It is as a forest ranger with smiling proclivities and intrepid spirit that he will be seen in this.

LOCAL ENGINEERS MEET TO-MORROW

Mr. J. R. Marlow, of Toronto, who is to address the Engineering Institute on January 26th, Thursday (tomorrow) evening, on "The Knight Sleeve Valve Motor," is an authority on this subject, having made a special study of it even before the inventor, Charles Y. Knight, introduced his new idea to Europe.

MR. J. R. MARLOW.

The Knight was first made in Canada by the Russell Motor Car Co., but the field ten years ago was limited for such a high-class car. After the Russell Company joined forces with the Overland Company of Toledo, the development of the Knight progressed in the United States simultaneously with its adoption by European makers of international reputation. The Willys-Knight is the only car with a Knight sleeve valve motor that is sold in Canada, and as this type of motor differs so much from the poppet-valve type, Mr. Marlow's address should be of special interest to those who follow the subject of motor mechanics.

Formerly sales manager of the Russell Motor Car Co., Mr. Marlow went to Montreal in 1915 to take charge of the branch there. When this was taken over as a branch of Willys-Overland, Limited, in 1917, he remained as manager, until the first of this year, when he was appointed to the executive position at Toronto of secretary and treasurer.

whenever advisable. It is now agitating for a readjustment of railway rates between the East and West on an equitable basis, and in six months has secured that uniform classification of freight on railways which American railways could not catch in less than 20 years of agitation and parleys.

Manager Walsh also explained the important objectives of the C.M.A.'s Commercial Intelligence Department, which among other duties revises and circulates The Canadian Trade Index, while its Trade Department, in which there are 31 sections, is functioning for better trade relations between competitors and stimulating a broadened element of standardization. Then, explained the speaker, there is the Publishing Department, the name of which speaks for itself, and the Legal Department whose functioning is also obvious. In this connection, General Manager Walsh declared the country is overburdened with Provincial and Dominion administration overhead charges, and it is the duty of the Legal Department to agitate for improvement in that regard, in the interests of Provincial and Dominion industries and of Canada as a whole. For instance, he declared, in Ontario the amount of workmen's compensation is the highest paid today in the whole world, being 62 1-3 per cent. of workmen's earning power, and at that a demand will be made at the next session of Legislature for an increase to 100 per cent. This demand the C.M.A.'s Legal Department is fighting in the hope of confining the compensation increase, if any, to 75 per cent. of what an injured man earns.

Talking of the discouraging load of taxation manufacturers and others are carrying in the way of income, business profits, assessments, etc., in Mr. Walsh's opinion, "commercial and industrial interests, in this Province especially, are paying the taxes, while the other fellows control legislation." In conclusion, he declared, it is up to manufacturers of this Province to assume their share of responsibility in the communities in which they reside.

Manager of Tariff.

In an intelligent manner J. R. K. Bristol defined the duties of the C. M. A.'s Tariff Department, of which he is the energetic manager. This department deals with all exercise and customs questions affecting manufacturers. Regarding the marking of manufactured goods, care should be exercised, he contended, to avoid any provision in this regard which would prove an oppression on exported goods or products sold in the domestic market; and it is one of the duties of his department to function with that end in view, for it is impossible to enforce a marking act on thousands of small industries in this country. In his treatment of the Sales Tax question, Mr. Bristol explained that his department is now agitating for a complete exemption of this assessment on sales by manufacturers to wholesalers and by one wholesaler to another wholesaler; together with some equitable arrangement for putting wholesaler and retailer on the same basis in this connection.

The Legal Secretary.

Legal Secretary H. D. McDonnell referred at length to the need for amendment of the Income Tax, in the interests of industrial and commercial progress and expansion, which question his department has in hand; and he briefly alluded to the department's intention to, at the coming session of Ontario's Legislature, press for certain desirable amendments to the Ontario Assessment Act in encouragement of trade revival. The Workmen's Compensation Act, he also declared, needs drastic amendment; and at Legislature's next session the C.M.A.'s Industrial Relations Department, of which he (Mr. McDonnell) is the head, will press for elimination from this measure of clerks, clerical staffs and travelling salesmen as beneficiaries.

Continuing, the speaker said the C.M.A. approved of a minimum wage act for females only, and stood in opposition to the eight-hour day, which question the Dominion Government had referred to the Provinces for enactment in their own discretion. And while British Columbia has passed an eight-hour measure the act is not to be enforced till the other Provinces have adopted a similar law.

Unemployment insurance, concluded the speaker, is really a Federal matter, of which, however, the late Government kept clear. But in Toronto, 10 days ago, Premier Drury declared himself favorable to its adoption.

Hundred-Per-Cent. Peterborough.

Peterborough's Industrial Commissioner, S. R. Armstrong, in the course of a brief address, drew attention to the gratifying position Peterborough's branch of the C. M. A. holds as being the first to acquire a membership of a hundred per cent. of this city's manufacturers.

Other Speakers.

Messrs. J. M. McCrea, G. Flavelle and W. P. Plant also replied in fitting terms to the toast to visitors.

Big Dividends.

In proposing a vote of thanks to the C.M.A. officials for their presence and addresses, W. R. Breyfogle of the De Laval Company advised a broadening-out policy into Peterborough district for membership in the organization, which with its capable executive, returns big dividends on the yearly fees invested therein.

President W. A. Richardson of the Peterborough Canoe Co., proposed the toast of the evening to the visitors, accompanied by a few well-expressed eulogies of the C.M.A. officials.

J. J. Turner officiated in his usual capable and pleasing style as Chairman of the proceedings, the company at which included fifty or more heads of Peterborough industries and business.

THE POPE'S FUNERAL

ROME, Jan. 25. — (Canadian Press).—Pope Benedict's body will be buried in a tomb in St. Peter's, alongside that of Queen Christina of Sweden, who die in Rome in 1689 and facing the tomb of Pope Pius VI. The exact date of burial will be decided to-morrow. The time could not be set to-day because it was not known how long it would require the workmen to finish making the necessary precaution for taking the excessively heavy coffin down into the crypt.

Hearty votes of thanks were tendered the officers of the various church organizations for the excellent work accomplished during the year.

THE GENOA CONFERENCE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25. Canadian Press. — President Harding has conferred with the administration leaders as well as the Senate leaders over the participation of the United States in the Genoa conference.

Secretary of State Hughes and Secretary of Commerce Hoover favor the sending of United States delegates. On the other hand the President is being strongly urged in other quarters to keep the United States out of the Conference, that it is believed that he will refuse to recommend participation unless Russia is excluded and continental Europe promises land disarmament—conditions which are unlikely to be accepted.

HOCKEY

There will be a meeting of the School Hockey League to-morrow (Thursday) afternoon, at 5 o'clock, in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

IS MEETING WITH SUCCESS

ARCHDEACON DAVIDSON'S WORK IN CONNECTION WITH FORWARD MOVEMENT GETS RESULTS.

From general information received Archdeacon Davidson seems to be meeting with much success in his work in different parts of the country. In Bradford 250 persons sat down to a grand fellowship supper in the Town Hall, which was handsomely decorated. Deputations were present from surrounding points, including Newmarket, Schomberg, and Cookstown. The Archdeacon is now conducting a Forward Movement Campaign in Weston, as will be seen from the subjoined paragraph taken from a parish magazine which gives an interesting picture of the work in which he is engaged under the heading, "A Great Movement":

On its financial side, the Anglican Forward Movement was an undoubted success. The original objective was $2,500,000.00, and subscriptions to the amount of $2,652,728.67 have been paid up to 30th November. A statement of the way in which this money has been used is given on another page. But it never was the intention of the promoters of the Movement that it should end in money-raising; the larger objective was and is to arouse the Church to greater spiritual activity and service. With this end in view a Commissioner was appointed to visit various parishes throughout this Diocese and hold special meetings and services. We are to have the privilege of such a visit from 20th to 31st January.

The Commissioner is the Venerable Archdeacon Davidson, formerly Rector of St. John's Church, Peterborough, and also a chaplain overseas during the war; a striking personality, a forceful speaker, and a man of unbounded enthusiasm. If we can catch something of the fire of his enthusiasm, this Parish will certainly move forward. He comes with the authority of the Bishop and the Synod, not to collect money, but to enlist more whole-hearted service in the cause of Christ and His Church.

CHANGE OF VENUE FOR MURDER TRIAL

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press.)—If all parties are agreed, the venue of the trial of Erwood Upton, Sherwood Upton and Fred Bryant, charged with the murder of Constable Beard at Napanee, will be changed from Napanee to Kingston, but no postponement will be granted.

This was announced by Mr. Justice Riddell at Osgoode Hall to-day after listening to argument of A. B. Cunningham, K.C., for accused, who contended that it would be impossible to obtain a fair trial for the accused in view of the publication of an alleged "confession" by the Upton brothers, wherein it was stated that Bryant had done the shooting. He further contended that this "confession" might prejudice the minds of the community of Lennox and Addington from where jurors would have to be chosen.

"No one is going to make me believe that you can't get a jury that will never bother their heads about what has apeared in the papers," said Justice Riddell, when the change of venue to Kingston was suggested. After his Lordship refused to delay in the trial, it was found that he was himself sitting in Kingston on February 21st.

"I don't want to load myself up with murder trials," said His Lordship but of course if it is necessary I will take it."

E. Bayly, K.C., Deputy Attorney-General, objected that no notice had been given for a change of venue and declared that counsel for the prisoners were always urging delay. If they could delay long enough, their clients would never be hanged," he said.

LIKE SKIRTS SHORT? VOTE WILL DECIDE

Iowa Mayor to Hold Election—For Women Only.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Jan. 25. —Women here are excited over a recommendation of Mayor Louis Zurmuehlen declaring for a special election to regulate the length of their skirts.

Following complaints from women's clubs that skirts were getting too short, the mayor decided they could settle it for themselves. No man will be allowed to vote.

The only fear expressed in some quarters is that flappers will demand a ballot favoring a shorter-than-ever fashion.

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 25.—Girls of Cony High School in this city have adopted resolutions placing a ban on the use of cosmetics, immodest dresse sand dresses made of expensive and elaborate cloth. Skirts must come four inches or more below the knee, petticoats must be worn with all light skirts and the girls must abandon the wearing of fancy stockings .French heels, fancy garters below the knees or rolled down stockings.

Some of the Parisian tailleurs are absolutely untrimmed with great full collars.

Cunning little silk neckties, called petite windsors, are worn with the divided Dutch collars on morning blouses of wool jersey.

Gloves of white kid with cuffs covered with an applied cutout design in black kid. Other white gloves embroidered with silver on a black cuff facing.

LOCAL THERMOMETERS IN LIMELIGHT TODAY

RANGED FROM TWO DEGREES ABOVE ZERO TO 26 BELOW, ACCORDING TO REPORTS.

A discussion was carried on at the Police Court this morning with regard to the veracity of various local thermometer, and the conclusion arrived at was that these registers of temperature are apt to be misleading, and probably the cause of making their readers either warmer or colder, as the seasons alternate.

At 10 o'clock this morning, there being no Police Court, the readings of the various thermometers were brought into the limelight. One police constable, blowing in, was sure that it was 26 degrees below zero, another thought it about 17 below, and still another said 10 below. Everyone had a different opinion. A new-comer arriving, reported that Trebilcock's thermometer showed 10 below, and the Hunter Street guage at Lynch's store marked 12 below.

A final telephone call to "W.P.'s" to settle the controversy elicited the information that it was exactly two degrees above zero. The P.C. who had claimed 26 below for the weather almost had to be supported, and all supporters of the two well-known downtown registers were confounded. Their faith in their old standbys was badly shaken.

There was a time when reporters from both papers used to scurry out and read their respective weather gauges when telephone enquiries in a high soprano or a low bass called up to enquire how cold it was, but grave consideration will evidently have to be given the subject in the future before either of these registers is quoted in the press as absolutely official.

THE DRUG RING.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 25. — (Canadian Press.)—Information has been received from reliable sources that show girls and theatrical performers have been made tools of a drug ring whose operations extend from this city to points across the border. It was learned this morning that an United States customs official has been dismissed for passing trunks containing drugs and liquors without inspecting them.

IDEAL FREEDOM HARD TO ATTAIN.

Unrequited Love a Difficult Problem.

YASNAYA POLYANA, RUSSIA, Jan. 25.—(Associated Press.) — The idealistic community, composed of 15 young men and three women, living on the estate of the late Count Tolstoi, is encountering difficulties in its effort to attain Tolstoyian perfection of freedom.

The obstacles include unrequited love of one of its members, lack of money, food and clothes and the antagonism of a cunning, land-hungry peasantry. The latter occupy the village commune outside the gates of the park enclosing the Tolstoi home and are watching the new experiment with jealous fear that the members of the community may get away from them the land promised to the peasants by Tolstoi and subsequently by the Soviet government. Suspicion has sprouted in their minds that the ideal community will eventually take over many thousands of acres of forest lands composing the now nationalized Tolstoi estate.

The same disappointment which Tolstoi, himself, encountered when he characterized his life as a huge tragedy because family ties prevented his living humbly, alone and free, loving every man and woman equally well, has begun to be experienced by at least one member of the group of idealists. They planned to take up life where Tolstoi left it and to live it as he dreamed of living it. But a handsome young woman member of the community, endowed with the "wide nature of the Russians," is believed to have become a disturbing element and to have caused Kvissov, a stalwart young man in the group, to declare his intentions to walk to India and there pass his remaining days in contemplation, like the aged Hindus.

Only a claim jumper could define the exact status of the Tolstoi estate. Originally, when inherited by Tolstoi, it included 3,500 acres, of which the Coun bequeathed about 1,300 acres to the peasants of his commune; but the soviet government took this land from them to make the whole domain into a national museum.

TRINITY W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of Trinity W.M.S., held yesterday in the Reid Street Hall, was well attended. Mrs. N. D. Seaton read Psalm 65, and made a timely and interesting comment on the verse, "Thou crownest the year with Thy goodness." A number of the boys and girls from the primary department of the Sunday School contributed two pleasing songs. An address of unusual interest was given by Rev. Dr. Blagrave, Vicar of St. John's Church. The Vicar chose for his subject "Buddhism." The address was a clear presentation of the facts of the life of the young Prince Guatama, who was afterwards known as Buddha. The truths of Buddhism were sympathetically presented, but the sarp and marked contrast between Christianity and Buddhism was clearly shown. "The hunger of the human heart can be satisfied," said Dr. Blagrave, "only by Him. Who said, 'Come unto Me and I will give you rest'."

The society is enjoying another year of great prosperity under the presidency of Mrs. A. F. Bookhout. At the December meeting of the society, five new life members received their diplomas, while a similar honor was conferred upon three more at yesterday's meeting.

The pastor closed the meeting with prayer.

OTTAWA, Jan. 25. — (Canadian Press).—The Journal says to-day that the presence in Ottawa yesterday of P. C. Larkin, Toronto, adds strength to the report that he will shortly be named Canadian High Commissioner in London.

Inquiries have elicited the fact that the matter has not been dealt with by he Government.

HUMANE SOCIETY HELD MEETING LAST EVENING
On account of a misunderstanding as to the exact date at which the meeting of the Humane Society was to be held, and the absence of the nominating committee who were to bring in their report, last night's meeting at the Chamber of Commerce was not very large. After some discussion of various phases of the society's work, the meeting adjourned, to be convened some time later in the month by the Publicity and Press committee.

A fair attendance of members of Knox Guild met on Monday evening to hear Mr. Madill, of the Normal School. The speaker, who was making his first visit to Knox Church, gave a most interesting talk on "Ideals." It was one which should be remembered by all present, and was much appreciated. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Madill, and the president (Mr. R. Haddow) intimated that Knox Guild would always welcome Mr. Madill if he chose to make a return visit. Miss Trucie Pearson contributed a vocal number, which was greatly enjoyed. All members are asked to be present on Monday, 30th January, when the Educational Committee have charge of a fine programme. Watch for further announcements on Saturday.

J. W. Lytle is an articulator of prehistoric animal skeletons. In one of the most extraordinary chambers, the "Bone Room" of the Museum of History, Science and Art in Los Angeles, Cal., a room 160x50 feet he patiently works selecting from his stock of 10,000,000 or more bones, the skeletons of animals which have long since disappeared from the surface of this old earth. All of the bones have been taken, in a perfect state of preservation, from the famed asphaltum pits of Rancho La Brae, near Los Angeles, and in the mass are all the skeletons of many types of animals that are now obsolete, from the tiniest bird to the huge imperial elephant. From the bones exposed in the picture, he will assemble the skeleton of a saber-tooth tiger.

MADAME WINNIFRED LUGRIN-FAHEY,
Noted Singer, who will give a recital in the George Street Church, on Friday evening, January 27th.

A DELUGE OF REPLIES

"Modern hereafter," college graduate and conservative girl, wrote to Experience that she had lived the life of the old-fashioned maid, up to the age of 26, without having any man pay her any attention.

She had worked since she left college, dressed moderately and saved her money till she was able to have fine clothes and her own car. She had seen the foolish little "flapper" courted, loved and married by good men. She decided she would change her mode of life to theirs—to dress frivolously, smoke, drive her own car—and maybe even drink.

Her letter brought a deluge of replies to Experience—mostly from the masculine contingent. To a man they declared against the folly of Miss Modern changing her mode of living and thinking. To a man they agreed that not one of them would want her if she did as she threatened. Almost to a man they admitted that they did pay attention to "flappers."

Now we all know that "flappers" do marry, and many of them make good wives—most of them, in fact.

If all those men have such strong convictions about the girl they approve of being modest and saving and conservative, why don't they encourage her by showing her attention and making her happy?

No girl's life is complete without a man in it to take her out and pay her the little attentions so dear to her heart and necessary to her happiness?

No wonder she becomes tired of being a model girl, and decides to splash. Some man will be attracted that way, and will discover the real girl underneath, that all the flapper methods in the world can't kill nor hide, and they will be married and live happily ever after.

If the men want girls to be the conservative type that is in their minds as their ideal of a wife, it seems only consistent and fair that they should show their approval by selecting them as objects of their interest and affection, instead of leaving them to live the life of the wall flower in favor of the "flapper," till their girlhood is gone.

EX-KAISER'S MENAGERIE ON THE WAY TO CONEY.

King of Bulgaria Wants to Sell His Elephants and they May Come, Too.

NEW YORK, January 25. — The former Kaiser's lions and tigers and elephants and "hippopotamuses" are coming to New York. They are being imported by John T. Benson, the agent in this country for the Carl Hagenback Company, the famous German animal trainers, and when they arrive, some time this spring, will be the headliners to a side show at one of New York's seaside resorts.

Four of which Hohenzollern's menagerie, to which he used to feed peanuts at Potsdam, are elephants, fattened and groomed and completely recovered from their war time diet, under which they nearly died. Perhaps the only reason they were not converted in to German sausages was that they were used by the army for hauling timbers and doing other odd jobs at which one elephant is worth a whole company of men. Now they have gone back to doing tricks and have learned a lot of new ones.

There are a lot of other animals from the Kaiser's former bear garden, but just which ones are coming here Mr. Benson could not say. There are zebras and a hippopotamus or two in the consignment. All were bought by the Hagenback Co. after the war when the kaiser had no more use for them.

Word came to this country a few days ago that the King of Bulgaria was looking for a purchaser for some elephants and bison that were eating him out of house and home in the present state of royal finances. Mr. Benson said yesterday that his company were also negoiating for the purchase of these animals and that the owner of a number of shows at Coney Island was the prospective purchaser of these cast offs of royalty. Theree promiss to be more royal pets at he island next year than in all of Europe.

This Spring will see some of the largest importations of wild animals ever brought to this counry, as every zoo and circus is in need of animals to replace those that died during the Africa, India and Europe and Mr. Benson esimated the value of the animals which will reach this country at $500,000.

Are Your Nerves in a Vise?

Are you working, eating and even sleeping at a tension? Are your nerves "all on edge," making you feel ill at ease and out of sorts most of the time? What you need is relaxation, rejuvenation in every sense of the word. The nervous system of your body is controlled by your spine. If a vertebrae of the spine gets out of normal alignment it produces a vise-like pressure upon a nerve trunk, causing congestion and inflammation and hinders the flow of mental impulses of the tissues which that nerve supplies. Those tissues then become weakened, loose their vitality and fail to function properly. If several vertebrae of your spine are out of alignment and several nerves are pressed upon, you can readily see that there would be abnormalities in various regions of your body. THE CHIROPRACTOR RELIEVES NERVE PRESSURE BY ADJUSTING THE VERTEBRAE BACK TO NORMAL ALIGNMENT; Nature then restores the impaired tissues to a normal, healthy condition. Lack of health holds back the progress of the world. YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO INVESTIGATE CHIROPRACTIC.

PROHIBITION RESULTS IN A SCARCITY

FEW BABIES FOR ADOPTION, WELFARE LEAGUE IS INFORMED—UNABLE TO MEET THE PRESEND DAY DEMAND.

BRIEFS FROM WIRES

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Prohibition and what he termed the "independent attitude of women", have resulted in such a scarcity of babies that in Child Welfare League of the United States for first time is unable to meet the demand for babies to be adopted, Director Carstens or organization told the League's Conference last night.

"There are fewer babies being born in better class homes because of the independent attitude of women", said Mr. Carstens. After a girl has been married for awhile, however, she realizes that there is something missing in her home. Then she turns to adoption, but finds that prohibition has so decreased number of dependent babies by improving conditions in lower class homes that demand fair exceeds the supply.

POLICEMAN GOES ON THE RAMPAGE

TENANTS IN BROOKLYN APARTMENT SAY HE FIRED THROUGH DOORS WHEN DENIED ADMISSION.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—A young policeman, believed to have been crazed by drink, terrorized the tenants of an apartment house at 247 Summer Avenue, Brooklyn, early yesterday by shooting through the doors of householders who refused to admit him. Although the lives of tenants were endangered, the only charge made against him when arraigned in court yesterday was intoxication. One resident who narrowly escaped a bullet admitted that the police had "talked him out of it" when he was inclined to make a charge of felonious assault.

Th policeman was Daniel Mullin, attached to the Hamilton Avenue Station, who lives with his mother and three brothers at 691 Lexington Avenue, Brooklyn. Although the shooting took place about 2.30 yesterday morning no report of it was public at either the Gates Avenue Station, the district in which 247 Sumner Avenue is situated or at the Hamilton Avenue Station. The episode became known through the arraignment of Mullin in the Gates Avenue Court, where he was held in $300 bail by Magistrate Brown on a charge of intoxication made by Policeman Frank Conklin, who arrested him.

At 247 Sumner Avenue bullet holes through door and marks on the walls gave testimony that somebody had been using firearms. Frederick Smith, who lives on the ground floor, said that Mullin, in uniform knocked on his door and said "I want McCarthy."

Smith said that Mullin demanded that he open the door which he first refused to do, telling the policeman that no person by the name of McCarthy was in his apartment. The policeman insisted, and Smith opend the door. Mullin, according to his story, tried to brush past him and he shut the door.

No sooner had the door been closde than Mullin fired through the panel, the bullet grazing past Smith and lodging in the dining room wall according to Smith, who said he dropped to the floor. His sister, in

A $2,000,000 TAX SWINDLE

Morris Rosenblum, Formerly a Deputy Collector, and Herman Schuss Held in $15,000 Each.

Bogus Receipts Issued.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Losses of $2,000,000 have been sustained in the last year by the United States Government as the result of a huge swindle by means of which fifty firms of furriers in New York City paid luxury taxes to bogus Collectors of Internal Revenue. The disclosure was made yesterday afternoon following arraignment before United States Commissioner Samuel M. Hitchcock of Morris Rosenblum formerly a Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, and Herman Schuss. Rosenblum, who gave his address at the Park Side Court, Brooklyn, and Schuss, who said he lived at the Hotel Aberdeen, were held in $15,000 bail each for a hearing on Feb. 7. A urety company furnished the bonds.

Rosesblum was arrested in June 1919, in connection with a conspiracy in which two accountants, Morris S. Rachmill and Abraham L. Samuelson, were alleged to have defrauded the Government out of income taxes. Rosenblum gave evidence for the prosecution in the course of this trial, and has been at liberty since in $7,500 bail. The Government was shown to have lost $11,000 in taxes.

Many of the furriers who paid their taxes to bogus collectors are charged with having done so with full knowledge of the scheme to defraud the Government. The inducement to them to become a party to the conspiracy was the promise that they would have to pay only 60 per cent of the taxes due. Other firms are said to have paid their taxes in the belief that collectors bona fide agents of the Government.

Rubber-Stamped Receipts

The bogus agents issued a receipt bearing the imprint of a rubber stamp similar to that used by agents of the Collector of Internal Revenue Collector's office. The rubber stamp, which is believed to have been a

ANNIVERSARY A BIG EVENT

A NUMBER OF PETERBORO GUESTS AT THE J. B. PEARCE CELEBRATION IN NORWOOD.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pearce, of Norwood, who celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary on Wednesday of this week, held a reception at their home during the afternoon and evening which equalled, if it did not surpass, the monster gathering of their friends ten years ago, to celebrate the golden anniversary.

Friends from the town and its vicinity poured in all afternoon and evening to pay their respects to Mr. and Mrs. Pearce, who have now reached the advanced ages of eighty-two and eighty-one, and still retain their youthful outlook and enjoyment of an occasion of this kind.

Receiving with the aged bride and bridegroom was their bridesmaid of sixty years ago, Mrs. Vandervoort, of Norwood. The groomsman is still living, the Rev. S. H. Dewart, of Peince Rupert, B.C., too far away to be present at this event.

Mrs. Pearce wore black satin, trimmed with jet, with scarf of Spanish lace, and corsage bouquet of orchids. She also wore an exquisite diamond comb, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Cuffe, of Norwood.

Among the numerous beautiful and useful gifts received by the bride and groom of sixty years ago was a cameo brooch from their daughter, Mrs. W. A. F. Campbell, of Port Hope, purchased in Naples. The house was filled with floral tributes from friends in Norwood and vicinity, including bouquets from the I. O.D.E. and the Masonic Order, the latter accompanied by a short address from Dr. Ford, of Norwood, one of the senior members of the society. Mrs. Pearce was presented with $1,000 from her husband, as a diamond wedding gift.

Refreshments were served during the afternoon and evening, from tables charmingly decorated with gauze streamers, silver tinsel and cut flowers. Brief speeches and congratualtory addresses occupied both afternoon and evening, and the same register was used for recording the guests as on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary, ten years ago.

Vocal selections rendered by Mrs. George H. King of Peterborough, received an enthusiastic ovation, with repeated encores.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cruikshank, Mrs. G. H. King, Mrs. S. T. Medd and Mrs. Edmunds of Peterborough, Mrs. W. A. F. Campbell and Mrs. Harry Mitchell of Port Hope, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fowlds, of Hastings, Mrs. (Col.) Birdsall of Birdsalls, and Mr. Frank Pearce, of Marmora.

Morsels They Mull Over Across Napery in Berlin

BERLIN, January 27. — Best seats on the terrace of the Winter Garden, where one may dine and see an excellent variety show, cost 225 marks for five persons. Dinner for five—not elaborate, but plentiful—consisting of soup, roast goose, potatoes, salad and extra vegetable, a frozen dessert, and two bottles of excellent Burgundy wine, cost an American party just 515 marks, including the tip, which is added as a 10 per cent. tax, to the bill.

"That," jubilated the Americans, "made the whole evening for five of us cost just 740 marks—a little over $3.00. How can any one say that things in Germany are expensive?"

The next morning one of the Americans read in his paper, a letter from a post office assistant declaring employees of his class find it impossible to live on their present pay. The post office employee, after working for one year in the government service, receives just 850 marks a month.

PRICE LIVER HIGHER THAN GOOD STEAK

ONE OF THE STRANGE AFTER-EFFECTS OF THE WAR—SELLS AS HIGH AS FORTY CENTS A POUND.

PRICES IN PETERBOROUGH

HAMILTON, January 27. — One of the strange after-effects of war is the crowning of liver as the highest priced of all meats. Before the war it was so cheap that butchers sometimes gave it away. Now it sells for from 35 to 40 cents a pound, while the choicest steaks and roasts can be bought for at least five cents cheaper. One butcher attributes the change to the power of the press. His explanation is that during the war a campaign was carried on in the newspapers educating people to use the offal of carcases. So well were the people educated in the use of what was at one time wasted that they now consider as delicious what they at one time turned up their noses at.

A large Toronto dealer in food supplies was to-day selling sirloin steak at 27 cents and liver at 40 cents.

PRICES IN PETERBOROUGH.

A Peterborough dealer, when interviewed to-day, said the item probably referred to claves' liver, although it did not specify so. Calves' liver was never very cheap, the butcher said, and had always been considered a delicacy. The present price in Peterborough is 40 cents a pound, while sirloin steak sells at 25 cents. Cows' liver is plentiful, and 10 cents a pound is the general price. Pigs' liver, the third variety, and the least in its appeal to epicureaus, brings only five cents per pound, the butcher said.

BATTLE WITH POLICE.

PITTSBURG, January 27 (Canadian Press). — Five men walked into the First National Bank of Grafton suburb this morning, and held up Harold Moss, the assistant cashier, put the five clerks and a woman customer in the vault, stole $30,000, and escaped in an automobile.

Followed by the police, they abandoned the automobile after an exchange of gunfire, and dashed into buildings in Pennsylvania Avenue, with the detectives close on their heels.

They have taken refuge in a house, and, located advantageously at the windows, are engaging in a gun battle with the police.

A great crowd is watching the battle. The loot was recovered in the automobile.

A. O. F. HELD MEETING

On Tuesday evening of this week, Court Stanley A. O. F. held their regular session in the W.O.W. Hall, when Chief Ranger T. Hendry, who presided, dispoed of a large amount of business in brisk fashion,leaving ample time for the social hour,which is a feature of these meetings.

Several important matters were discussed and the remaining committees for the year appointed.

The new officers seem to be settling down to buiness as if they enjoyed it. The C. R. then gave the assembled members an outline of the schedule for the winter months after which euchre and carpet ball was played till about ten-thirty, when the gathering adjourned, every one satisfied that they had spent a profitable and pleasant evening. Many similar gatherings are expected to follow during the winter.

A CAUCUS TO DECIDE OPPOSITION LEADERSHIP.

OTTAWA, Jan. 27. — (Canadian Press).—Sortly after the opening of Parliament a caucus of all members in opposition to the Government will be called to decide who shall be the "recognized" leader of the Opposition. That is the only solution of the perplexing difficulties which have arisen over the leadership, it was authoritatively stated to-day. Under the Salaries Act a recognized leader receives $10,000 per annum, in addition to his sessional indemnity. But the Act contains no definition of a "recognized" leader of the Opposition, nor doe sit indicate what recognition is essential to the payment of this salary.

QUART OF EVIDENCE DRUNK BY JURYMEN IN A LIQUOR ACTION

JUDGE CUTS THE GOVERNMENT CHEMIST OUT OF A JOB—JURY TOOK THE "EVIDENCE TO LUNCH WITH THEM—RETURNED A VERDICT OF "NOT GUILTY."

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—A jury in the Federal Court in Brooklyn, where Judge Harlan B. Howe of Vermont, was presiding in liquor cases, received a quart bottle of "Old Continental Kentucky' yesterday by direction of the court to taste as evidence.

Judge Howe grew impatient when he was informed that Government chemist would make an analysis of the liquor produced in the case of Mrs. Mary White, Anthony Cassese and four other defendants, who were charged with having offered to sell 200 cases of the whiskey at $65 a case. The whisky was seized by enforcement agent in a drug store at Ninth street and Eigth avenue, Brooklyn, where he said it was to have been delivered to customrs.

"Whats the use of giving it to a chemist?" the judge complained, "thats a waste of time. Open up a case and let the jury taste it. Those men can tell whether its liquor or not. Anybody knows good whisky.'

One of the court attendants produced a bottle. According to the label it was made in 1916 and bottled in 1920. He pulled the cork and handed it to the formean. No glasses were used. The bottle was passed along the jury box and all but two of the jurors took a drink. Those who sampled the stuff made no effort to disguise their pleasure.

No defense was offered after the Government testimony was in. Judge Howe directed the discharge of Cassese and sent the case against the other defendant to the jury on the charge of transporting liquor. The counts alleging conpiracy of selling were dismissed.

At five minutes to one Judge Howe finished charging the jury and instructed them to have lunch and to "take the evidence with them.' When they returned the bottle was empty. They returned a verdict of, not guilty for all five of the defendants.

PLOWMEN SOUGHT GRANT OF $1000

APPEALED TO THE COUNTY COUNCIL THIS MORNING FOR ASSISTANCE IN SECURING THE PROVINCIAL PLOWING MATCH FOR THIS DISTRICT.

A grant of $1000 to help defray the expenses of the Provincial plowing match which may come to Peterborough this year, was sought from the County Council this morning by a deputation of the Peterborough Plowmen's Association.

J. J. Duffus and V. Eastwood explained the conditions under which the match could be brought to this district and stated that $1000 would go a long way to meeting the expenses. Other members of the deputation were C. F. Moore, H. G. Webber, R. B. Rogers, Sid Bennett and W. H. Barry. The request was referred to the Finance Committee.

Children's Aid Society.

Rev. F. E. Mallott and John Edgar of the Childrens' Aid Society petitioned the council for a renewal of their grant of $600 for the support of the work of the Society. And an appeal in behalf of the National Sanatorium Association for a grant of $4000, was presented.

ATTEMPT TO ROB A STORE.

HAMILTON, January 27 (Canadian Press). — Going into a store this morning on the pretence of having a coat repaired, two young bandits struck Abe Brown, a tailor, over the head with a sharp instrument, and endeavoured to rob him.

Brown's shouts, however, caused the bandits to make a getaway, but not before they had seriously injured him.

VALUATORS FOR COUNTY APPOINTED

F. J. M'NULTY, W. R. SMITH AND W. T. CURTIS WERE ENGAGED BY THE COUNTY COUNCIL TO VALUE COUNTY PROPERTY FOR THE EQUALIZED ASSESSMENT PURPOSES.

M'NULTY HEADED POLL

The County Council hasn't many plums at its disposal, but it handed out three this morning in the appointment of P. J. McNulty of Norwood, W. R. Smith of Lakehurst and W. T. Curtis of Havelock as county valuators. Eight applications for the position were received, the other five being from W. E. Griffith, Haveelock, James Andrews, Norwood, Robert Duff, Lakefield, John McIntosh, North Monaghan and J .E. Galvin, Douro.

The appointments were made by ballot, Mr. McNulty receiving the possible total of 18 votes, and Mr. Curtis and Mr. Smith ten each. The standing of the others was: Robert Duff 7, J. McIntosh 5, J. E. Galvin 3, J. Andrews 1, W. E. Griffith 0.

The valuators are appointed every five years, and their report stands for that period. Two were chosen five years ago, but the Council decided yesterday to increase the number to three this year.

Reeve Coughlin sugested that four valuators be appointed, to act in pairs, dividing the county equally between them.

"How would it be to appoint three," said W. A. Anderson. "If two failed to agree there would be the third man's opinion to decied it. They would probably have a tar and the third man would not cost any more to carry."

Reeve Nicholls objected that there be no unnecessary increase in the cost. He believed that two men might be sufficient for this work.

Reeve Rye pointed out the difficulty of getting two pairs of men acting separately to reach a common basis of evaluation, that is if four men weer named. There might be a difference between the basis employed in the east and west parts of the county.

Reeve Montgomery said that each pair of valuators might be composed of a representative of each half of the county.

The discussion continued in that strain, but solidified in favour of Mr. Anderson's proposal that three men be appointed.

Getting to the question of remuneration Reeve Darling moved that the valuators be paid $5 a day without restricting them to a time limit.

Mr. Anderson recommended that the rate be $4 a day for 50 days and that the man providing an automobile get $3 a day extra.

Mr. Anderson's motion was finally altered to provide that three valuators be appointed at a wage of $5 a day for fifty days, they to pay their own expenses.

Reeve Coughlin seconded it.

Mr. Rye proposed an amendment, seconded by Mr. Middleton, that only two valautors be appointed on the terms named by Mr. Anderson.

The motion carried, only the mover and seconder supporting the two-man suggestion.

RELIEVE THE WOMEN OF SOCIAL YOKE.

Accept Palestine Women in Industry.

HAIFA, PALESTINE, Jan. 29.—(Associated Press.)—The movement for the emancipation of the women of Palestine from their social yoke has just received a new impetus by an exhibition of women's handicraft held here, with results far greater than any hoped for by its most ardent supporters.

The idea of woman in industry is a new one in this land. Before the great war woman was considered a burden. Her place was the jail-like home from the confinement of which she would dare leave only by special permission from her lord and master, the husband. This was especially true among the more ignorant of the Mohammedans who believed that woman had neither brains nor soul and must be treated as an animal. The fact that she was bought and sold instead of being married for love added great strength to that belief.

Today all this is changed. Women are not only demanding but are also receiving equal rights in the home. To the utter consternation of men, they have thrown to the winds custom and tradition and have embarked upon fields tabooed a few years ago. They have definitely entered industry and are as a result relieved in part of the economic dependence which kept them subjugated for centuries.

The exhibition which was the first of its kind in Palestine was opened by the High Commissioner, Sir Herbert Samuel. In the course of his speech he praised the women of Palestine for the part they are playing in the upbuilding of the country.

The exhibits which were all handmade, consisted chiefly of pottery, lace and embroidery. Basket making was perhaps the most interesting of all articles on display.

It is believed that with proper advertising, markets could be found and a great demand created for some of the things which the country women in Palestine are capable of making.

A CONTRAST

The incoming ocean liner was proceeding up New York Boy.

"What is that island on the left with the statute on it?" asked the immigrant.

"That's Bedloe's Island and the Statue of Liberty," explained the the steward.

"And what is the other one over there?" asked the mmigrant.

"That's Ellis Island, where you'll be locked up," replied the steward.

Sir: I met Ezra Pinchpenny in the grocery store today, buying chocolate. When the clerk asked: "Bitter or sweet," Ezra replied: "Bitter." He afterward explained to me that if he got "sweet" the little Pinchpennies would eat it like candy. TRIXIE

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND
By "SAPPER"
(Cyril McNeile)

"Well, don't kick him when he's down, guv'nor. You'll 'ave plenty o' time after." A hoarse voice from the circle of men made Lakington look up.

"You cut it out, Jem Smith," he snarled, "or I might find plenty of time after for others beside this young swine." The ex-pugilist muttered uneasily under his breath, but said no more, and it was Peterson who broke the silence.

"What are you going to do with him?"

"Lash him up like the other two," returned Lakington, "and leave him to cool until I get back to-morrow. But I'll bring him round before I go, and just talk to him a little. I wouldn't like him not to know what was going to happen to him. Anticipation is always delightful." He turned to two of the men standing near. "Carry him into my room," he ordered, "and another of you get the rope."

And so it was that Algy Longworth and Toby Sinclair, with black rage and fury in their hearts, watched the limp form of their leader being carried into the central room. Swathed in rope, they sat motionless and impotent, in their respective chairs, while they watched the same process being performed on Drummond. He was no amateur at the game was the ropewinder, and by the time he had finished, Hugh resembled nothing so much as a lifeless brown mummy. Only his head was free, and that lolled forward helplessly.

Lakington watched the performance for a time; then, wearying of it, he strolled over to Algy's chair.

"Well, you puppy," he remarked, "are you going to try shouting again?" He picked up the rhinoceros-hide riding-whip lying on the floor, and bent it between his hands. "That weal on your face greatly improves your beauty, and next time you'll get two, and a gag as well."

"How's the jaw, you horrible bit of drog?" remarked Algy insultingly, and Toby laughed.

"Don't shake his nerve, Algy," he implored. "For the first time in his filthy life he feels safe in the same room as Hugh."

The taunt seemed to madden Lakington, who sprang across the room and lashed Sinclair over the face. But even after the sixth cut no sound came from the helpless man, though the blood was streaming down inside his collar. His eyes, calm and sneering, met those of the raving man in front of him without a quiver, and, at last, Peterson himself intervened.

"Stop it, Lakington." His voice was stern as he caught the other's upraised arm. "That's enough for the time."

For a moment it seemed as if Lakington would have struck Peterson himself; then he controlled himself, and with an ugly laugh, flung the whip into a corner.

"I forgot," he said slowly. "It's the leading dog we want—not the puppies that run after him yapping." He spun round on his heel. "Have you finished?"

The rope-artist bestowed a final touch to the last knot, and surveyed his handiwork with justifiable pride.

"Cold mutton," he remarked tersely, "would be lively compared to him when he wakes up."

"Good! Then we'll bring him to."

Lakington took some crystals from a jar on one of the shelves, and placed them in a tumbler. Then he added a few drops of liquid and held the glass directly under the unconscious man's nose. Almost at once the liquid began to effervesce, and in less than a minute Drummond opened his eyes and stared dazedly round the room. He blinked foolishly as he saw Longworth and Sinclair; then he looked down and found he was similarly bound himself. Finally he glanced up at the man bending over him, and full realisation returned.

"Feeling better, my friend?" With a mocking smile, Lakington laid the tumbler on a table close by.

"Much, thank you, Henry," murmured Hugh. "Ah! and there's Carl. How's the tummy, Carl? I hope for your sake that it's feeling stronger than the back of my head."

He grinned cheerfully and Takington struck him on the mouth.

"You can stop that style of conversation, Captain Drummond," he remarked. "I dislike it."

Hugh stared at the striker in silence.

"Accept my congratulations," he said at length, in a low voice which, despite himself, shook a little. "You are the first man who has ever done that, and I shall treasure the memory of that blow."

"I'd hate it to be a lonely memory," remarked Lakington. "So here's another, to keep it company." Again he struck him, then with a laugh he turned on his heel. "My compliments to Miss Benton," he said to a man standing near the door, "and ask her to be good enough to come down for a few minutes."

The veins stood out on Drummond's forehead at the mention of the girl, but otherwise he gave no sign; and in silence, they waited for her arrival.

She came almost at once, a villainous-looking blackguard with her, and as she saw Hugh she gave a pitiful little moan and held out her hand to him.

"Why did you come, boy?" she cried. "Didn't you know it was only a forgery—that note?"

"Ah! was it?" said Hugh softly. "Was it, indeed?"

"An interesting point," murmured Lakington. "Surely if a charming girl is unable—or unwilling—to write herself to her fiance, her father is a very suitable person to supply the deficiency. Especially if he has been kindly endowed by Nature with a special aptitude for—er—imitating writing."

Mr. Benton, who had been standing outside the door, came lurching into the room.

"Quite ri', Laking—Laking—ton," he announced solemnly. "Dreadful thing to sep—separate two young people." Then he saw Drummond, and paused, blinking foolishly. "Whash he all tied up for li' that?"

Lakington smiled evilly.

"It would be a pity to lose him, now he's come, wouldn't it?"

The drunken man nodded two or three times; then a thought seemed to strike him, and he advanced slowly towards Hugh, wagging a finger foolishly.

"Thash reminds me, young fellah," he hiccoughed gravely, "you never asked my consent. You should have asked father's consent. Mosh incon—inconshiderate. Don't you agree with me, Mishter Peterson?"

PROPHET ENOCH GETS SIX YEARS.

Sentenced For Leading Fanatical Negroes.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(By Canadian Press.)—"Enoch the Prophet," leader of the fanatical native section in South Africa known as the "Israelites," along with his two brothers, has been sentenced to six years' imprisonment, with hard labor, for sedition. Thirty other ringleaders have received sentences of three years' imprisonment, with hard labor, and seventy of the rank and file eighteen months' imprisonment on the same terms. In the cases of the remainder of the Israelites—old men and boys—sentence has been suspended for a year.

The Capetown correspondent of the Times cables that the trial has justified the action taken by the police in the Bulhock affair on May 24 last, when 183 followers of Enoch were shot dead in their fanatic charge upon the police. The Judge who presided at the trial of the seditionists, Sir Thomas Graham, found that no blame attached to the police, but he severely criticized the vacillating policy of the officials in the months preceding the outbreak. He especially condemned the authorities for having withdrawn a strong body of armed police in the preceding December. This, he described scathingly, was the first occasion on which armed and disciplined white police had withdrawn and abandoned a camp in the face of natives armed only with assegais, swords and kerries. He declared that the effect of this had been to encourage the native fanatics in the belief that the Europeans were afraid of them.

The so-called Israelites comprised a band of native fanatics who refused to take orders from any of the Government authorities unless Enoch announced that such orders were sanctioned by Jehovah, God of Israel. They camped on Government ground at Bulhock, near Queenstown, in the Cape Province, and would not move. They caused a lot of trouble by refusing to allow subpoenaed witnesses to attend the courts, and by generally failing to fulfil the ordinary duties of citizenship.

The authorities exercised considerable patience in the hope of avoiding bloodshed. Before the police concentration took place an ultimatum was sent, but to this replied in an evasive and rambling letter that he would not move unless Jehovah ordered. Eventually, on May 24, a force of 800 police advanced against the camp. When they were within fifty yards of the natives, the latter charged—armed with big steel assegais. Then the police opened fire. It is thought that about 600 natives took part in the charge on the police, and that there was a considerable number in reserve. These afterwards fled.

PEARL MARKET OF PARIS SUFFERS SLUMP

PARIS, Jan. 29.—(Associated Press.)—The pearl market of Paris which considers itself the market of the world has suffered a slump. A necklace of Orient pearls, valued by the experts at 1,500,000 francs has just been sold by public auction for only 466,000 francs.

The slump is ascribed to general tightness of money, to the fact that war profiteers have by now got rid of their superfluous millions and are not buying freely as in the days just after the war, and to various other causes, but not to the competition of Japanese cultivated pearls. French dealers continue to smile derisively when such a suggestion is made.

WARDEN STRICKLAND WAS HOST TO COUNTY COUNCIL

Gave a Banquet in Lakefield Last Night at Which Citizens of the Village and of Peterboro Were Also Present—The Warden's Father Once Occupied the Position to Which He Was Elected This Week.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 26.—"The mantle the father once wore has fallen lightly upon the shoulders of his son," was the graceful compliment which W. H. Casement, postmaster of Lakefield, paid the old and honored family of Strickland in a speech at the banquet tendered by Warden J. C. Strickland to the members of the County Council in the Lakefield House last night as an expression of his appreciation of the honor bestowed upon him in his recent election by acclamation to the Wardenship. That the spirit of public service runs strongly in some families, was one of the observations which might have been drawn from the tributes paid not only to the new Warden, but also to his father, Mr. R. C. Strickland, now grown grey, but still vital and keenly interested in public affairs—that interest enlightened by experience and mellowed by a knowledge of real values which only time gives. It was stated that the senior Strickland was the first Reeve of Lakefield to receive the honor of the Wardenship, and Mr. Casement was the next. His election was thirty-one years ago. Reeve J. C. Strickland has brought the position back to Lakefield, and while his worthiness was extolled by his associates of the Council and by prominent citizens of Lakefield and Peterborough last night and tributes were paid to his own personality, the presence of the father gave the occasion a touch of sentiment that must have been felt by the entire assembly.

Warden Strickland had made complete arrangements for the comfort of his guests. The Peterborough group were conveyed to Lakefield in automobiles. All the guests were cordially welcomed at the Lakefield House by Warden Strickland and his father, and the dinner purveyed by Mr. J. A. Lawless was a pleasurable preliminary to the hour or more of speeches and songs that followed.

Those Present.

Among those present were Warden J. C. Strickland, G. N. Gordon, M.P.; O. A. Langley, Police Magistrate; Reeves G. B. Nicholls, C. J. Darling, R. Scott, M. Coughlin, F. A. Eason, H. B. Rye, W. Montgomery, W. H. Jones, John Clark, J. F Breckenridge, Daniel Holland, Deputy-Reeves J. A. Middleton, W. A Anderson and R. T. Lillico, E. M. Elliott and Chas. Elliott; also the following citizens of Lakefield; H. G. Fitzgerald, Dr. Smith, C. S. Tanner, W. J. Charlton, W. H. Casement, R. C. Strickland, James Ridpath, D. Charlton, S. Sutton, G. Connell, Capt. Marling, N. A. Moore, Wesley Sherin, and G. Graham of Douro.

The Toast List.

The toast list, over which Mr. Gordon presided as Chairman, was as follows:

The King, proposed by Mr. Gordon; our municipal institutions, proposed by E. M. Elliott and responded to by ex-Warden R. C. Strickland and ex-Warden W. H. Casement; the legal profession and the Judiciary, proposed by Mr. Gordon and replied to by Mr. Langley; our country, proposed by Reeve Nicholls and responded to by Reeve Eason; the Provincial institutions, proposed by Reeve Clark and responded to by Reeve Coughlin and Deputy-Reeve Anderson; the ladies, proposed by Reeve R. WHO PAYS FOR GOOD ROADS?

CONCISE PRESENTATION OF THE ONTARIO GOVERNMENT'S HIGHWAYS SCHEME BY ROBERT C. MUIR OF THE PROVINCIAL DEPARTMENT—ADDRESS TO THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

A clear and concise statement of the Ontario Government's good roads policy will be found in the following interesting article written by Mr. Robert C. Muir, M.E.I.C., chief engineer of county roads under the Department of Highways. Mr. Muir came to Peterboro on Wednesday at the request of some members of the County Council under the impression that he would be asked for information as to how several of the Peterboro townships could reduce the mileage of roads they had assumed for improvement under the Highways Act. Mr. Muir met most of the members before the afternoon session and remained in the county clerk's office until five o'clock, a stretch of three hours expecting to be called upstairs. When Council adjourned he discussed with local group of good roads reeves their position and requirements and discovered that his services would not actually be needed until the June sessions. The incident arose through a misunderstanding, but Mr. Muir came to Peterboro, although the Minister, Hon. Mr. Biggs, had intimated that he should remain in the office to answer possible telephone calls from County Councils in session this week.

Mr. Muir had drafted the following exposition of the highways policy upon which he intended to base his address to the council. It contains facts which are often the subject of inquiry and persons interested in the government's road scheme should file Mr. Muir's statement.

Classification of Roads.

Roads of the open country have until recently in Ontario been under the sole control of township councils. Experience in every country which has achieved a system of good roads has shown the necessity of classifying the roads according to traffic, placing each class under separate authority. By this means uniformity of construction is assured, opportunity for permanent maintenance is provided, and the cost can be more equitably distributed over the population and area benefited by the road.

The trend of road legislation in Ontario has been toward a threefold classification, so desirable for management and distribution of cost, and which is being evolved in the following manner:

1—Local or Township Roads, each carrying the traffic, or little more than the traffic, which is created by the farms adjoining the road, such roads to be controlled by and at the expense of township councils, aided by a Provincial subsidy.

2—County Leading Market Roads, the roads radiating from local market or shipping points, which carry a considerable accumulation of traffic; such roads to be controlled by and at the expense of the County Councils, aided by a Provincial subsidy; adjacent to cities, the city, may contribute toward the improvement.

3—Main Roads, known as Provincial highways, between important cities and other terminal points, under the control of the Department of Public Highways.

Township Roads.

Statute Labour—Township councils, in the earlier history of the Province, depended largely on statute labour for road improvement; this sstem having been created by the first Parliament of the Province (then Upper Canada) in 1796. Money expenditure, raised by general levy on the township assessment, has been steadily increasing. At the present time townships are spending annually over $4,500,000.

Township councils have authority to pass by-laws to commute or abolish statute labour, and about 50 per cent. of the townships have done so, while the number is steadily increasing.

Cost of Hauling—From statistics compiled by the Department during the past year, it was found that the average cost of hauling gravel by statute labour was $1.20 per cubic yard-mile as compared with 44 1-2 cents per cubic yard-mile by day labour or contract, statute labour rate being $2.00 ptr day.

Organisation—Good organisation is the first step toward good roads. The statute labour system is not a sound basis on which to build a good business organisation. Efficient organisation will have two main features:

1—Expenditure to be wholly on a cash basis, instead of statute labour, the mone to be raised by a rate on the general township assessment, in the same way as other township revenue.

2—Management to be placed under one permanent road superintendent for the township, acting under the direction of the council.

Superintendent—The Department is encouraging all townhips to place their road expenditure in charge of a permanent road superintendent, and to this end the Province will pay (under the Ontario Highways Act, 1920) 40 per cent. of the salary of such an official.

Aid to Townships—During the year 1920, an amendment to the Ontario Highways Act was created, whereby the Province would aid the townships to the extent of 20 per cent. on expenditure on all road improvement. This has been very much appreciated by the townships, judging from the number of townships that have passed the necessary by-laws as provided in the Act. Out of 380 townships eligible over 300 have met the requirements of the Act, and will receive aid for work performed during the year 1921.

All townships that are not receiving aid under the Colonisation Roads Act are entitled to pass the necessary by-laws and receive this aid.

County Roads.

Provincial aid to road construction is given principally through County Road Systems, under the Highway Improvement Act. The chief features of this Act are as follows:

1—A County Council is authorised to assume by by-law a system of roads for construction and maintenance, the Province contributing 40 per cent. of the expenditure.

2—The roads assumed are usually such as will accommodate the greater part of local market travel, creating a system of main market roads.

3—The mileage of roads assumed by a county is usually 12 to 20 per cent. of the total road mileage in the area covered by the county road system.

4—The direction and superintendence of the work to be placed in charge of an engineer appointed by the County Council. A committee of the County Council should cooperate with, advise and direct the superintendent.

Aid—The Provincial grant is paid annually, and is based on a statement of expenditure for the year, submitted to the Department by the County Council, and includes all the costs of labour, material, engineering services, salary of road superintendent, machinery, and bridges on the designated system of county roads.

Grants to Towns and Villages—Under Section 5 of the Highway Improvement Act, the County Council may by by-law make grants to towns and villages not separated from the county, for the improvement of extensions or connecting links of county roads in such towns or villages, and the amount of such grants may be included in the statement of annual expenditure. Grants eligible for a Provincial subsidy are those made to towns or villages having a population of over 1,500, provided the improvement is carried out on roads passing agricultural land. These by-laws must have the approval of the Minister of Highways.

The relief given to township councils by placing the most heavily traveled market roads under the country road system is a direct form of aid to all the township roads

All Counties Adopt it

All counties in the Province are now operating under this system, and 9,600 miles have been designated for improvement, and to which the Provincial grant is assured. The county of Peterboro having the distinction of being the last county to adopt the system. The average mileage of designated County Roads is approximately 230 miles in each county.

Provincial County Roads

Provincial County Roads designated by the Department are roads which, because of their length and

THE COUNTY SHORTHORN BREEDERS HELD A SALE

Prices Averaged About $78 a Head, While the Total Realized $2,887—Fair Prices Considering Market Conditions.

Yesterday afternoon in the Montgomery Hotel Stables the Peterborough County Shorthorn Breeders' Association held their annual sale. Breeders from all parts of the country were present and thirty seven head of stock were sold. The sale, which opened about 1 p.m. was in charge of Messrs. George and Ted Jackson, well-known Port Perry auctioneers F. C. McRae, of Norwood, secretary-treasurer of the Association, attended to the records.

Sales aggregated $2,887, making an average sale price per head of about $78. Considering market conditions, Mr. McRae, who is the agricultural representative for the county, said he believed the prices were very fair and up to his most sanguine expectations. Only a few breeders bought more than a single head of stock Richard Walsh, well-known Hastings buyers secured four head, Albert Hore, of Dunsford, three, E. H. Brown, Peterborough, two, and A. P. Donaldson, of Peterborough, two.

Good Weather.

The sale was favoured with good sleighing and more moderate weather conditions and the combination of these two undoubtedly accounted for the large attendance. "GREEN TUG" UNDER GUARD

Customs Officers Take Precautions to Prevent Possible Leakage of the Cargo Onto Prohibition Soil.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press.)—The tug Harbinger, carrying 300 cases of Canadian whiskey, is lying at a shipyard at West New Brighton to-day, undergoing repairs, while a patrol of Customs officers stand guard to prevent possible leakage of the cargo on to prohibition soil.

The Harbinger, from St. John, N. B., is bound for Nassau, Bahama Islands, but acting on information that her cargo actually was destined for Perth Amboy, N.J., United States Coast Guard cutters have haunted her course all down the Atlantic coast.

To-day, when the "green tug with the black stacks," hove into the East River, she encountered the cutter Gresham, waiting to escort her wherever she wanted to go.

No move was made to arrest officers of the tug, or to attack her cargo. Customs onfficers were content with an examination of the hold, to verify the nature of the contents —Canadian whiskey. They assert they have instructions to keep an eye on the Harbinger, when she continues on her voyage to the Bahamas, to make sure that the liquor does not disappear during the tug's frequent visits to United States ports for fuel and supplies.

PASSING OF WATERLOO

WATERLOO, Belgium, Jan. 27.—(Associated Press)—One of the new names suggested for this town is "Fochloo", after Field Marshal Foch. The desire to change the name is due to an effort to avoid recalling "the humiliation of an Allied and friendly power"—the defeat of Napoleon.

A petition is now being circulated among the residents of Waterloo asking parliament to pass a bill abandoning the old name. Several new names beside that of 'Fochloo' have been suggested.

IDENTIFIED ACCUSED

Evidence in Montreal Murder Trial — Mother Left in Burning Building.

STE. SCHOLASTIQUE, Que., January 27 (Canadian Press). — "It is not necessary to look at him. His features are engraved on my memory for life."

With these words Alfred Clermont identified Osias Riopel in Court here yesterday, at the trial in which the later is charged with the murder in November, 1920, of Mrs. Clermont at Ste. Veronique de Turgeen.

The whole sitting of the Court yesterday afternoon was taken up with the continuation of evidence by Alfred Clermont, son of the victim, and himself alleged at the time of the tragedy to have been murderously assaulted by Riopel. He reconstituted in Court the whole story of the crime. About 9.30 in the evening of 24th November, he declared his mother told him to go to th door, as something strange was happening.

"Opening the door, I saw Riopel, who, without saying a word, struck me with a knife on the right cheek. I grasped the knife by the blade with my right hand and tried to break it, but without success. Riopel then struck me twice in the face with the knife, and I fell down. When he struck me the first time I grabbed the knife and said: 'You are going to hurt me, Mr. Riopel.' He merely replied, 'I can never hurt you

MEIGHEN IS BACK AGAIN

Was Returned in Eastern Constituency By a Substantial Majority — The Result Was Never in Doubt.

Led All the Way.

PRESCOTT, Jan. 27. Canadian Press.—Right Hon. Arthur Meighen was returned to parliament by a majority of 1620 votes over his opponent, A. K. Patterson, Progressive candidate, in Grenville County bye-election yesterday.

The complete returns gave Mr. Meighen 4438 votes and his opponent 2818. The total vote was ninety per cent of that polled in the recent federal election in this riding.

Throughout the riding the vote was considerably lighter than in the previous election. This was particularly true of the urban centres, such as Prescott, Cardinal and Kemptville. The reason given for the small vote was the indifference of Liberals, but the majority of the Liberals who did vote supported the Progressive candidate. Mr. Meighen secured his largest support in the urban centres.

Before the complete returns were in but when it was certain that Mr. Meighen would be elected, the former Premier wired his thanks from Ottawa to A. C. Casselman for the services rendered by his supporters throughout the riding.

Mr. Patterson, the defeated candidate, received the returns at his home.

Asked for a statement, he said — "I do not feel very well and would prefer not to make any statement."

PRESS COMMENT.

MONTREAL, January 27. Canadian Press. — The Montreal Gazette says:

"The election of Mr. Meighen restores to the House of Commons one of the ablest debaters that the Chamber has known and assures to the public a critical analysis of all legislative measures. . . . We expect him to be free from rancor of disappointed ambition and to employ his talent and influence in promoting desirable legislation from whichever party it may come."

TIMELY PRECAUTIONS.

Dr. Young, Medical Officer of Health, has issued a list of precautions which he deems it advisable that the people of Peterborough should follow to protect themselves from a possibility of contagion from influenza. Many of his suggestions are such as should be adopted as a part of the regular routine regardless of any possible danger of an epidemic of influenza of the type which carried off so many lives several years ago. There is no need of being panic-stricken because of the M.O.H.'s action. The "flu," it is true, is prevalent in England, but the only point on this Continent which has reported any evidence of an outbreak is New York City, and it so far has not assumed the proportions of an epidemic. The disease may not spread across the Continent, at least there are at present no signs of it doing so, but Dr. Young is wise in issuing his warning in time to be of service to the community. Citizens would do well to clip out the instructions of the city's Medical Officer and to endeavour to carry them out as fully as possible. They will find them of benefit if the "flu" is never heard of again in Peterborough.

HELP FOR RURAL CANADA.

The resolution introduced at the annual meeting of the Social Service Council of Canada at Winnipeg this week in reference to the need of nurses and doctors in the rural sections of Canada, is one that should receive a wide measure of support. It suggests that every pressure should be brought to bear upon the Provincial and Federal Governments to the end that some co-operative scheme may be worked out by the two whereby medical and nursing services might be supplied to outlying districts by bonusing a doctor to go into these districts under the direction of the Provincial Government. The resolution urges that each Province should have as many representatives in the health and nursing services as it has agricultural representatives. That there is every need of some such plan as is suggested by the Social Service Council will be admitted by everybody who has come into contact with conditions as they exist in many sections of Ontario. In our own county of Peterborough the northern portions offer a field for the nursing services suggested. The advent of the motor car has, of course, brought the doctors nearer than in the old days, but there is still great need of the presence in such districts of an expert in health matters. Lives would be saved each year if means of assistance were available, and the plan proposed by the Social Service Council offers a workable scheme for effecting a big improvement in the conditions.

A BROADER RELIEF POLICY.

The new Government at Ottawa is embarking upon a policy in regard to unemployment relief that should go a long way towards carrying Canada through the present crisis. At least it affords the municipalities every encouragement to launch out upon a programme of public work that will take care of most of those who at present are without employment. The plan is a broadening out of the scheme announced by the Meighen Government, whch offered to pay one-third of the excess cost of any work undertaken during the present winter to provide employment, provided the municipality and the Province would each contribute a third. The Government of Hon. Mr. King proposes to lift the burden of the excess cost almost completely off the shoulders of the municipalities. It might take the position that the latter should take the initiative in the relief programme, but when they have done so the Federal Government will pay one-half of the excess cost instead of one-third as under the old scheme. This will leave the Province to pay one-third of the excess as before, but the municipality would only have to contribute one-sixth. Here is how the plan will work out: Peterborough, for example, might embark upon a programme of sewer construction, work that under normal circumstances would not be thought of in the winter months. Building these sewers in the summer might cost approximately $8,000, but to undertake them during the unfavourable winter conditions would mean a total cost of $11,000. Of the excess $3,000 the Federal Government would pay $1,500 and the Provincial Government $1,000, leaving the municipality only $500 more to pay than would have had to be expended on the work in the usual way. For an expenditure of $500 Peterborough would, therefore, be providing employment for a large number of her unemployed. The announcement of the Government's new plan should stimulate the municipalities to more boldly tackle the unemployment question.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

Barron's, one of the best posted and most influential financial publications in the United States, in its last issue published an editorial review of Canada's prospects that is a convincing answer to the pessimists who can see nothing but financial blue ruin in front of the Dominion. The editor of Barron's asks the significant question, "Where is the outlook better or as good?" This article is tonic in its effect. Here it is:

"Canada has her troubles. They are the lesser problems of resumed growth, not of reconstruction. She has no war currency to deflate. Her budget practically balances. In foreign trade her cash position is stronger than a year ago. Her production increases. No other country in the world in the world can point to the combination of all these factors in January, 1922.

"If the course of exchange be the true augury of 1922 eventualities, the Canadian outlook is 100 per cent. better than a year ago. The new year opened with Montreal dollars at a 5 per cent. discount. The old year began business with Montreal dollars worth 85 cents apiece in New York.

"In the particulars which receive first consideration when methods of actual reconstruction are authoritatively discussed, currency, budget and foreign trade, the Dominion satisfies the requirements of international credit.

"But for railway investments, public revenue for two-thirds of the current fiscal year would exceed expenditure by a surplus almost again as large as the deficit of $26,000,000 disclosed. Revenue is larger than in 1920.

"Originating a generation ago, the Canadian railway problem outranks all others in fundamental importance. But it has always been and remains a detail of growth, huge as it bulks today.

"Actual gain in cash position of Canadian foreign trade is stronger by $150,000,000 than 12 months ago. Both exports and bank clearings have declined less than our own.

"Land values have happily escaped most of the inflation which carried wheat on the ground from 70 and 80 cents a bushel to $2 and $3. Pessimism, faithfully portrayed by commercial reviews, in their New Year's greetings, has, as was human, run riot in western mercantile centres. The fundamentals, calling for more industry in compilation, have been neglected.

"Grain production is of record size. At the lowest prices since 1915 the farmer receives more real value of all kinds out of those prices than wheat boards could ever bring to him. Land values at least have not to undergo the sharper wrenches of deflation.

"Immigration sets in. Building revives and building costs decline. Production increases. Where is the outlook better or as good?"

PREVENTION OF CRIME.

Not in a long time has a statement been made which contained more sound sense upon a question never thoroughly thought out than that of The New York World in discussing Governor Miller's contribution to the problem of crime prevention. The World says:

"Experience has shown that in periods of economic depression crimes against life and property are more numerous than in periods of prosperity; but experience has also shown that more depends on the effective enforcement of the criminal laws than on anything else. Great Britain is going through a period of economic adversity far more serious than anything that the United States has experienced. She had more men in the war than the United States had, and they were engaged in war for a much longer time. The desire to live high and live easily is as strong in Great Britain as it is here, and the automobile is quite as useful to the criminal there as to the criminal here; yet there is no situation in Great Britain in respect to crime corresponding to the situation in the United States; nor would London for a day tolerate conditions that New York accepts as a matter of course."

What is the best way of preventing crime? Making punishme more severe? Making the treatment of criminals more humane? Passing new laws at Albany or new ordinances at the City Hall? All these have failed, because not a single one of them goes to the root of the matter. The first, the greatest, the indispensable deterrent is certainty of punishment. If the odds in New York are five to one against conviction, while the criminal in London gets only an even-money chance, there will be exactly five times as many crimes in New York as there are in London; and that is practically the situation today.

Nothing is more important to those who have the handling of the investment money of the country than security of life and property. No explanation is needed for dealing with such a subject here. Wall Street has a well-grounded contempt for the correspondence-school detectives who occasionally get on the front page of newspapers, in connection with the "bomb outrage" or the robbery of messenger boys. But if it were a matter of money Wall Street is prepared to pay for such an institution as Scotland Yard. It would necessarily be an organization completely removed from the control of mere politicians like Hylan and Enright, who so far from knowing what is wanted are mentally incapable of understanding what is wanted.

Every criminal is a gambler. He is incapable of consecutive work, or consecutive thought. To that extent at least, he is a defective. But, being a gambler, he bases his plans on estimated risk, even if he is not intelligent enough to foresee the ultimate personal consequences of crime. When the counsel for a respectable shoplifter pleaded before an English judge that she had "yielded to an uncontrollable impulse," the judge instructed the jury. He said: "You are to consider whether the impulse would have been uncontrollable if if she had known that a policeman was looking." The verdict can be easily imagined.—Wall Street Journal.

Reeve Strickland Was Host

Gordon and responded to by Warden Strickland; the financial institutions, proposed by Mr. Gordon and responded to by Mr. Connell and Mr. Sutton.

A glowing vote of thanks to Warden Strickland as host was moved by Mr. Tanner and seconded by Dr. Smith, to which the Warden replied that it had been a great pleasure to have had the opportunity of entertaining the County Council and his other friends.

Mr. R. C. Strickland, rising to Mr. Gordon's request for a parting speech, recalled an amusing incident in connection with a bridge inspection trip by a deputation from a former County Council, which he related at the expense of the present members. It was a pointed story and the most effective of the evening.

Toward the close of the toasts, Warden Strickland proposed the health of the Premier of Canada, the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie-King, which was duly honored, eliciting from Harry Fitzgerald the good-humored remark, "That's mighty hard to swallow." A pleasing feature of the banquet was the fact that the concluding vote of thanks to the host was proposed by C. S. Tanner, whom Warden Strickland defeated for the Reeveship of Lakefield by some 70 votes in the recent municipal elections.

In addition to those who have already been mentioned, were others who have been prominently identified with the administration of the affairs of Peterborough County. Not only the veteran Reeves, excluding "Bob" Shaw of Harvey, who was unable to attend, but also ex-Wardens in the persons of C. J. Darling, George B. Nicholls and W. A. Anderson were mentioned in the encomiums which some of the speakers addressed to those who faithfully and intelligently serve the public in municipal office. Incidentally, it is noteworthy that Mr. Anderson is another son who attained the Wardenship his father had held before him.

Need of Reforestation.

Facetiously affirming his belief in heredity, Mr. R. C. Strickland remarked that since the election of his son to the Wardenship implied his mental qualifications for the position, then surely some of the honor was reflected to the parent.

Mr. Strickland said he found one fault with the County Council. Their vision was sometimes not broad enough. They were legislating for the county of Peterborough, and that, of course, was their first duty, but at the same time they should try to acquire a wider perspective. Instead of confining all their attentions to the immediate requirements of the county, they should take thought of the Province and of the problems of future generations.

"Premier Drury was right when he said that in twenty-five years we would have no forests unless something was done," Mr. Strickland said, "One little word will not cost you five cents. You could pass a resolution urging the other counties to join with you in memorializing the Government to adopt a general scheme of reforestation. Posterity will bless you if that work is begun now. In sixty years, Mr. Drury says, we will get results from present seeding, but what we need is to protect the forests we have now. Unless something like that is done, I am afraid our great grandchildren will have nothing to cover their heads."

A Bit of History.

In his congratulations to the new Warden, Mr. Casement corrected a conjecture that recently appeared in The Examiner regarding the ownership of the gown with which the newly-elected Wardens are robed. "Mr. Pearce told me that gown was made at the time of the visit of the Prince of Wales to Canada. Wondering how he could get the Warden into a presentable condition, that gown was made, and it has been in possession of the county ever since."

The Warden's gown has its own traditions, and it is a true symbol of the distinction the office confers upon the incumbent.

Lakefield Doubly Honored.

In proposing the toast to the legal profession, Mr. Gordon reminded the assembly that Lakefield had been highly honored in the appointment of Mr. O. A. Langley to the position of Chief Magistrate of the city of Peterborough. Mr. Gordon spoke of the responsibility imposed upon Mr. Langley and the importance of his work, especially in dealing with juvenile cases and first offenders. Magistrate Langley, he said, was especially and peculiarly fitted for the honor that had been conferred upon him.

Mr. Langley's reply was an eloquent tribute to Warden Strickland, concluding with high praise for Mr. Gordon, both as a public man and a member of the bar.

Lakefield had taken on a new life with the election of Mr. Strickland as Reeve for the first time three years ago, Mr. Langley said, mentioning some of the projects that had been carried into effect.

"We are greatly pleased at his election to the Wardenship, and we feel confident the County Council will not regret it."

The Warden's Gratitude.

Replying to the congratulations and the tributes that had been conveyed to him, Warden Strickland stated that he was very thankful to the County Council for their gift of the Wardenship. He refused to take the credit for securing the Hydro-electric service for Lakefield, saying that it was voted on at the election when he was first returned as Reeve. The people had voted on it and the credit was, therefore, due to the old Council at that time. W. J. Charlton, as a private citizen had also actively advocated the agreement for Hydro-electric power.

"One of the greatest pleasures I have had in the last three years," continued Mr. Strickland, "was in getting down to the County Council. I soon felt that I had a friend in every member. We were one big family, and got along well together. Lakefield hadn't a Reeve elected as Warden for 31 years, so I suppose the County Council was beginning to think it was about time the village was recognized again. That helped me a whole lot. Mr. Clark and Mr. Eason were due for the Wardenship, but they retired and gave it to me by acclamation."

Mr. Strickland averred that he had always been lucky, and in that instance luck had again been with him.

Hospitality Appreciated.

The members of the Council in their speeches expressed their pleasure with the election of Warden Strickland and testified to his fine personal qualities, and also to his fitness for the chief position in Peterborough County. They particularly thanked him for his hospitality in providing the splendid banquet of the evening, and the whole assembly gave Warden Strickland an ovation of cheers and the old festive songs of goodfellowship. The motor trips to and from Lakefield were made without mishap, and the Peterborough group returned home at 10.30 p.m. after an evening of rare enjoyment.

BEGIN HOT WATER DRINKING IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is aching; if what you eat sours and forms acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisonous waste, gases and sour bile before eating more food.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood and muscles became loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate, which is inexpensive and almost tasteless.

Men and women who are usually constipated, bilious, headachy or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast.

JAILER RESIGNS BUT CARRIES ON FOR THE PRESENT

Motion in County Council To Cut Salaries to 1914 Figures Was Defeated—Warsaw Wants to Be Entrance Examination Centre.

A request that Warsaw be made an entrance examination centre was made to the County Council on Thursday morning by a deputation composed of Joseph Tedford, Charles Bolton and Percy Kidd. They contended that the number of children in that section who try their entrance examinations each year was large enough to warrant provision for holding the examinations in Warsaw instead of requiring the students to go to Lakefield or Norwood. This petition was referred to the Committee on Schools.

Jailer Resigns

Mr. Henderson Nesbitt, jailer of Peterborough County Jail, told the Council that he had handed his resignation to Mr. Griffith, last year's Warden, but that he had heard nothing further about it.

Warden Strickland said the Council would be sorry to lose Mr. Nesbitt who had been an efficient and faithful public servant for many years.

Mr. Nesbitt stated that he would continue at his post until a new appointment was made.

A Dummer Deputation

A deputation from Dummer Township including Mr. E. N. McDonald, M.L.A., J. Drain and F. Miles asked the Council to revise the method of expending money on roads in the township in order that more money might be spent on less mileage with better results to the community.

Bridge Work Plans

Reeve Shaw reminded the Council of the work that had to be proceeded with on the Squaw river bridge. The completion of the approaches should be proceeded with now, he advised, and the Council appointed Warden Strickland and Reeves Eason and Holland to act with Reeve Shaw in arranging the details for the completion of the bridge.

Reeve Rye referred to the work that had been ordered on the Wallace Point bridge, and Deputy-Reeve Andreson was appointed to act in conjunction with the representatives of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham on this work.

Reeve Breckenbridge asked that Taylor's bridge in Belmont be inspected, Reeve Scott asked for an inspection of Boland's bridge in Asphodel and Reeve Montgomery of Norwood for an inspection of the Victoria street bridge in the village. Warden Strickland, Reeves Eason Scott and Montgomery were authorized to make the inspections and Reeve Breckenbridge to assist in the inspection of Taylor's bridge.

Reeve Nicholls said that the Young's Point Bridge needed repairs. Hynes bridge in Douro was cited by Reeve Coughlin for a "once over", and Perry's bridge on the Burleigh road in Harvey Township by Reeve Shaw.

Warden Nicholls, Mr. Eason, Mr. Nicholls and Mr. Coughlin were delegated to make these inspections and were given power to act in certain particulars.

Reeves Darling, Coughlin and Eason and the Warden were instructed to inspect Ford street bridge in Warsaw at Mr. Darling's request.

The Salary Question

A resolution by Reeves Shaw and Brown to rescind the resolution pertaining to salaries which was passed at the last sessions of the Council was carried, but Reeve Eason's motion seconded by Reeve Scott that all salaries be reduced to 1914 levels, except in cases where special reasons could be adduced for the retention of the increases, was defeated.

IMPRESSIVE SCENE AT THE FUNERAL OF POPE BENEDICT XV

IN THE LIGHT OF PERPETUALLY BURNING CAPERS, BODY WAS LOWERED INTO TOMB BENEATH THE FLAGSTONES OF ST. PETER'S.

ROME, Jan. 27. — (Canadian Press.)— Beneath the flagstones of St. Peter's, where thousands of pilgrims come each year, lie the mortal remains of Benedict XV., whose benignant efforts through all the years of the war were directed toward peace, and after the war, to the pacification of Europe and the world.

The burial ceremony took place at three o'clock yesterday afternoon, and in the light of the perpetually burning tapers the body was lowered into its tomb. Those cardinals who had gathered in Rome for the conclave which is to elect a new Pope, assembled in the Basilica of St. Peter's, together with the diplomatic representatives of the foreign nations accredited to the Holy See. Outside the edifice great crowds knelt in prayer and waited for the end of the solemn ceremonial.

Impressive Scene.

The strains of the "Miserere" swelling through the vast Basilica, the martial step and clank of swords of the Pontifical armed forces, the flowing of robes of prelates, rich violet, blending with the striking costumes of the Swiss Guards, the gendenmerie and the Noble Guards, and contrasting with the simple black of the diplomatic corps, combined to give a picturesque impressiveness to the high pontifical rite of burial.

The choir proceeding from Julian Chapel, on the south side of St. Peter's, across the transept to the chapel of the Holy Sacrament, where the body of the late Pope lay in State. Bishop Virlic, celebrant of the ceremony, followed the choir and at the end of the procession came Cardinal Merry Del Val, Arch-Priest of St. Peter's.

Two lines of guards were drawn up from the chapel of the Holy Sacrament to the high pontificial altar. Swiss Guards in full dress uniforms, with quaint medieval helmet and flowing plumes, guarded the entrance to the choir.

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

She Kept Her Locks Dark and Glossy, with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

THERE are certain gallant superstitions which have established themselves as greater than law or reason. One of them is grand opera; another is that blind worship of the South and everything Southern, all along that stretch north of that line laid out by Messrs. Mason and Dixon. Acrobats and animal acts know that for a whoop-'em-up, surefire finish in Minnesota or Vermont, th. orchestra need only to bang into "Dixie," and the Northerners will be ashamed not to cheer.

There have been various analyses of this mushy reaction. The most popular one is that Northerners honor the South for its game stand, to the last ditch, in the not so very recent internecine rough and tumble. All honors to the Rebs, and all that sort of thing, of course—but what has it to do with tumblers and other foreigners who write a strain of "Dixie" into their routine score, and sell it dearly?

And why do all the specious "Southern" songs, written by tin-can immigrants of the first generation, published by shrewd jobbers, popularized by opportunists on the stage, sell like mad when they sob about the Swanee River in Carolina, the levee in Virginia, the cotton in Kentucky and the Mississippi laving the beloved shore of Georgia? Why do we tremolo the fake griefs of the pathetic darkies, when their independent attitude is one of the sore spots of our vexing servant problem?

Because, doggone it, there is something romantic about Dixie, something that the Yanks cannot withstand. The South is no richer in tradition than Pennsylvania or New Jersey or even that hard, so-much-for-much-more metropolis of speed and greed, New York. But its tradition is softer, sweeter; its climate is balmier; its commercialism is not so vividly pronounced; its cities are not so vast and powerful—and its accent is more sibilant and melodious.

Ah, yes—that accent. That's at the bottom of it all.

One who has heard that dulcet drawl intoning cadences of love has heard the symphony of angels. Be it in a maudlin ballad or in a murderous melodrama, it has a charm that cuddles to the heart and pussyfoots its seductive way into the soul, like a croon in a minor key from the soft reeds of a vibrant organ.

Given a true Southern accent, a girl can conquer the world—the whole world, even the South; for the Southerners yield to it, themselves. But, in the marts of traffic and of trade, where the penetrating shrillness of cold United States pierces the tympanum and the harshness of hoarse phrases pounds the drum of the tortured ear, the frail with a Southern voice in this skyscraper wilderness plays upon the cello strings in the mad, boisterous, fortissimo orchestra of blaring brass and jangling jazz.

This was not unknown to Daisy Dean of Georgia. Daisy was known as Diamond Daisy, also as Dixie Daisy, also as Dainty Daisy. She had been indicted a score of times by grand juries who didn't see—or hear—her, and as many times turned loose by petit juries who did.

Daisy had invaded the No'th with much more success than Stonewall Jackson or the much sung Robert E. Lee had ever put over. She was a dip de luxe, which is intended to convey that she was a perfect little lady, except that she would steal. She would and did. Her delicately manicured fingers had the fleet and sensitive tact of a virtuoso's. And when she was "jammed," she Dixie accented herself out of any corner, abetted by a pair of appealing eyes and a tippy-tilted nose.

Dixie Daisy always said that she was descended of an ante-bellum family of Southern planters. And that was correct—her great-grandfather had been an undertaker in Macon. She felt that the rich and roaring North owed her a living because if it hadn't been for the high-handed freeing of her family's slaves, she would have been a belle with nothing to worry about but boll weevils and hospitality.

"Yes," she sighed, "Abra'm Lincoln drove me to this life!"

Whatever it was that drove her, she took to it like a duck to apple sauce. She cruised the main drags of the leading ports and lifted a luscious living from the wallets of the wise. Only cash—coin—currency tempted Daisy; no "junk" for the melting pot or telltale truck for the pawn broker. Money has no identity, and "shoving" it entails no accessories. Daisy played it all on her own, always.

The grand opera attracted her. Daisy was an opera fan, for in the aisles and in the lobby of the gathering place of the rich and esoteric she humored her taste for touching the best society. Evening dress is the softest picking, too, for it isn't the conventional and orderly outfit in which the man is accustomed to keeping his wallet, as a matter of established system, where it is most inaccessible. Pockets in evening clothes are not distributed or designed like pockets in day clothes, and a purse may rest in a guarded cache all day, each day, only to be slipped into a slit inside the slippery lining of a clawhammer coat or even in the tail pocket, which is glorified by boosters and called "dips' delight."

At the opera a man is usually with a lady or with a party of other gentlemen and ladies; his thoughts are far from his "roll;" his collar is perpendicular instead of turnover; his hat is a Zep instead of a flopper; his hands are gloved, his trousers pockets are exposed to the air and not covered by a coat, and he is bored silly by the whole procedure.

Dixie Daisy, like so many other prima donnas, took full advantage of that golden aura which gleams irridescently about the skull of grand opera, and which is worth several thousand cents to the dollar for everyone who gets in on the racket. She knew that grand opera knew no law, that it was subject to none of the bookkeeping, cash register, decimal system or common sense exactions of other grafts, and that everyone who strung with it had the same inside start that a swindler with a "religious" cult or a physician who promises to make women beautiful enjoys—it isn't open to argument or to logic, it can name its own figure, it can claim its own handout.

She felt almost like an accredited member of the company, save that she had never been named as a co-respondent and had no toilet accessories named after her. She was an artist, she never arose until afternoon, she was only a so-so singer, and she worked only two or three performances a month.

At the height of the season she divided her efforts between Chicago and New York. First nights and gala programs were her high spots.

In Chicago there was a box-office man whose world, like it is with most box-office men, is the lobby of his theatre. He reads there, from his viewpoint behind the grated window of his estate, many comedies, romances, dramas and tragedies. He never turns around, for there is nothing behind him; in that he has a keen edge on most of us, for we are distracted by interests or potential ones on all sides of us. The box-office man has concentration, yet he has vision, for the entire lobby is within the focus of his scrutiny.

He can tell the passholder from the paid admission by the attitude toward the ticket-taker. He can distinguish the harried husband waiting for his procrastinating wife from the fevered lover impatient for the coming of his enamorata. He can spot the ticket scalper addressing a prospect though he wear the livery of the elect and swing the manners of the elite. He can single out the box-holder from the main floor mob, even though the tickets had been bought at a hotel stand. He can classify a chump by seeing where he hides his tickets or give a shark credit by glancing at how he slips ahead in the line. They say a mother knows more about her child than the wisest corporation lawyer could; and, why not? She looks at it all day long and listens to it most of the night. So a theatre treasurer may know little about the transmutation of metals, less about pinochle, nothing at all about invertebrate paleontology—yet everything about psychology, physiognomy, philosophy society, perversity, cupidity, stupidity, economy and larceny, as 'trised into the close-ups of the myriad manifestations of the seething coming, going throngs in the lobby.

So it chanced that a ticket-seller (also known to the trade as a treasurer, a pasteboard-pusher, a punch-hole pirate and a short-change shover), gave Daisy the all-over two or three times in Chicago and his peeled and practised optic wig-wagged to his trained brain that she was no society deb, no musical college canary, no altruistic devotee of the arts and no lonely working damsel driven desperate for diversion.

He did not immediately pipe her as a leather-lifter, but he pegged her as suspicious and watched her. He saw her walk abstractedly toward the ticket window and bump squarely into the protuberant promontory distinguishing the prosperous front of a prominent financier; he saw her stammer an abashed apology, and he saw the stock and bond mogul profusely assure her that it was quite all right—no harm had been done. No harm had been done except that Daisy had abstracted his portly billfold and bitten a pearl out of his middle stud. The treasurer then understood—for he was conversant with the modus operandi.

He did not call the police. He was at the moment selling a stout lady two seats for $2.20 each. She gave him a $20 bill. He told her he could give her very much better seats at $3.30 each, which would be only $6.60. She declined. He said: "Very well, madame—$6.60, $7, $8, $9, $10 and ten is twenty. Thank you, ma'am. Next, please."

Daisy had, meanwhile, left the lobby.

Three nights later he saw her again, this time in the box-office line during a heavy window sale for a premium performance. He saw her gravitating toward a young blood, who was so preoccupied in whiffing pleasant persiflage at a vivacious young matron that Daisy could have sawed his leg off and he wouldn't have known it. She brushed against him three times before she nicked him for a careless wad in his left trousers pocket, which operation she camouflaged with her cape so that it should not be observed by prying eyes. But the ticket-trimmer saw and knew, though at the moment he was quitely rebating a foundered speculator ninety per cent of what he had paid on returned tickets he had no business to return.

The box-office man, being no limb of the law and no patriot, just let it ride that way.

A few days later, toward the end of the Chicago engagement, and on the verge of the "jump" to New York, where the midwestern opery was about to augment its deficit, he was alone in his cage, counting up what the tern of art and uplift had netted him. The crowding about the window had ceased. There was to be but one more performance in town, and nothing remained but to pay for the special train, push the heavy wages at the temperamental garglers, salve everybody-- and present the bill for the damages to the packers, the machinery manufacturers and the climbers who acted as angels in the operatic heavens.

Into the lobby tripped Dixie Daisy. She carried a little patent leather case, such as women call an "overnight bag." The ticket man looked up.

Type will not attempt to set to music the speeches of Daisy, in the key of the sunny South, with the retards and the soothing piano. Translated into sheer American, her talk will no more convey what she said and how she said what she said than a word picture could convey the light in a houri's eyes or the gracefulness of a Kanaka diver. However, with all the limitations, let the type record in harsh characters that Daisy said in sacharine modulations syruped with southern sibilants:

"Would you mind changing a hundred dollar bill for me?"

The treasurer looked at her and at the bill that she laid on the stone shelf before him. He picked it up, turned it over, held it to the light, rubbed it between his divining thumb and finger.

"Isn't it all right?" asked Daisy.

"I guess it is," answered the treasurer. "Where'd you get it?"

Now, a perfect lady would have indignantly refused to answer, or at least told the animal in the cage that he was an impudent puppy with a lot of crust. But Daisy was by no means perfect. So she smiled the sugar smile that went with the honey-drip accent, and only rejoined:

"None of your business."

Mutual terms having been thus established, he went on:

"I'd be careful if I was you, passing big bills around here. If you snaked this off of young Carstairs, the chump you rolled over in the corner there, it's safe enough. But if this is part of the grift you hoisted off old Laramie, the banker, he's prob'ly got a record of every note, with the serial number, and is personally acquainted with the picture of Andrew Jackson on it."

"Were do you get it?" chirped Daisy. "You talk in a strange language, and I can't follow you."

"You talk a kind of distant lingo, yourself," he bounced back. "And I like it. What part of New Orleans do you come from?.'

"Geo'gia."

"Oh—Geo'gia. Well, you never learned your trade down there. You've been educated in Northern finishing schools. Vassar—or Bedford—or Geneva?"

"My mother taught me all I know,' said Daisy with a saxaphone sigh.

"If she did, she was a bear. I watched you operate on a couple of marks in the lobby, Miss Geo'gia, and I want to say you bore in, lead with both hands, pull the one-two and the footwork getaway better than any bantam of your class I ever saw work."

"Thanks," said Daisy. "No use claiming a foul with a wise referee like you. Glad you admired the technique. How about my change?"

"Coming up. But, while I count it, would you mind telling me why a little peach like you, with prob'ly everything that most girls would envy you for, takes those long shots in frisking fish for a few beans, when you could get the right rummy in a corner once, let loose those limpid lamps, smile at him with those rising sun lips, and say 'Dadda' once in that Geo'gia lullaby release of your trained throat—and your troubles would be over."

"Well, I'll tell you," she crooned. "I come of the Southern artistocracy and I have certain ideals.

"I wouldn't smile a dime out of the same man that I'd fan for a Winter bankroll. A lady doesn't trim her friends or acquaintances. You, for instance—you've been mighty nice to me, though I didn't know it. I wouldn't take a dollar of yours if you left it on that window and went out for a week. There's a difference.

Circumstances over which I had no control made me poor. Circumstances over which others haven't much control, keep me going. But I couldn't—oh, I never could—involve myself socially in questionable transactions. As long as it's touch-and-go, and I don't really have to meet these people, that's quite another thing. Even then, as you notice, I choose grand opera crowds, where the run of folks is of the higher order, instead of electing to play the rattlers or the cheaper theatres, where one bumps into goodness knows whom. Do you see my point?"

"I think I get you," he answere, as he scratched his nose with his long nail, the one on the little finger. "I never looked at it just that way, and if I did it would cramp my style. You see, the people I have to take, I have to meet first. I can't afford to be as snobbishly exclusive as you are. Before I trim them I have to establish formal relations."

"I'm very sorry for you. It must be most embarrassing. Toward strangers one doesn't feel that obligation that comes after exchanging the courtesies of life, even such courtesies as you No'the'ners observe, which are little enough."

"Well, it never embarrassed me much. I never gave it just that slant until you called it to my attention. Hereafter, I suppose, I won't be able to strut my best stuff with the same swing that I've been putting in it. . . . Let's see, you gave me a hundred-dollar bill."

"Yes—a hundred."

"No question about it. But, when I first looked at it, I thought it was a ten. Did you notice how much the new hundreds look like the tens? In a rush I always have to look at 'em twice, to tell a hundred from a ten. A ten—and ten is twenty, and ten is thirty and twenty is fifty, and fifty—there's your hundred. And good luck."

"A ten may look like a hundred," peeped Daisy, without touching the bills he had counted out, "but two tens, a twenty and a fifty, don't. Come clean. That racket is older than the stockyards."

"Oh—did I make a mistake."

"You bet you did—two of them. Kick in with ten and like it."

"Hey," said the treasurer, flipping a ten-spot toward her, "don't I even get ten per cent scalpage?"

"For what?"

"For letting you get away with it—twice."

"Oh, that? I'm surprised at you, trying to swindle a friend, in the first place, then asking commission from a sister. Don't you recognize the profession. Come now, my ten dollars!"

"Oh," he muttered. "Didn't I give you that? All right—here."

"Thanks."

"Beat it," said the treasurer, "before I get drowsy on that Geo'gia music and give you my necktie pin."

"I couldn't take it—now that we've met. Thanks so much. Ta-ta."

FOUR HUNDRED DEATHS IN PARIS.

Killed on Capital's Streets By Automobiles.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—(Associated Press).—Four hundred persons were killed in Paris streets by automobiles or horse-drawn vehicles, tramways and other means of locomotion in 1921.

The problem of street traffic has been the subject of many investigations and numerous reports and recommendations have been made to Prefect of Police Leuillier.

Some time ago "red bands" about six feet wide were painted across the streets at the intersections of the busiest corners of the city, policemen were stationed at these points to motion automobiles to slow up and pedestrians crossing the streets on the "red bands" were supposed to be in absolute safety.

Pedestrians, however, seemed to think it was below their dignity to walk the "red band," and now they have been abandoned for "zones of safety." The latter will consist of adopting the system in vogue in New York at the busiest corners along Broadwayor Fifth Avenue.

Parisian chauffeurs, however, show little regard for the policemen waving the white baton and continually "run past signals" in a way that would bring them before a New York magistrate to be fined. In Paris it brings nothing, but good-natured banter generally directed against the policeman from pedestrians who may be run over at the next corner.

Former Minister of Justice Nail, of the Clemenceau Cabinet. Viscountess de Rohan-Chabot and Countess de Wignacourt were the most prominent persons who were run down and killed by automobiles in the past year.

MARIE LOHR LIKES CANADIANS BUT NOT OUR THEATRES

ENGLISH ACTRESS SAYS THEATRES ARE ATROCIOUS—STAGES ALL COLD.

In discussing Canada and things Canadian, Miss Marie Lohr is candid. Speaking to a representative of a Montreal paper recently at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, she made excuse for having a heavy cold. Asked if the climate was responsible, Miss Lohr immediately protested. "It's not your climate; it's those dreadful theatres. One is either roasted by the steam heat or half frozen by the lack of heat, and all the stages are very cold. I adore Canada, and I think the people simply wonderful, but your theatres are atrocious. They are all without any real comfort for artistes. I was dining with the Governor-General last week, and I certainly held forth to him about it.

"I find the audiences here hard to understand. Often when playing I cannot get the feel of them, for I notice that generally speaking your people do not applaud over much, but I learn after the performance that they have thoroughly enjoyed the play. I feel they are a little cold, and at the beginning of the tour I felt a little bit discouraged, but now that I have played right across the continent, I understand better. The audiences are inclined to avoid demonstration, but they are sincere. I have found in many places where we have played one night shows, in some of the smaller Ontario towns, for instance, that the people have followed the show round from one town to another, motoring over each night. I adore Canadian people, and think they have every reason to be proud of Canada.

Scotland For Dinner

"Your distances at first almost frightened me, but I am now quite used to them. I often write home to England and tell my friends in London that when I return, I shall think nothing of taking a small bag and travelling to Scotland for dinner. Such a trip used to seem an undertaking, but never again."

Asked if she felt that Canada was receptive and appreciative of English companies such as hers. Miss Lohr stated that she could hardly answer the question. "Perhaps it is because the country is new, but I have felt sometimes that with the distances, and the scattered towns, a tour of this nature is trying. The people most certainly appreciate the English companies, but it really is difficult to give a decided opinion. Canadians have not the same settled state that people in the Old Country have, and comparison is unfair.

"One thing has struck me during my tour, and that is the difference in the attitude of servants here. The greater number are Old Country folk, but sir and mam' have gone from their vocabulary. Not that it makes any difference to the service. Again I have met Old Country people right through the tour, and I have not heard any of them desire to live in the Old Country again. They like to pay a visit, but not live there.

"This is a country of contrasts. Palatial hotels in some places, hotels that might almost be termed shacks at others. Wonderful places to dine at in some places, miserable eating houses at others. Wonderful open spaces of a magnitude that almost frighten, and crowded cities. Those contrasts are offset by the consistently whole-hearted hospitality of your people east and west."

forgery, was found in the possession of Rosenblum, according to Special Agent William B. Robinson, who arrested the two men in an up-town hotel, where the two prisoners were living luxuriously. Their apparent affluence, according to Robinson, was attributed to successful bootlegging operation across the Canadian border.

When the two prisoners were arraigned Assistant United States Attorney David V. Cahill informed United States Commissioner Hitchcock that the investigation made by the agents of the Federal Government had shown that in the case of five furriers, whose books were examined the Government had been defrauded of $1,500,000. In view of the extent of the operations, Mr. Cahill asked that high bail be fixed.

The tax frauds in the case of the furriers of New York City were first brought to the attention of Special Assistant Attorney General John H. W. Crim about a year ago, and in view of the large number of manufacturers, about 3,000 in New York City, the investigation consumed much time. Some of the firms paid taxes each month running as high as as 5,000. The receipt which Rosenblum is alleged to have furnished the furriers purported to be from the Second District, New York.

Thought Collections Regular

When the bona fide collectors called on the furriers they were shown these receipts and supposed that the furriers had paid their taxes in a regular manner. Discrepancies began to appear when the records of the Collector of Internal Revenue were examined, and it was found impossible to strike balances in the accounts of many of the furriers who were thought to have paid their taxes.

FINANCIAL STRINGENCY.

MONTREAL, January 27 (Canadian Press). — Financial stringency was the main cause of little progress being made in the establishment of a Government School for Forest Rangers in Quebec, according to R. OPPOSITION INCREASING.

KINGSTON, January 27 — (Canadian Press). — In the bye-election in Kingston on 6th February for the Ontario Legislature, there will be a straight fight between W. F. Nickle, K.C., Conservative, and R. A WAGE CONFERENCE.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press.)—To determine the stand of the trades toward a reduction in pay for the 1922 season, a wage conrerence of building trades representatives from many western cities and From Fort William is being held here to-day.

WHO PAYS FOR GOOD ROADS?

location, carry a considerable amount of through traffic making their cost proportionately more to construct and maintain and which additional cost the district through which they pass should not be required to pay. To such roads the Province will contribute 60 per cent. of the cost of construction and maintenance. They continue to be County Roads, under the jurisdiction of the County Council, but because of the heavy through traffic, receive an increased subsidy.

With grants of 40 per cent. for the less travelled roads, and 60 per cent. for the most heavily travelled roads, it is estimated that the cost of county roads will now be about equally divided between the counties and the province.

Suburban Roads

Provision is made under the Ontario Highways Act that a city may co-operate with the county council in improving the leading roads adjacent to the city and thereby obtain a more subsantial type of construction for such suburban roads. The direction of the work on these roads is placed in the hands of a commission authorized by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

The section of county road designated as a suburban road remains a county road for which the county is responsible.

Toward the improvement of suburban roads, the Province pays 40 per cent. or 60 per cent. according to the class of road. The cities contribute equally with the county. That is to say, if the road is a County Road, the cost is borne thus, 40 per cent by the Province, 30 per cent. by the County and 30 by the City; on Provincial County Roads, the proportion is 60 per cent. by the Province 20 per cent. by the County and 20 per cent. by the City.

Provincial Highways

A system of Provincial Highways has been authorized by a Act of the Legislative with a view to the construction and maintenance of a net work of leading highways throughout the Province eighteen hundred miles of such highways have been designated, passing through every county in the Province and joining up county towns ,cities or other important terminal points. Toward the cost of such highways, the Province pays 80 per cent. and the remaining 20 per cent is a charge on the county

All sorts of surveys, the purchase of machinery, land for widening, general overhead and staff expenses are borne entirely by the Province. Thus the counties are in effect, required to pay less than 20 per cent. of the total cost.

Adjacent to cities the cost is borne in the proportion of 60 per cent. by the Province 20 per cent. by the county and 20 per cent. by the city.

The building of the Provincial Highway System will not be undertaken as a huge work of continuous construction, but will be a matter of gradual development and extension Wherever conditions are favourable systematic maintenance will be applied so as to make the most of any reasonably good sections as they now exist. Construction work will be taken up in sections where traffic is specially heavy and where the road has heretofore been neglected One type of pavement throughout is not contemplated. An effort is being made to construct in proportion to traffic making the best possible use of local materials.

Spent $10,000,000 n 1921

As an illustration of the Good Roads movement in the Counties of the Province, approximately $10,000,000 were expended on County Road during the past year, towards which the Province will contribute, $4,750,000. In view of this large expenditure, it will be readily seen that the Department must take a firmer stand in seeing that the work performed is in accordance with the Act and regulations of the Department and to see that the people interested and the users of the roads get full value for the money expended.

Services of Engineer

The writer would again remind the County and Township Councils, that the engineers of the Department are at the service of the Council and officials at all times, to advise and assist them in carrying out the work under their jurisdiction. The engineer of the Department are sent out with the view of assisting the County and Township officials, rather than to criticize the work performed.

We greatly appreciate the calls received from the counties and townships and the writer takes this opportunity of advising the Council of the County of Peterboro and officials to get in touch with the Department whenever assistance is required.

The writer is fully aware of the fact that all counties and townships have their difficulties and these we are sure could be easily overcome if the officials would communicate with the Department.

CALL A CONVENTION.

KINGSTON, Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press.) — The Frontenac Council proposes ot call a convention in the city of delegates from all the counties in the province affected by the provincial highway for the purpose of bringing organized pressure on the authorities to have the government bear all the cost of the much talked of road. The council passed a resolution to petition the Ontario government, that owing to the conditions existing in this part of the province they assume the entire cost of construction and maintenance of the provincial highway and that highway act be so amended.

enough,' accompanying these words with profanity."

Mother on Floor.

Riopel, he said, then went into the house and later he saw him coming out of the room where his mother slept. He again struck the witness with his knife. "I fell near the table, and he went to the stove where he took out red-hot coals, threw them near me on the floor, and picked up the lamp from the table and threw it on the ashes. The flames broke out instantly. By the glimmer of the light, I saw my mother stretched on the floor in the bedroom. Riopel again struck me in the neck and head with his knife, and then left me, believing me dead."

Witness then states that he found his mother stabbed in several places and tried to rescue her from the burning house, but was too weak on account of his wounds. He had only time to save himself from the flames through a window. He hid himself in a manger in the barn. He remained there until daybreak, when a neighbour came whom he asked to bring the parish priest. While the neighbour was away on this errand, Riopel returned and "cut one of my toes off, and holding me by the belt, he turned me face downwards. I endured all his treatment without a cry, not moving."

Riopel again left him, but shortly after returned, and said, "'Quick, Fred, get up here comes the priest.' I did not budge." The priest then arrived, and young Clermont, who thought himself dying, was given the last rites of the Church.

ANARCHY IN IRELAND.

DUBLIN, Jan. 27th. — (Canadian Press).—The Executive Committee of the Irish Unionist Alliance has adopted a resolution in which it is declared:

"Viewing with alarm the increasing anarchy prevailing in Ireland, we are apprehensive that when the Crown forces have been withdrawn there will be no reliable protection for life and property."

GERMAN PRESS COMMENT

BERLIN, Jan. 27. — The Vossische Zeitung expresses the belief that the proposed land disarmament resolution of Secretary of State Hughes at the Washington Conference is in the nature of an American feeler prior to the Genoa Conference to find out if the European powers are ready to give the satisfactory guarantee which would permit the United States to work unhampered in the direction of reconstruction.

A Stitch in Time

Quick action is the only hope when kidney disease appears.

There is a whole train of dreadfully painful and fatal ailments which soon follow any neglect to get the kidneys right. Among others are rheumatism, lumbago, Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure.

In Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will find a treatment which is both quick and thorough.

Mr. C. E. Raymus, Lindale, Alta., writes:—

Lost Control, Car Plunged Over Bank

Returing from his shop late last night Mr. T. Minicola, George street fruit merchant, lost control of his auto on Romaine street, and it plunged over the embankment on to the frozen bosom of Little Lake. Only by his presence of mind in throwing himself from the plunging car did Mr. Minicola escape serious injury. The car did not overturn, it was stated to-day, and although it fell about six feet to the ice the damage was very slight. The auto was removed from its icy resting place this morning.

Last night's accident completes a trio of cars that have jumped into the lake and a retaining wall high enough and strong enough to keep the cars on dry land is being advocated. It is considered miraculous that some of the cars have not collided with the trees that line the bank.

POLICEMAN GOES ON RAMPAGE

another room, ran to the airshaft and called for help.

Going to "Kill Everybody"

The second floor is occupied by the family of John Ryan, whose daughter Anna was said to have been keeping company with Mullin. Muttering as he left the ground floor that he was going to kill everybody in the place", Mullin according to the tenants, walked past the Ryan apartment and mounted to the third floor.

Knocking on the door of the apartment rented by Frank Penna, Mullin reiterated his demand to be admitted. Antonio Amata, a brother-in-law went to the door and told Mullin to go away. The women folk in the household fled to a rear room Penna said that Mullin answered by shooting three times through the door.

Meanwhile the cries of Miss Smith had been heard by Policemon Conklin, who arrived in time to prevent Mullin forcing his entrance into the Penna flat.

Pressure was brought to bear upon Smith not to make a charge of felonious assault against Mullin, according to his admission. Other tenants were unwilling to tell why they had not pressed charges. As a result the only complaint was Conklin. Mullin has been suspended and will have to face departmental charges, it was said.

When he was arraigned counsel asked that he be paroled, but Magistrate Brown fixed bail at $300. He will face trial February 1.

WAS AN EFFECTIVE VATICAN ENVOY.

Bishop of Montpellier Died Recently, Aged 91.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—(Associated Press.)—Cardinal de Cabrieres, bishop of Montpellier, who died recently at the age of 91, was France's unofficial but effective envoy to the Vatican during the world war. President Millerand referred to him as not only a great bishop but a great patriot.

He never yielded an inch of the rights which he believed belonged to his church. When the law separating the church and state in France went into effect, he went to the prefecture and solemnly excommunicated the prefect. But when the war began he placed himself at the prefect's disposal.

In the wine riots of 1907, which have been characterized as a revolution rather than a riot, the Cardinal gave thousands of vineyard workers shelter in his cathedral and ordered his clergy to do the same with their churches. It is more than possible that his action saved the city from being sacked.

A country vicar who received the Cardinal during the war scoured the country to find the finest chicken to honor his visitor and ordered his cook to show herself worthy of the occasion. "Fit for a king," said the Cardinal when the chicken appeared on the table, "but you have forgotten that today is a meatless day, by order of the government. Decrees should be respected."

EDUCATION IS A PROBLEM IN BURMA.

RANGOON, Jan. 27.—(Associated Press.)—The Nationalist educational movement in Burma which originated more than a year ago appears to be declining.

Large numbers of students have been leaving the Nationalist schools and going back to the government schools and government-aided mission schools whence they came.

A number of the Nationalist schools have been closed chiefly because of the difficulty of supporting them without taxation, because no university will recognize degrees conferred by the Nationalist College and because of the belief held by many Burman Nationalists that a permanent system of Burmese education cannot be formed until complete home rule has been attained.

One of the first steps in the Nationalist educational movement was a boycott of agitation against the University of Rangoon. However, Maung E., of Mandalay, one of the leaders of the boycott agitation has just asked in the Rangoon Times that the boycott be called off. He declared that "at this stage of the movement it is manifest that an unconditional boycott can produce dire consequences to the nation. In Burma the boycott of one university means a boycott of education.

"This staying aloof, like Achilles sulking in his tent with the peevishness of a child, is a bad policy in public questions. The University boycott is like the Australian boomerang and now rebounds to the aggressor."

INTRODUCED TOO MUCH "PEP" SHOW

Burlington, N.J., Parents Shocked When Teacher Adds a Bit of Jazz to What He Called a Slow Performance.

BURLINGTON, N. J., Jan. 27.—Thomas W. Smith of Harrisburg Pa. teacher of physical and science in the high school here, was dismissed by the Board of Education because during an entertainment given by the boys of the school last Friday night he introduced a number of jokes that the audience and his fellow teachers considered indecent.

Vann H. Smith, Supervising Principal of the City Schools, issued and order today dropping Smith from the rolls and his action was immediately indorsed by the Board of Education.

The High School boys gave two performances of their entertainment last Friday in the Guild House of St. Mary's Protestant Episcopal Church and Smith introduced the jokes because the first performance to his mind, was slow and needed "pepping up." That night he pepped it up. The audience was made up of boys and girls of the school and their parents and the fathers and mothers became more and more indignant when Smith began introducing the alleged laughable features into the action of the show.

Several times other teachers in school told him to stop as he would get into trouble, but Smith replied, it is said, that the show was dead and had to have some jazz injected into it. The next morning an avalanche of complaints reached the offices of the principal and to the Board of Education, and Smith's dismisal followed.

SPLENDID VOLUME OF NEW BUSINESS.

Excelsior Life Insurance Results Satisfactory.

Notwithstanding many conditions unfavorable to the writing of a large volume of business, applications were received by the Excelsior Life Insurance Company for amounts totalling $11,297,011. Insurance in force now totals $46,000,506.27, a gain during the year of $5,425,615.62.

Total receipts for premiums, interest, rents, etc., were $1,756,467.70, an increase of $150,870.18.

Payments to policyholders or their beneficiaries were just over the half million dollar mark, $500,571.43. Adding to this the amount set aside during the year for policyholders' future benefit, a total amount was received by, or set apart for, policyholders of $1,422,282.98, although only $1,392,759.20 was received in premiums. In other words, for every dollar of premiums received from policyholders during the year $1.02 was returned or set aside for their benefit.

An actual death rate of 48 per cent. of the expected continues the favorable mortality rate which the Excelsior has always experienced. The Excelsior was one of the first Canadian companies to accept life insurance for amounts up to $1,000 without medical examination, and the results have been extremely satisfactory.

Total assets available for policyholders, amounting to $7,389,327.10, include a well selected list of Government bonds, municipal debentures and first mortgage loans. An average interest rate of 7.2 per cent. was earned in 1921.

The policy reserve fund was increased by $731,249 and now amounts to $5,929,726. Out of the surplus earned during the year $71,076.52 has been carried to special reserve amounts.

The total surplus on policyholders' account, exclusive of paid-no capital, now stands at $945,158.97, an increase of 24 per cent., convincing evidence of satisfactory results of the operations of the year.

FRENCH DUELLING OUT OF FASHION.

Prosecute Principals and Seconds Alike.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—(Associate dPress.)—All those who took part in the duel between the Count de Poret and M. Camille Laforge on September 23 last, both principals and seconds, are to go before the judge of a correctional court. The investigating magistrate has decided that there is a case against them for acts of violence and wounding and for being accomplices therein.

This is the duel that caused the Minister of Justice to send a strongly-worded circular to all Prefects of Departments, telling them to prosecute in all cases of duelling, as such were out of place after the war. Some of the best-known men at the Paris bar are to defend the accused.

REVIEW OF THE LOCAL MARKET.

Oranges Are Due For An Increase—Apples Getting Scarce—Eggs Move Downward.

Oranges are likely to increase 20 to 25 percent in price next week or shortly, local fruit men say. The Californian orchards were visited by a disastrous frost last week and damage is estimated at 50 percent. Wholesalers have announced tentative increases of about 20 to 25 percent on new orders and as soon as present stocks are cleared prices will go up locally. Lemons have not been affected it is said nor is there any change in grapefruit prices. The big firms in Toronto are urgently impressing the dealers to lay in supplies of oranges while there are any on the market. They will likely be scarce in a few weeks—this of course the Californian variety.

Southern Fruits

A few choice fruits from the sunny south have begun to arrive. Last Saturday one dealer sold a number of boxes of strawberries at $1.00 a box. This is perhaps the record price ever paid for such delicacies. Slender bunches of rhubarb in the shops appear quite tempting if not satisfying in size. A few strands make up the bunch and it costs 15 cents. Pines of a splendid quality are being offered at prices from 25 cents up.

Apples of good quality are getting more or less scarce and the best are being sold at so much a price. Spies by the peck are from 60 to 80 cents.

Winter Vegetables

Winter vegetables are moving slowly and fresh stuff is yearly replacing them. Immense quanities of head lettuce and celery are sold daily in Peterboro. Each year the value of fresh stuff from the standpoint of health is being more appreciated, and a dealer, remarking on this very fact a few weeks ago declared he was selling about as much in a day now as he once sold in a week. New beets and carrots are coming in and going at 15 cents a bunch. New cauliflower is obtainable at prices from 20 to 35 and new cabbage sells at 15 cents a pound. A great many people like endive and this stuff is selling at 30 cents a pound. Spanish and yellow onions are so scarce they are only quoted by the pound—15 cents at that. A dealer declared that they cost 10 cents a pound, plus freight.

Eggs 50 Cents

During the last week eggs have been settling down and stores were quoting them today at from 50 to 55 cents a dozen. With a big increase in production looked for from now on there is little hope entertained of another fluctuation upwards. The butter market is steady and creamery is selling in the stores from 43 to 45 cents and dairy from 39 to 42 cents.

An advance of a cent or two in wool thought probable by the wool buyers. At present 12, 8 and 6 cents is being paid. Hides remain steady and a dealer said today he saw no prospect of better prices in sight yet.

PEOPLE STARVING IN VOLGA REGION.

Merciless Famine Stalks the Country.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 27. — (Associated Press.)—Famine in certain parts of Soviet Armenia is described as quite as terrible in the Volga region. Although political conditions are more stable, the general situation is considered highly alarming.

Aid is being sought by an economic mission headed by A. Garinian, Armenian Commissar of Justice.

In some of the eight districts of Soviet Armenia, Garinian says, crops have been fairly good but in others the drought and the Turk have stripped the country and the people are starving.

"The total number of refugees depending upon government is upward of 200,000," Garinian said. "We have besides 50,000 orphans, most of whom are looked after by the American Relief Committee. In addition to this enormous figure, thousands of starving peasants in the districts affected by the drought are hopelessly struggling for food. The government is utterly impotent to check the evil. Thousands of Armenians will perish this winter, unless help is extended to them from shroad.

"The Soviet Government of Armenia would welcome foreign capitalists to exploit the country's natural riches They are confident that their capital would prove an excellent investment."

When Miss Dora Egan recently gained control of the Town Clerk's office in Waterbury, Con., to which office she was elected, her first act was to discharge all the male assistants. Women were engaged to fill their places.

BUILT HER UP TO STRONG AND HEALTHY WOMAN

Only Weighed Ninety Pounds When She Got Tanlac, Mrs. Pickup Now Weighs One Hundred and Twenty-Five and Never Felt Better.

Had Suffered So Much From Stomach Trouble During the Past Three Years and Got So Weak and Worn Out Her Life Was a Burden.

"Tanlac has built me up from a mere frame weighing only ninety pounds to a strong woman weighing one hundred and twenty-five pounds and my gratitude is unbounded," said Mrs. Lydia Pickup, 12 Ramsay Lane, Toronto, Ont.

"My stomach troubled me so much during the past three years that my life was a perfect burden. My appetite was gone entirely, gas would form and nearly set me wild with pain in the pit of my stomach. The gas nearly smothered me and my heart acted so queerly that it alarmed me. I could get scarcely any sleep and was tired and dull and worn out all the time. I often turned so dizzy I could scarcely stand up, and at times my head hurt like it would burst open. I lost weight until my clothes were entirely too large and I was so weak I could hardly move.

"One day I saw a statement about Tanlac and I determined to try it. I have now taken ten bottles in all and my appetite has come back, I eat anything I want and as much as I want at every meal without pain or any uncomfortable feeling afterwards. I do not have headaches or dizzy spells any more, I sleep soundly every night and get up feeling fine and strong in the morning.

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro, by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd. and by leading druggists everywhere.

DIVISION OF WORK NOW DEMANDED.

Revolt Against Employers in Germany.

BERLIN, Jan. 27. — (Associated Press.)—The unemployed throughout Germany are demanding a division of work with the regularly employed and a larger allowance from the municipalities and the labor unions.

They have become so insistent and demonstrations and clashes between the employed and the jobless so frequent that representatives of the Central government, the labor organizations, and the municipalities are trying to find a method of dealing with the situation.

Political agitators have taken advantage of the situation to urge a "red revolt" against employers. This attitude of the radicals has caused sharp dissension even among the ranks of labor.

Labor circles charge that many of the "unemployed" are not members of labor unions, are not really out of work, and if they were would seek to avoid work. They attempt to compel workmen who have jobs to quit in favor of the unemployed.

The government is planning the establishment of employment bureaus throughout the country, while the municipalities and the labor councils are canvassing the industries in the hope that jobs may be found for all.

Housewives League

The German Housewives League is trying to aid unemployed married men by placing their wives in positions to earn a little money "when not engaged in housework."

Low earning power of workmen and high prices has popularized the movement among women to share the responsibility of supporting the family.

PROMISES YOUNG GIRLS HAPPINESS AS MORMONS

BERLIN, Jan. 27. — (Associated Press.)—The propaganda of a man who claims to be an "apostle of Mormonism," and who has been operating in Prussia and East Prussia, promises "young girls who will go to Utah" large rewards, introduction into the "holiness of the Temple," and much happiness, according to newspaper reports. The newspapers have warned German girls against the man as an "imposter."

LLOYD'S HAD ITS BIRTH IN A LONDON COFFEE HOUSE.

Interesting History of Britain's Famous Registry of Shipping.

LONDON, Jan. 27. — (By Canadian Press.)—Lloyd's is a name known throughout the civilized world, yet probably few people know anything of the origin of the parent business organization carried on under it. Lloyd's Register of Shipping had its birth in a London coffee house in 1720, but the man who gave the magic of his name to it, Edward Lloyd, had been dead eight years when the first insurance company was launched. It seemed the natural thing that the scheme of insurance should have been born, cradled and nursed in Edward Lloyd's place of entertainment, though he himself had not lived to see it. His coffee house was patronized chiefly by shipping men, and when Lloyd's List was founded the name of the departed coffee house man was regarded as worth using in this connection.

Lloyd's News, the forerunner of Lloyd's List, was launched in Edward Lloyd's lifetime, and was published largely in the interests of shipping men but more particularly in the interests of the coffee house. It lasted only six months, but it was the seedling from which Lloyd's insurance sprang. Lloyd's List was not published until some years after Mr. Lloyd's death.

Sidney Boulton, Chairman of Lloyd's addressing the Insurance Institute of London recently, said if insurance men were indebted to Edward Lloyd for nothing but his name, that was a priceless gift. It was no exaggeration to say that the name of this humble "coffee man" was more often on the lips of men than any other name in the commercial world. It must have some strange fascination about it, Mr. Boulton said, for it had been appropriated by shipping and insurance companies all over the world without any other ostensible reason that that of its natural charm.

Lloyd's List, founded in 1726, is the oldest existing newspaper in the world, except the London Gazette, and has continued without a break down to the present time. Lloyd's today consist of 1,096 underwriting members, 94 non-underwriting members, 393 subscribers, 82 associates, and 1,600 substitutes. There are 1,400 agents and sub-agents all over the world, those at the most important places being empowered to settle and pay claims. The premium income for last year was upward of £30,000,000, of which £18,000,000 was for marine and £12,000,000 for non-marine. Lloyd's is the largest insurance institution in the world.

One might wonder how the company system of insurance had its birth in a coffee house, but in Edward Lloyd's day insurance was effected through bankers, merchants and moneylenders, who carried on insurance in addition to their ordinary vocations, and the coffee house furnished a convenient place in which to deliver the policies. Previous to the institution of this popular place of refreshment insurance policies were taken around by the merchants' or the shipowners' clerks or by brokers appointed for the purpose, to the offices of the bankers, merchants and moneylenders, scattered throughout the city. This tedious method lasted about 100 years.

Then coffee houses came into vogue. Some of them were chosen resorts of poets, politicians and actors, while others were frequented by commercial men, and these latter gradually came to be subdivided, certain of them being identified with special classes of business. Lloyd was one of the pioneers in the coffee house—the precursor of company insurance—and doubtless he lent the strength personality to the evolution of the latter, then slowly taking shape. That he died before the first insurance company was formed, yet left behind a name to conjure with in the new business, is a striking testimony to his ability and strength of character.

Edward Lloyd not only left his impress on the London of his time, but h left a name to be handed down throughout the centuries, gathering strength with the years.

COAL MINING INDUSTRY OF NOVA SCOTIA.

Depression of 1921 Tied Up a Large Number of Mines.

HALIFAX, N.S., January 27.—The coal fields of Nova Scotia are divided into three main divisions — Cape Breton, Cumberland County, and Pictou County. On Cape Breton the mining area, extending along the north-eastern shore, covers an estimated area of 30 square miles reaching from Mira Bay to St. Anne's Bay. It runs roughly five to fifteen miles inland, and has been worked under water out to sea two or three miles. Seams vary in thickness from three to twelve feet. For the year ending 30th September, 1920, the last for which there is official report, the Cape Breton County mines yielded 3,992,733 tons. A second principal section of Cape Breton mine fields is in Inverness County, along the north-western shore of the island. The 1920 report gives the yield in this section as 235,498 tons.

Pictou County coal fields have an area of about 35 square miles, with seams about 16 in number, running from three to forty feet in thickness. Pictou County produced 776,931 tons in 1920.

The Cumberland County coal fields have an estimated extent of 300 square miles, but have not been operated to any such extent yet. The seams range from three to ten feet in thickness. Cumberland fields produced 672,633 tons in 1920.

The estimated value of Nova Scotia's coal production in 1921 was $31,200,000 out of a total wealth production of $165,404,700.

The high water mark for coal production in Nova Scotia was reached in 1912, according to production charts of the Nova Scotia Department of Mines, when 7,250,000 tons of coal were mined. In 1920 the figures had dropped to 5,687,970 tons, which was, however, an increase over the two preceding years. Eleven thousand three hundred men were employed in 1920.

The 1920 report of the Nova Scotia Department of Mines showed that 27 mines operated in Nova Scotia. Of these, however, only seven went over the 100,000 tons mark in production, the Dominion Coal Company, the Nova Scotia Coal and Steel Sompany, and the Acadia Coal Company, which are constituents of the British Empire.

The depression which struck the coal industry in 1921 resulted in the tying up of a large number of the mines throughout the Province, and the throwing out of employment of many hundreds of miners. The following reports were made early in January. Since then other mines have been closed down.

Cape Breton: Of the fifteen Cape Breton mines of the Dominion Coal Company, five are closed down. The other ten and four of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company are working part time. Mines at Inverness and Port Hood, Inverness County, three in number, are all closed. A number of small independent companies, about six in number, are working part time. The miners and members of allied trades out of employment are estimated to number 3,500."

Pictou County: "Of the five collieries of the Acadia Coal Company, three are working with 1,350 men employed part time. Six hundred men are working two-thirds time in the two collieries of the Intercolonial Coal Manufacturing Company. One hundred and fifty men are working full time at the Greenwood Coal Min."

Cumberland County: "Collieries at Springhill, Joggins, River Hebert, Maccan, and Chignecto are working part time. No collieries completely closed down in past twelve months. Twelve hundred men are working three to five days per week."

Just now a Board of Reconciliation is investigating the question of a downward revision of the wage scale for coal diggers.

CONFISCATION OF CHURCH PROPERTY.

Embarrassing Point of International Law.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(Associated Press)—A new and embarrassing point of international law relating to the confiscation of church property in wartime has arisen in the British Prize Court.

Claims aggregating many hundreds of thousand of dollars have been entered by owners of articles, such as regalias, surplices, altar cloths, memorial glass windows, statuary, gold communion cups, crucifixes, rosaries, all of enemy origin, which were shipped by German and Austrian agents or manufacturers to American merchants, churches and colleges while the world war was in progress.

The ships conveying the goods were seized by British warships and the goods sold by public auction as enemy prizes.

Owners in the United States, under the leadership of Goetzes & Co., of Chicago, and of Treffel in Germany, represented by former Senator J. Hamilton Lewis; of Illinois, claim the amount realized from the prize sale, and losses and damages.

Claimants argue that under the laws of war of all nations, all church property is sacred and exempt from war seizure.

The British government, however, conteeeeeea shd mbmbbmbmbmmbn contends that the money paid to the shippers of the sacred goods went to German firms to be used by Germany in the prosecution of the campaign against the Allies.

The British Prosecutor-General's Court has just decided that the question is so delicate and so involved with old and new regulations and war practices that it must go in its whole aspect before the full prize court, because there is doubt whether the German firms in Germany did not have an interest in the American firms, and also whether the prize court ought not to submit the case to the new world court at Geneva or the Washington Conference to be settled under the new international laws of war.

In the meantime, the money remains in the British Treasury, awaiting a new dispensation on the rules affecting church property in wartime. Roman Catholics all over the world are showing great interest in the issue.

CHARMING FROCK FOR DAY-TIME WEAR

Quite slim of silhouette is the order of the day, however one's skirt may billow and flutter under evening lights. This little frock has paid strict attention to its lines, from girlishly cut round neck slightly flaring three-quarter length sleeves to slim skirt. Trimmings are of admirable imitation astrakan which gives much distinction to its blue tricotine self.

WILLING TO PAY FOR THEIR ACCOMMODATION.

Collection For Wood For Market Clerk's Office Voluntary One.

Following up the complaint made by a farmer that he was asked to participate in a collection for wood for the market clerk, the Examiner learns the collections had been quite voluntary.

It was inaugurated by several habitues of the weigh house one day when the cost of wood was being discussed. One man suggested that as they made as much use of the ofice as the market clerk himself, the least they could do was help to pay for some of the wood. When the hat was passed the clerk naturally did not object and several dollars were collected amongst the habitues. Most of them were glad to help.

Several men refused to contribute and left in high ire and have not appeared at the weigh house since.

There are about 20 retired gentlemen and others who spend a large part of their time in this office. They make a downtown club of it; some of them toast their shins and smoke their pipes there from ten in the morning till five in the afternoon, except for a noon recess. Others only drop in occasionally. At times the crowd has interfered wth the clerk's transacton of business but he has borne his trials patiently.

In some quarters the story of the collecton is being used to distinctly injure Mr. Maloney. If there are any complaints to be made they might legitimitely travel in the opposite direction. Good light, heat and reading matter is provided free-of-charge at the Public Library but loud talking prohibited.

If certain citizens continue maktimes the crowd has interfered with to enjoy the warmth there, to talk and smoke, most of the gentleman are of the opinion they should pay ing use of the market clerk's office.

Jackson Hole, Wyoming, a region once noted for its bad men, has more men with clean-shaven faces than any other place of its size in te country. This record is made possible by Mrs. Hattie Brody, who recently opened a barber shop in the town and has become so popular that many of the men have their face shaved every day.

MEMORIAL TO THE ARMS CONGRESS.

War—A Relic of Barbarism and a Reproach to Christians.

The International Bible Students Association in convention at Washington, sent the following memorial to the International Arms Congress in the capital:

As Christians earnestly striving to follow the teachings of Christ Jesus our Lord and his Apostles, WE HOLD:

That war is a relic of barbarism, destructive of good morals and a reproach to Christian peoples;

That the principles taught by the Lord Jesus Christ preclude consecrated Christians from engaging in war, bloodshed or violence in any form;

That no nation can be said to be truly Christian which fails to adhere to those principles taught by the Lord and his Apostles;

That the ruling or governing factors of the nations commonly called "Christendom" are now and for some time have been, to wit, FINANCIAL PRINCES, otherwise termed Controllers of Commerce STATESMEN or Political Leaders, who formulate the laws, and CLERGYMEN and other Ecclesiastical Teachers, the last named, both Catholic and Protestant, having, contrary to the Word of God, joined hands with the two first-mentioned factors (which three component parts here mentioned we for convenience and identification designate "The Ruling Powers");

That the delegates and representatives of The Ruling Powers now assembled in international conference at Washington for the purpose of the limitation of armaments, and insofar as possible for the establishment of conditions of peace and prosperity among the people, have before them a laudable objective.

But we may be pardoned for humbly suggesting that the end desired cannot be attained by a partial or even complete disarmament of the nations. Reformation of men or nations will not result from the destruction of arms, but genuine reformation of men will lead automatically to the complete destruction of all instruments of war and all forms of violence. While war is terrible beyond description of human phrase, yet it is not the worst thing to be feared.

Bolshevism, as a great menacing monster, is knocking at the door of every nation, and the destruction of all law and order is threatened. To prevent such terrible disaster and to save the people from indescribable suffering is the tremendous problem, which, we submit, requires more than human wisdom. We therefore suggest that the heeding of Divine wisdom and the adoption of the Divine remedy as prescribed by God's holy Word is vitally essential at this time.

The kingdom of Christ, the Messiah, for which he taught his disciples to pray, is at hand. This is evidenced by the World War, famine, pestilence, social upheaval, distress of nations with perplexity, etc., all of which constitute the fulfillment of prophecies made by Jesus himself as relating to the present time. Within a short time his kingdom will be fully and completely established and the old order of things completely gone. To that kingdom all earthly powers must be subject either willingly or unwillingly. The trouble upon the nations beginning in 1914 is but the expression of God's vengeance against all unrighteous systems in the earth.

The holy prophets of Jehovah indicate how that the kingdom of Christ, the Messiah, may be established without great suffering to humanity, provided that the Divine way be adopted. You will pardon us, therefore, for calling your attention to those Divine prophecies long ago recorded, which in substance indicate what the proper course is, to wit:

(1) Let the Financial Princes, the Controllers of Commerce, cease profiteering, cease exploiting and deceiving the people by systematic propaganda, and be content with a reasonable income sufficient to insure their own maintenance and support; let them use their power for the general welfare of the people to the end that the idle may be employed, the hungry fed, and each man be afforded an opportunity to provide for himself and loved ones the things decent and honest in the sight of God and men.

(2) Let the Statesmen or Politicians cease to act as instruments of selfish powers and selfish interests and henceforth honestly and impartially represent and safeguard the interests and general welfare of all the people.

(3) Let the Clergymen and other Religious Teachers, who claim to be ministers of God's Word and therefore the nobles among the people, divorce themselves completely from commercial and political affiliations, return to their first love, recognize God's Word as truth, honestly and faithfully teach the people the principles taught by Jesus and the Apostles, and thereby prepare the people to receive the kingdom of Christ, the Messiah, who alone can and will establish peace on earth and good will toward men.

Let the Ruling Factors by example as well as by word thus lead the people in the right way and prove that they are the real friends of the people; and let all the people heed the words of God, refrain from violence of every kind or form, seek meekness and righteousness, and the occasion for armament and war will cease. These things done, the kingdom of Christ, the Messiah, will be established on earth without suffering.

We shall be pardoned for saying that the prophecies clearly indicate that if the divinely prescribed remedy be ignored, this being the day of God's vengeance, as declared by his prophets of old, his wrath will be visited upon every government and system of Christendom, and both Jesus and the prophets declare that such shall be "a time of trouble such as the world has never known," at which time shall "Michael [the Messiah] stand up, the great prince that standeth for the children of thy people." This standing up of Michael will effect the deliverance of mankind from all forms of oppression and will mark the beginning of righteousness on earth. The result will be God's will done on earth as it is done in heaven, for which Jesus taught Christians to pray.

Great responsibility rests upon the Ruling Factors of the nations of earth now in the hour of dire distress and perplexity; and we shall be pardoned for requesting such to give earnest consideration to the Word of God, having in mind that "blessed is that nation whose God is Jehovah."

Resolved that a copy of this memorial be delivered to the Honorable Charles Evans Hughes, Chairman of the International Arms Congress now in session at Washington, D.C.; that copies be furnished to each delegate or representative of the nations attending said conference; that a copy be delivered to the President of the United States, and copies to the members of Congress and to the public press.

Upon motion duly put the above resolution was unanimously adopted by the convention this 27th day of November, 1921.

A Bundle of Faggots

You remember how the father in the old fable illustrated the strength of mutual co-operation to his quarrelsome sons. He took a bundle of faggots and showed that, though it was easily possible to break the sticks separately, it was impossible to do so while they were all banded firmly together.

"Unity is Strength"

The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada is the bond which holds nearly 100,000 individuals together in an unbreakable corporate body. Neither the great war nor the influenza plague impaired its stability in the slightest degree. Each individual policyholder gives fair and exact proportion of financial support, and receives in return the full benefit of the social co-operation of his associates, for the financial protection of those dependent upon him, or for himself in advanced years. There is no other expense than the cost of administering this mutual service.

MANNA FALLS IN FORM OF DEW.

Manna is found in the regions of Upper Mesopotamia and Kurdistan and along the Persian frontier. It falls, says an official in Jerusalem, in the form of dew during September, October and November and lodges upon the leaves of oak trees. It immediately hardens and assumes the form of grain. Early in the morning before the heat of the day it is gathered by spreading sheets beneath the trees, which are shake and the manna is then collected and stored for winter to be used as a food or shipped to Bagdad for sale in the bazaar.

The manna falls on other vegetation, including grass, but all of it is lost except that which is gathered from the oak leaves. The manna is sweet and is eaten by the natives as a substitute for sugar or honey.

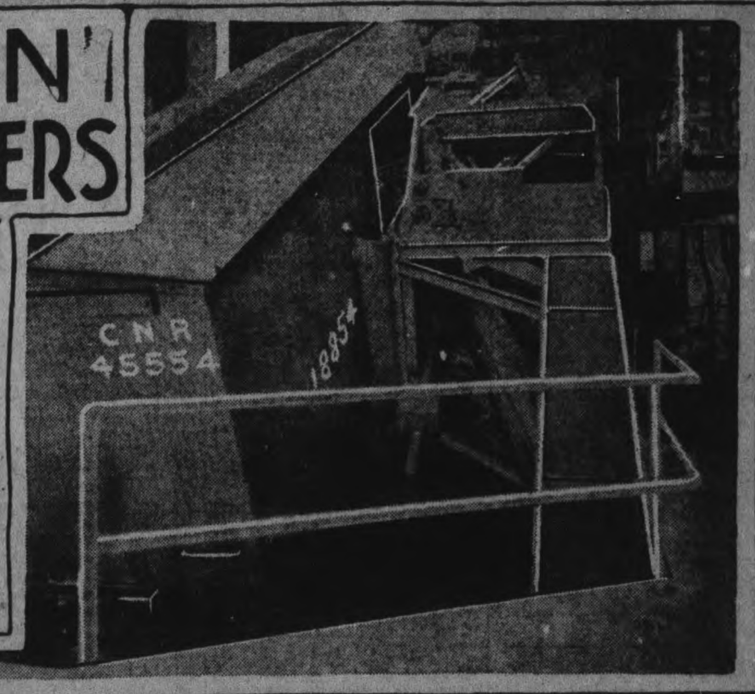
GRAIN UNLOADERS

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS ELEVATOR

PORT ARTHUR

THE LARGEST GRAIN HANDLING PLANT IN THE WORLD



In any country where the natural resources of the soil, forests, mines and fisheries are distributed fairly evenly, agriculture is usually the chief primary industry, with the other primary industries, and those based upon the utilization of the natural resources, completing the structure.

Canada is an agricultural country. We grow much more than we consume, and we export a great deal of the surplus—especially grain. As a consequence, the cereal crop is of importance in Canadian prosperity, and a great deal of thought, and energy, and money, have been expended upon the methods and facilities utilized in getting the product from the fields to the markets over seas.

In Canada, in the plans worked out for the handling of western grain, the terminal elevators at Port Arthur and Fort William occupy a position of great strategic importance. The farmer threshes his grain in the field, and markets it, often immediately, to country elevators, which stretch in a great chain throughout the entire Canadian west. From these elevators the grain is loaded into box cars and transported by the railways to points where the inspection by government officers is made, and from those points to terminal elevators where as long as export demand continues and navigation on the lakes is open the transhipment to vessels is effected. During the season of lake and river navigation in this country this transfer, from box cars to ships, takes place at Fort William and Port Arthur, with the great terminal elevators there, the medium of its accomplishment. The railways have concentrated upon their part of the problem. They provide motive power and grain cars in ever increasing numbers with yards and engine houses in proportion and make careful plans in advance with constant endeavour to see that nothing obstructs the movement of the grain to the great elevators at the head of the lakes.

The total capacity of these grain-handling plants, at the twin cities on Lake Superior, is in excess of 50 million bushels, and the largest among them is that of Canadian National Railways. Most of the operations within these elevators are almost automatic in character, and the cereals are handled in great quantities, at high speed, once they have actually been passed into the institution. A weak link in the chain of marketing has always been the transfer from the box car into the elevator. It seems odd that, with all the improvements during the last twenty years in actual railway and elevator practice, this feature of grain marketing should have remained so little changed. This was not a consequence of neglect, for many able minds had been at work to speed up this operation, but no device quite suitable was evolved. When the Canadian National Railways elevator was being re-constructed at Port Arthur, a year or so ago, this factor was the cause of considerable consideration. A faster unloading device was sought, and finally one was designed, constructed, and four units installed. The Canadian National elevator is the largest grain-handling plant in the world, it having a capacity of almost 10 million bushels, and the operation of the new device—the first installation probably, anywhere—is being followed with keen interest. The accompanying photographs will furnish a fairly adequate idea of its operation.

Before adopting the new automatic box car unloader, the Canadian National Railways elevator, in common with all others receiving grain from box cars, was equipped with a power shovel—a large, wooden affair, connected by a cable to a power-driven revolving shaft. The operator carries the shovel over the grain to the farthest point in the car, forces it into the grain when it is drawn to the door and to the pits by machine power. The man handling the shovel repeats this operation again and again. Usually two shovels, and sometimes three, are utilized to a car, but, for all that, too much time was required to unload an average grain car of its contents. And apart from that, the men operating the shovels are constantly enveloped in a cloud of dust, while undergoing heavy, physical exertion.

The automatic box car unloader has revolutionized this operation at the Canadian National elevator The device adopted consists of a tilting platform, with automatic mechanism for the opening of the grain door, and for the introduction of deflecting baffles into the car to cause the grain to flow properly by gravity.

A car from the tracks where the "loads" are kept is moved to the tilting table. In 40 seconds the end bumpers are raised and the car centred. Ten seconds are required for the drawing of end pins, and 15 seconds more for the opening and raising of the car door. With this last operation 10% of the grain is discharged into the elevator pit. The tilting table, with the car securely fastened thereon, is tilted 20 degrees, and 35% of the grain content pours, by gravity, into the receiving pit; this requiring 20 seconds. Next, the right "baffle" is inserted and the table tipped 45 degrees to the right, with the result that 85% of the grain remaining pours through the door, the operation requiring 40 seconds. The right "baffle" is then withdrawn, and the left inserted. The table is tilted 45 degrees, which completely empties the car. This last operation involves 50 seconds. The left "baffle" is then withdrawn and the car levelled, in 10 seconds; the door breaker is withdrawn in 12 seconds; the end pins are inserted in 10 seconds; and the end bumpers dropped and the interior of car inspected, in 30 seconds more. The complete operation, therefore, requires 237 seconds, or approximately 4 minutes. The empty car is removed from the unloading platform, and a loaded car moved in to take its place. This requires about 3 minutes. It is seen, therefore, that when no delays occur in distributing the grain inside the elevator, cars may be unloaded at the rate of one car per unloader every 7 minutes, at the Canadian National plant. The average per hour for a ten-hour day at the elevator, is a little less than this, but approximately 250 cars can be unloaded in any one day of that number of hours.

Each unloader has an operator, stationed in a cab and taking care of both unloader and car haulage operations, an attendant at the car door to oversee the dumping operation and to inspect the car after it is unloaded; and two laborers to move loaded cars on, and empty cars off, the platform.

The safety element has not been overlooked. The operator's cab is directly opposite the car door, and through its glass windows he has an unobstructed view into the car at all times during the dumping operation. The electrical control board is located conveniently, and all operations of the unloader are under his direct control. The rocking table is so designed as to be in stable equilibrium in all positions and under all conditions of unloading. Should a breakage occur in the tipping mechanism, the bridge will immediately come to a horizontal position without damage. The motors and transmission are arranged so that no motion can take place unless actuated by an electric current. The apparatus is, therefore, practically foolproof, and incapable of being damaged by improper operation.

Grain from the receiving hopper at the unloader is delivered by multiple valves to a conveyor belt and lofter leg discharging to a 2,000 bushel capacity garner over the receiving scale. Conveyor belts and lofter legs serving the unloaders have a capacity of 20,000 bushels of grain per hour. The scales are specially designed for rapid weighing the 2,000 bushel capacity scale hopper having a 28 inch diameter outlet valve at the bottom.

Distribution of grain from the scale is controlled by a turnhead operated from the scale floor. Separate spouts are provided direct from each scale turnhead to a shipping bin, car loading spout, storage conveyor belt, transfer belt, and to a Mayo spout serving a number of work house bins. This rapid system of distribution not only permits economy of operation, but is necessary to permit distribution of the grain as rapidly as it is delivered from the car unloaders.

The cleaning capacity of the elevator is adequate to serve its receiving capacity. Grain is shipped to boats on five lofter legs with a total average capacity of 75,000 bushels per hour. The elevator is of reinforced concrete construction throughout except the storage annexes, which are of tile construction. The elevator is electrically driven, with a separate motor for each machine. Its vacuum cleaning system is as complete as can be devised, and unusual precautions are taken to prevent dust explosions.

Market News

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Leading issues were more sensitive to pressure and tighter money at the opening of to-day's stock market. Postponement of dividend action on Consolidated Gas caused further reaction of 2 3-4 points. Railroad Equipments and Shippin galso became heavy, American Locomotive, Baldwin Locomotive and United States Fruit sustaining one point losses. Rails, Coppers and Sugars gave way moderately. Gulf States Steel was an initial gain of one point but this was immediately forfeited. Preliminary Foreign Exchange rates were mainly higher.

Rumors of a hitch or possible abandonment of one or more of proposed steel mergers provoked fresh selling of these shares during the first hour. Gulf States extended its reaction to 4 1-2 points and Crucible, Republic Common and Preferred and Midvale averaged one point declines. General Electric was among heavy equipments and Metals and Tobaccos sustained additional losses. Rally of second hour in which short covering was a factor, was led by Corn Products, Davison Chemical, Mexican Petroleum, and Columbia Graphopohne Preferred, the later gaining four points. Rubbers were heavy, however, on further cut in raw products. Call money opened and renewed into next week at five per cent.

Lack of support and weak speculative following enabled the bears to depress some of the leading shares after mid-day, but the general level of prices was not much altered, and dealings contracted considerably. Some of the less active issues were run up one to two points, including Cocoa Colo, Savage Arms, Montana Power, Standard Oil of California, and Public Service of New Jersey.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORIES

"THE TRIANGLE FLAW"

There was as little doubt that Lord Herbert Laurence Sheffield belonged to the nobility as there was about his nationality—and that was apparent immediately from his monocle and his spats. Every shopkeeper along the Via Shiaia in Naples knew his Lordship, and every one of them admitted that a more representative member of the British aristocracy had never visited Italy.

Lord Herbert was not only lavish with his money, but it was whispered around the Grand Hotel di Napoli that his daughter, Sylvia, soon was to be married to one of the richest men in England and that her sojourn in the city was merely in the nature of a rest preparatory to the rigors of an extensive social season.

Therefore when the English nobleman wandered into the establishment of the largest jeweler in Naples some two months after his arrival in the city and asked to be shown some diamond necklaces, there was an immediate scurry to wait upon him. Finally the proprietor himself requested Lord Herbert to come into his private office while he took from the safe a necklace valued at 450,000 francs, the property of a client who was in financial straits and willing to sacrifice the stones at a shade under their market price.

"I would like to purchase something to give my daughter for a wedding present," explained the Englishman, and the jeweler nodded, for the rumors of the engagement had already reached his ears. "I'm afraid, though," continued his Lordship, "that this necklace is a little more expensive than I can afford at the moment. I don't doubt its value, but I'll have to have a little time to think it over."

"Certainly," agreed the jeweler. "I will be pleased to hold it as long as you wish and, should you desire to see and examine it again, I will be very glad to bring it to the hotel at your convenience."

"That would be excellent," assented the visitor, "but I naturally do not wish my daughter to know anything about the transaction. The whole matter is to be a surprise to her."

A few days later, in response to Lord Sheffield's request, the jeweler took the necklace to the Grand Hotel and found the Englishman alone in his room. After a very careful examination of the diamonds terms were agreed upon and Lord Sheffield had just produced his letter of credit from his wallet when a girl's voice was heard in the corridor just outside the door.

"My daughter!" exclaimed the Englishman. "She mustn't know anything about this," and he swept the necklace and the wallet into the drawer of the desk before which he sat. A moment later Sylvia Sheffield came in and announced that her father's tailor had arrived and wished to see him at once. Excusing himself with the statement that he would be back very shortly, Lord Herbert left the room and his daughter followed him immediately.

When half an hour had passed the jeweler began to wonder what was detaining his client, but he didn't worry in the least because his necklace and his Lordship's wallet were there in the drawer of the desk, right under his hand. The transaction involved too much money to warrant any impatience, so it was not until two hours had slipped by before the jeweler rang for the hotel clerk and requested to know what was detaining Lord Sheffield.

"His Lordship and Miss Sylvia left the hotel nearly two hours ago," was the reply. "They had received a cablegram from England."

Sensing that he had been robbed, the jeweler tugged at the drawer of the desk only to find that it was locked, but a moment's examination of the next room sufficed to show that the wall against which the desk was placed had been pierced and that the whole procedure had been a plot to lift the necklace and make a quick getaway.

Lvigi Bonfi, one of the shrewdest detectives in Naples, was immediately placed in charge of the case and telegraphed to Rome to have the pair arrested. Sheffield, anticipating such a move, had planted two confederates in the capital, and by the time that the police had found that their alibi was iron-clad, the real criminals were well on their way northward. Then followed one of the longest chases in continent-to Alexandria, to Switzerland and to Cologne, always just a jump behind them and always unable to secure their arrest because of the numerous efficient disguises which they affected.

Finally, after more than eight months, he located them in London, only to be met by the downright denial of the Englishman that he had ever used the name of Sheffield or had ever been in Naples. He accounted for his possession of a number of unset diamonds by the statement that he had bought them in the Argentine and exhibited a bill of sale covering the gems.

To this Bonfi made no reply, but whipped out a jeweler's magnifying glass and commenced to examine the diamonds, one by one.

Then, before the Englishman knew what he was doing, he leaned forward and snapped a pair of handcuffs on him.

"Bills of sale," said the Italian detective, "are easy enough to forge, but you can't forge a diamond—and one of those in your possession has a triangular flaw in precisely the same place as did one of those in the Monto necklace!"

"Lord Sheffield" spent the next twelve years in prison. The girl escaped.

EXCELLING POINTS KNIGHT CAR MOTOR ARE DEMONSTRATED

SUBJECT OF INTERESTING ADDRESS BY J. R. MARLOW BEFORE LOCAL ENGINEERS.

"The Knight Sleeve-Valve Motor" was the subject of an interesting address delivered in the Board of Trade Rooms, last evening, by Mr. J. R. Marlow, secretary and treasurer of Willys-Overland, Limited, Toronto. The lecture was given under the auspices of the Engineering Instiute, Mr. E. R. Shirley presiding.

Mr. Marlow reviewed the history of Mr. C. Y. Knight's efforts to invent an automobile engine that would do away with noise, and explained the principles on which the new motor was operated. A moving picture was used to describe the operation of the sleeves, and the lecturer lucidly explained the scientific reasons why carbon increased the efficiency of the motor.

The claims that were made for the Knight engine, such as improvement with use, increasing power, greater flexibility and fuel efficiency and so forth, had been rejected by some of the world's greatest engineers, but Knight had succeeded in introducing his engine in the great Daimler works of England. Tests followed such as were never attempted before or since, and the records were public property. Mr. Marlow recounted hese Daimler tests, and also tests by other European makers, who adopted the Knight engine.

It was in 1908 the Daimler Company first produced their cars equipped with the sleeve-valve motor and soon after the Russell Motor Car Company, of Toronto, pioneered the engine in America, though Knight himself had made a few cars previous to going to England.

The Canadian enterprise was shown by a $10,000 challenge to duplicate records made by a test conducted by the Toronto University. This challenge, however, was never taken up. Mr. Marlow gave the data on these Canadian tests, which were, like the European tests, in proving that after 300 hours' continuous running, the motor showed no signs of wear, but did show an increase in horse-power developed.

On motion of Mr. Roberts, a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Marlow for his lucid and instructive lecture, after which two splendid educational films photographed by the Canadian Pacific Railway, and kindly loaned by the company, were screened.

IN DEFENCE OF LORD KITCHENER.

Old Shell Controversy Stirred Up Again.

LONDON, Jan. 27. —(Canadian Press.)—It is a long way back to April 1915, and the Second Battle of Ypres, when the Canadians first won imperishable fame on the battlefields of Europe. An article by ex-Premier Asquith in defense of Lord Kitchener published some little time ago simultaneously in Great Britain and the United States has served to stir up again the old shell controversy which did more than anything to damage Lord Kitchener in the public esteem, brought Lloyd George to the fore as minister of munitions, and eventually led to the retirement of Mr. Asquith as prime minister. Incidentally, lack of shells in April, 1915, cost Canada many thousands of casualties.

This is brought out by a letter to the Times from Lt.-Col. F. B. Mildmay, M.P., who was on the staff of the 27th Division, which fought alongside the Canadians. "It was the grit and determination of our men, Canadians, British Regulars and British territorials alike," he says, "which restored the situation, desperate as it had been, and flung back the enemy once more from Ypres." It is in order that justice shall be done those men that he brings out the true state of the shell supply at that time. In those fateful days of April, 1915, he says the shell ration was reduced as low as two rounds per gun per day. What this means can be realized when it is recalled that in the opening day of the Aniens show of August 8, 1918, every battery with the Canadian Corps was provided with 600 rounds per gun. The text of Col. Mildmay's letter is as follows:

"Serving as I was during the period on the staff of the 27th Division, the only division with headquarters in the salient, two miles east of Ypres, I had most convincing opportunity of realizing indubitably whether or not there was, in those parts, such a shell shortage as involved, for the troops holding the salient, intense and almost intolerable suffering and an ever-growing casualty list. As a necessary consequence of the position, our battalions holding the line were bombarded by the enemy, from three sides—north, east, and south. In whatever direction lay the British trench line, it could be enfiladed by hostile guns. But this was not the worst. The worst was that our artillery lacked the ammunition with which to respond. The daily allowance shrank to four rounds per gun; and I do not think that my memory deceives m when I recall to mind a further reduction to a daily two rounds.

"It can be imagined how our troops suffered under these circumstances, for the German guns could work their will without molestation from us. There was no possibility of counter-battery work. The men in the trenches were ready for anything, but could do nothing—they could only watch the murderous depletion of their numbers day by day. A nerve-racking ordeal! I remember well how the G.O.C. 27th Division (who was practically in charge of British operations in the salient, since all wires communicating with the rear were continually cut by shell fire), deeply and painfully concerned at his inability to provide such artillery support as would mitigate the awful ordeal to which his infantry were being subjected, directed that such very few shells as were at our disposal should be fired, necessarily at long intervals, just over our front line. At any rate, they would feel that there was something going over their heads, thought he.

"Dismounted cavalry were brought up to relieve the sorely-tried battalions at the front; and, as the latter marched to the rear in sadly attenuated numbers the onlooker could read in their ash-grey countenances the tale of their suffering. The German infantry never ventured to come on, to come to close quarters. All the heavy losses were inflicted, all the ruin effected, by the concentrated and unmolested fire of the German artillery. There must remain in the memory of many a length of trench-line occupied by Household Cavalry—such magnificent human material

"It was at this particular moment that there reached us at headquarters the English newspapers containing reports of Mr. Asquith's speech, which conveyed to the public the assurance that there was at that moment no shortage of shell on the Western front. We rubbed our eyes. We could not understand it. There was no criticism. The statement was too blatant, too nakedly false for criticism. We tried to convince ourselves that it had been deliberately made with a view to the deception of the enemy, or for some good and adequate reason unknown to us.

"Such were the conditions prevailing in the salient when the first German gas attack was made. The public knows that tale—no need to pursue it—knows that it was the grit and determination of our men, Canadians, British Regulars, and British territorials alike, which restored the situation, desperate as it had been, and flung back once more the enemy from Ypres.

"In conclusion I would say that I have no wish to take sides in this 'shell controversy,' or to impute blame in this quarter or that—if, indeed, blame is due, for none had seen how colossal would be the expenditure of gun ammunition under present day fighting conditions. I am only concerned that the public should know how much they owe to the men who stood firm under these appalling conditions of acute suffering, and saved Ypres.

"I yield to no one in my fervent admiration of the way in which our small British forces flung back ten times their numbers when, in 1914, Ypres was first imperilled—Operhaps the greatest military feat of the whole war; but I am keenly anxious that the dogged tenacity, the long endurance under crushing shell-fire, the cool bravery under circumstances so daunting which won the Second Battle of Ypres should receive the recognition which is their due."

ORAL INFECTION.

Subject of Address by Dr. Gallivan to Local Nurses.

Peterborough Chapter of the Graduate Nurses' Association of Ontario held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the Public Library, with a good attendance.

The main business of the meeting was an address delivered by Dr. Jas. V. Gallivan, on "Oral Infection," and much interest was shown in the doctor's discourse, which dealt with the dangers of infection through the channels of the nose, throat, and mouth, and the precautions to be taken to ensure immunity from disease through these channels. The speaker referred to several instances coming under his own observation, where disease was directly contracted in this way.

The chair for this meeting was occupied by Miss M. A. Ferguson.

Russians Sell "Anything" For Money.

MOSCOW, January 26 (Associated Press). — "Skolka" (How much?) has become a general term of salutation in Russia. Everybody is buying and selling. There is practically nothing which cannot be bought if sufficient money is offered.

Trade is not confined to the market places. It is carried on everywhere in the streets. It isn't bad manners to stop a man on the street and ask him how much he wants for his beaver cap, or his astrakhan-trimmed overcoat. No woman takes it as an affront to be asked how much she will take for her sable stole or silver purse.

There are many well-dressed persons moving about the streets in finery which doesn't belong to them, but is being shown in the hope that they may get an offer for it and have a chance to earn a commission.

Improvised cafes which are springing up everywhere under the direction of members of the former bourgeoisie are frequently furnished with elaborate upholstered chairs and divans from some once grand drawing-room. The walls are lined with oil paintings and tapestries. The porcelain frequently bears the crests of famous families. It is all for sale.

The cultivated waitresses are frequently money-changers who will buy foreign exchange or undertake any sort of business commissions.

Recently a party of Americans, including several women attended mass at one of the famous churches in Moscow. When the priests in their gorgeous gold gowns marched through the mass of standing worshippers, one of the men warned the women: "When those priests pass you, don't take hold of their robes and ask 'Skolka?'"

St. Catherine's Day in France is a day when all young girls who have attained the age of 25 without finding a husband put on the bonnet of spinsterhood. This does not necessarily mean that they have abandoned hope of finding a suitable mate.

"The man I marry," she declared, pompously, "must be a hero."

"He will be," answered the disappointed suitor.

CONSTRUCTION WORK BY CANADIAN PACIFIC

But Only Such As Is Urgent—Policy of Caution

WINNINPEG, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Pacific Railway Press Bureau)—On his return from Montreal this morning D. C Coleman, Vice-President of the C.P.R. western lines issued the following statement regarding conditions and improvement of the Companys lines at Fort William.

"Commercial conditions as they exist at the moment have imposed on the C.P.R. as on all other business organizations a policy of cautions wiht respect to embarking on large expenditures on capital account. It has been decided therefore, to announce a beginning on such works only as are of an urgent character. Consideration of further expenditure. Including that for the construction of branch lines, has been postponed until March or April, when it is hoped that the outlook will be more clear and that the indications of a steady revival in railway traffic will be more apparent.

Ocean Pier

The most important work to be undertaken at once is the building of a large ocean pier at Vancouver. This is justified by the constant growth of ocean traffic through Canadian Pacific ports. It will take approximately eighteen months to complete the work. The filling and dredging for the site has already been completed. The pier will be eight hundred feet long. With provision made for further extension later. Three hundred and twenty eight feet wide, and will carry four railway tracks to enable freight to be handled expeditiously between ship and cars. It will be equipped with the modern facilities for handling passengers and freight. With the construction of this pier, following on reinforcement of the ocean fleet by the great steamship "The Empress of Canada and "The Empress of Australia', the company is confident that it will hold for Canada for many year the blue ribbon of supremacy on the Pacific. To assist in the prompt movement of traffic mechanical coaling plants of an improved type will be erected at Eagle River, Ontario, Lariviere, Man., Estevtan, Sask., Swift Current, Sask., and Medicine Hat, Alta. The growth of the fruit traffic on Okanagan Lake justifies the building of an additional ice storage building at Okanagan Landing, B. C., and this will be undertaken at once. Automatic protection signals will be installed at Sydney Man., and Ruby Creek, B.C.

Increased Traffic

Water supplies at the following plants will be improved with a view to meeting the demands of increased traffic which may be expected, Rathewell, MacGregor and Wheatland in Manitoba, Bredenburry Hirsch, Frys, Weyburn, Mayoun, Elbow, Harkbeg, Faunta, Outlook and Gull Lake in Saskatchewan. Bow Island and Lundbrek in Alberta, and Elko and Creston in British Columbia.

"The new office building at Moose Jaw and the important extension to the Island coal dock at Fort William will be presed to conclusion and a considerable amount of work will be carried on in the replacement and standardization of bridges on the line.'

IRISH GIRLS MAKE PRINCESS' LINGERIE.

Finest Irish Linen For Royal Bride.

LONDON, Jan. 27.— (Associated Press.)—Fifteen Irish colleens, picked needle workers, have been selected to make part of the lingerie for Princess Mary's trousseau. The work will be done at the girls' own homes, and will take six weeks to complete.

Fashion experts are enthusiastic over the beauty of the models. The garments are to be of the finest Irish linen trimmed with exquisite Carrickmacross and Irish point stitch lace, and threaded with pale blue satin ribbon. Some of the lace has the shamrock pattern worked in it.

Donegal fisher girls are to make a number of white knitted frocks for the Princess' honeymoon abroad. Technically they are described as "of very fine wool, quite plain in the bodice, short sleeves, and with a deep flounce for the skirt showing raised in ta."

Irish tweed is the material for the Princess' travelling dresses.

Milk For What Ails Us

The following article in "Hoard's Dairyman" is quite illuminative of the remarkable invigorating and even curative qualities of milk, and will undoubtedly be read with interest. The author is Helen S. K. Wilcox of New York, a recognized authority on milk and its marvelous value as food medicine.

If a man or woman were pretty sick, and consequently frightened and in doubt of what the future held, and he or she should consult a widely known specialist and he should prescribe a diet so simple and inexpensive and easy to get that it would seem almost ridiculous to have confidence in it—wouldn't that man or woman marvel at a cure so unassuming and ubiquitous, concerning which the world has so long been in uncomprehending ignorance?

And yet in milk we have this marvelous food-medicine, but particularly a preventive for many of the ills to which modern civilization is heir. In a way it is not strange that neither the dairyman nor the consumer of milk or the person who is bound for Sickville, because of its lack, fail to comprehend what milk has meant to them, is meaning to them, and especially will mean to them in the future. It is of this future we would now talk.

A mighty step forward in the direction of Wellville was made not so many years ago when it was discovered that fresh air and unlimited quantities of it prevent several dreaded maladies, among which might be mentioned tuberculosis. Contemporary with this came the further knowledge that sunshine is almost as necessary as fresh air for that person who would recover from the early inroads of some disease; and ever since these vital facts became generally known, the Great White Plague and kindred complaints have been startlingly less numerous, and thousands of stricken people today owe their health to these two free elements of Nature.

But it seemed, as science proceeded in its investigations, that air and sunshine were not enough; they were indispensable in certain cases, good in all cases, and cured and helped in an encouraging and remarkable manner, but they could not effect alone the nearly perfect combination for which the world was in such dire need. Then it was that science, on the right trail at last, proved to its own satisfaction that while air and sunshine can do wonders for man, they are incomplete until certain foods unite with them to form the ideal union of elements necessary to human health; and while many foods were found to contain properties best suited to man's needs, the most natural one of all, possessing those properties we must have in order to keep well rather than to get well, is our own humble and much abused product—milk.

If you have read the magazines and daily papers for a year past, or rather their advertisements, you must have been impressed with the yeast publicity crusade which has taken this ailing and near-ailing country almost by storm. On every hand one hears this query, "Have you got a little yeast cake in your house, and do you eat one, two or three times a day for vitamine's sake? It's a wonderful tonic and smart specialists and renowned doctors are prescribing it right and left. Better try yeast for what ails you!"

I imagine most folks would be genuinely surprised, if at all interested, in the figures the yeast makers could show us as to their stupendous sales since this very effective line of vitamine-advertising was begun.

What we are now on the way to realizing at last is, that milk's future is absolutely too big to take in at one good long thinking, provided we too get into the game and go after our ten million babies, boys and girls, middle-aged adults, and so-called old people on the assumption that each and every one of them needs the particular brand of vitamine contained in milk; first—to keep them well if they are not now ailing; second—to help them regain their health provided it is not quite all it might be; and third—to drink it and eat it in large, health-renewing quantities in order to assimilate its vitamines, minerals, salts, fats, proteins, and all the rest in as short a time and in as great a measure as possible, that it may banish many ailments altogether; and where it cannot cure, it can at least prolong life as no other food can.

The stories we are constantly hearing of milk's marvelous cures are almost unbelievable. If you were a native of the Far East, say, and had sickened and were almost at the point of death with pellegra or beri-beri or such typical diseases of a dairy-starved country, and you were fed milk in abundance, and as a result you were able to take up your bed right soon and walk—surely such a man would look at his simple cure as nothing short of miraculous, and he would rejoice in telling its magic wonders to thousands like him who suffered similarly.

When our mighty consuming public finally discovers milk—and it will actually amount to that—Americans of the future are going to be without a peer on earth; and that is not making the eagle scream either.

When our millions of under-nourished and mal-nourished babies and children are fed all the milk they want and need; when they continue to eat it as they grow up and grow old; when their fathers and mothers and grandparents turn to it as the most logical and natural food known to man,—then, says Science, the country which does this sensible and progressive and health-first thing is going to become the natural leader among nations, and surely that leader is going to be America.

Milk cures sore eyes in little children caused by its lack. It puts good red blood into wasted, stunted bodies belonging to young or old. It stands ready to fight off dozens of ailments which attack bodies unable to resist disease ravages because of a lack of vitamines. It is pronounced the greatest protective food known, and that country educated as to its almost sublime healing properties would be dense and blind indeed were it not to turn at last to its wonderful remedy.

We are going to be known some day as the nation which believes to a man in the sweet and natural virtues of those elements which a Creator provided in the beginning for his children, but which it has taken millions of years for us to finally comprehend. We have finally adopted the creed of fresh air in sunny houses and we see to it, at least in America, that pure water accompanies the other two. Today we are on the brink of taking a step upward in our progress toward ultimate perfection which will be revolutionary in its results. That step is to educate people as to the virtues found in dairy products, and because man is selfish and bound up in himself, he is going to take milk to his bosom then and if it does for him what is claimed, its producers will proceed to get busy to keep him bountifully supplied.

America of tomorrow is going to be milk-fed. She is going to be vitamine-wise and vitamine-nourished, and those people who make foods lacking in these essential atoms are just as good as ruined this minute. Let the oleo manufacturers and oil importers and all the rest rave on. Their innings are growing shorter hour by hour. They are practically finished from a profit-making standpoint when the dairymen finally and fully get into the game and tell America what pure, indispensable milk right from the cow and nature is to mean to them.

Should we worry? Only until we get our great publicity ball rolling. The public, even on the lookout for health, will take care of us then. The virile little vitamine is going to do the trick and he who has it not will be few and far between. You can't stop America from demanding the food that is going to make her into a new, health-safe country.

THE GENOA CONFERENCE.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 27.— (Canadian Press.)—Premier Thounys, replying in the Chamber yesterday to questions as to whether he was firmly partisen toward the proposed Genoa Economic Conference, and whether he believed the conference would prove a great success, said:

"I am a partisan under the conditions formulated. It is impossible to prophesy the results, but if there is only one chance in a hundred chances of accomplishing something, the responsibility for not trying to accomplish it would be heavy. I must insist, however, that it be absolutely understood that the Versailles, St. Germaine, and other treaties shall not be brought into the discussion at Genoa."

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

Exhibition games with crack senior teams are all right in their place, but it takes an O.H.A. battle to provide the real thrills. That is why there is so much interest in to-night's Intermediate O.H.A. fixture with Picton, and why the biggest crowd of the season will fill Brock Street Rink. There is everything to indicate a memorable game. The ice is keen and fast, and both teams are in the best of shape and confident of the outcome. As of course goals count on the round, there will be no let up from start to finish, and the fixture should prove the best of the year.

This is the first Peterborough-Picton clash since the days when Joe Moines, alias Joe Tetreault, wore a Peterborough uniform. The elusive Mr. Moines, it will be remembered, got into trouble with the O.H.A., and while he was being given the third degree by the governing body, his team mates were letting a five-goal lead slip through their fingers down at Picton, and were nosed out of the round by one marker. It was a sad occasion all around, for the Moines-Tetreault person disappeared a short distance ahead of a police court summons, while the Petes hang up their sticks for the winter. But why be gloomy? This is another year.

On the City League horizon appears the shadow of a cloud. The P.A.A.A. Intermediates play in Picton next Wednesday, the night of the weekly double-header, which means that the City League teams will all be shy their two O.H.A. men on that occasion. Some of them are not any too well provided with reserves, and they will be clamouring for a postponement. However, as the O.H.A. men are likely to be out anyway, the League will probably go ahead and operate as usual next Wednesday, if the curlers who have secured the rink for the first three days are through with the ice.

FAMOUS WORDS OF FAMOUS MEN.

"No, there's not a reserved seat left."—J. P. Bond.

If Alex. McDonald is with the Picton team to-night—and he's sure to be if he's able to walk—the Prince Edward County lads will not lack for vocal support. McDonald can make more noise than any other fifty rooters in Ontario, as any ball fan is prepared to testify.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

What is the difference between a poke check and a butt end? —"Puzzled."

A.—From two to five minutes in the penalty box.

Would you please tell in your column when a player is offside? —"A Real Fan."

A.—This one is easy. A home player is never offside, a visiting player is always offside when he has a chance to score.

Why do some referees carry a bell and never ring it?—"Bleachesite."

A.—Can't tell you. Write Steve Vair.

To settle a bet, will you please publish Jake Solomon's record for circling the bases?—"A Ball Fan."

A.—No dope at hand to show he ever went round without a stop somewhere for repairs. His best time was from the middle of the Belleville diamond to the coacher's box in 11-5 seconds, paced by Rev. D. C. Ramsay.

A bets B that the P.A.A.A. Sports Director spells his name with two L's. B says that when he played in the Coast League it was spelled Smail. Which wins?—"Subscriber."

A.—The bet goes to A. Evidently B thinks they knock L out of everything in the Pacific loop.

Not that any of the home crew can see a chance for a Picton victory however. They are confident, although they realize the visitors will prove a fighting aggregation and there will be no chance to relax in to-night's fixture The ice will be lightning fast and everything indicates the hockey treat of the season. Although the announcement of the game was only made yesterday the reserved seat plan has been cleaned up rapidly which indicates a record crowd.

THE RING

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press).—A purse "equal to the one he received for the Jersey City fight last summer," has been offered Jack Dempsey for a second bout with Georges Carpentier in London in July, Jack Kearns, the champion's manager, announced last night.

Dempsey's share in the championship fight with the Frenchman on July 2, was said to have been $300,000 the largest stake ever offered a pugilist. Carpentier's share was $200,000.

"The offer, of course, is more than tempting, said Kearns, "and I will announce my decision soon."

The London offer was made by a syndicate of sportsman, Kearns said. It came on the heels of a message from William A. Brady, expressing his desire to match Dempsey and Harry Wills in London.

A team from Warsaw will play the Peterborough Rangers team to-night at the Armouries Rink. The game will start at 6 o'clock.

Scene from Enchantment, Capitol Theatre, To-night, and Tomorrow.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

The modern girl, right up to the minute, is the heroine of "Enchantment' at the Capitol this week end. The "flapper" at her "flappiest" stage is pictured in all her gorgeousness of wonderful clothes and independent pose.

Marion Davies is the haughty young Ethel, the one spoiled darlin of wealthy parents who find out too late that they have absolutely no control over her manners ,clothes or mode of living. Her father sees the "Taming of the Shrew" and makes a bargain with its handsome hero to make love to his daughter, and eventually 'tame' her. The process leads the young man through a merry dance, with the girl more triumphant than ever.

Beautiful gowns, luxurious settings of modern New York life, and a rapid, smooth action make this production one of the prettiest pictures ever filmed here. The inset staging of an amateur performance of "The Sleeping Beauty," with its lovely settings, in which the heroine plays the part of the sleeply princess, and the hero enacts the chivalrous lover, is particularly attractive.

"Teddie's Goat" is the comedy, a two reel comedy centering arounda clever dog comedian, and there is a remarkably good vaudeville offering, with Charles Mannito and Company, skillful juglers and balancers. Charles consumes, with apparent enjoyment, a light lunch while balancing on his head on top of a bottle, and the pair have a musical bell act that is bright and catchy.

AT THE ROYAL.

What Love Will Do, a six reel feature, at the Royal gives an exciting story about love and infidelity in the married life of a small town blacksmith. It is refreshing to get such a story outside stereotyped drama of the idle rich. One sees how passions and desires act and react amongst the people of the work-a-day world. The blacksmith's wife, tiring of the everlasting sameness of a working man's wife, elopes with a plausible good looking man, who swears he will procure a divorce for her and also promises to look after the woman's infant son, whom she deserts. The inevitable result of the woman's foolish act soon comes. The man she elopes with tires of and leaves her. Twenty years pass, the blacksmith dies with a broken heart and the woman, alone in the world seeks vainly for her son. The man with whom she eloped is a confidence man. He comes to the village where the son devotes more time to pool tables than to his work. The confidence man posing as an evangelist succeeds so well that he make a convert of the boy who does not see through the visitors hyperisy. The "evangelist" collects a large sum for his "New York Missions". Circumstances compel him to take his convert to New York as the boy has the collection money The "con man" frames it up" to have the boy robbed of the money at a mission meeting. At this meeting the boy tells his "experience". His mother, who is in the audience by his story, recognizes her son and their comes a happy culmination of her troubles. The plot is well woven and cleverly leads to an exciting finish. Pearl White, a Peterboro favorite in "Any Wife" is particularly effective in the heroine's part of this society feature picture.

When the name of Larry Semon is mentioned it is unnecessary to state that the comedies are good.

AT THE REGENT.

With three characterizations as its outstanding features, Universal's special attraction, "The Fire Eater," brought entertainment to the screen of the Regent Theatre last night. Hoot Gibson's performance as a smilingly intrepid forest ranger, Louise Lorraine's portrayal of a mountaineer girl with a strong contempt for Federal agents and Carmen Phillips' impersonation of a Gypsy girl with romantic proclivities are the figures which stand out in clearest relief. Each is an achievement, with Hoots the best of the lot.

Gibson is convincingly natural anyway. You don't think he is acting you see him as the real character.

Ralph Cummings had the forest service romance well in hand and the timber problem well analyzed when he wrote the story. Harvey Gates prepared a smooth continuity for Reaves Eason's use in the direction of the production. Mr. Eason's touch is seen in a nice balance of important dramatic scenes — and such careful handling has its place in outdoor plays just as well as in your parlor society dramas.

Louise Lorraine is the sort of leading woman to gather in the fan letters. Go to see "The Badge of the Fighting Hearts" and you'll be writing her one yourself—for she has a lovely charm that is all the more conspicuous because of the wonderful scenic background of the California big timber.

AT THE GRAND.

REX STOCK COMPANY.

The bill at the Grand next week promises to be one of the best comedies that the popular Rex Stock Company have yet produced.

It is the laughable and yet interesting story of an ordinary "Drummer" or travelling salesman, for whom the play is named. "Bob," the drummer in question, finds himhimself stranded at Grand Junction (Yes, the town looks just as it sounds), and meets the charming little station agent, played by Miss Vaughn. Of course they fall in love at first sight. During the second act "Bob" discovers that some unscrupulous men are trying to do Beth out of her land that she has fought all her life to hold on to. In his endeavors to save her from these men, he himself got "in wrong" with the girl in question, and it takes the rest of this delightful play to straighten things out. Every one of the company appear in this play, to even the Park Kiddies, who appear as the funny little country Kids that get into everything they shouldn't around the station. The scenery is well worthy of mention: the first act, the station in the One Horse town, is a work of art. The other three acts are all mounted the way they should be. All lovers of the grand old game of poker will enjoy the five-handed game in the second act.

FOOTBALLERS JOIN UP WITH P. A. A. A.

A large gathering of football supporters assembled in the Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday night to hear the report fro the committee which meet the P.A.A.A. officials with a view to joining the latter association. The committee spoke very favourably of the football association joining the P.A.A.A. and after considerable discussion it was passed unanimously that we go under the wing of the P.A.A.A.

Mr. Andrews, formerly of Montreal, who is an old-timer at football and is at present an official referee, gav the meeting an address, pointing out how Quebec Football Association was run and how successful it has been.

It was suggested that Mr. Andrew's name be recorded in the ledger for an official referee.

Th Ontario meeting of the Ontario Football Association is being held on Saturday in Hamilton and Mr. W. G. Nicholls will represent Peterborough there.

All clubs who intend entering the Football Association for this year must file their intentions of doing so not later than the first week of February and the entrance fee must be paid by the first week in March.

PETERBOROUGH DOLLAR DAY WAS ANOTHER BIG SUCCESS

OWING TO BITTER COLD MOST OF THE BUYING DONE AFTER MIDDAY.

THE PRIZE-WINNERS

Another big success attended Peterboro's winter Dollar Day on Wednesday. The sudden drop of the temperature to the lowest of this winter, put a damper on the up town crowd at the earlier hours of the day; but the rapid rise of the mercury thawed the atmosphere and the city homes turned loose the usual hurrying crowd of Dollar Day Shoppers when the afternoon produced practically the whole day's business. To handle the selling that usually goes with an entire Dollar Day, in the four and a half hours of the afternoon, taxed the big stores to the limit and here were many jams at the counters, where the rush hour bargains were displayed. A round of the stores during the afternoon was an interesting trip, and showed that even when times are dull, Peterboro citizens as a whole are in fairly good shape to participate in an event as important as our semi-annual Dollar Day has become. Up to a late hour in the evening, shoppers came along with their hands full of estimating blanks secured during the day in purchases, and had taken home to fill out with due deliberation and so, when taken in at ten o'clock, the box appeared to have about the usual weight of tickets in it. However, the official count and sorting out, which occupied the entire next day, showed that the busy afternoon had not been quite able to make up for the loss of the morning's business, and the total number of tickets was found to be 16519, a drop of over 5,000 from the number the box contained last winter.

However, there was no lack of evidence that the people are becoming shrewd estimaters of the probable number of estimating blanks that will be used in a regular Dollar Day's business as no winner was farther away from the actual number in the box than nine; and there were hundreds more just outside the fortunate few numbers that carried away the $175.00 in cash that was the amount in the treasury box provided by the sixty-five stores that were on the list.

A feature of this Dollar Day, is that for the second time, the closest estimate for the big prize, was made on a ticket procured from the Examiner, and while this ticket, filled out by Walter Preston, R.R. 3, Lakefield tied with another for first place, the Examiner special prize of $10.00 goes to Mr. Preston, increasing his winnings to $47.50. Mr. Preston paid $4.00 on his subscription account at the Examiner office on Dollar Day, and so gets his money back twelve fold.

The Examiner is as pleased to have its special prize won this year as the winner can be to get it, as the management is anxious to have every feature of the big day contribute to its success and prove to the community, the genuineness of the attractions put up for competition.

Mr. Preston will therefore receive $47.50 for his fortunate estimate, when he calls at the Examiner Office for his prize money.

Below is the list of winners disclosing many ties which necessitated dividing the money in several cases, the last being where three estimates tide for the sixteenth prize of $5.00 getting $1.66 each as their share.

The money will be paid out any time after Tuesday, January 31st.

Oil Has Been Discovered

GREAT NEWS FROM THE SCENE OF THE FIRST WELL OF THE CENTRAL ONTARIO OIL FIELDS LTD.

I have just arrived in London, Ont., after seeing, with my own eyes, oil drawn from the first well of the above company. The oil produced is straight from the well and of the first-grade quality. Those in Peterborough who have had their doubts about the Central Ontario Oil Fields, Ld., can at once dismiss their doubts and say that the company is now in possession of oil-producing wells, and are moving their machinery to sink a second well in the same district.

My advice to those who have been waiting to see oil produced before buying stock in the company is to take all they can of this stock while they can at the present price. If they wait longer they will have to pay more. To-day you may have a share in the Oil Company for $1 per share. If you linger you will pay more than $2 per share.

I am staying in London for a few days, and those who have seen the oil say it is going to be a boom for London when the company gets going properly. Some have heard of the company, others have not; but from now on we will see the people of this district taking a very great interest in this company. The directors have wanted Peterborough and district to represent the whole company. They have never gone away to interest anyone else. They find that the cities outside are as much interested, if not more so, than the people of Peterborough. So all I can say is, if you want something good, get it at once, as "what we have we hold." It is here and we have seen the real stuff. I am speaking now as one who is alive and interested in this discovery and knows what he is talking about.

Yours truly,
..ONE INTERESTED.

IF IT FITS—

A woman thinks Columbus's discovery of America pales into insignificance when compared to the things she has discovered about the poor fish she has just married.

Now comes a learned professor to tell us about the tremendous power in a woman's tears. He can't tell a married man anything new about that.

Most men object to having some one else make a fool of them. That's a little job they prefer to attend to themselves.

Why is it that a woman can wade through the snow in low shoes and silk hose and her feet never get cold, and yet when she goes to bed they always are like a couple of icicles?

A woman's weakness is her strength. It is the one thing that will knock the strongest man flat.

We are asked why women don't learn to vamp their own husbands The answer is, we guess, that after living with them for a while they decide the old fools are not worth the trouble.

In writing for money you are apt to get better returns by writing to some liberal friends than for the newspapers.

The trouble with the boob who made a killing on the tortoise in its famous race with the hare, is that he has been losing on long shots ever since.

The great drawback to the old gag about all being fair in love and war is the fact that both cost more fare than we can afford.

Auto, Stock and Slicker Cost George $1,800 Roll

DETROIT, Jan. 27.—For nearly 12 months of the year George Bronson, 28 years old, works on his father's farm just outside of Flint. Last Saturday he came to Detroit avowedly to buy a new touring car at the Automobile Show, sewing $1,800 into the lining of his vest before setting out.

Monday night he went to the show and at the very outset was captivated by a large touring car with blue body and wire wheels. The price of the automobile was $2,100, just $300 more than he had to spend. Sturdy, roomy and graceful he told himself it was just the thing for Sunday strips; likewise its spacious interior appealed to his farmer mind.

Opulent Gentleman Agrees.

"Isn't it a dandy?" a large, opulent looking gentleman in a brown derby and fancy vest, said, as Bronson was paying homage before the big car for the fourth time.

The affable stranger said his name was Watters.

Bronson enthusiastically agreed. He told the stranger of his desire to buy and his shortage of funds.

The big man threw back his head, thrust his thumbs into the arm holes of his vest, took a firmer grip on his cigar and teetering forth on his feet, explained.

"It's a coincidence that the difference of $300 which separates you from your purchase is the selfsame figure I have insisted all along should be chopped from the price of the car. There are many others like yourself who see the sterling merit of our product, but who fail to buy because of the psychological significance anything over $2,000 has on their sense of economy."

"Stock" Much in Demand.

The pair left the show together. Mr. Watters, it seemed, was a motor bus enthusiast, prefering to ride to his hotel in a bus than in one of his big limousines. Chilling drafts reached them in the bus and Mr. Watters chatteringly referred to a quart of old stuff in his room at the hotel which would soon warm them.

After a round of drinks at the hotel Mr. Watters fell into a communicative mood. He told of wrankling directors' meetings, of an old inventor who had been deprived of his patent by unscrupulous capitalists behind the concern, of the fat dividends the stockholders were drawing.

Because of the growing prosperity of the company, Henry Ford, Mr. Watters said, was seeking a foothold in the company by purchasing the last ten available shares of the stock. Mr. Watters explained that he would have snapped up these 10 shares himself had not the constitution forbade his owning more than 200 shares.

Mr. Watters drew an envelope from his pocket and patted it lovingly.

'Henry will never get this stock if I can keep him from it," he said and his eyes narrowed.

"Buys" Car For $800.

The price of the 10 shares was $1,000. Of course, there were many privileges granted stockholders, such as reduced rates on their personal automobiles. The standard model on display at the show could be bought for $800 by stockholders, Mr. Watters divulged.

Bronson did some rapid calculating, he told John Reid, detective inspector, Tuesday, remembering the signing of several documents, the transfer of his $1,800 to Mr. Watters and the latter's "Goodby, good luck and God bless you"—after a parting drink.

And so the Bronsons will have to get along without a car for a time.

BERLIN, Jan. 27. — (Canadain Press.) —The Reichstag, including the public galleries, was crowded yesterday to hear Chancellor Wirth's statement on the general situation in Germany. The Chancellor began by defining his foreign policy as embracing the fulfillment as far as possible to ascertain Germany's paying capacity with the conviction that only actual deliveries could render it possible toascertain Germany's paying capacity, and that only the economic consequences of such deliveries could enlighten the world as to the real nature of the obligations on account of reparations assumed by Germany.

Recalling the recent reparations negotiations, the Cnancellor annunced that the German programme of deliveries, which had been requested by the Reparations Commission, would be presented to the Commission to-morrow in the form of a short memorandum, accompanied by explanatory annexes.

OLD-FASHIONED PARTY AT ST. JOHN'S

The old-fashioned party held at St. John's parish hall last evening was a decided success, with an attendance of interested spectators in all sorts of costumes. The ladies in charge, the January committee of the Churchwomen's Association, composed of Mesdames A. Amys, G. S. Cameron, F. D. Kerr, W. M. Carruthers, A. E. Coulthard, W. Dolby, C. M. Robinson, and the Misses Hugel and Denne, were delighted with the success of their arrangements, which provided a very enjoyable and merry entertainment for all who attended.

Dr. and Mrs. Blagrave, with Mrs. D. Mulholland, president of the C. W.A., received their guests, and Dr. G. S. Cameron acted as chairman. Mrs. A. L. Amys read the address of welcome.

The pictures presented in the gaily decorated hall, with its bright yellow and red streamers, and the gorgeous old-fashioned costumes of the stately colonial dames mingling with modern, up-to-date fashions, was attractive enough to repay the ladies for the time and care expended in preparations, and everyone present seemed to enjoy a very jolly evening, which concluded with the service of refreshments.

Some of the gowns were nearly one hundred years old, and represented the ideas of fashion in our grandmother's and great-grandmother's time. Miss Mabel Collins wore her grandmother's wedding costume, Mrs. Chris. Robinson, Mrs. D. Mulholland, Miss M. English and Miss B. Hall were grand old ladies, Mrs. Blagrave and Mrs. A. L. Amys were fetching Dolly Vardens, the former in mauve, the latter in pink and blue, Mrs. Henry Cameron was a stately colonial lady, Mrs. S. T. Medd appeared as Brittania, Mrs. Carruthers as Red Riding Hood, Mrs. F. D. Kerr as Carmen. Mrs. G. S. Cameron as a French peasant, Mrs. W. J. Preston as an Italian dancing girl, Miss Gertrude Denne was a quaint Priscilla, Miss Julia Nicholls a dainty Perrette, and Miss Hugel a charming little French girl. Scores of other striking costumes filled the hall to its capacity.

Prizes for the best fancy dress costumes went to Miss M. Archer, who was a stunning King Charles Second, and to Mr. C. M. Robinson as a Brigand, and awards for the best comic presentations to Mrs. J. H. Seels as Aunt Sally, and Mr. A. W. Turner as a clown.

Musical Programmee.

During the evening, a well-received musical programme was rendered by the Meessrs. Chenhall, in a violin and 'cello duet, vocal selections, vocal selections by Mrs. George Perks and Mrs. A. L. Amys, the latter with a violin obligato by Miss Edwina Palmer, by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham and Mr. F. Johnston, a recitation by Miss Irene Breckeenridge, and two violin numbers, waltzes by Kreisler, by Miss Palmer. Mrs. George Evans, who was in a quaint Martha Washington costume, played accompaniments. Encores were eliminated, to save time and all numbers were accorded the heartiest applause.

A much patronized feature was the fortune-telling, carried on by Mrs. Gingras, the Misses Smith and Nicholls.

Games and contests wound up the evening. An Art Gallery contest, arranged by Mrs. H. H. Cameron, was won by Mrs. T. W. H. Young and Mr. G. Rackham, while victors in later games were Mrs. J. J. Howden, the Misses Roger, McRae, Thompson and Mr. C. M. Robinson.

The thanks of the committee in charge is extended to all who took part in the programme, to those who assisted in any way, and to all who attended and helped to make the affair such a complete success.

WHEN WILL THE MAIL ORDER MENACE BE CURTAILED?

Just as soon as the local merchants price their goods equally with outside cities, and when the buyers in our city wake up to their loyalty. Lack of confidence is killing our city's progress. We need co-operation. RUMOURS THAT FIRE BRIGADE NEGLIGENT

ALLEGATIONS ARISE FROM DELAY IN REACHING ST. ANDREW'S MANSE FIRE.

A meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee will be held early next week, probably on Tuesday night, to investigate charges that are being circulated in the city against the fire department in connection with the fire last Sunday at St. Andrew's manse.

Ald. J. Crowe, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, to-day stated that in justice to the Fire department the meeting would be held and the committee endeavor to ascertain if there is any foundation for the charges of negligne.

"We're going to have the committee meet the beginning of the week —probably on Tuesday—when we'll endeavor to sum it all up," the chairman told the Examiner at noon today. Ald. Crowe said he was going to see Rev. James Rollins and learn what information was given to the department to lead them to the fire, as he felt that Sunday being a cold and very windy day it would not be difficult for them to be misled.

Ald Crowe also says that the complaints he had heard had been regarding a delay in the arrival of the firemen at the scene of the fire. The charges had been so persistent he felt that the committee should meet and discuss the fire and when the facts were learned take what action was deemed advisable. The meeting would only be an impersonal enquiry, he said, and nothing in the way of a trial of the fire department. "We won't come to any conclusion till we have found out all the circumstances," he added. "If he thought it necessary, Rev. James Rollins would probably be at the meeting, and the fire chief would also be available.

WEDDING BELLS

WRIGHTMEYER-HEWSON

A pretty wedding took place yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hewson, 258 McDonnell street, when their daughter, Mary, was united in marriage to Eric Wrightmeyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. The bride, who wore white charmeuse veiled with crepe de chine with lace garniture, veil caught with orange blossoms and bouquet of pink Ophelia roses, entered the drawing-room on the arm her brother, Mr. Charles Hewson of Woodstock, to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Edna Hewson. The bridesmaid, Miss Kathleen Tyers, of Belleville, wore pale blue silk, and carried sweatheart roses. Mr. Thomas Wrightmeyer of Belleville, supported the groom.

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served. Mr. and Mrs. Wrightmeyer will reside at Coe Hill.

Great progress was made last night at choir practice at Mark street church. All members are most enthusiastic over the approaching concert, Feb. 3rd, and one and all are working hard to make this the event of the season. One cannot afford to miss this musical treat. It is hoped that instead of wise men coming from the east they will be found travelling to the east on Feb. 3rd.

COULD HAVE HAD FORTUNE

Captain Francis Spilsbury Turned Down a Chance to Secure 2,700 Acres of Land.

Trip to Peterborough.

(By F. H. DOBBIN)

During the pleasant evenings of last summer when people who could afford to ignore the cost of living sat down to an early and acceptable tea, or supper, the proceeding of the meal would be punctuated by a series of muffled bangs coming from somewheres. Those of an inquiring turn of mind presently discovered that the noises proceeded, not from the explosions of automobile tires but from the rending and fracturing of rocks out on the roadside in the nearest parts of North Monaghan. Little attention was paid to the occurrences though really the noises were about the most expensive that had regaled the people of the city to date.

But however indifferent the general public seemed to be there were eleven men, good and true, that held pronounced opinions. These were of the City Council. For the Council knew that as sure as death and taxes the bill for the pleasant diversion would come in. Which it did in the fall of the year to the tune of $7,500.00 for the city's share of the improvements on the Gravel Road within a few miles of the boundary. The bill was paid, for the tail and hoofs go with the hide.

The only reason just now for referring to the entertainment is to tell something how a man was once offered the whole of the lands along which the Gravel Road meanders, land that included the rocks so exploded. Offered for his acceptance as a gift and how he being at the time petulent and given to expression of hasty conclusion, came, saw and abandoned. Thus indifferently depriving himself of the ownership of a very large slice of the township of North Monaghan, with a part of the town plot of Peterborough thrown in for good measure. For Fortune is ever a fickle jade, and at that what a man gets for nothing is often to him worth what it cost him to get it.

Had A Gunboat

And the story, true enough, concerns the actions of a man, who during the war of 1812, that slight polemical and hasty difference with our American cousins, had the habit of hitching his gunboat to the bank of the Niagara river, just about where the new and big Chippawa power development went into action a couple of weeks ago, and leaving the defenceless gunboat outdoors for the night. This same gunboat being on His Majesty's service,carrying one gun that pitched a round ball about the size of a Northern Spy apple, much to the discomfort of people along the south shore of Lake Ontario. That is when the gunboat and gun were pitching, which was not often.

This gunboat was not a signally terrible affair. Little larger than the Stoney Lake and sail driven, it made haste slowly. It was one of several "The Fleet" that had been built of wood, at Kingston, and launched to hold authority on the waters of Lake Ontario. But when the war was finished and things amicably settled the boat went out of commission and the commander likewise. And for services rendered there were in these days, much of reward of a kind. Generally in copious grants of land, because it cost the Home Government nothing to bestow and these who received made what money they could out of disposal of their holdings.

Came To Peterborough.

Capt. Francis Spilsbury was a post-captain in the Royal Navy. He had served with distinction under Nelson and had participated in several of the famous naval engagements against the French fleets, and was probably a veteran of Trafalgar Bay. On the 2outbreak of the difference between the British and Americans, Capt. Spilsbury, together with brother officers of experience, was despatched across the Atlantic to take service on the lakes,

OFF COLOR JOKES ANGER FAIR CO-EDS

Northwestern Girls Appeal Against College "Wits."

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—College wits and punsters have gone too far with co-eds of Northwestern University, it was learned today. The girls resenting the publication of naughty and off-color jokes about them in college papers, asked the faculty to clamp down the lid.

This is one of the jokes that started the row:

First Co-Ed—"What are you going to wear to the prom?'

Second Co-Ed—"I don't know I've decided on nothing."

President Walter Dill Scott is investigating.

"Watch our smoke from now on", said James W. Egan business manager of the Purple Parrot, one of the paper under fire. "They haven't seen anyhing yet."

TO EXPLOIT WATERWAYS

Special Meeting of the Trent Waterways Development Association--Peterborough Not Represented.

Representatives of municipalties along or adjoining the Trent Waterway at the special meeting of the Trent Waterways Development Association in Orillia promised a total sum of $1,350 towards financing the Association this year. The following amounts were promised: Barrie $300 Midland, $300; Orillia, $300; Lindsay $300; Penetang $100; Sparrow Lake Cottagers' Association $30. Peterboro City Council was not represent ed but a grant of $500 is looked for from ths city, benefiting as it does to a very great extent from the summer tourist trade promoted by the Association.

Advertising Scheme

The Association embarked on its most extensive advertising scheme yet. Fifty thousand illustrated folders similar to those used by railways will be printed and distributed advantageously as follows: 10,000 to railways for distribution at stations and ticket agencies; 5,000 to yacht clubs and lake ports in New York state and on the Atlantic coast 5,000 to power boat manufacturers; 10,000 to be distributed at the New York Motor Boat Show; 10,000 to the municipalities along the waterways; 10,000 held in reserve.

Charts of Route

Advise was given that through the representation of G. N. Gordon K.C., M.P., Hon. W. C. Kennedy, Minister of Railways and Canals had assured the Association that 100 copies of charts of the route will be forwarded without delay. These lithographer index plans will be surrounded with interesting photographs of the route. They will be distributed as required to yacht clubs, who will be recommended to frame them. In some cases they will likely be framed.

A communication from the Department of Railways and Canals advised the Association that the C. N. Railway bridge at Trenton which has been charged with antiquity, will this, summer be operated by electricity.

CHANGE MEN ON NEW WORK

It Will Be Four Months Before This Week's Shift Gets Another Chance at New Sewer Work.

Peterboro's Share.

In the measures of relief being carried on jointly by the Dominion, Provincial and municipal governments, the Dominion Government will bear a greater share. The King Government has revised and extended its scale to such an extent that the burden on municipalities has been lightened, and as an immediate result Peterborough has been saved $1,000 on the cost of sewer work carried on to give work.

The former plan, with regard to relief measures and the excess cost of municipal works undertaken during the winter, was that one-third should be contributed by municipality, Province and Dominion. The King Government, in order to encourage the idea of municipal works during the winter, has arranged to pay one-half instead of one-third of the excess cost of municipal works over what they would normally cost in summer. The Provincial Government will still pay one-third, and so the municipality's part is now only one-sixth. The unusual part the Dominion Government is ready to take is, in view of a feeling that while normally they have no interest in the problems of a municipality, the present economic and industrial conditions result from the war.

The City's Share.

If the Dominion Government had not increased its part the city would have had to pay approximately $2,000, representing one-third of the excess cost of the city sewer work. The estimated cost of this work under normal conditions is $16,016.65, and the estimate of the cost under winter conditions is $21,816.31. The difference between these estimates is what the three Governments must jointly bear between them. Under the old scale each of the three parties would have to pay $2,000. Under the new scale the city will only pay $1,000, the Dominion Government $3,000 and the Provincial Government $2,000.

The city's relief work will last all winter, in the opinion of City Engineer R. H. Parsons—in fact it is doubtful if it will be concluded by spring. About one mile of sewers is being built. Twenty-eight men are now employed, but there are some 240 men on the list. On Monday the sixth shift goes on work. There are in prospect about ten shifts, so it will be at least four months again before the shift just let out are taken on again, and they have earned just $43.20 in the fortnight's work. It is not much, but it helps a little. The work has been carried on under great weather adversity, and the shift system from an efficiency standpoint hasn't proved satisfactory.

Relief Measures.

No change is made in the measures for giving relief. The Dominion Government will give one-third of such relief if the municipality and the Province each agree to bear one-third the expense. This is, however, to be supplementary to relief given by employment, and wherever such employment is not possible. It does not include disabled returned soldiers, who are looked after by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

COMFORTS FOR WOMEN SMOKERS NOW DEMANDED BY ALDERMAN M'GUINNESS

Wants the Proprietors of Restaurants and Hotels to Fix Up Nice Smoking Rooms For the Ladies to Enjoy Their Little Smokes in.

NEW YORK, Peter J. McGuinness Greenpoint Alderman whose ordinance against women smoking in public places was constructed as a gesture of protest from Greenpointers frequenting the cabarets and hotel restraunts of Manhattan, reintroduced his ordinance yesterday. The original had expired with the end of the year when the old board went out of office.

The Greenpoint Alderman explained, however, that the construction placed on his first ordinance was dead wrong. His objection was not to women smoking. Far be it. On the contrary he was trying to do the women a favor. He said:

"Everybody got me wrong the other time I didnt introduce the smoking resolution as a blue law, did not intend to compel the ladies to stop smoking in public places.

"My idea was to make the proprietors of restaurants and hotels fix up nice smoking rooms for the ladies to enjoy their little smokes in. I read in the papers several days ago that some of the hotels and restraunts have furnished such rooms for ladies to smoke in. My proposed ordinance started that movement, so, even if this ordinance doesn't pass this board, it is going to be the means of getting nice rooms where the ladies can have their little puff on the side.

Alderman Bruce M. Falconer, however, said that in introducing the ordinance the Greenpointer was guilty of "deliberate cowardice against the fair sex". But McGuinness remonstrated:

"There is a drop of cowardice in my blood I come from the people with real blood who die for anything they would do. That's me!"

At the end of the acument Alderman William T. Collins, leader of the Democratic side, of which McGuinness is a member, repeated his motion made at the time of the first introduction, and the resolution went on file again.

Wife Farmer's Partner, Says One; Not So in City

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—When the farmer wants to make an important decision he always talks it over with his wife, so she has come along East with him to the farmers' parley, so they could do the talking right on the spot, according to Mrs. John C. Ketcham, of Hastings, Mich.

"That's the real job of the women members of this meeting, partnership", Mrs. Ketcham said. "And only in the country do you find a real partnership between husband and wife."

Do the male delegates appreciate this?

"Of course, men are men." Mrs. Ketcham smiled. "And even the farmer doesn't overdo the partnership business."

Mrs. Ketcham is chairman of the farm home committee and the only woman chairman in the conclave which now boasts 12 committees and as many sub-committees.

"I expect that the farm home committee might be called the moral committee of the conference," she added. It is natural and logical that the women should be the home-maker on the farm, and to see that the farm life is made attractive to the children so that when they grow up they won't have to leave for the city.

"At this conference you will see the influence of the farm-wife. She will, by advice and counsel, urge her husband on to a just settlement of his needs. The farmer always talks things over with his wife. Sometimes he doesn't take her advice, but he is benefitted by it, nevertheless.

"The women delegates, numbering 25, will for the most part be making the farm the really attractive place it should be. They must purpose greater pay for the teachers so that rural education will not fall below city standards. They must get after the man to help them in this because education is the seat of farm moral. Unless the young man finds the farm a place to enjoy life, he isn't going to stay. And I, for one, would never urge him to stay on the farm if he can't be happy there. And he can't be happy unless farm work pays."

Mrs. Ketcham is the wife of Rep. Ketcham (Rep.), Michigan, who is a member of the Farm Bloc in the House.

A CIGAR FIGURES IN BAILEY TRIAL

Furrier Testifies He Did Not Know He Was Handing Money to a Police Captain.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Police William A. Bailey was tried before Deputy Commissioner John A. Leach, yesterday on the charge of having unlawfully accepted money as a gratuity and with having failed to take proper police action at the time of its acceptance. Captain Bailey was indicted year ago on a charge by the Grand Jury during the Whitman investigation. He was suspended, but, following a dismissal of the charges two weeks ago by Judge Alfred Talley, was reinstated and placed in charge of the Poplar Street Station, Brooklyn.

At yesterday's trial William Pike, a representative of the Fur manufacturers' Association, testified that on or about Aug. 12, 1920, he had entered the West Thirtieth Station, where Captain Bailey was in charge and asked the desk lieutenant for the "captain" who pointed out a man standing near the desk. Pike said that he then gave the captain a cigar, after asking for better police protection, against fur thieves.

Pike was asked if he had not testified before the Grand Jury that he had given the Captain $500, and he said that he had, but at the time did not know that the "cigar" contained any money.

Asked who told him that the cigar contained $500, Pike said after he had given the cigar, but before he had testified, he was so informed by former Governor Whitman and former Assitant District Attorney James Smith. On further cross-examination Pike said that he could not positively indentify Captain Bailey as the man to whom he had given the cigar.

Inspectors John O'Brien, James S. Bolan and Cornelius F. Cahalane appeared as witnesses for Captain Bailey and testified that they had known him for the last twenty years and declared that his character was excellent.

Deputy Commissioner Leach said that he would reserve decision.

SILENT PISTOLS USED IN HOLD-UP

Tobacco Dealer Shot Three Times—His Wife Felled When She Rushes to Aid

NEW YORK. Jan. 28. — Three sharp raps occurring almost simultaneously startled Mrs. Rose Green of 286 East Tenth Street, at 9.30 o'clock last night just after she had put her two children to bed in the living apartment in the rear of the wholesale tobacco store where her husband was at work.

She had heard her husband, Max opening boxes in the store, which faces the street, but noises which attracted her attention were whiplike cracks of a character which she had never heard before. She ran into the store.

Her husband, bleeding from the left shoulder, abdomen and right side, was grappling with a man, who was striking him with a revolver with a long, shiny barrel. Two other men with revolvers were running out of the store. As the police made it out afterwards, the three men had silencers on their revolvers.

Wife Struck Down By Robber

Max slipped to the floor under the revolver blows just as his wife caught the arm of his assailant. The hold-up man freed himself. One stroke over the head with the weapon and Mrs. Green fell beside her husband.

Before she fell, however, her screams aroused the neighborhood and passers-by and policemen were in the place a few seconds after the hold-up men were out of it.

Apparently the three armed men had entered the place together in the guise of customers and covered Green at the same time with their revolvers. A false move from him apparently drew three bullets at almost exactly the same instant. As they ran out all three carried smoking revolvers, according to the story told by Mrs. Green after she had recovered consciousness. One bullet went through the lungs, cut-

BUILDERS TO HAVE BRANCH

Will Form Peterborough Branch of the Builders' Exchange -- Object to New Legislation.

Met Last Evening

Last evening, in the Chamber of Commerce, a meeting of contractors, builders and supply men was held to consider plans for the formation of a Peterborough branch of the Builders' Exchange. Mr. R. G. Sturgeon occupied the chair.

Mr. Norris Biggs, a Sarnia contractor, addressed the meeting. Peterborough, he said, should have a local association, in view of the fact that Peterborough has more contractors and employers of labor than any city of its size in Ontario. During the past two years certain bills have been passed in the Legislature which have not been in the interests of the building industry. The Eight-Hour Day Bill was defeated at the meeting of the Provincial Legislature, but it will come up again at the next meeting of the House. An Accident Prevention Society will be another question before the Legislature. Mr. Biggs thought that contractors should be able to buy their supplies from the supply men cheaper than the ordinary layman can. The building industry is the second largest industry in the Dominion of Canada, but has no organization, and therefore does not receive the same respect and recognition that other and smaller industries receive.

Should Organize.

Mr. George Gander, secretary of the Toronto Builders' Exchange and Construction Industries Inc., was the next speaker. Mr. Gander stated that the builders would receive recognition if they were properly organized. They ought to be able to approach the City Council or the Board of Education as easily as the labor organization or any other. He felt that the Government should not change any of the laws regarding labor until the building industry gets on its feet again. The Eight-Hour Day Bill provides for a fine of $1,000 for anyone breaking the law, and it is up to the builders to get together and use their influence to have it defeated. Mr. Gander suggested that the builders in Peterborough approach the local Provincial member and present their view of the situation.

Mr. James Bogue, Mr. J. C. Ephgrave, ex-Mayor G. H. Duncan, ex-Mayor A. A. McIntyre, Mr. R. J. McPherson and Mr. R. Sheehy spoke, expressing their approval of the suggestion that Peterborough organize a Builders' Exchange.

After some discussion it was moved by Mr. J. Bogue and seconded by Mr. George Sloan, that a Local Builders' Exchange be organized. The motion was carried unanimously.

It was decided to hold a meeting next Thursday to form the association and elect the officers.

PRINTER IDENTIFIES MAN WHO GOT BEAUTY POWDER CIRCULARS IN HAMILTON

Sensational Climax to the Buchanan Poison Case in Toronto—The Father Committed Suicide Early This Morning.

Turned on the Gas

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—According to Detective Inspector Guthrie this afternoon, the body of James Buchanan was identified to-day by C. McCarthy, a Hamilton printer, as that of the man who, on Jan. 13, secured from him samples of printing of directions for "beauty powder" of similar description to that which accompanied the powder which caused the death of Buchanan's son, Anderson, on January 18th.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press).—Inspector Guthrie at 10.25 this morning announced that Mr. James Buchanan, the father of Mr. Anderson Buchanan, the beauty powder victim, committed suicide and was found dead in his house this morning.

The police forced an entry into the house from the rear and found Buchanan dead from gas poisoning the whole house being full of gas, Buchanan's body was found in the kitchen at the rear of the house, the room and entire house was filled with gas, and the police claim there is no doubt of suicide, the house has been surrounded by police and no visitors have been allowed to approach it. The body is being removed to the morgue on the order of the Chief Coroner.

Found by Cronin

Buchanan was found by Detective Cronin sitting in chair in the kitchen with a bottle of whiskey beside him and a book in his right hand. From the surroundings it is believed that he had not been in bed during the night and had partaken of the liquor in an effort to counter brooding over the case. With Buchanan's death the solution of the mystery that has baffled Torono police for two weeks, is near.

With the announcement that officials of the Hamilton Printing firm would confer with headquarters of the Toronto police to-day regarding the mysterious purchase of beauty powder circulars some time ago, it is believed that Buchanan feared being confronted with them for reason that it might have definitely established his connection with the labels.

With the arrival in Toronto to-day of C. McCarthy, a Hamilton printer, the police expect to make rapid progress toward clearing up the mystery surrounding the death, following the taking of a beauty powder chiefly composed of strychnine, has so far baffled the police.

Mr. McCarthy is an employee of the printing firm of Robert Duncan and Co., James and York Streets, Hamilton, who took an order from a man who asked to have 250 circulars printed for distribution among customers in the Brantford district. The man represented himself as a travelling representative of the Armaud Freres Co.

"I feel sure that I shall be able to identify the man when I meet him again," said Mr. McCarthy. "I just saw him through a wicket window, and he had his hat on all the time, but I remember him quite distinctly. One reason I think I shall know him is because of a peculiarity of accent which I noted at the time."

This morning Mr. McCarthy met Inspector Gauthier and gave him the single copy of the circular which the firm had placed on file in the regular way and also of the corrected proof of the circular.

With regard to the wording of the circular, Mr. McCarthy recalled definitely that it contained the clause relating to the change which would take place in the complexion of the taker within twenty-four hours of swallowing the powder.

Chief of Detectives Guthrie, after talking to Mr. McCarthy and examining the circular, said it was similar to the typewriting and in all respects resembled the circular.

Questioned by the Examiner as to why he had not reported the matter to the police at an earlier date, Mr. McCarthy said that he had not been following the Buchanan case in the newspapers, and that it was only a day or so ago that someone drew it to his attention and caused him to recall the man who had ordered the circulars.

RUM STILLS IN CEMETERY

Izzy Einstein, Posing as a Farmer, Seizes Two Plants in Barns—Two Arrests Made.

Raiding Party in Sleigh.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Even up-State farms, though located on the edge of graveyards, and removed by many miles from a railroad station, are not safe from detection by Izzy Einstein, the widley known "hootch hound," and his fellow agent, Moe Smith. Returning to headquarters in West Twenty-seventh Street, yesterday morning from a hurried trip, Einstein reported to John S. Parsons, head of the field agents of the State, the seizure of two stills, found in barns, destruction of 1,000 gallons of mash, confiscation of a quantity of alcohol in milk and oil cans and the arrest of three persons, one a woman.

To reach one place the agents had to go by sleigh for thirty miles from the nearest railroad station, Einstein said. The agents first stopped at Monticello, where they were joined by Agents Fannelli and Stafford. They drove out some distance from the town and came upon the farm house of Harris Gordon, Einstein, posing as a prosperous farmer seeking seeking another farm, engaged Gordon's attention, while Moe Smith and the other two agents took a stroll around the premises, winding up at the barn, only a short distance from a graveyard. They found, according to the report to Chief Parsons, a still having a capacity of thirty gallons, a quantity of alcohol put up in milk cans, and destroyed 500 gallons of mash. The alcohol was shipped to New York.

Einstein said that he understood that the use of milk cans for the transportation of "moonshine" from up-State towns to New York city and from one point in the city to the other had become quite general. Oil cans have long been used for this purpose. Gordon was arrested and cited to appear before Commissioner Hitchcock on Monday.

Farmer and His Wife Arrested.

The agents then took a sleigh drive to Bethel, N.Y., over four feet of snow. Arriving at the farm house of Isaac Liff, the agents found a still in opertion in the barn. A quantity of alcohol was seized and 500 gallons of mash destroyed. Both Liff and his wife, Anna Liff, were arrested. Before the agents left, a truck drove up with a load of prunes, figs and grapes, such as used in the manufacture of whisky, the agents reported.

"Monticello, N.Y., and Bethel, N. Y.," said the agents in their report to Chief Parsons, "have been dry by local option since 1917, and therefore, tide above defendants will be obliged to pay an extra penalty, under Section 1,001, Revenue Laws, Revised Statutes."

Student Who Flunked Jails the Old Professor

NEW YORK, January 28. — Several years ago it became the duty of Professor J. Frank Lilly to bunk a student in his psychology class at the University of Chicago. The student never forgot it. The professor's memory was not so good, but now that memory has received a severe jogging. Yes, he remembers the flunking incident.

For J. Frank Lilly, former professor, broker, and financier, who is in the Tombs in default of $15,000 bail on a charge of grand larceny, was recognised on a street in Dallas, Texas, recently by the flunked student, and by him "turned up" to the Dallas Sheriff as a fugitive from justice.

Lilly's brokerage firm collapsed with a crash that echoed through Wall Street in July, 1919. The climax was a raid by detectives, who smashed the doors, forced the vaults, and confiscated the firm's papers.

Lilly disappeared. The firm had been caught "short" in the stock of an automobile tire company. The losses to clients were estimated as high as $1,000,000.

When brought back for arraignment, Lilly said he had gone straight to Houston, Texas, after the crash, and had entered the automobile business with his brother-in-law. He was well-known in Houston and Dallas, he said, and nobody suspected him of being wanted in New York, until he met the vengeful sophomore, who couldn't forget the time he was flunked in psychology.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND
By "SAPPER"
(Cyril McNeile)

"You will find the tantalus in the dining-room," said Peterson coldly. "I should say you require one more drink to produce complete insensibility, and the sooner you have it the better."

"Insheusibility!" With outraged dignity the wretched man appealed to his daughter. "Phyllis, did you hear? Thish man says I'sh in—inebri . . . says I'sh drunk. Gratui . . . tous inshult . . ."

"Oh! father, father," cried the girl, covering her face with her hands. "For pity's sake go away! You've done enough harm as it is."

Mr. Benton backed towards the door, where he paused, swaying.

"Disgraceful," he remarked solemnly. "Rising generation no reshpect for elders and betters! Teach 'em lesson, Lakington. Do 'em all good. One—two—three, all ranged in a — in a row. Do 'em good——" His voice tailed off, and, after a valiant attempt to lean against a door which was not there, he collapsed gracefully in a heap on the floor.

"You vile hound," said Phyllis, turning like a young tigress on Lakington. "It's your doing entirely, that he's in that condition."

But Lakingtom merely laughed.

"When we're married," he answered lightly, "we'll put him into a really good home for inebriates."

"Married!" she whispered tensely. "Married! Why, you loathsome reptile, I'd kill myself before I married you."

"An excellent curtain," remarked Lakington suavely, "for the third act of a melodrama. Doubtless we can elaborate it later. In the meantime, however"—he glanced at his watch—"time presses. And I don't want to go without telling you a little about the programme, Captain Drummond. Unfortunately both Mr. Peterson and I have to leave you for tonight, but we shall be returning to-morrow morning — or, at anyrate, I shall. You will be left in charge of Heinrich—you remember the filthy Boche?—with whom you had words the other night. As you may expect, he entertains feelings of great feelings of great friendship and affection for you, so you should not lack for any bodily comforts, such as may be possible in your present somewhat cramped condition. Then, to-morrow, when I return, I propose to try a few experiments on you, and, though I fear you will find them painful, it's a great thing to suffer in the cause of science. You will always have the satisfaction of knowing that dear little Phyllis will be well cared for." With a sudden, quick movement, he seized the girl and kissed her before she realised his intention. The rope round Drummond creaked as he struggled impotently, and Lakington's sneering face seemed to swim in a red glow.

"That is quite in keeping, is it not," he snarled, "to kiss the lady, and to strike the man like this—and this—and this?" A rain of blows came down on Drummond's face, till, with a gasping sigh, the girl slipped fainting to the floor.

"That'll do, Lakington," said Peterson, intervening once again. "Have the girl carried upstairs, and send for Heinrich. It's time we were off."

With an effort Lakington let his hand fall to his side, and stood back from his victim.

"Perhaps for the present, it will," he said slowly. "But to-morrow—to-morrow, Captain Drummond, you shall scream to Heaven for mercy, until I take out your tongue and you can scream no more." He turned as the German came into the room. "I leave them to you, Heinrich," he remarked shortly. "Use the dog-whip if they shout, and gag them."

The German's eyes were fixed on Hugh gloatingly.

"They will not shout twice," he said in his guttural voice. "The dirty Boche to it himself will see."

II

"We appear," remarked Hugh quietly, a few minutes later, "to be in for a cheery night."

For a moment the German had left the room, and the three motionless, bound figures, sitting grotesquely in their chairs, were alone.

"How did they get you, Toby?"

"Half a dozen of 'em suddenly appeared," answered Sinclair shortly "knocked me on the head, and the next thing I knew I was here in this damned chair."

"Is that when you got your face?" said Hugh.

"No," said Toby, and his voice was grim. "We share in the matter of faces, old man."

"Lakington again, was it?" said Hugh softly. "Dear Heavens! if I could get one hand on that . . ." He broke off and laughed. "What about you, Algy?"

"I went blundering in over the way, old bean," returned that worthy, "and some dam' fellow knocked my eye-glass off. So, as I couldn't see to kill him, I had to join the picnic here."

Hugh laughed, and then suddenly grew serious.

"By the way, you didn't see a man chewing gum on the horizon, did you, when I made my entrance? Dogrobber suit, and face like a motor-mascot," remarked Algy.

"Good!" returned Hugh. "He's probably away with it by now, and he's no fool. For I'm thinking it's only Peter and him between us and——" He left his remark unfinished, and for a while there was silence. "Jerry is over in France still, putting stamp-paper on his machine: Ted's gone up to see that Potts is taking nourishment."

"And here we sit like three well-preserved specimens in a bully museum," broke in Algy, with a rueful laugh. "What'll they do to us, Hugh?"

But Drummond did not answer, and the speaker, seeing the look on his face, did not press the question.

$1,000 TO SALVATION ARMY AND $400 TO THE PLOWMEN

Two of the Grants Recommended to the County Council By Its Finance Committee, Which is Virtually a Committee of the Whole—$200 to the Children's Aid, But This May Be Increased When They Furnish Financial Statement.

The Finance committee of the County Council on Friday night with Reeve Nicholls presiding, recommended the following grants:

Salvation Army	$1,000
Plowmen's Association ..	400
Children's Aid Society ..	200
Peterorough G.W.V.A. ..	150
Lakefield G.W.V.A.	100

No grant was made to the National Sanitarium.

The Children's Aid Society had asked for $600, the sum they received last year, and they would probably have been allotted the full amount of their request had they provided the Council with a copy of their annual financial statement for 1921, which had been a condition to the previous grant.

W. A. Anderson moved, seconded by John Scott, that the Children's Aid Society be given $200, pending the receipt of a society's financial statement.

"The Council may go further at the June session if it wishes," Mr. Anderson remarked significantly.

Grant to Salvation Army.

Adjutant Buntin had appealed to the Council for a renewal of their assistance, and Reeve Montgomery moved, seconded by Reeve Brown, that they receive their "usual grant" of $1,000.

Reeve Eason suggested that in the apportioning of financial assistance the Council should remember the request from the Plowmen's Association for $1,000 to help them meet the expenses of the provincial plowing match which may be secured for Peterobrough county this year.

Mr. Rye remarked that the Salvation Army's petition be considered on its merits.

Reeve Coughlin moved an amendment, seconded by Mr. Anderson, that no grant be made to the Salvation Army this year.

"If we give them $1,000 that will practically cut out the Plowmen," said Reeve Eason. "Personally I believe the provincial plowing match would be a big "ad" for Peterborough County."

Mr. Anderson—It is not clear to me on what principle we vote money to the Salvation Army.

Reeev Montgomery of Norwood, said that the particular work mentioned by Adjutant Buntin was the Army's maternity hospital.

Mr. Eason — We all know the worth of the Army, but when it comes down to facts it is a religious institution. I don't know whether it is right or not for us to vote money to a religious institution. I don't think that is what the ratepayers send us here for. I have nothing against the Salvation Army or their work, but I don't think we should tax the people for voluntary offerings to the Army.

Reeve Shaw observed that when the Army redeemed men "from the gutter" it wasn't for money.

Referring to the Army's rescue work, Mr. Eason said that if it wasn't for the cities there would be no need of the Salvation Army.

COUNTY CUTS ROAD WORK WAGES

Laborers Will Be Paid 25c an Hour and Teamsters 50c As Compared With Present Scale of 30c and 60c — The Reduction Applies to Work on Suburban Roads Too—Warsaw Made Centre For Entrance Examinations—W. A. Anderson New Chairman of County Roads Committee.

The wages for county road work in Peterborough this year will be 25 cents an hour for labourers, 30 cents for foremen, and 50 cents for a man and a team, according to the schedule fixed by the County Roads Committee of the County Council on Friday afternoon. The present rates are 30 cents for labourers and 60 cents for teamsters. One and one-quarter cubic yards of gravel shall constitute a load. The motion embodying the reduction was made by Reeve Nicholls of Smith, and seconded by Reeve Jones of Havelock.

The new scale also applies to employees on suburban road work.

W. A. Anderson, deputy-reeve of Otonabee, was appointed chairman of the County Roads Committee for 1922.

Reeve Clark moved, seconded by Reeve Shaw, that all the members attend the Good Roads Convention in Toronto next month if it was convenient for them to do so.

May Go To Ottawa.

Warden Strickland and Reeves Eason and Holland were authorised to interview the Councils of Peterborough and of Victoria with respect to the proposed deputation to Ottawa to enlist the Government's support in the rebuilding of the Pigeon Creek Bridge. This scheme has been hanging fire for many months, but no progress has been made beyond the local discussion stage.

Fix Rate in June.

The fixing of the special tax rate to cover this year's expenditure for county roads improvement was deferred until the June session; and the question of purchasing whatever new machinery was required was postponed until after the Good Roads Convention.

On a motion by Mr. Rye, seconded by Mr. Lillico, the Council renewed its petition to the Highways Department that they request the Government to repeal the clause in the Act requiring the appointment of qualified civil engineers as road superintendents.

"That clause looks like the work of the Civil Engineers," commented one of the councillors.

Warsaw Examination Centre.

Warsaw's petition that an entrance examination centre be established in that village was recommended by the Committee on Schools on Reeve Darling's motion, seconded by Reeve Coughlin.

Mr. Tooms Offers Services.

Mr. T. Tooms, M.L.A., briefly addressed the Council on Friday afternoon, reminding the members that he was at their service, and volunteering to introduce any legislation they deemed desirable.

"If there are any things you don't like, and which you want changed, a resolution from the County Council will support the member in putting them forward," he said.

Mr. Tooms referred to the sewerage bill he had put through for North Monaghan at the last session. Since the fire at the Dairy School in Kingston, he had urged the Hon. Manning Doherty that Peterborough County should be considered when the location of a new school was under advisement. Mr. Tooms also referred to the arrangements that were being effected for making long and short term loans to farmers; and he said he could secure a fish hatchery for this district if a suitable site was available.

"We have an ideal location in Sawyer's Creek, near Lakefield," said the Warden, and Mr. Rye and Mr. Montgomery countered with Monaghan and Norwood places.

Seek Special Grant.

Mr. Shaw requested Mr. Tooms to use his influence to obtain a special grant of $1,000 from the Department of Colonisation Roads to be expended on the Buckhorn road north of Ketchecum. It would take in part of Harvey and part of Cavendish.

"Raise that sum to $2,000, and extend the road work to the north boundary of Cavendish," Reeve Clark said, seconding Mr. Shaw's motion that the Department make a special allowance for the improvement of this road.

The motion carried, with Mr. Clark's amplification.

"The Government should give us that grant," said Mr. Shaw. "There is a lot of land in that section owned by the Government upon which no taxes are paid to the townships. The Government gets the timber dues and the hunting and trapping licences."

Mr. Eason's Point.

Mr. Eason called Mr. Tooms' attention to the report that the Governent was contemplating the assumption of all the provincial highways. This change, he argued, should be carefully considered. If it was carried out, it would release from liability some counties which had half their roads in that system, whereas in Peterborough County only eight miles of roads would be affected.

"If there is any change to the Highways Act," said Otonabee's Reeve, "it should be seen to that each municipality is allowed to manage its own affairs. There is already too much overlapping of provincial, county, and township officials, too many salaried officials with money wasted as a result, and there is also an overlapping of machinery."

"If the Government would include all roads except Provincial Highways in the township system and raise the grant from 20 per cent. to 40 per cent., or even 33.per cent., and do away with the county system, it seems to me there would be a big improvement," said Mr. Eason.

W. A. Anderson suggested that the Government should not assume any more miles of road in Peterborough without consulting the people.

Mr. Tooms replied that if Mr. Anderson had in mind the proposed link from Peterborough to Lindsay, that project had been approved by the County Council.

"Then it should be rescinded," said Mr. Anderson.

The ice is packed in the ice houses in tiers and a space is left around the walls twelve inches wide, which is filled in with sawdust. FARMERS NOT IN POLITICS

United Farmers Discuss Political Question in Convention at Vancouver — Favors Third Party.

VANCOUVER B. C., Jan. 28. — (Canadian Press.)—The United Farmers of British Columbia launched into a discussion of the political question yesterday morning. Second vice-president W. F. Laidman, Vernon, B.C., acting chairman, read the recommendation of the board of directors 'that the convention do not enter into politics as an organization." The sponsors of the resolution expressed the opinion that it would be a mistake for the farmers as an organization to go into the political field as at present. They would not, however, bar any local from taking up the question.

The chairman explained that the plebiscite recently taken by the United Farmers on the political action indicated that 503 members were in favour of political action and 232 members were opposed. However, only 49 locals representing 762 members had been heard from out of 103 locals with 1,332 members.

J. B. Stewart, of Nicola, moved "that realizing the old line political parties have lost the confidence of the public, we, the United Farmers of British Columbia, place ourselves on record as being in favor of the formation of a third party to be called the "Provincial Progressive Party."

ENTRANT IN RACE.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y., January 27 (Canadian Press). — A dog, declared to be the only survivor of those used by Admiral Peary on his dash to the North Pole, and Siberian dogs said to have formerly belonged to the late Emperor of Russia, may figure in the Eastern International Dog Team Race, to take place at Berlin, N.H., 2nd, 3rd, and 4th February, under the auspices of the Nansen Ski Club of Berlin.

Jacques Suzanne, artist, scientist, and explorer, of this village is the owner of these dogs, and is one of the entrants in the New Hampshire race. He has not yet decided upon the complete make-up of his team. It will be led by a giant, white Siberian dog, and the six others will be chosen according to conditions.

The dogs are now in daily training, and, as the finishing touches, will be driven overland by their owner from Portland, Maine, to Berlin, N.H.

WINTER HARD ON BABY

The winter season is a hard one on the baby. He is more or less confined to stuffy, badly ventilated rooms It is so often stormy that the mother does not get him out in the fresh air as often as she should. He catches colds which rack his little system; his stomach and bowels get out of order and he becomes peevish and cross. To guard against this the mother should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. They regulate the stomach and bowels, and break up colds They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LINDSAY'S VIEW LAKEFIELD GAME

A Real Old-Fashioned Scoring Bee—Game Was Free From Penalties.

(From Lindsay Post.)

The Midgets held a regular old-fashioned scoring bee at Lindsay street rink last night when they swamped the visiting juniors from Lakefield by the score of 14-5 in the first of home-and-home games for the district championship. The score represents fairly accurately the difference in play between the teams. The score at the end of the first period was 3-1 in favor of Lindsay; at the second 9-2 and at the third 14-5.

The game was remarkably free from penalties, the entire first period running without a penalty. Lindsay pulled down 3 to Lakefields's 1 and the visitors had 2 in the last period. The play was lively throughout and Lakefield tried their best all the time, not giving up until the last gong. They were of course outclasser in every way but they gave the Midgets a merry run for an hour or so and the spectators had a good evening's fun. The Midgets did not begin to show their wares until the second period and tossed about rather listlessly for the first twenty minutes and gave the visiting goalie a fast time. He was continually drawn out of his goal and made some sensational slides but his work in the last two periods was of the sieve variety. Ahead of him, Louie Sabatino and Roblin occupied the defence and they both turned in a very useful evening. The former showed real good form at times and bored down the ice in an effective manner. He also carried a fast accurate shot that is billed to do damage in a few years. Hull played centre and was supported by Redpath and Erskine and this line played a clever and persistent game, generally following up their chances with pep, and taking quite a few rattles on McClory's stick. The defence of the visitors played well out and occasionally merged into the line but they protected their ice with some good back-checking.

The Midgets were in good form and gave an excellent account of themselves. They go better as the night progressed and were going at top speed at the end of the game. Combination play was used to a much larger extent than usual. The line—Mills, Chambers and Williams worked fast and steadily, bored right in and used their famous back-checking qualities at the right time. Bissette was subbed considerably and did good work, showing an improvement with each trip. The defence played their usual steady and heady game all through, both in their position and on frequent trips down the ice. Ashton made a very effective sub.

The ice was in good condition and a very fair crowd took in the fixture. Referee Farlow (who handled the Intermediate game here in which the locals were eliminated) gave general satisfaction, and had no trouble during the evening. The Lakefield team came to town on a special train that also brought a bunch of about 100 rooters from the lively village.

Bronx County Sheriff Starts Training Tables For Inmates of the County Gaol.

The First Meal.

NEW YORK, Jan 28. — Sheriff Edward J. Flynn of Bronx County is feeding the county jail prisoners on a scientific diet suggested by his football trainmg table days and expects to reduce expenses by $6,000 a year.

Sheriff Flynn, who was a gridiron star at Fordham, discovered that his guests were eating much more food than was proper for them. After they had put away a meal which put a dent in the county finances, the Sheriff called the prisoners together and said:

"Some of you men and women seem to eat a great deal, and at the same time give no manifestation of receiving any actual benefits from the food. You couldn't run a hundred yards if you wanted to. Now I propose to put into effect here a calory diet such as our athlete were given when preparing to enter physical contests.

"I propose to feed you scientifically. You will hereafter receive so many parts of butter fats and solids or proteins and while I do not intend to make Samsons out of any of the men or to encourage manhandling of any of the keepers, still I feel responsible for your good health. Rather than see you gorge yourselves on foods that are costly and ill from which you derive no actual benefit, I have decided to put my new diet into effect to-day."

The first meal yesterday morning consisted of prunes, tea, rice pudding bread and tea cakes, and, apparently everybody liked it.

CHOOSING A NEW LEADER.

The coming convention of the Liberals of Ontario for the purpose of choosing a Provincial leader is a matter in which every resident of the Province, regardless of his political beliefs, should be interested. There never was a time in the history of Ontario when big men were more needed in the Legislature than now, and, alas, there never were so few big men at Queen's Park. All the groups in the House are suffering from a paucity of qualified, capable members. The Conservative and Liberal quotas lack debating strength and business ability, and on the Government side many of the members—although it may be cruel to say so—are rather a drag than a source of strength. The choosing of a new leader affords the Liberal party a chance to be of real service to the Province. If the convention can bring into the public life of this Province a man who is big enough and broad enough to see the needs of the hour and courageous enough to grapple firmly with the problems that present themselves, it will have done a great thing for Ontario. There does not seem to be such a man in the present membership of the Legislature, but he is surely to be located if a diligent effort is made to find him. Liberal organizations throughout the Province should devote the time that intervenes before the convention to searching out a real leader—not a party hack or a mere politician, but a man whose name will command immediate respect and who will attract to himself other public-spirited citizens ready to devote themselves to the service of the Province under leadership that they can follow and respect.

THE RETURN OF MR. MEIGHEN.

Except among the radical section of the Progressives, the election of the Right Honourable Arthur Meighen in Grenville has been acclaimed by the majority of Canadians. Many who disagreed with Mr. Meighen's policies resented what they regarded as his usurpation of the reins of power and voted against him in the general election, wanted to see him returned to Parliament, because they recognized the value of his services as a debater and critic, and because they realized that a live Opposition was a splendid thing for Canada. Mr. Meighen had the benefit of considerable Liberal support in his victory on Thursday for these reasons. Again there was somewhat general resentment at the action of the Progressives, after refusing to accept the responsibility of acting as the official Opposition in the House, in opposing the return of Mr. Meighen, who was prepared to undertake the task if elected. In justice to the National Progressive party, however, it must be stated that the entrance of a Progressive candidate in the Grenville fight was apparently a local matter. There is no evidence that the Progressive leaders were enthusiastic about the matter and certainly none of them went to the assistance of the Farmer standard-bearer. Canada is much better off because of the election of the former Premier than she would have been had the Progressive group in the House been augmented by the addition of a nonenity. Mr. Meighen has the opportunity before him of doing splendid work for the Dominion if he will confine his activities to intelligent and constructive criticism. The future is his—he can re-establish himself as one of Canada's great men, or he can disappoint mony of those who believe in him, just as he plays or fails to play the game. If he returns to Ottawa merely to assume the roll of a disappointed carping grumbler, there will be regret that the Grenville verdict was not reversed.

A STRONG FINANCIAL POSITION.

The outstanding feature of the fifty-first annual statement of the Dominion Bank, of the local branch of which Mr. John Crane is manager, is the strong financial position which the institution has been able to maintain during 1921—a year that was a trying one to financial as well as to industrial and mercantile companies.

This is particularly noticeable in respect to the immediately available assets of the bank. In value they amount to $61,109,667, but their significance lies not so much in their volume as in the fact that they represent more than 51 per cent. of the liabilities of the bank to the public, which is about the same proportion as a year ago. In Dominion and Provincial Government securities, which are in high favour with investors in Canada and the United States, the bank has very substantially strengthened its position during the year. Taking cash assets as a whole, valued at $30,421,750, the bank has an amount equal to 26 per cent. of its liabilities to the public. Total assets are $131,335,942.

Net profits, after deducting $108,919 for Dominion and Provincial Government taxation, were $1,016,262. Compared with 1920, there was a decrease of $172,249 in the net profits—a reflection of the country's financial and trade condition during the year. Distributions to the shareholders in the form of dividends, totalling 12 per cent., and also a bonus of 1 per cent., amounted to $780,000. The balance carried forward to profit and loss account was $715,480, the largest in the history of the bank and compared with $495,307 two years ago. In the bank's total liabilities to the public there was a decrease of $8,000,000 and compared with two years ago of $12,384,917. The reserve fund remains unchanged at $7,000,000 and the paid-up capital at $6,000,000.

Reflection of the contraction in the general business of the country is to be seen in a decrease of $2,506,000 in the bank's current loans, the total of which at the end of the year was $63,710,574.

The total deposits with the Dominion Bank at the end of the year, standing at $98,804,300, represent a decrease of $6,146,000. The decrease for the year in non-interest bearing deposits was $2,033,800, and in interest bearing deposits $4,103,155—the latter are, however, $6,500,000 in excess of 1919.

The bank's affairs have received the usual thorough audit on behalf of the shareholders by Messrs. G. T. Clarkson and R. J. Dilworth of the firm of Clarkson, Gordon & Dilworth, chartered accountants, Toronto.

A YEAR OF GREAT PROGRESS.

Undoubtedly wholly satisfactory to the shareholders and of interest to the public generally were the reports presented at the thirty-seventh annual meeting of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, held here yesterday. This old established company has found the past year, in spite of unusual economic conditions, general deflation and financial stress, one of steady and healthy progress, the figures presented in the reports indicating a successful business policy, and sound, sane management. After the payment of interest on deposits and debentures and after meeting all the expenses of management, the company is able to show a net profit for 1921 of $156,856.02—a most creditable showing. The earnings have been disposed of by the paying of four quarterly dividends at the rate of 12 per cent. per year and the providing of a bonus of 2 per cent. for the year on $1,000,000 paid-up capital, leaving a balance of $75,674.15 to be carried forward for this year, as against $58,818.13 brought forward last year. Further proof of the stability of the company is the fact that the reserved fund stands at $1,100,000, which is $100,000 more than the paid-up capital. It is interesting to note as an evidence of the extent to which the Toronto Savings and Loan Company is interested in Peterborough that the real estate owned by the company is valued at $1,177,452.53.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Prosperity is just around the corner.

"Shake the hand-shake" is Dr. Young's timely warning.

A Toronto man has invented a device for improving the "movies." He had a promising field in which to work.

Grenville evidently failed to take Miss Agnes McPhail, M.P., seriously.

A new English dictionary shortly to be published contains fifty million words. That is more than any married man has had to listen to, according to all available information.

Quebec women are going to vote to see if they are going to vote. In other words, they will settle the question of women's suffrage by a referendum among themselves.

The eight-hour day proposal got a cool reception from Premier Drury. Labour could scarcely expect its Farmer allies to be enthusiastic over such a movement.

A report of Hon. Bob Rogers' real feelings on hearing the returns from Grenville would be of general interest.

Brockton claims that the waste material of home-brew is clogging the city's sewage disposal plant. We always thought the waste material from such beverages was buried with proper honours.

WAR AND WORK

Woodstock Sentinel-Review: The action of the mayors of certain towns in the North of England, who are urging the Government to proceed with the construction of battle ships so as to furnish employment, illustrates one of the difficulties in the way of complete disarmament. War and the preparations for war have been the means of furnishing profitable employment for a great many people; the total abolition of war would mean the loss of a good many jobs.

Unemployment is a very serious problem, but can it not be solved in some other way than by the building of battleships?

SOMEBODY'S MOTHER

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir:—In last night's Examiner I was very much touched by the letter, "Somebodys Boy" and having sons of my own it struck me how should I feel were it one of my boys. Being interested in local relief work I have not been able to understand why should a single man not get help as well as the married. He has to live or shall we say exist, as it means in some cases. I have tried more than one time to get help for the out-of-work single man, but failed each time.

Trusting that this will reach the eye of the right one, that, he or she will see that the single man gets his share. Thanking you for your space.

Faithfully Yours,
SOMEBODY'S MOTHER

Editor of Examiner.

Dear Sir,—May I be allowed to give my experience in connection with contagious diseases in a town that has not had an epidemic of scarlet fever or diphtheria for the past twenty-five years, and perhaps much longer? When one of my family contracted a contagious disease our medical doctor arranged who was to remain in the house and who was to be allowed to go out. Those who went out were to remain out and those who stayed in the house were to remain in.

An official came and put up the placard. He then rang the door-bell and enquired whether I wanted him to call every day to provide me with food and necessaries. He then reported to the authorities that the placard had been placed and that he would look after the needs of the quarantined family.

When the period of contagion was over this official came and fumigated the house, one-half of it at a time, so that we could use the other half. Then the patient was given the regulation bath and swab and dressed in fresh clothing, and moved into the disinfected part of the house Then the officer thoroughly disinfected the other half of the house, including all the clothing that had been used during the illness. This completed, he then removed the placard. The above methods I thoroughly approved of.

Whenever there was danger of contagion spreading, the town officials, Board of Education and teachers gave every assistance and support to the medical men and health inspectors. When a pupil from any of the school rooms developed a contagious disease, that room was immediately closed until it was disinfected. If further developments occurred the entire school was closed until thoroughly disinfected.

The Women's Institute always provided the homes, schools, collegiates, etc., with the latest annual leaflets from the Educational Department on contagious diseases. This in itself is a splendid education for old and young regarding the keeping of the law and prevention of contagion.

All money and telephones were disinfected as far as possible. The Public Library never allowed any books to be returned from homes that had been under quarantine. The town and rural district also were most generous in providing money and official assistance for prevention, and, therefore, they have never needed much of either for epidemics.

In comparison, may I quote two of many instances in Peterborough? One family with a contagious disease moved before the contagion was over. They never fumigated nor even mentioned that it should be done. The family moving in had to fumigate the entire house and make other arrangements while it was being done.

Another family was quarantined. The patient removed to the hospital. At a great sacrifice these people obeyed the law strictly, even burning every bit of garbage and not allowing a letter or any mail to go out of the house during the quarantine. What of the neighbors? They walked out and in past their placard, down town and attended shows. Surely these people do not know the penalty of the law even if they have entirely forgotten the Golden Rule.

I think a great deal depends on the fumigation of all clothing to prevent a second outbreak in the community.

CLOSING IN ON THE "BEAUTY POWDER" CASE

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press). — Police net in "Beauty Powder" mystery s closing. Last night authorities made arrangement for visit of employes of Hamilton Printing establishment to Toronto police headquarters to give particulars regarding purchaser of three hundred copies of bogus circulars. Police have an accurate description of man, who, in Hamilton ordered and tok away with him circulars relating to beauty powder supposed to have been manufactured by firm of Armand Freres.

$1,000 TO THE SALVATION ARMY, ETC.

"We don't need the Army in Otonabee," he added.

Warden Strickland said he could not see how the Council could afford to pass the Army by, and he instanced their work in taking care of several unfortunate girls from the Lakefield district.

Mr. Eason proposed that the Army be given $200 and the Plowmen $800.

"When you consider the uplift of one fallen girl it is worth more than all the plowing matches," said Reeve Shaw.

Replying to that abstraction Mr. Eason stated that no member of the Council wished to be thought of otherwise than assisting the fallen, but as a matter of fact any person could find many opportunities of rendering such help if he looked over the back streets of the cities.

"There are lots of people you can help if you go out of your way to do so," he said.

Deputy-reeve Lillico moved, seconded by Reeve J. Scott, that $500 be given the Army.

Warden Strickland —Mr. Duffus told us that $2,100 was needed to guarantee the cost of the plowing match. He and a few other men could raise that much money in a day in Peterborough, but how long would it take the Salvation Army to collect it.

The Lillico amendment for $500 drew only five hands and was lost. Mr. Coughlin's amendment, which was changed to give the Army $200 took the same count, and Mr. Montgomery's motion for $1,000 carried with six votes.

The Plowmen's Association.

Warden Strickland proposed $500 for the Plowmen's Association.

'Make it $400 and I'll second it," said Mr. Anderson.

"Make it $100 the same as last year and I'll vote for it," was Mr. Coughlin's offer. The provincial plowing match appeared to Douro's reeve as mostly an advertisement for the manufacturers or farm implements.

That was also Reeve Darling's view of it and he seconded Mr. Coughlin's amendment.

Mr. Rye considered that even though there was an advertising aspect to the match, it should also be of special interest to farmers, to whom it should present educational features.

"It would be a peculiar situat on if this agricultural county turns down the Plowmen's Association," he said. "Although I am not a farmer myself I think the county should support them. It would be a funny proposition if farmers turn this down. It seems to me that the exhibition of farm machinery would be of educational value and for that reason the Plowmen should be supported more liberally than some members are suggesting."

Mr. Darling's Comment.

Reeve Darling applied the ice pack with the reflection that he knew three or four Dummer farmers who would be better off if they had never seen modern implements. "They have ruined themselves buying such machinery," he said.

The discussion had a depressing effect on the proposed grants.

"Will you go $200,' asked the Warden of Mr. Anderson, although they had first mentioned $400.

Mr. Anderson—Sure.

Mr. Shaw—Don't get down below Martin's (Mr. Coughlin.)

Mr. Anderson— Mr. Lillico and Mr. Rye will give $200 to the Plowmen.

Mr. Rye—I guess we'll have to if the county won't.

Mr. Lillico drafted an amendment seconded by Mr. Eason, for a grant of $500.

Finally Mr. Strickland's motion was withdrawn, leaving Mr. Coughlin's $100 bid and Mr. Lillico's $50 to be voted on.

The result as announced was a tie.

"That puts it up to the chairman," said Mr. Shaw.

"I can't stretch it to five," Mr. Nicholls decided, with applause from Reeve Coughlin and several other Councillors.

"Your life won't be worth living up in Smith," Mr. Eason remarked to Mr. Nicholls, and after further conversation the various resolutions were rescinded on Mr. Rye's motion, seconded by Mr. Lillico.

The following grants were then proposed:

$400 on motion of Mr. Anderson and Mr. Montgomery.

$100 in an amendment by Mr. Coughlin and Mr. Darling.

$500 in an amendment to the amendment by Mr. Lillico and Reeve Jones of Havelock.

The motion for $400 carried with seven votes against six for Mr. Coughlin's $100 and three for Mr. Lillico's $500.

And this donation is made on condition that the provincial match comes to Peterborough county.

National Sanitarium.

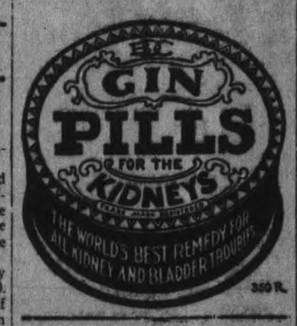
The county had been asked to contribute $4,000 to the National Sanitarium, the new institution at Muskoka to replace the old one which had been destroyed by fire.

Mr. Eason opposed it, saying that this was a work to be supported by the Provincial Government. And Mr. Strickland pointed out that Peterborough city had failed by $4,000 in the $10,000 it was expected to raise. Residents of Norwood and Lakefield had contributed their share, and the Warden declared that it would not be fair to tax them for any further contribution.

The G.W.V.A. Grants.

Warden Strickland had advocated a grant of $50 to the Lakefield G.W.V.A. to assist them in their charitable work in behalf of returned men. When it was proposed to give Peterborough G.W.V.A. $100, Mr. Shaw said that Lakefield was in the county "and we should look after our own."

His motion, seconded by Mr. Rye, that the Peterborough G.W.V.A. get $150 and the Lakefield G.W.V.A. $100 carried.



CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Losing Curlers Treated Victors to Oyster Supper —St. Andrew's Congregational Meeting and Social.

Campbellford News.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 28.—On Thursday afternoon at 4 p.m. two rinks of curlers played a most interesting game, the losers afterwards treating the winners to a supper at the St. Lawrence hotel. The rinks were:

J. C. Birmingham	A. J. Meyers
W. S. Wiggins	Matt. Mulhearn
W. J. Meiklejohn	C. H. Harris
P. J. Kelly	D. W. Douglas
Skip . . . 8	Skip . . . 16

The score being 8 to 16.

They expect to play the return game in the very near future.

Congregational Meeting.

The annual congregational meeting and social held in St. Andrew's church on Thursday night was most largely attended and was in every way an unqualified success. The pastor, Rev. C. F. McIntosh, in his usual capable manner, occupied the chair, and Mr. D. W. Douglas most efficiently acted as secretary. Most gratifying reports were read from all the various organizations, which showed them to be in a flourishing condition. Rev. Mr. McIntosh presented the report of the Session, Mr. R. J. Allan, treas., the financial report, Mr. D. W. Douglas, treas. of the Sunday school, Thos. Campbell, the Young People's Society, Mrs. William Hume the Women's Missionary Society, Miss E. Buchanan, Ladies' Aid, Miss Mary Stephens, Young Ladies' Mission Circle, choir, Mr. Walter Henson.

To fill the vacancy on the Board of Managers, due to the removal of Mr. W. E. Brewster, to Peterborough, Mr. W. Henson was elected to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Brewster. The three retiring members of Board of Managers, Messrs. T. E. Moffat, B. A., J. A. Meiklejohn and Thos. Campbell, were all re-elected, Mrs. Wm. Hume, Rev. C. F. McIntosh and Mr. T. E. Moffat were appointed members to the Social Service Council from St. Andrew's church.

A resolution was passed, favouring the union services of the past few years, during the vacation, and recommending such union services for this year if satisfatcory arrangements can be made.

A resolution was passed extending thanks to all the officers of the various organizations for the splendid work done during the year. Refreshments were then served by the ladies and a most pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

Methodist Tea.

The tea given yesterday afternoon in the Methodist church by the N. O.P. 2, R.S.T. Ladies left nothing to be desired. The ladies had prepared an abundance of good things to satisfy the appetite, but in doing so did not forget the entertainment side. There was a large crowd present to this, the first tea of the season, and most pleasing numbers were rendered by the following: Vocal duet, Mrs. A. L. Malcolm and Dr. Lillan Young; piano duet by Mrs. I. T. Frederick and Dr. Young; a piano solo by Miss Cherrie Turner, while Miss Nellie Turner contributed two fine readings to the programme. The ladies feel gratified at the success of their tea.

Splendid Lecture.

Despite the many other attractions in town last night, a fairly large crowd assembled in the Baptist church to hear Prof. Dale, of Toronto, whose visit was under the auspices of of the local Social Service Council. The president, Mr. J. A. Irwin, occupied the chair, and Rev. H. S. Bennett led in the opening prayer, after which Mrs. (Dr.) Free rendered the solo, "This is My Task," in her usual pleasing voice. Rev. H. B. Kenny then most fittingly introduced the speaker, Prof. Dale. The speaker briefly spoke of his work at the university, where there are in attendance in his department 350 students, 65 of whom expect to devote their whole lives to social servite work. We must try to get a concentrated knowledge and experience of the causes of misery, so prevalent, and we must have a more practical handling of social things. The body of knowledge accumulating every year. We have advantages, our fathers had not. While extraordinary things were done by the philanthropists centuries ago, such as building up of town and cities which brought their community problems not thought of before. Reference was made to industrial centres of England, where at first good men approved of child labour. After a time pressure of poverty, long hours, deprivation of education tod unfairly on human nature. Was it necessary? Things which seem fixed can be changed in one generation. Unemployment comes and goes said the speaker, but no experience is so demoralizing as to be out of work. We want to strive for security. The nature of society is instinctively to gather into groups and then comes division of labour. Prof. Dale empahsized the fact that for a healthy community the moderate sized one is best, say 150,000 to 200,000 people. Over this population, it can be truly said one half the world does nto know what the other half is doing. The people are dependent on fosces they cannot control. By means of organization we get services we could not otherwise have, such as hospitals, schools. The infantile death rate is the most sensitive index of a community, declared the speaker. The death rate can be reduced as has been in New York city and Toronto by careful control of water, milk supply, etc, and by careful application of knowledge or experience. Infantile blindness is wiped out by knowledge, having discovered symptom, final cure and cause. Eradicate ills that result from sexual relations. A normal home under a normal atmosphere, which is preferable to an institution, is the ideal home for infants as revealed by the experience of a well known institution for neglected children in Toronto.

The easiest thing to do in case of distress is most useless. The mind of intelligent man can not be content to treat the symptoms and leave the cause unlocated. Bacon siad, "Nature is overcome only by obedience, only by understanding the principles of human nature we can do good and bend them to produce good. Every individual is a new problem, strong in some points and weak in others. Often we must find outlet for excessive energy, try to suit the strength of weakness to his environment. Think of the vast number of citizens forced out into conditions which makes it hard for them.

Give personal service; learn to explore the resources of the individual and the community; always try to get people to help themselves; awaken new ambition, and foster a building up of chaarcter and fortitude.

After the address a mixed quartette, composed of Miss Mary McBride, Mrs. Thos. Free, Messrs. Walter and Edwin Henson rendered the quartette, "Alone," most beautifully.

A most hearty vote of thanks, moved by Mr. R. C. Weston and seconded by Mr. A. J. Jenkins was tendered Prof. Dale for his excellent address. Prof. Dale replied briefly, expressing thanks for the kind remarks.

The meeting then closed with the National Anthem.

Social Events.

On Thursday night about 85 friends of Miss Emily Masson gathered at the home of her uncle, Mr. Kecheson, Burnbrae, to present her with a miscellaneous shower prior to her marriage on Tuesday to Rev. Douglas of Grey county, near Owen Sound. The bride, who is one of the most popular young ladies of Seymour ..ast, replied most fittingly, thanking her friends for their kind remembrances. The rest of the evening was most pleasantly spent in music and social intercourse during the refreshment hour.

Mr. J. A. Irwin spent Thursday in Belleville.

Mrs. C. Bonnycastle and daughter, Miss Hilda, left on Thursday for Toornto, where they will spend the winter.

A HAY FEVER SUFFERER SAYS:

"If all Hay Fever sufferers would drink milk, plenty of milk, not just off and on, but regularly, I firmly believe, judging from my own experience, that it would be of great benefit to them. A trial can do no harm, and if the results are in their cases the same as in mine, they can truthfully say that milk is a miraculous food."

DID MOVIE STAR TRAVEL BAREFOOT?

Evidence in $5,000.00 Damage Suit.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Miss Reine Davies, former film actress and sister of Marion Davies, testified before Supreme Court Justice Finch and a jury in her suit against the Briarcliff Lodge Association for $500,000 damages. She alleged that when a car owned by Sime Silverman, publisher of a theatrical newspaper, collided with the Briarcliff autobus in 1919, she was permanently injured and disfigured and was compelled to retire from the movies.

Miss Davies, who said she was thrown thirty-five feet, listed the following injuries: Fractured skull, bruised side, broken collar bone, dislocated knee, neck bruised, and a bone of the hand and the foot broken. She had to use crutches for five months and now she has fainting spells during which she loses her sight for several hours, she said.

On cross-examination Miss Davies was asked about a collision in Westchester County on Dec. 24, 1920, when she was driving her own car, and when she said she had one of her attacks of blindness. Herbert C. Smyth, counsel for the Briarcliff Association, asked Policeman Philip J. Schmidz, who was on duty at the time of the accident to stand up. Mr. Smyth asked:

"Do you remember this officer asking you, when he picked you up after the accident, what you were doing out with only a motor coat on and no shoes and stockings?

"I don't remember anything of the kind," said Miss Davies.

HE STOLE $270,000 FOR SPECULATING.

$3,500 Secretary Pleads Guilty to Charge.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.— Harry P. Gibney, 34 years old, who lives at the Hotel Touraine, in Brooklyn, pleaded guilty in the Court of General Sessions to two indictments charging him with grand larceny in the theft of $270,000 from his former employer, Sidney Mitchell President of the Electric Bond and Share Company, 71 Broadway. Gibney was employed as Mitchell's personal secretary, from May, 1911, to February, 1921, and is charged with stealing money belonging to Mitchell himself, not the company.

Gibney received a salary of $3,000 a year from Mitchell. He was married and owned his own home at 73 Fenimore Street, Brooklyn. He also owned an automobile. In a signed confession, which was made part of the court record, he said that a man who was a relative by marriage was responsible for his thefts. He said this man induced him to turn over money to him for speculation and lost..

"I have at all times been ready and willing to do everything in my own power to help Mr. Mitchell recover the money by prosecuting this relative and have offered my services to go before the Grand Jury," said Gibney in his confession. "I am still willing to do everything in that connection or in any other matter I can to aid in the recovery of the money for Mitchell."

If he has the chance, Gibney, says he will make restitution in full. He has turned over his house and auto mobile to Mitchell. Samuel Furstenberg of 112-Centre street, attorney for Gibney admitted that his client was guilty of the charges, but said he expected to make $100,000 in two years, which he would turn over to Mitchell in partial restitution.

Gibney has been employed recently as assistant to S. J. Florentine, President of the United Barber Shops, Inc., of 160 Pearl street. Florentine has written a long letter appealing on Gibney's behalf to Judge Thomas C. T. Crain, before whom the case was tried.

PASS HAT FOR FUNERALS

Berliners of the Poorer Classes Cooperate to Meet High Cost of Dying.

BERLIN, (By Mail).—Collections to pay the cost of funerals, births and even marriages have become common in Berlin, where the cost of dying as well as living has increased enormously since the beginning of winter.

When there is death among the employes in an office building a list is made out of the occupants of the building, and the paper is quietly passed around, and every one contributes. When a laborer dies, or a member of his family is stricken, the list is passed through the apartment building in which the family lives, or, if the death occurs in the suburbs, through the whole community.

Illness in a family is cause for the same procedure, and a marriage is not often passed without a cash contribution.

Workmen and low-salaried members of the "white collar" professions earn barely enough to buy food and fuel to support them during the winter months. New clothes are not to be thought of, particularly shoes, a pair of which costs as much as many heads of families earn in a month.

Many workmen go about their duties in suits so patched that very little of the original material remains. Their shoes are often full of holes, carry numerous patches, or their feet are wrapped about with bags.

Complaint is made in labor circles that, while the workmen are suffering under these conditions, the profiteers and foreigners are spending enormous sums daily on luxuries. This is causing much bitterness among the workers.

The central Government has directed that the names of those convicted of speculation and profiteering be published prominently in the newspapers.

"PETROLEUM, THE OIL OF THE EARTH"

BY CASPAR LE BLANC,
Field Adviser to The Central Ontario Oil Fields, Ltd.

There are many kinds of oil, ranging from petro, "the oil of the sky," to petroleum, "the oil of the earth." Petroleum, as its name signifies, is rock-oil, and for countless centuries man has valued it for its heat and light-giving properties. Races as widely separated as the Chinese in Asia and the Egyptians in Africa, the Incas of Peru and the Aztecs of Mexico were acquainted with this marvellous fluid, petroleum, and employed its freely from time immemorial in their architecture and works of art.

But strange to relate the mining of petroleum, as the winning of this oil is called, was not looked upon as a remunerative industry until the year 1859. In other words the oil industry is only sixty-three years old. Your father doubtless remembers when Colonel Drake drilled the first well specially for petroleum just a few hundred miles south of Peterborough in the Appalachian fields in the United States.

Previous to 1859 petroleum was obtained by our forefathers in association with brine. The oil was skimmed off the top of the brine and sold, but of course the mining of the salt itself was by far the more remunerative and valuable industry. Compare the oil with the salt industry to-day, and do you wonder that people are actually going mad about the oil industry, which is only in its infancy?

Why is every nation of the world scrambling for petroleum? They need it for their battleships, for their motor cars, for their aeroplanes, for their submarines, for their great office buildings, their railways and their chewing gum factories, and the demand is rapidly exceeding the supply.

Bear in mind that the transition from wood and coal to oil occurred in the course of sixty short years. Your father will tell you about the candle making industry of their day when great stores of tallow candles were made in their own homes, yes, and perhaps they well remember who purchased the first kerosene lamp in their respective localities. It really doesn't seem credible that men who now in later middle-life read their evening newspapers by the soft light of the day-light electric lamp in early boyhood days pored over their school books by the light of the fire-place or the flickering twinklings of the tallow candle. However, you younger people have only to inquire of your parents to find that my picture is true, and young men and women, if I mistake not, you who now read your Harper's and your Examiner, and your Century and Home Journals by the day-light electric lamp will in your later middle-life read your evening radiograms by the sunlight of perpetual day. The engineers of your father's day discovered how to get light from petroleum, and not satisfied with that harnessed the giant Niagara; the engineers of your day, even more ambitious, have harnessed the sea, and are now busily engaged in perfecting plans for harnessing the sun. Sometime I perhaps shall give you a description of the devices my colleagues and myself are planning to use to canture the energy of the sun and the ether but now I must continue my discussion of petroleum.

The success attendant upon the drilling of the first oil-well in the Appalachians by Colonel Drake literally set the world on fire, and within a few years Russia was vieing with the United States in the production of petroleum. Right here I might mention that between the years, 1898 and 1901, Russia produced half the world's supply of oil from wells located on 10 square miles. Twenty years ago half the world's supply of oil was obtained from a small tract of land three miles long by say three and one-half miles wide.

It was one thing, however, to drill a well a few hundred feet deep and discover a "gusher" of heavy, black oil, but it was quite a different and more difficult feat to get the oil to market. For nineteen years the only way of getting the oil from the oil-fields to the city markets was by transporting it in barrels or tanks, drawn by engines, horses, mules and oxen over rough roads for great distances. You can easily imagine what a costly operation and irksome task that was, for crude oil is a greasy, ill-smelling fluid and most difficult to handle.

In 1875 or thereabout American engineers conceived the idea of constructing a great pipe-line six inches in diameter, much like what are now used for water-mains in your city, and through it they caused the oil to flow to the great centres of the United States, like Philadelphia and Pittsburg. The success of this undertaking re-acted seriously upon the oil-carters, who were thrown out of work. They retaliated by attacking the pipe-lines at night with heavy picks, punched great holes in the pipes and either allowed the oil to escape or drove up with empty barrels and stole the petroleum. For many years labor disturbances of this nature were frequent occurances in the oil-fields to the south.

Pipe-lines, of course could not be laid to every part of the world, and at your own railway stations here you have seen the oil-tanks used by the railroads for the transportation of oil. Oil-tankers, ships specially constructed to carry oil, are to be found on all the oceans of the earth today, but I would have you bear in mind that not till about the year 1907 was any very special provision made by ocean steamship companies for the transportation of oil on the high seas. In that year many fast ocean-going oil-tankers were constructed capable of carrying thousands of gallons of oil to all the ports of the world. So you see the oil industry is really in its infancy. True, many petroleum engineers predict that the industry is fated to die an untimely death owing to the total exhaustion of the world's supply of oil, but after surveying the oil resources of the earth, I am happy to say that I for one am very optimistic with regard to the life of this industry. Fields heretofore undreamed of lie at our very door, and long before the earth's supply of petroleum is exhausted our scientists will have in operation energy-yielding machines which will not consume oil to any appreciable extent. In three decades I have every reason to believe the oil-burning furnaces of the industrial world and the electric lamp of which we are so proud will be as antiquated and as obsolete as the wood-burning furnaces of Pittsburg and the tallow candle of your fathers' boyhood days now are. I sometimes even wonder whether or not the last payment will have been made on the marvellous Chippawa development here in Ontario before it in turn will be supplanted by a more modern energy-yielding system. If I mistake not, this era will in the future be known as the "Sunlight Age." Preposterous! Live and see. Would not your father in his boyhood days have said the same about the telephone, the electric light, the trolley car, the aeroplane, the gramophone, the very common-place electric toaster which you so unthinkingly used this very morning to char your wheaten bread? Live and see the wonders of this age.

Where is petroleum mined? In nearly every country in the world. At least there are vast fields in every continent, for wherever you have continents you have mountain ranges rising above the sea, wherever you have mountains you have valleys, and mountains and valleys and petroleum are inseparably bound up with one another in Nature. True, you may have valleys without oil, but not oil without valleys, old or new. Many petroleum engineers have openly admitted that they cannot explain why great oil-fields should be found the world over in close proximity to mountains, but that is because they, in my opinion, are not correct in their theory with regard to the origin of oil. Any theory which is not in agreement with the facts of Nature and not capable of explaining every observed phenomena is obviously erroneous. It was this very fact that led me to cast aside all popular theories of the origin of petroleum and endeavor to find a theory which would satisfactorily explain the occurrance of oil wherever it is found in Nature. Furthermore, I was of the opinion that if I could correctly ascertain the origin of oil and learn the laws governing its migration or movements, I should not only be able to state where petroleum came from but also where the fields of oil throughout the world now lie. This is the very thing which I am of the opinion I have accomplished. I think I have discovered the origin of oil and the laws governing its migratory movements. If I am correct you can easily estimate the wonderful impetus this will give to the oil industry of the world, and from a hundred tests I have satisfied myself that at last Nature has yielded up her secret. According to my conclusions, has Ontario very much oil? She has, but the great majority of her eight or a dozen fields are located in what the man on the street would consider very unlikely areas. That is because the Ontario of old is not the Ontario of to-day. The lake and river systems of Ontario a few ages ago were wholly different from the systems of to-day. Time and the elements have almost utterly effaced the surface indications of great oil-bearing areas or buried them beneath hundreds and hundreds of feet of new earth and rock. In a later article, perhaps, I shall dwell at greater length on this aspect of my subject.

Ontario's present well-known oil-field is located in the Petrolia district near Lake Huron. The Central Ontario Oil Fields, Limited, of your city is about to drill. I understand, in that part of the Petrolia district known as the Kerwood field, which, from actual field operations, is known to be a shallow field in which oil is found at a depth of from 350 to 500 feet. Consequently it is cheaper to start drilling operations there than in practically any other oil-field in Ontario. The cost of drilling a single well to the oil-bearing sands should be between $1,100 (eleven hundred) and $1,500 (fifteen hundred dollars). A group of five wells, however, should not cost more than $3,500, as the machinery and crew would not have to be brought to the field the second time. Personally, I am of the opinion that wells in the Kerwood district, if drilled in large numbers, should not average over a dollar and twenty-five cents a foot under normal conditions, which would average around $480 a well. In the Mariposa district, however, the cost of drilling a well might well exceed $20,000. You can easily see, therefore, why a young company should begin operations in a field which has been proved to be shallow. True, it has its disadvantages for the man with funds to invest who is just waiting for the company to make a strike before he buys shares. In a shallow field the oil is quickly reached, and when the directors of the company have assurred themselves by actually striking oil in any commercial quantity that their field advisers know their business they usually cease selling stock and the would-be investor has to buy his shares on a soaring market. It is true that you should never invest unless you can readily afford to lose your money, but if you have decided to invest in this particular instance, I think you will be well advised to do so before it is too late. (The President does not wish me to urge anyone to invest in his company, and from his happy independence I will leave you to form your own opinions as to the reason for this rather unique attitude. It, to say the least, is most re-assuring). Apparently the company knows where the oil is, and are already possessed of sufficient funds to enable them to drill the first well. The first well should pay for the second and a hundred more.

In my article next week I shall touch on the science of oil-drilling, and describe how field operations are carried on in the different oil-fields of the world. Perhaps I shall have an opportunity of writing about the refining of petroleum and the marketing of its products, and, lastly, give you a clear conception of the manner in which this wonderful fluid travelled all the way from its home far beneath the Arctic Ocean to its present abode beneath the snow-white fields of our Canada, and our neighborly neighbor, the great Republic to the south.

did at York, (now Toronto) he would go and see his property. Then he could secure his patent from the Crown and all would be in order. Being directed he made way to Port Hope, (then known as Smith's Creek) and was passed on to Cobourg which was he was told, nearer to where he wished to go. This was in 1818. His course lay by foot travel from Cobourg to Rice Lake and thence across the water to the old trading post known as Harrison's Landing just west of Hiawatha, the ruins of the building as yet visible and supplying excellent field stone from which cottagers have built chimneys on their dwellings.

There he engaged a trapper to carry him by canoe up the river to the location. Two days were required on the trip upstream. On the morning of the third day the twain were on the waters of the now Little Lake, and going ashore on the point of land now the cemetery his guide pointed to the West where Capt. Spillsbury's land lay. Capt. Spillsbury had been told of the rolling land covered with mighty hardwood trees and a picture of sylvan beauty. Unfortunately a bush fire had run through the forest at this part and burned from the west to the water's edge.

He has left a relation of what he viewed [illegible] the lake to [illegible] at is now Burnham's Point, to get a clos[illegible] disheartened. The whole aspect was so dismal—nothing but the charred spikes of the burnt pine trees and the partially consumed slash of the original forest, interspersed with scrub underbrush—that the captain became disgusted and refused to go further, decided that he would not even take the trouble of making a detour so as to reach the top of the hill that crowns the Gravel Road approach to the city, and in fact returned as he came without ever having seen more of his property. He disclaimed any intention of securing the patent of the lands, gave the whole thing up and returned for a time to England.

Wanted Quick Results

The same land now comprises one of the very finest stretches of highly cultivated farmsteads to be found in the province of Ontario. As near as may be known the area covered by the grant included what is now of the city proper south of Sherbrooke street, along the river Below Crawford's Grove and west towards Springville sufficient to include the number of acres as indicated. The whole of the suburb of Browntown and the flat arable lands to the south, the sites of the C.G.E. Co., De Laval Co., in fact the most esteemed manufacturing locations are comprised in the area as located. But the man could not look forward, no man could, and see what the future had in store. Capt. Spilsbury was not a speculator. He wanted, in his circumstances, immediate results. For within three years afterwards settlement began to creep north from the Cavan township below and the first lands to be occupied by the Fowlers and others coming in were of parts of lands that had been contemptuously turned down by the irate Naval officer, who threw away the gift that had been bestowed in recognition of service.

In after years he returned to Canada, and of his family a daughter was married to Dr. William Bell, of Peterborough, in 1844. Dr. Bell one of the old English school, and who was a graduate of the Royal Society of Apothecaries of England, and had studied medicine at Guy's Hospital, London, was both a physician and carried on a drug store. He also ran a farm in North Monaghan and built a saw mill, the latter put up with the object in view of cutting plank to build at the time projected road to Port Hope across the upper end of the Cavan swamp, a difficult part of the proposed line. He also organized the Gravel Road Company, built the main road as we now have it to Port Hope and the company collected for very many years tolls of one penny for each five mile of road traversed.

Casualties of the sort as noted in the foregoing often come about in pairs. Take the situation as regards the lands of that part of the city known now as East City, and at one time as "The Scotch Village" and afterwards as "Ashburnham". Practically the same thing happened. A grant to an officer, (the facts are well known, so the names need not be looked up), comprised that part of the north-west corner of the township of Otonabee. The area indicated stops at the corner of Nicholls Oval and the river bank, south of Smith street. The grant comprised 2,000 acres. Covered lands as far south as Downer's Corners and east over the entire area now occupied by the Lift Lock and the property afterwards known as the Beaver Meadow, and later the home of Judge Hall. The officer came and located on the plot. Lived for a time a solitary life and finally moved away. He reappeared six years afterwards, stayed for three years, declaring to leave the vicinity for good and all, disposed of the entire holding for a horse and cutter and twenty dollars in cash. Drove in the cutter to Port Hope, sold the horse and vehicle and crossed the line into the States, never to be heard of afterwards. Some years afterwards Hon. Zaccheus Burnham came along, acquired the holdings, settled in the village and hence we have the name Ashburnham.

Famous stage beauties use it to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, because it doesn't irritate.

THE SUPERPHONE GIVES SECRECY.

Demonstration Proves Success of Invention.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(Associated Press).—The 'superphones' an apparently simple attachment for telephones, which is said to assure absolute secrecy of communication and security from interruptions and make possible multiplex telephone, was demonstrated to-day in the office of the chief signal officer of the army.

It was shown that one telephone line to which "superphones" were attached could be used for several conversations simultaneously and that no pair of speakers could hear or interrupt another pair.

The "superphone", it was explained, has been developed under the direction of R. D. Duncan, Jr., chief engineer of Signal Corps research laboratory of the Bureau of Standards, assisted by S. Isler, assistant radio engineer. It is based on "wired wireless", or "line radio", invented about ten years ago by Major-Gen. George O. Squier, chief signal officer of the army, and consists of a small portable set of instruments which may beinstalled in any office or residence in a few minutes and connected directly with existing telephone lines.

The invention, Signal Corps officials indicated, was obviously of great value for military purpose in case of war, because of its assurance of secret communication. It would be of hardly less value, they said, to business men, bankers and others to whom it was desirable to have complete and assured privacy in confidential channels of communication. The principles involved in the invention are the same as in "wired wireless", it was explained, high frequency alternating currents being employed.

WILL KEEP FAITH.

BELFAST, Jan. 28. Canadian Press. — Sir James Craig stated today that both he and Michael Collins would be faithful to the agreement they had reached.

Constipation

It is a disease-producing malady, and if not corrected may result in serious complications. In good health the bowels should move freely at least once every day, carrying away the waste products from the Blood and Liver. If this function fails or is irregular, the work of removing the poisons falls on the Skin and Kidneys, with the result of the latter organs becoming congested and clogged. The Blood becomes poisoned, Indigestion sets in, the Kidneys become deranged, and a severe if not fatal illness is brought on. DR. HENDERSON'S HERB TABLETS correct this trouble by its action on the Liver, causing a healthy flow of Bile, and exerting a soothing and toning influence on the whole Intestinal Track.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets are put up in three sizes—one, two, $1.00 per Box. For sale at Bond's Drug Store and the Warne Drug Co., Ltd.

Ontario and Erie, on which waters several engagements had already taken place. Being experienced he was given a gunboat fitted out at Kingston, which was at that time the general headquarters and dockyard for the Colonies. His period of service closed out early in 1815. On applying to the British Government for some recognition of his service, having decided to stay in Canada, he was given a grant of 2,700 acres of land, and finding that several officers similiary situated to himself, (late Capt. Charles Rubidge, who settled in the lower part of Otonabee township was one of these) Capt. Spilsbury, a sort of hit and miss proposition decided that he would take his grant among the lands that were comprised in the township of North Monaghan, at that time the survey of which was nearly completed.

Twenty-seven hundred acres is quite a sizeable portion of earth. Practically so much as the whole of Peterborough, which comprizes 2,821 acres; of this area 2,532 acres being land and 289 acres water, that is the lake and river within the civic boundaries. And to further judge of the extent of Capt. Spilsbury's domain it may be added that the area thereof would or could have been split into one hundred acre farms to the number of eighteen. And at one time the hundred acre farm was considered the standard as to size.

THE PRINCE

Micawber, perhaps the most futile and amusing of all literary creations, was the Prince of Procrastinators.

He was always just about to make a spring. He constantly told David Copperfield that he was contemplating a vigorous leap forward.

But he was never outside a network of overdue bills and bankruptcy. His life was lived within the shadow of the debtor's prison.

And the moral of it all. Any act which is vital and excellent should be carried out at once. For instance, the policy of Assurance which you think of taking up, say, next month, will not help much if anything untoward should happen to you between now and then.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE ACT NOT BEING CARRIED OUT

Inspector Broderick Says Reeves Should See That Municipal Clerks Follow Instructions—Report on Attendance and Grants.

The report of G. E. Broderick, Public School Inspector for part of West Peterborough, on the schools in his inspectorate was presented to the County Council as follows:

As required by the Public Schools Act and Regulations, I have the honour to present my annual report on the conditions of the Public Schools in Peterborough West.

Previous to the year 1921 the method of determining the percentage attendance was based upon the assumption that all the pupils enrolled attended all the year. Obviously this method did not fairly represent the school attendance since many pupils did not enter school until Easter; many left at mid-summer to attend High School, while many were transferred from one school to another during the year. This year the departmental report forms require us to report not only the average attendance, as in former years, but the possible aggregate attendance. The following is the enrollment and attendance by municipalities for Peterborough West:

	On Roll.	Average.
Smith	465	310
Ennismore	15	9
Harvey	215	139
Galway & Cavendish	81	39

The Teaching Staff.

Twelve years ago there were, in the rural schools of Peterborough West, only one-quarter of the teachers qualified under the regulations. The great majority of teachers held either expired thirds or permits. The establishing of Normal Schools from which teachers may, after two years successful experience, obtain permanent second-class certificates, and the very greatly increased Government grants, have resulted in an adequate supply of qualified teachers. In this inspectorate there is absolutely no good reason why any school should be without a properly qualified teacher.

There are sporadic cases of failure to meet the requirements of the Education Department, but the failures have not arisen from the scarcity of teachers. The following table gives the conditions at the close of the year 1921:

Smith Township.

Harvey	4,625.83
Galway & Cavendish	2,174.03
Total	$10,597.07

In Smith the Government grants amount on the average to 30 per cent. of the salaries paid; in Ennismore to 11½; in Harvey to 67, and in Galway & Cavendish 82.

The School Attendance Act.

There is reason to believe that the provisions of this Act are not being carried out. The essential features of the Act are:

"1.—That every Municipal Council shall appoint one or more school attendance officers;

"2.—Notice of the appointment made shall be by the appointing body to the Provincial School Attendance Officer and to the Inspector;

"3.—The clerk of the municipality shall furnish the Secretary of every board the particulars recorded in a book prepared by the Assessor as required by the Assessment Act, Section 33, Sub-section 1."

I know of no Secretary who has received the records as required by this section of the Assessment Act. Would it not be well for each Reeve to direct the Assessor of the municipality to record the information called for in the Revised Assessment Act?

GUARD YOUR HEALTH

YOU CAN DO THIS BY KEEPING THE BLOOD RICH AND RED

It is useless to tell a hard working woman to take life easily and not to worry. Every woman at the head of a home; every girl in offices, shops and factories is subjected to more or less worry. These worries cannot be avoided. But it is the duty of every woman and every girl to save her strength as much as possible, and to build up her system to meet unusual demands. Her future health depends upon it To guard against a breakdown the blood must be kept rich, red and pure. To keep the blood in this condition Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be found most useful. They strengthen the nerves, restore the appetite and bring the glow of health to pallid cheeks, and renewed energy to listless people. Women cannot always rest when they should, but they can keep up their strength through the occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This is shown by the case of Mrs. Minnie Swick, residing near Simcoe, Ont., who says: "A few years ago I was in a deplorable state of health My blood was weak and watery and the circulation poor. My appetite was poor, and what food I did take distressed me I was not able to do my housework, and often my nights were sleepless, and headache and backache added to my misery. I was finally persuaded to drop other medicines and take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This I did, and after taking the pills for a couple of months I could do my housework with ease eat well, slept well and had gained in weight From my own experience I cannot praise these pills too highly."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PETERBORO WON FROM LAKEFIELD.

Score Was 3-1 in Favor of the Locals—Good Crowd Turned Out to See Game

LAKEFIELD, January 28. — The Peterborough Ladies' Hockey Team drove to Lakefield last evening, and had their first outside battle of the season with the Lakefield aggregation, winning from them by a score of 3-1.

The game was interesting straight through, with some good fast shooting, and the crowd which filled the rink had the worth of their money from the first exhibition of ladies' hockey.

At the end of the first period, the score stood at 1-0 for Lakefield; at the end of the second at 2- for Peterborough, and the local [illegible] added another shot to their credit in the third.

The star of the Lakefield aggregation was Mary McKenzie at centre, who scored the lone goal for her team. Lack of practice was evidenced in the playing of the local girls, and the Peterborough team showed good combination. Stella Lennox on defence was very strong, and Lillian Dixon, Lakefield's goalkeeper, did some good work.

On the Peterborough team, goals were scored by Mary Londergan, Eva Outram, and Jerry Foley. Mary Londergan was the cause of the first penalty of the season handed out to the Peterborough team, she being ruled off for a minute for boarding.

The line-up was as follows:

Peterborough.	Lakefield.
Goal.
Alberta Curtis	Lillian Dixon
Defence.
Ethel Currie	Rhoda Alford
Jerry Foley	Stella Lennox
Centre.
Eva Outram	Mary McKenzie
Wings.
Alice Ebbs	Helen Burgess
Mary Londergan	Elsie Kidd
Substitutes.

For Peterborough—Ethel Nichols, Hazel Jackson, and Marion Stuart.

For Lakefield—Mrs. Braden Blewett, Jean Ridpath, Evelyn Northey, and Iva Windsor.

Harold Graham, of Peterborough, was referee; Burton Hall acted as goal umpire for the Lakefield team, and Flossie Pammett for Peterborough; while R. A. Hirsch was manager for the local girls, and D. Loomis for th rivals.

THE WEATHER

The decidedly cold weather, that has been with us all week is apparently passing away. At day break Saturday morning the thermometer was at 6 degrees above zero. The lowest during last night was 3 degrees below zero. That some sections are colder than others is undoubted. All the southern section of the city is colder than the northern and higher districts. The western section is not so cold as the eastern portion.—W.P.

GIRLS! GROW THICK LONG, HEAVY HAIR WITH "DANDERINE"

Buy a 35-cent bottle of "Danderine." One application ends all dandruff, stops itching and falling hair, and, in a few moments, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will appear a mass, so soft, lustrous, and easy to do up. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair — fine and downy at first —yes, but really new hair growing all over the scalp. "Danderine" is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. This delightful, stimulating tonic helps thin, lifeless, faded hair to grow long, thick, heavy, and luxuriant.

Sorry Her Hair Was Bobbed

She was a very nice young lady, perfectly respectable, but she had a bobbed head, which is apt to get one into trouble in some quarters. Her attempts at saving money by trimming it herself were quite satisfactory if one looked at her just from the front. In the rear, it was a little bit jagged. So her family persuaded her to get it done at an orthodox establishment.

She started out in great hurry one morning for the hairdresser's, and stuck her comb in her pocket without wrapping it up. Going into a drygoods store, and buying something at the notions counter, the comb, still unwrapped, fell out of her pocket. A large lady with florid countenance, regarded her with a suspicious eye as she picked it up.

So the young lady had her hair trimmed and started home. It was a slippery day and she took the car. The same lady happened to follow her in and sit down beside her, and when the girl got up, she seized the wrong parcel, the lady's parcel, and started out. A heavy hand was laid on her arm, and the lady retrieved her parcel with some violence. Her suspicious eye followed the girl out of the car, and dwelt lingeringly upon her as she stood on the corner. And now she says she is sorry that she had her hair bobbed.

Nervous Breakdown

The extreme depression and discouragement which comes over one at times is the most alarming symptom of nervous exhaustion.

This letter is a message of hope to all who find themselves in this unfortunate condition.

Mrs. Geo. T. Tingley, Albert, N.B., writes:—

"For years I was in a very nervous, run-down condition, was much depressed in spirits and suffered a great deal at times. The least noise would irritate me and at times I felt as though I certainly would go crazy. I consulted different doctors to no effect.

"A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and I can truly testify today to the great benefits received. There was a marked change before I had finished the second box and when I had used a dozen boxes my nerves were thoroughly restored and I was entirely relieved of those terrible feelings I used to have. I shall ever be ready to testify to the benefits of this wonderful medicine, feeling sure that it will give to others the quick and permanent relief it has given me."

PETER ROBINSON CHAPTER ANNUAL

The annual meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E., which takes place at the Y.W.C.A. on the first Saturday in February for the election of officers, will conclude with an informal tea on this occasion, and the attending members will have an opportunity to view the picture which has been presented by this Chapter to the various public and separate schools of the city, representing "Canadians at Ypres."

The Peter Robinson also recently donated $50 to the Well Babies' Clinic, and sent $10 to the Princess Mary Fund. With regard to the first-mentioned donation, it is remembered that Dr. Birnie, speaking to the Local Council of Women at a recent meeting, praised the different local chapters of the I. O. D. E. for the good work they had done towards supporting this institution.

Nominations for the different positions in the society, which will be voted on at the February meeting, are as follows: For Regent, Mrs. F. C. Weber; 1st Vice-Regent, Helen M. Stapleton; 2nd Vice-Regent, Estelle Knox and Gladys Mulholland; Secretary, E. Nichol; Treasurer, Genevieve McCarthy; Standard Bearer, Seabourne Hamilton and Maria McCarthy; Councillors: Mrs. O'Loghlin, Mrs. Hooper, E. Clementi, G. Patterson, A. Huycke, Mary Harstone, A. Kelly, M. Connor, F. Mitchell, N. Legendre, H. Howson, H. Bulmer, H. Thompson, S. Hamilton, O. Johnson, P. Dawson, H. Morrison and R. Cummings.

BABY HUTT.

"Owes his life to Virol."

Ottawa.

I should like to testify to the benefit of VIROL. Our baby boy when born and up till he was one month old was healthy, then he began to fail, nothing would agree with stomach or bowels. We did everything possible, but he kept getting worse, till at last we were advised to try Virol. He was then 5½ months old and only weighed 9½ lbs.; we could scarcely handle him. In 10 days we saw a vast improvement, and in 3 months he sat up alone. He is now 18 months old, has 12 teeth, weighs 32 lbs., and never has been sick for one hour since we gave him Virol. I am sure we owe little Jack's life to Virol only.

Mrs. H. S. HUTT,
396, Chapel Street, Ottawa.

Virol increases the power of resistance to the forms of disease and replaces wasted tissue. It is therefore a valuable food in Measles, Whooping-Cough, Infantile Diarrhœa, Influenza, etc.

Mothers' Club Held Meeting

MOTHERS FROM THE OTHER CHURCHES IN THE CITY WERE ENTERTAINED.

The Mothers' Club of the George street church held their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon of this week in the Sunday School Hall, and on this occasion entertained the mothers from the Cradle Roll Leagues of the other city churches in order that these ladies might see what the Mothers' Club is doing.

The Mothers' Club of the George street church, which was started last May, is a thriving little society of about 50 members, organized for the purpose of engendering cooperation between the mothers and the Sunday school, and for the spread of knowledge with regard to home training and hygiene.

Dr. Jessie Birnie delivered a very instructive and helpful address at this meeting on "The Physical Life of the Child" from birth to the age of six years.

The doctor emphasized the fact that the first few weeks of the child's life are a sort of vegetable existence. It is unable to distinguish between light and dark, it cannot hear on account of swollen eardrums and its cries during this period are more in the nature of reflex movements than signs of actual sensations of pain.

During the period of "first dentition" special care should be taken of the infant as it is at this time that nervous lesions occur of the infantile paralysis order. The second dentition period, about the sixth year and from then to adolescence, is the time of the greatest mental activity in the entire life of the individual, and it is at this time that most can be done in forming its future character as well as its physical development.

The first week of the infant's life is the time of peril, and about the second year the tendency to develop rickets is apparents, unless the feeding is properly carried out.

The speaker stressed the good work carried on by the Well Babies' Clinic, in providing free medical attention and advice for diseases of infants, and recommended it to the audience. The doctor's address was listened to with careful attention, her practical, experienced presentation of ideas appealing strongly to the minds of her audience.

A pleasant programme was rendered by a vocal solo by Miss Norma Hughes, a reading by Miss Margaret Walker, and duet by Mrs. R. C. Braund and Mrs. Mendel Braund, and refreshments were served from tables prettily decorated with the Cradle Rollcolors, green and white. The chair was occupied by Mrs. George Robertson, President of the Club, with Mrs. Harris as secretary.

The Girls' Friendly Society Was Organized Here in 1874

THIS SOCIETY IS AT WORK IN ALL THE BRITISH DOMINIONS—PROVIDES WELCOME AND ENCOURAGEMENT TO TRAVELLERS

The Girls' Friendly Society of St. John's church, recently organized, is not a new society, by any means. Its arrival in the ranks of Peterboro church organizations is new, but it is just a branch of a work begun in England in 1874, when Mrs. Townsend, the foundress, at that time, a young woman of twenty-four years of age, became interested in a group of girls and keenly alive to the dangers threatening girlhood. To her came what she calls "a thought entrusted by God," a vision of organized work for prevention, the preservation of purity through the influence of personal friendship; the outward machinery to be that of the numerous "Friendly Societies" so familiar in that day; the guidance to be always in the hands of the church; the membership to be limited by only one essential, that of character, and the object to be, summarized, "To unite for the glory of God, in one fellowship of prayer and service, the girls and women of the empire, to uphold purity in thought, word and deed.'

This society is at work in all the British dominions, in Canada, the five provinces of Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, South Africa, Newfoundland, the West Indies, India, Ceylon, the Malay States, and China. It has branches in most European countries and in the Republics of South America, and there is a very fine Sister Society in the United States of America. It provides welcome and encouragement for its members travelling in strange lands, and in cities such as Bombay, Durban or Sydney, it supports lodges or holiday houses for its members. One of the most famous of the lodges is the well known Paris establishment.

"The Crown of Fellowship is to be found in a common ideal animating thousands of women and girls, scattered over many lands, each contributing her gifts towards the attainment of the goal of the society—a pure and noble womanhood. At no time in world's history has it been as necessary to uphold a high standard of personal purity as at the present time. It would seem that war has let loose forces of evil which threaten to degrade the whole human race."

Membership in the G.F.S. is open to every girl of good character, regardless of race or creed, and members are girls of 12 years and upwards, who undertake to "uphold the object of the Society by the witness of their lives," or as is sometimes expressed, "Put God first, Friends next, Self last."

Mrs. Funk Tells Other Women About Dodd's Kidney Pill

She Suffered Terribly and Was so Bad She Could Not Do Her House Work—What Dodd's Kidney Pills Did For Her.

WINKLER, Man., Jan. 28.—(Special)—Just how Dodd's Kidney Pills have made a reputation as suffering women's best friend is again shown in the case of Mrs. J. J. Funk, a well known and highly respected resident of this place. Let her tell her story in her own words:

"I suffered for years from kidney trouble, female weakness and nervousness," Mrs. Funk says. "I was so bad I could not do my housework. I suffered terribly, but after using Dodd's Kidney Pills I feel much better.

"I can do my housework again and I will keep on using Dodd's Kidn Pills until I am entirely well.

"I am well satisfied with what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done so far. Everybody who suffers should try them. I would not be without Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the greatest of all kidney remedies.

CONCERT HELD BY LOCAL U.F.Y.P.O.

The concert held in Victoria Hall on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the local branch of the U.F.Y.P.O., was fairly well attended, the financial results were satisfactory to the committee in charge, composed of Misses Alberta Fowler and Mildred Archer and Messrs. George Whitfield and Stanley Cann.

The concert was a good example of the musical talent which is available in the ranks of the U.F.Y.P.O., and a credit also to those who looked after the arrangements for it.

Violin solos rendered by Mr. Chapman were particularly appreciated.

The programme, announced by Mr. Howard Quinn, chairman, was as follows:

Solo—Miss Murray.
Violin solo—Mr. Chapman.
Dialogue — 'A Visit from the Dean"—Misses Velma Sanderson, Helen Staples, and Miss Armstrong.
Piano solo—Mr. Frank Stevens.

Violin solo—Mr. Chapman.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the musical programme.

WEAK HEART
NERVES BADLY SHATTERED

Many a woman who should be strong and healthy, full of life and energy is bound by the shackles of ill-health.

Some disease or constitutional disturbance has left its mark in the form of a weak heart, shattered nerves, impoverished blood and an exhausted system.

In MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS they will find a remedy that will supply food for the exhausted nerves, one that will strengthen and regulate the weak heart and invigorate the whole system.

Mrs. W. W. Parse, 14 Seaton St., Toronto, Ont., writes:—"I was left with a weak heart and in a run down condition from the 'flu.' My nerves were badly shattered, and I had such pains around my heart I could not sleep much at night. I took several doctors' medicines without getting any better. My husband got me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after I took one box I got relief, and after taking six boxes I have been well and not bothered since."

Price, 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ting off any attempt Green might have made to scream.

Mrs. Green was treated at the store for her injuries which were slight. Her husband was taken to Bellevue, where he probably will die.

The robbers left without getting a cent.

As neighbors and passers-by were entering the place, two scared children in their nightclothes ran into the store. They were Abraham 7, and Annie, 5, the two children of the wounded man. The shots and scuffle and the failure of their mother to answer their cries brought them running to find their parents.

Mrs. Green was able to give a good description of the man with whom she had fought and a partial description of the other two. Several hold-ups have been reported in the same neighborhood. A crowd of detectives were sent out last night to look for three gunmen with revolvers and possibly with silencers.

Madame Lugrin-Fahey Recital

Last evening, an ovation was accorded Madame Lugrin-Fahey at George street Methodist church, well-filled for the occasion. No one who heard this exquisite singer is likely soon to forget the beauty of her voice or the attractive personality of the artist herself.

A brilliant soprano voice, with a range and volume that carries it triumphantly through difficult passages of strenuous vocalization with an ease and finish that never strains or tires, her singing is a lovely, strong, upward soaring of pure, rounded tone. A technique so finished that it is never apparent, a tone production ringing out like a whole choir of trained song-birds, and falling in vibrating cadences to minor, harp-like notes and a power of dramatic presentation that changes rapidly with the character of her offerings, make the music of Madame Fahey a thing of perfect beauty.

Her programme was varied, and a feature that added to the enjoyment of the offerings was the explanation afforded by the singer as a preface to each lovely number.

"I Know that My Redeemer Liveth," from "The Messiah," was the opening selection, a majestic number almost indescribable in its soaring, triumphant melody, with high, violin-like notes and powerful, sustained richness, sung with deep feeling.

The heavier numbers included also an aria in Italian, "Pace, Pace," (La Forza del Destino), the lament of Leonora for peace and death wailing forth in high, bird-like trills and dropping to the rich warmth of the singer's lower register, with its last wonderful sustained outburst of grief.

'O' Thou Billowy Harvest Field" by Rachmaninoff, a folk song of the Russian out of doors, set to Count Tolstoy's wording, was a descriptive number, illustrating, in its sonorous deepness and its high, piercing intervals the harvest songs of the steppe dwellers.

Another descriptive number was "The Spring Song of the Robin Woman," from the opera by an American composer, a difficult and unique selection containing the sweet, ringing carol of the "Robin Woman' who comes in the springtime and calls forth from their long sleep the birds of the air and the small moving things of the field.

One of the most unforgettable selections was "Caller Herrin,' in which the resounding cry of the old fish-wife alternates with her fierce recital of the perils of the deep sa.

"The Kerry Dance" was beautifully rendered, with the interpretation of the true artist, merry, lilting, and plaintiff as the husky, sweet minor notes rose and fell in the cadences of the old dance.

'Should He Upbraid," a lyric, trilling melody, with a staccato refrain, two dainty little selections by Greig, "The First Primrose," and "With a Water Lily,' whimsical and sweet, with flute-like arpeggios ripplin through them, and "At the Well," a cunning bit to the words of Rabinda Nath Tagore, were lighter selections, charmingly done, and the "Spring Song" was another idealization of nature, a silver, rippling melody of vernal growth.

"Homing" was an exquisite little number, and "The Loreley" was wonderfully rendered, the singer's vibrant voice rising and falling in the waves of sound that pictured the mystic spell of the sea-born enchantress calling from her rocky isle.

The constant encores that greeted her various selections were generously responded to by Mme. Foley, with numbers that ranged from "Comin' Thro' the Rye" to a final soft Italian love song.

Miss Ruby Ramsay at the piano, played her accompaniments with skillful ease, and shared in the applause accorded the singer, who evidently won for herself last night, with her wonderful voice, her perfection and gracious personality, a lasting place in the hearts of Peterborough's music lovers.

ANNUAL MEETING OF LADIES' AUX LIARY

SECRETARY REPORTS BUSY YEAR —OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. was held yesterday afternoon, in the Y.M.C.A. with a good attendance. Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle, the retiring president, occupied the chair.

Reports of the treasurer and secretary were read, the later as follows, submitted by B. L. Loomis:

"During the year, eight regular meetings were held, with an average attendance of twelve. This, perhaps, does not seem very large, but we feel that all our members are interested and when there is any special work to be done, all respond most heartily.

On Saturday, Feb. 5th, a sale of home-made cooking was held on the market. On Feb. 9th, a most successful afternoon tea was held at the home of Mrs. Roper, from which a splendid sum was realized.

It having been decided to hold a pillow-case shower at the regular March meeting, each member came armed with pillow cases, so that about six dozen were received for used in the dormitories. The Auxiliary is very grateful to all who assisted in the shower.

On March 9th, a sale of home-made cooking and afternoon tea was held in the reading room of the Y. M.C.A. building.

In April, a banquet was given for our local basketball team, which had been successful in winning the intermediate championship in the O. A.B.A. Supper was served in the gymnasium to about 150 men and boys.

On May 11th, a rummage sale was held and added a favorable sum to the treasury.

During the summer months, no meetings were held.

On October 7th, the ladies prepared and served, supper to the various teams taking part in the membership campaign. A rummage sale was held in October.

During the year, two webs of towelling, three dozen bath towels, one dozen sheets, some new curtain material and a web of sheeting were supplied for use in the dormitories.

Although our work may not seem very great, we are glad to have some part in so worthy an organization as the Young Men's Christian Association.

Arrangements were made to hold a Valentine Tea in the Y.M.C.A. on Feb. 14th, from three to six o'clock in the afternoon.

Officers Elected.

The officers were elected for the ensuing year, with the exception of a president, who will be chosen at the February meeting. The list is as follows:

Hon. President, Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle and Mrs. Wm. Davidson; 1st vice-president, Mrs. M. A. Morrison; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Geo. Laing; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. E. F. Mason; secretary, Mrs. D. A. Loomis; treasurer, Mrs. McBride. Social committee, Mrs. Brown, convenor, Mesdames Robinson, Roper, Gray, Roberts, Martin and Mann. House committee, Mrs. Turner, convenor, Mesdames Howden, Garbutt and Mason.

GETTING RID OF A STUBBORN COUGH IS CHILD'S PLAY NOW

Make the Medicine Yourself at Home, It's Cheap—but you Can't Beat It.

If you want to take care of that bad, hangon cough and do it in a few hours, better get one ounce of Parmint (double strength) and mix a half pint at home.

You can do this in two minutes by adding a little sugar and enough water to fill a half pint bottle.

You'll travel the world over before you get a medicine that will act so surely and quickly on the mucous membrane of the nose and throat. It halts the inflammation, the tickling sensation stops with the first spoonful, the heavy breathing goes and clean membrance, free from irritation and mucous follows.

For Catarrhal conditions such as mucus droppings, clogged nostrils and watery eyes, it won't disappoint— ask for Parmint (double strenth). Speak plainly so that the druggist will know exactly what you want.

A SERIES OF 10 THRILLING DETECTIVE STORIES By ROBERT CARLTON BROWN.

The Detective and the Diamond

By Robert Carlton Brown

SHE looked the kind of prima donna who in an ecstacy of spirit would kick her twinkling-toed slipper into the audience with a shout of sheer surrender. Impulsive and daring, a toss to her features, a lift to her movements. A tilt on her toes alive like fire. Bronze hair that flashed. Spicy dash! Alluring abandon.

Ah, on the stage she was elastic and alive with verve and vivacity. Little wonder that men loved her at first sight. Poise and presence were given her. Savoir-faire!

It was only afternoon, but one of these gray winter days which make the coziest maisonettes along Champs Elysees seem gloomy and inhospitable. Ninon Nicolette did not share the gloom of Paris. She had soft, shimmering silk curtains, rosy pongee silk curtains, drawn at the windows of her splendid, simple little sitting-room. She had shut out the drizzle and charmed away the murkiness with an electric light glowing in the very heart of a red silk rose. Beneath the light on a heavy silk-covered divan, she snuggled, slow smoke from her cigarette gliding up, twining through her hair, catching pearly tints of rose-colored light and finally spreading so thin as to be nothing.

Twice she arose and stepped into her adjoining boudoir and cast sad, happy, demure, appealing glances at herself in the glass. Quite evidently she was awaiting someone; someone in particular, and Ninon was hardly the sort to be kept waiting. It must be a man she expected or she would not have penciled her brows so apparently, and a little rouge had been enough in view of the rose shade cuddling the fierce electric light in its caressing folds.

She threw herself on the divan again, musingly traced the pattern on the jeweled case of her watch, felt fondly of the pearls encircling her splendid throat, then clasped one hand in the other and looked long and deep into the ruby center of a striking ring on her little finger. A tinkling of a muffled telephone bell aroused her, she started guiltily, dropped the hand bearing the obsorbing gem, rushed to the 'phone and with a glad little catch in her voice, " 'Allo!"

A minute later there came a neat rap at the door and, allowing a stimulating half minute to pass, Ninon stepped to the door and opened it, giving her hand to the man who entered, and greeting him with very personal interest, leading him at once to a chair placed cozily beside her divan beneath the rose-colored light, and pushing toward him a slender, confident-looking cigarette box.

They spoke in French and she shrugged prettily in accompaniment. But he was clearly American. His dress indicated that, if one could not read his clear-cut face. There was nothing dapper in his appearance. Straightforward, frank American the clothes proclaimed him. A nice, neat suiting cleverly cut, long, rolling lapels to the coat and snug, turned-up cuffs at the bottoms of his slightly peg-top trousers. All American in makeup, he was, and the way he leaned forward tensely and gestured unskillfully showed that his knowledge of French was little more than most college men avail themselves of.

But Ninon talked a tiny bit of English sometimes, stumbling prettily and making the man feel by contrast that his French was good—fine!

They came suddenly to speaking of jewels. Ninon held out her ring to be admired.

"How you like zee ruby—eet ees one big blood blot!" she stumbled in English, accompanying with a rippling motion of the hand, which caused the gem to shoot soft glances in the light from the rose-colored globe. "In zis light eet ees zee blood drop of ze rose, Monsieur Armstrong!"

"It reflects your eyes in softness and richness of quality, though they are deeper in color," cried Armstrong, reaching out to catch her hand by the finger tips to gaze closer at the jewel.

"Non-non-monsieur!" she cried, drawing the highly polished nails of her fingers into her palm, as a timorous kitten sheathing its claws. "Zee ruby! Zee ruby!"

Armstrong laughed low and dropped his outstretched hand. Ninon drew in her lower lip chidingly and drooped her sweeping eye-lashes toward him in soft reproach.

"It is beautiful—true pigeon blood," he cried. "But your eyes, they—"

"Ah! Monsieur!" she cried, throwing up her hands in gentle protest. She glanced at his hand. "Ze ring of yours! Le diamond! May I see him?"

"Oh, surely," he smiled leaning forward and extending his hand to show Ninon the striking diamond ring on his third finger.

She moved forward on the divan, bent over the ring, touched the stone ever so lightly and exclaimed in childish pleasure, "Oh! Eet ees such a grand one. So beeg, so bright. Eet ees worth very much!" she sighed wistfully.

"Oh, it's not priceless," Armstrong smiled. "I like it though. It would be better in a gypsy setting. You see, the stone is rondette cut, that makes it a bit top-heavy, it's worked a little loose, you see, in these slight Tiffany prongs."

Ninon touched it again ever so lightly and agreed that it was loose.

"You must be careful. Eet ees a very grownup stone, eet has an histoire perhaps?" She leaned forward raptly, like a child looking at a beautiful picture and waiting to have a fairy tale woven around it.

Armstrong laughed, shrugged his shoulders inexpertly and replied. "Oh, they say it's a part of the Great Diamond Table that Tavenier saw in Golconda, in 1642. It's since disappeared, you know. Of course I don't really think this was cut down from the Table, but one can't help feeling that—Hello!"

He cut off short as the electric bulb in the bosom of the rose shade snapped out, leaving the room in utter darkness.

"Oh!" cried Ninon, catching at Armstrong's extended hand in alarm.

"It must have burnt out. I'll find the trouble!" Armstrong stood up, shoved the hand Ninon had touched in surprise into his trouser's pocket and brought out a match box. In an instant he had lighted a match and stepped to the rose silk shade.

On inspecting the little electric light bulb it was found to be loose, and on screwing it in tightly Armstrong completed the connection and the room was again warm and light in the rose flow.

As the light came on Ninon jerked a disarranged pillow into place, sank back against it in a flutter of excitement, and exhaled a relieved breath.

"You were saying—?" she began, as Armstrong dusted his fingers and sat down.

"Oh,—about the ring—" he smiled, extending his hand again.

Ninon looked at the ring and started back among the pillows, crying, "Mon Dieu!"

Armstrong stared at the ring and sat up stiff and immovable.

The splendid diamond was gone—the band was there on his finger, but the setting gaped empty.

Armstrong was the first to move. He swallowed hard and forced a smile. "It must have dropped off when I reached for my match-box!" Pushing back the chair he made a searching survey of the floor. It was highly polished hard wood, but no glitter of a diamond greeted his gaze.

"Lift zee rug, Monsieur!" cried Ninon, jumping to her feet.

He caught up the antique Oriental rug and shok it. Nothing but a hair pin dropped to the floor. He pushed back a lounge, dropped to his knees and looked under it. Ninon carefully shook out the pillows on the lounge and searched for the gem. There was no crack or crevice where it could have lodged.

"Maybe in your trousairs pocket eet dropped when you reach for zee match?" suggested Ninon, much excited and very sympathetic.

Armstrong examined all his pockets and shook out the wrinkles in his vest. No! It could not have caught in his clothes.

"Possibly in yours, Madamoiselle?" he suggested hesitantly.

"Non! Non!" she cried in alarm. "Impossible!" But she shook her skirt and the silken folds to her waist.

"Your hair?" Armstrong suggested between stumbling lips, fingering the hair pin he had picked up when he shook out the rug.

"How could eet jump into my hair," she said chidingly with an anxious laugh, shaking out a curl or two and feeling carefully all over, around and beneath her beautiful bronze coiffure.

After an hour's rigid search Armstrong was fully assured that the gem was not in the room.

"Your maid?" he finally made bold to suggest.

"Oh! Non! Impossible!" she cried petulantly. "She ees out zee whole afternoon. Monsieur is provoking!"

"I beg your pardon, I shouldn't have suggested it," Armstrong took up his hat to go. "I'm sorry to have caused you so much annoyance."

"Oh, eet ees nothing—and we shall search for eet always—"

"I hope you will come across it sooner than that," Armstrong tried to appear easy. "Of course it's not so much its intrinsic worth. My father wore it thirty years, you know. I would pay a handsome reward if —if your maid found it!"

"Oh, impossible!" she cried excitedly, her face flushed. "Eet shall be found, Monsieur. Eet must be found!"

As Armstrong glaced up at the rose-curtained window when he had reached the street he saw Ninon Nicolette, her forehead puckered with worried wrinkles, examining the window ledge, shaking the curtains, still searching for the stone.

He entered a comfortable apartment house and walked up one flight, stopping before a door which bore a card reading Christopher Poe. The same Christopher Poe who, in New York, was a banker of high social position with a fondness for tracking down criminals and solving private mysteries for his friends. In Paris, where he often took a month's rest, he was nothing but a private citizen with very keen eyes and a quick way of catching up people, who spoke carelessly.

Armstrong rang the bell. The door swung open at almost the same instant and a middle-height man with upstanding brown hair and short, thick eyebrows extended, in greeting, a long arm with slender figures. He fixed Armstrong with intense blue eyes and querried, "In love?"

"No. Another kind of trouble."

"Some woman, some worry about a woman, I'm sure," smiled Poe. "Not because we're in Paris, Armstrong, but you've screwed your lips down as though whatever happened you weren't going to mention the name of Ninon Nicolette."

"How did you know?" cried Armstrong, startled.

"Saw you send the flowers to her box at the Chatelet last week. Read in the paper you picked up the Persian Bronze Pearl at auction yesterday—didn't see what possible use you could make of that until I recalled the bronze tints in Ninon Nicolette's hair and—"

"I see!" broke in Armstrong. "I admit it, I am crazy about her and I don't care what warning friends have— Tell me!" he cried tensely. "There surely isn't anything about her—you never heard any—"

"Why, of course not. What could anyone say except that she is a charming actress sprung from the people?"

"That's just it. You don't suppose she could have any hereditary leaning toward—" he bit his lip and broke off again. "Well, you know, she seems so childishly fond of—oh, so many things."

"Come out from behind the bushes, you are talking as a veiled lady of the Orient looks," cried Poe.

"Oh, yes; I know it's all perfect rot. I don't know how the thought ever seeped into my fool head. There must have been a crack, a crevice somewhere—"

"In your head?" smiled Poe.

"Oh, no. In the floor—of course—it's absurd; it can't be that Ninon Nicolette is—"

"A kleptomaniac?" supplied Christopher Poe.

"Yes!" Armstrong had no more than sat down. He leaped to his feet and leaned over Poe who was seated looking deep into the inscrutable violet eyes of the banker-detective. His fingers twitched nervously. "Tell me, was there ever the slightest breath of it? Have you ever heard the faintest whisper of it?"

"Ninon a kleptomaniac? No!" cried Poe with a reassuring smile to the younger man.

"Thank goodness!" cried Armstrong. Then he asked sharply, "None of the family, either. You're sure?"

"Yes, I am sure. As her mother was twenty years in a convent and her father as many years in prison for debt I don't think either ever had a chance to develop any such—"

"Then why did you suggest just what I was thinking of?" Armstrong demanded suspiciously.

"My dear boy," said Poe, "sit down. Sit down and hold your hand calmly while you count twenty. You are even doubting my friendship. I told you it was a woman worrying you. Listen! You rush into my room like a madman and demand to know if I ever Jacques before the sink, where he had been cracking ice to serve the oysters on, for they had already arrived from the restaurateur, together with other things piled on the kitchen table, waiting for Jacques to arrange appetizingly for dinner.

Jacques had evidently stopped in the middle of his work to examine something in his hand. He stood with his back to the serving window through which Poe was gazing and slightly bent over the pan of cracked ice, twisting an object around and around in his fingers in slow scrutiny. Poe could not see what it was.

Jacques was so absorbed in the object that when Christopher Poe, having slipped back through the swinging door into the dining-room, and walked again into the butler's pantry with audible tread, started to push open the kitchen door. Jacques jumped like a scared rabbit and Poe noted through the little window in the pantry that the object dropped from the man's nerveless fingers.

As Poe stepped into the kitchen Jacques looked up from his industrious occupation of pretending to crack ice that was already cracked and cried, "Oh, Monsieur Poe! I had expected Monsieur Armstrong."

Poe's smile in reply put Jacques at his ease, and he was quite horrified when Poe explained briefly that Mr. Armstrong had lost his valuable diamond and would pay five thousand francs for its recovery. "As much as that!" he had exclaimed.

"I am helping Mr. Armstrong to recover the stone and I have come here this afternoon to see if it had not been dropped here or misplaced by mistake."

Jacques made a deprecating bow and turned partly away from Poe to scoop up some of the cracked ice in the pan and pile it high in the middle.

"I'm sorry, Jacques, but you must let the oysters and ice go awhile and help me to search Mr. Armstrong's room."

"He is to dine at six, Monsieur," cried Jacques. "I'm afraid—"

"I will assume the responsibility. I am dining with him. If we are a few minutes late it won't matter, the hot dishes will be sent in, you haven't much to prepare. Come, leave that ice," he said sharply as Jacques turned back to give the pile a pat and push the unopened oysters into a neat heap.

"Where is the suit Mr. Armstrong wore this morning?" asked Poe, after a casual examination and a glance at Jacques, who seemed trying to overcome a slight nervousness.

"Here, Monsieur," answered the valet, reaching quickly to the end of the line of trousers and pulling out a neat brown pair, taking down also the coat that matched. He spread them open on the bed.

"Why did you have that suit put behind the others if he wore it just this morning?" Poe asked idly.

"It—it is my custom," Jacques answered quickly.

"Good! That is all in here; you may put them back." He turned toward the door and waited while Jacques returned the clothes carefully to their place. "Now, if you don't mind, will you pull up the rugs in the living-room here and carefully search beneath all the chairs. I think I know where the diamond is," said Poe.

Jacques glanced up quickly, bowed, and said, "If Monsieur will permit it I will run to the kitchen a moment and open the oysters. Monsieur Armstrong will return in a minute."

"The diamond is more important," smiled Poe. "If you'll kindly lift those rugs, Jacques!"

The valet hesitated and then did Poe's bidding with astonishing alacrity. The banker detective seemed greatly perturbed when Jacques found nothing. "Search well," he commanded sharply, and Jacques perspired in his effort to please. But the diamond was not to be found.

"I say, you might try the moulding next," suggested Christopher Poe languidly, as Jacques finished. Poe had dropped into a comfortable chair and was reading a magazine leisurely.

"I beg Monsieur's pardon," said Jacques, bowing very low, "but could not this be done at another time? Monsieur Armstrong will be here so soon. He was very particular with his orders, Monsieur."

"I think you had better begin with the moulding in the dark corner there," said Poe, not removing his eyes from the page before him.

Jacques started for the kitchen door. "I will get the ladder from the kitchen," he explained.

Christopher Poe pushed a chair in front of him. "Use that," he said.

Jacques placed trembling fingers on the back of the chair and dragged it to the opposite corner of the room.

Poe dropped the magazine and got to his feet, "I suggested that you begin in the dark corner, Jacques," he reminded firmly.

While Jacques was standing on the chair, running his hand along the moulding in the place indicated Christopher Poe sauntered nonchalantly into the kitchen. He was gone but a minute when a bell sounded and Jacques dashed into the kitchen directly, crying, "Monsieur Armstrong! It is he! He is at the front door!"

"Well, what are you running back here for, Jacques? This isn't the front door. Go let him in. He gave me his key. I wouldn't keep him standing."

The bell sounded again. Jacques glanced from Poe to the dining room, swallowed hard, and suddenly cried out: "Oh! I have hurt my foot! Will Monsieur please answer the door?" He dropped to the floor and caught one of his pointed patent leathers in both hands, letting out a scream of agony.

"Get up!" commanded Poe, stepping over jerking the frightened fellow to his feet and pushing him through the butler's pantry. There he shook himself free of Jacques and told him to go to the door.

Jacques got command of himself and went. A minute later he ushered his master into the dining-room.

"Hello," cried Poe, standing with his back toward the entrance to the kitchen and shaking Armstrong's hand.

"What's the matter, Jacques?" asked Armstrong, as his man brushed lightly against his sleeve.

"May I pass, Monsieur, I am late with ze dinner."

"Poor Jacques!" laughed Poe. "I have kept him busy looking for your diamond. I must apologize for delaying dinner. Come! We will help Jacques prepare it!"

Christopher Poe pushed the door open and passed through to the kitchen, followed by Armstrong. Jacques peering anxiously ahead over his master's shoulder.

Poe stepped to a cabinet and took out two glasses. "A high ball before dinner," he cried, clinking the glasses together and standing comfortably against the kitchen sink. Armstrong gazed at his friend with an odd twist heard anything breathed against fair Ninon. I notice at once that the Great Diamond Table is missing from its prongs and that in your excitement you have failed to remove the empty band. There is a particle of towel-lint adhering to one of the prongs, which shows that you have gone home to wash and change your afternoon clothes. I imagine you did that so early in the day in an effort to refresh and compose yourself after some excitement, which must be that of losing your wonderful stone. Then you stammer strangely about fair Ninon and I immediately imagine she is the only one you can suspect. That is why I suggested kleptomaniac. Now tell me, why do you think for a minute that Ninon—"

"Oh, I don't!" Armstrong burst out. "Only—" he wavered for a moment and finally recounted the whole story to his friend.

Poe whistled his surprise at the end if it. "It's an interesting problem," he mused, running his long nervous fingers through his grayish hair and twisting his lips in a reflective pout. "A man runs into see a lady whom he admires. She is a prominent prima donna. She asks to see a famous diamond he is wearing. He remarks that the stone is loose. While she is looking at the stone, touching it even, the light above her mysteriously goes out. In the darkness, just before the man reaches into his trousers' pocket for a match he feels another hand touch his —of course that may or may not have been the lady's, but no one else was in the room or the apartment, the maid was out. When the light is turned on,

"Oh, Surely," He Smiled, Leaning Forward and Extending His Hand to Show Ninon the Striking Diamond Ring.

presto! the stone is gone! The floor is perfectly matched waxed hard wood. Everything is searched, the rugs, divan, corners, everything even the lady's dress and the gentleman's pockets. Interesting! Entertaining!" As he paused his forehead suddenly broke up into sharp wrinkles, his short eyebrows jerked down contemplatively. "Oh, I say, Armstrong, what clothes did Ninon have on?"

"Just a simple silk dress. Only a little trimming on the what you call it —the bodice, and there was no chance for the stone to have lodged there and escaped her search."

"And you had on?"

"Just a lounge suit, comfortably cut; she 'phoned me at the club that I might call if I came at once. I didn't have time to change."

"I see." Poe pushed back his chair, stepped to a corner of the room and turned on an electric light jutting from the wall. Pushing back two chairs he dragged up a lounge, threw a rug in front of it, dropped back among the pillows, and requested Armstrong to assume the position he had been in in relation to Ninon. Armstrong drew up a chair and leaned forward in it.

"Wait a minute! Pull down that blind!" requested Poe.

The blind was pulled down so far that no light came in from outside, the room being illuminated only by the electric globe.

"Now this is a good deal like the general situation at Ninon's?" asked Poe.

"Almost identical."

"Then show me your ring the way—"

Armstrong had leaned forward to simulate his former position when the electric light suddenly went out.

"What's the matter?" he cried, jumping up.

"Strike a match!" ordered Poe.

As Armstrong reached into his pocket for the match safe he always carried the electric light flashed back on and he blinked down at Poe who lay on the couch calmly surveying him. Poe smiled at the dumbfounded expression on Armstrong's face and asked abruptly:

"Was it raining this morning when you went to Ninon's?"

"Drizzling. Yes."

"You crossed several street corners?"

"I had some errands. I walked several blocks before getting into a cab." "In the rain?"

"Yes."

"Good!" cried Poe. He dropped his eyes and a quick smile flickered in his firm cheeks.

"How'd you work the light?"

For answer Poe pushed back a pillow he had been leaning against. It concealed an ordinary electric light switch.

"How absurd! Why didn't I think of it," Armstrong said limply, then started forward anxiously, crying. "Why, I noticed Ninon arranging a pillow just when—"

"You'd better go home now—and try not to worry about this thing," Poe cut him off short. "I think I'll get that diamond for you without much trouble. Wait! Go to your club instead. It is now four-thirty. I will dine with you this evening. What is your regular hour?"

"I'm eating early tonight. I told Jacques to have my dinner brought in at seven."

"Good! We will change that to six sharp. Call up Jacques. Tell him you eat at six and that you will be home on the minute, not before, and you will expect everything in the house to be ready—for two."

"I don't see what you're driving at, but you're so confoundedly clever! I hope it'll come to something; but what's your idea? What is all this about rain and crossing the street and everything?"

"Never mind now. Hurry and 'phone Jacques—and leave me the latch key to your rooms."

Armstrong separated the key from his bunch and handed it to Poe with questioning eyes.

"I'll explain at dinner. Good-bye for now," said Poe quickly.

As soon as Armstrong had gone the banker detective dropped into a large lounge chair and twisted his lips thoughtfully. He remained thus for half an hour. At length he jumped up, glanced at his watch and stood summing up his conclusions in raped, apparently disconnected words: "Careless—habit—London fashion—brush—drop—all tricky—big prize—reward—ah! that's it,—confederates — easy—no time—"

He put on an ulster and walked rapidly to Armstrong's rooms, just off Champs Elysees.

It was exactly five-thirty as Poe slipped the borrowed latch key silently into the lock, opened the door, and stepped noiselessly into Armstrong's hall.

From that he glided with the stealth of a cat to the living room, on into the dining-room and carefully, through a swinging door, into the butler's pantry. Standing close against the door he could see through the small serving window into the kitchen. There stood to his smile; as Jacques touched Poe's sleeve reverently and asked, "Monsieur, may I come to the sink and open the oysters."

"In a second Jacques. Get the whiskey bottle from the dining-room, hurry!" he added as Jacques paused, "dinner is late enough."

While Jacques was gone Poe stepped to the ice-box and took out a seltzer bottle.

"Have you any clue?" asked Armstrong, anxiously. "What's the matter with Jacques? Have you discovered anything?"

There wasn't time for an answer, as the valet returned with the whiskey decanter at that moment. Poe had resumed his position against the sink; he took the flask and poured a little of the liquor into each glass, reached for the seltzer bottle and asked, "Have you some cracked ice, Jacques?"

"I will get some," answered the servant, his lips tightly compressed and very white as he rushed to the ice-box and tore open the door.

"Oh, never mind!" cried Poe, turning quickly to the pan of cracked ice behind him and scooped a little from the middle of the pan into each glass.

He squirted in the seltzer and handed one of the high balls to Armstrong.

"Well, here's hoping you find the diamond!" He paused and glanced toward Jacques, standing in the middle of the room, a cake of ice in his hands, his mouth and eyes fixed open. "But come!" cried Poe, "We'll drink it in the other room."

He led the way to the dining-room and they sat down together at the table sipping their drinks. Armstrong asked again in a low voice if Poe had any clue."

"I've a number of them," answered Poe, leaning close over the table and stirring his high ball briskly. "So many things might have happened. Of course, Ninon had nothing to do with it, but there are many ways in which the diamond might have been lost without any one ever finding it."

"How? What ways?"

"Well, for one," Poe shrugged his shoulders. "Ninon might have had a glass of water standing on a table nearby. Are you sure there wasn't one?"

"Why, no, how absurd! What could a glass of water have to do with a disappearing diamond?"

"A great deal." Poe paused as Jacques sidled into the dining-room to lay the cloth. As Poe looked at him the valet started abruptly for the kitchen door as though he had forgotten something. "Jacques!" called Poe, and the servant returned. "Did you ever hear that if a diamond were dropped into a glass of water it could not be seen? You have heard, I presume, that they sometimes test diamonds in that manner, to see if they are a 'first water,' as they say. A good diamond can not be seen in a glass of water, it is invisible because the water blocks the rays of light that would otherwise make the stone sparkle. You have heard of that, I presume, Jacques?"

Armstrong was leaning across the table, his high ball finished, trying to catch the drift of Poe's meaning.

"Oh, doubtless, sir, I must have heard of it," answered Jacques through dry lips.

"It's a simple fact," Poe went on. "Now, with ice, the same way. This is transparent, too. If I were to throw a diamond into a heap of cracked ice you'd never notice it, if it were about the same size as the pieces of ice." Poe stopped and drew Armstrong's glass across the table to him, the ice in it had almost melted, all but one small piece in the bottom. "For instance," he continued, "if this bit of ice remaining in this high ball were a real diamond you wouldn't notice any difference."

All eyes were glued on the glass as Poe lifted it and poured into Armstrong's saucer the few drops of liquid that still remained in the bottom. He turned the glass upside down on the cloth before Armstrong, continuing, "Now, immersed in the liquid that piece of ice might have been a diamond for all we could tell by eyesight, but draw off the liquid and throw the ice on the cloth before you and that removes all doubt of what it really is."

He tipped the glass over and there on the white cloth lay the Great Diamond Table, scintillating, flashing back fire from a lighted candelabrum nearby.

Jacques turned white, leaped forward for the carving knife on the sideboard with a wild cry, grasped it and lunged at Poe, shrieking. "Demon! Sorcier!"

Christopher Poe kicked back his chair and caught the rush with a straight arm blow which toppled Jacques over backward, the knife hurtling harmlessly out of reach.

Armstrong clutched Poe's arm and glared fixedly at him. He reached out and touched the diamond once to make sure that it was real, then cried harshly:

"Explain."

"We must attend to poor Jaques first," smiled Poe. "It was so sudden for the poor chap."

But Armstrong was impatient of delay. "Damn Jacques!" he cried, forcing Poe to tell the story in snatches as he tried to revive the valet by dashing cold water in his face and rubbing his limbs briskly.

"It was so simple," said Poe. "It rained all morning. You had crossed muddy street corners. Americans always turn up the bottoms of their trousers, London fashion, when walking in such weather. You are careless. I figured you would forget to turn the bottoms of your trousers down when you went to see Ninon. Your call there was so unexpected and you were flushed. There was no other place for the diamond to drop. You had searched everywhere and I knew Ninon was absolutely above suspicion. I tested my theory by reproducing the scene. When you reached for your match box your ring caught on the edge of your pocket. I could see that a loose, topheavy stone would be jerked out in your surprised motion. If the stone were pulled out that way it would naturally slip straight down your trouser-leg and lodge in the crevice formed where your trousers were turned up. It was the logical thing. Here, give me a hand with this fellow, he's coming-to."

Together they lifted Jacques to a couch and Poe sat fanning him as he continued:

"I realized that when the trousers were hung up by the bottoms and brushed by Jacques that the stone would slip out if it had lodged there. As many French servants are tricky, and as you have told me of catching Jacques in petty dishonesties, I suspected him immediately. It occurred to me at once that the diamond might have dropped out of the trousers when he was hanging them up this afternoon.

"Yes! go on," cried Armstrong. "This afternoon, here, what have you been doing? How did you get hold of the diamond?"

"I had you call up Jacques and tell him to prepare dinner an hour earlier, so he would have no time in which to leave the rooms and pass the stone to some crooked friend or confederate. Then I slipped in and surprised him standing abstratedly by the kitchen sink.

"He was looking at the diamond. I guessed that in a minute, for though his back was turned to me, I saw that he was twisting the object in his hand around and around, to catch the light from the window on the 128 facets, of course. Then I walked in loudly to make my presence known and see what he would do. In his surprise at being caught red handed he had presence of mind enough to drop the stone into the cracked ice before him, where it would be safely hidden among the other sparkling crystals. I saw him make a quick movement as I stepped in, and easily guessed that was it.

"I see, I see," Armstrong nodded his head appreciately. "It was mighty shrewd of you. I never had such a shock in my life as I did when I saw that stone come to life again like that. I was sure it was a piece of ice." He paused and then continued dejectedly; "I've made a fool of myself. To think that I doubted Ninon for an instant. But I haven't known her so very long, and she's so childishly interested in gems, you know, and it did disappear so utterly—off the face of the earth, it seemed. But I didn't really think for a second that the—only—"

"Cheer up! You have your diamond back and you've found that your servant is what you imagined him all along. The only way I can see for you to square yourself with yourself is to have the Great Diamond Table sunk in a solid gold setting and ask Ninon Nicolette's permission to place it on the third finger of her little left hand."

"I guess you're right," Armstrong grinned sheepishly. "I always did say that stone should be in a gypsy setting."

"And I'm sure I don't know a more fascinating gypsy than Ninon Nicolette, though you don't deserve her," observed Christopher Poe.

AT THE ROYAL.

If you like a high grade picture, that tells a gripping story of the trials and temptations which surround a rich young wife, don't fail to see Pearl White in "Any Wife" at the Royal to-night. The wife of a prosperous New York architect, sated by endless luxury, plays with fire for diversion. She enters into a flirtation with a young employee of her husband. The husband is summoned by wire, and having to leave in a few hours for the coast asks his wife to bring their child and accompany him. She hesitates as she thinks the matter over later on. Next day, her husband having gone alone, her young admirer calls. A close intimacy springs up. The husband returns, unexpectedly to find her in the young fellow's arms. A divorce. She marries the young fellow who uses her beauty as a bait to further his own personal deals. Her second husband gets snared by an actress and leaves the wife. The later learns that her child is ill and is debarred from seeing her little one. She walks out on a high level bridge to commit suicide, and just as she climbs over the rail to jump, she wakes up and finds there are still 45 minutes in which to pack up for the trip with her husband. The second love affair and its concomitants were only a dream. The dream, however, woke her consciousness and demonstrated what might have been. The big feature picture, What Love Will Do, is a highly emotional drama of real life. Larry Semon in his two reel comedy, The Rent Collector, presents a play that would make the Egyptian Sphinx roar with laughter and yell "Cheero!"

AT THE GRAND.

Rube Goldberg's irresistible cartoon creation, "Boob McNutt," will be seen in real life at the Grand next Thursday, Feb. 2nd. "Boob" has been such a sensational success on the comic pages of the daily newspapers that Mr. Goldberg was advised to transplant this famous character from the comic sheet of the newspapers to the stage. He has surrounded our own Danny Simons as "Boob" with a splendid cast of comedians, singers and dancers, supplemented by a winsome chorus of young misses who are described by the management as "The Perfect 36 Girls." The totally entertaining book and lyrics are by John Mulgrew, remembered for his many successes, and the music is by Charles Smith, who is well known in musical comedy circles. Pretty girls, catchy melodies, stunning costumes, novel surprises and smart ensembles are among the many features of the performance.

"MADEMOISELLE OF ARMENTIERES."

Undoubtedly the greatest comedy of Canadian life in the great war, and something entirely different from the soldier shows we have been seeing, is the four act war play, "Mademoiselle of Armentieres," which comes to the Grand Opera House next Saturday, Feb. 4, for two performances, matinee and evening.

Many plays and sketches have been written on the great war, but "Mademoiselle of Armentieres" is the first real comedy depicting the life of the Canadians over there. The play was writen by four soldier students of the University of Toronto, who took it on a tour through Ontario in the spring of 1920, at that time and ever since the company met with the greatest of success everywhere they appeared.

The production is now under the management and direction of Capt. Fred M. Fisher, who has with him a splendid cast of soldier actors, every one of whom served in France with the C.E.F. The play is presented in four acts and six scenes, with all the old popular song hits of the great war. Every scene is true to life with exact reproductions of some of the trenches and billets where the Canadians had spent so many months.

The synopsis of the play runs as follows:

Act. 1. Scene 1. A Billet in Bully Grenay.

Act. 1. Scene 2. Same, five days later.

Act 2. Scene 1. Troops Dug-Out, next day.

Act. 2. Scene 2. "D" Company Headquarters, same day.

Act 3. Chicory Trench, Front Line, same night.

Act. 4. Same as Act One, three weeks later.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the Capitol Offers the Newest Paramount Production, "Don't Tell Everything," with Wallace Reid, Gloria Swanson and Elliott Dexter as the Trio of Stars. The Rollins Trio, a Big 3-People Vaudeville Act

It's not very often that any film producing company puts three well-known stars in one picture. But such a picture appears at the Capitol the first three days of next week, when Wallace Reid, Elliott Dexter and Gloria Swanson will be seen in Paramount's newest production, "Don't Tell Everything."

It's the story of the eternal triangle, and makes a story somewhat different from anything seen in some time. The balance of the show will include, besides this big feature, a splendid program including many good short-reel comedies, serials, news weeklies, and an entirely out-of-the-ordinary vaudeville act, the famous Rollins Tiro, three people who present an act filled with good harmony singing and selections on musical instruments. This act has just closed a long tour over the Pantages' circuit and should please the particular patronage extended to the Capitol.

Manager Abbey's new idea of offering 350 leather-covered balcony seats at only 16 cents has worked out entirely satisfactory to the management and will be continued for the present. The usual daily matinee will be given every day and the vaudeville acts will be discontinued after next Saturday night, February 4, and a program of only the biggest Paramount special productions will be offered to the public at just the usual prices.

"To Please One Woman" is a good picture. It's life—not only as it is led in the seaside village of Seagirt, which is the locale of the story—but as one meets it in New York or Napa. The central characters, as noted before, are a selfish woman and a gullible man. In love with the latter is a nice girl. She sees her romance shattered by her sweetheart's infatuation for his flashy

FAN FAN.

AT THE REGENT.

When Adam yielded to Eve and ate the fatal apple, he didn't know he was furnishing the theme for the feature picture at the Regent Theatre on Monday. But it's the truth.

Not that Lois Weber's latest picture, "To Please One Woman," has pre-historic settings or is one second later than up-to-the-minute. But the habit Adam started of doing foolish things to please the ladies persists to-day, and Miss Weber has graphically portrayed just what happens when an unsophisticated young man tries to satisfy the whims of a pretty and selfish woman with a tendency to "vamp" all and sundry.

But returned soldiers of the Canadian or British Expeditionary Forces who have been discharged as physically fit and therefore are not entitled to such assistance, receive special consideration. Relief to these will be paid for to the extent of one-half the money expended in their relief, the remaining one-half to be divided equally between municipality and Province. This measure is taken because Premier King and his Ministers feel that the whole Canadian people should, out of gratitude for the overseas services of these men, be willing to contribute in greater ratio for their relief than for others. The emergency measures here indicated do not include the ordinary measures taken by municipalities for the maintenance of poorhouses and the indigent poor.

THUGS WAGE BIG BATTLE FOR $21,000

One Assailant Grabs Money and Escapes in Automobile--Detective's Pistol Jams—Messenger Drops Money.

GUARD BADLY WOUNDED

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—A band of robbers held up a bank messenger and a detective a few blocks from Police Headquarters in West Hoboken, N. J., Saturday, shot the detective three times, frightened the messenger so that he dropped a bag containing $21,000 and escaped with the money in an automobile. They are still at liberty.

Lieutenant Charles Harms of the West Hoboken Police, the detective who was shot, was in a critical condition in the North Hudson Hospital last night. He was wounded under the heart, in the right side, and in the right elbow.

The robbery was committed about 1.30 o'clock, just at the beginning of the snowstorm. About fifteen minutes before Lieutenant Harms left the First National Bank of North Hudson, 141 Summit Avenue, West Hoboken, in company with Secundo Gallo, 21 years old, the bank messenger. They were taking the money bag to the West Hoboken Post Office, 402 Clinton Avenue, whence it was to be sent by registered mail to the Federal Reserve Bank in Manhattan.

Detective Warns Messenger.

Harms carried a .38-calibre Colt revolver. Gallo was unarmed. They took a Summit car to Highpoint and Clinton Avenues, a 12-minute ride. Getting off there, they walked along the east sidewalk of Clinton Avenue toward the Post Office, which is near Stephens Street, two blocks from where they left the trolley. The policeman walked at the outside. Gallo carried the money bag, which was wrapped in a newspaper.

As they near Monastery Street three young men came toward them. The strangers were neatly dressed, but something in their manner aroused the detective's suspicions.

"Look out for these guys," Harms told the messenger. "If anything happens, run for the Post Office."

Saying this the detective slipped off his right glove to be ready to draw his pistol. He had no more than done so than two of the men, as quick as a flash, took pistols from their overcoat pockets, and began to shoot.

The first bullet from the gunmen struck the detective's right elbow as he was reaching for his weapon. Despite the pain, he drew out the pistol and gave battle to the robbers. He fired twice and then his pistol jammed.

Harms Wounded, Presses Attack.

Then with a useless pistol, his right arm numb, and two bullets in his body, Harms kept his feet and pressed on. He backed the robbers towards the post office with the threat of his jammed pistol. They had got as far as Monastery Street before the assailants finally realised that Harms was virtually out of combat.

The detective's bluff enabled Gallo to dash past the robbers. He ran across Monastery Street toward the Post Office. Two of the gunmen ran after him, leaving him to "cover" the detective. Bullets flew all around the fleeing messenger. He was unhurt, but badly frightened. With luck he might have made the Post Office safely and delivered the money. It was les sthan a block away. But when he crossed Monastery Street he saw a jitney bus at the curb, a few feet from his right, and he dropped the money bag beside it.

The proximity of the jitney driver and his passengers did not deter the robbers. One of them picked up the bag. Then the three ran into Monastery Street, where an automobile with a driver at the wheel was awaiting them.

The car sped east to Palisades Avenue, where a fifth man, evidently a lookout posted to keep clear an avenue of escape, hopped aboard.

Lieutenant Harms staggered to the house of Dr. John J. O'Connor, town physician of the West Hoboken, at 434 Clinton Avenue. "They got me and got away with the money," he gasped. "Call up headquarters."

Then he collapsed.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR AMONG THE LAWYERS

Peterborough Bar Association Held Annual Meeting--The Report for the Past Year.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Law Association was held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms when the following report was made for the year:—

In February of this year one of the members of the Association Mr. G. N. Gordon in a by-election which will probably become famous in the political history of Canada, was elected Liberal member for the constituency of West Peterborough. At the general election following held in the month of December Mr. Gordon was again returned to Parliament by a large majority.

During the year Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C., resigned from the position of Police Magistrate for the City of Peterborough after thirty-nine years service. Mr. Dumble came to Peterboro in 1863 and soon became a prominent member of the Bar here. On November 20th, 1882 he was appointed Police Magistrate of both the City and County of Peterborough his Commission bearing the name of the late John Beverly Robinson, who was then Lt.-Governor of Ontario. In 1902 Mr. Dumble was made a King's Counsel. Apart from his activities in legal circles covering a period of fifty-nine year and his work on the Bench Mr. Dumble has been a prominent and well-known figure in the public life of the City. He served one year on the Council and twenty-five years on the Board of Education. Mr. Dumble has always been held in most high esteem by the members of the Bar, because of his high integrity, legal attainments and sound common sense and the very greatest regret was experienced when he found it necessary to resign from the position, which he occupied with such distinction for so many years. His place has been taken by Mr. O. A. Langley who for several years has been serving acceptably as County Magistrate and who now combines the duties of both City and County Magistrate. Mr. Langley commences his duties with the best wishes of every member of the Bar, by whom he is held in the greatest respect.

Four members of the Association were created King's Counsel during the year, namely G.W. Hatton, R. R.Hall, F. D. Kerr and G. N. Gordon. The same distinction was also bestowed upon D. O'Connell, formerly a member of the Association.

We regret to note the death in mid summer of former Judge G. N. Roger of Cobourg, who for many years was a member of this Association.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

OSZIAS DE LAPLANTE
President
JOSEPH WEARING
Secretary.

The following officers were elected for the year 1922:

President—S. T. Medd; Vice-President, G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., Secretary, J. R. Corkery; Treasurer, Wilfred Huycke; Trustees, V. J. McElderry, B. D. Hall, C. R. Widdifield; Librarian, Mabel Moore.

MONEY SAVED ON FILTRATION PLANT BY WATERWORKS DEPT.

Secured Part of Contract Themselves With Profit to the Utilities Commission — Sum of $219,939 Paid Up to End of 1921 on the Work.

R. L. Dobbin's Report.

That a gratifying economy was effected by the Waterworks Department in their execution of part of the filtration plant contract is one of the agreeable facts mentioned by the superintendent, Mr. Ross L. Dobbin, in his annual report to the Utilities Commission. He shows that the laying of the connecting pipe lines at the plant was done by the Department for $18,263.13 lower than the nearest unconditional bidder, and nearly $8,000 less than the Department's own tender.

This section of the report follows:

The citizens on Jan. 1st, 1921, having expressed a favorable opinion regarding the building of a filtration plant, the Commission about the middle of April let contracts for its construction as follows:

Filter plant proper, W. H. Yates Company	$198,387.00
Reservoir, Ramsey & Wilde	65,800.00
Low lift pumps, Escher Wyss & Co.	9,500.00
Connecting pipe lines—Waterworks Department	31,126.00
Total	$304,813.00

The total amount paid out up to Dec. 30th, was $219,936.61, and the contracts are practically all completed with the exception of some machinery for the Filter Plant, which was delayed in shipment.

Expectations are that the plant will be filtering water about February 1st.

Your Waterworks Department made tender in the regular form for the connecting pipe lines, and were awarded the contract at $31,126.00.

The work was done for $23,736.87, which was $18,263.13 lower than the nearest unconditional bidder.

The Filtration Plant when completed will be one of the best of its kind on the continent and will be a great asset to the city.

The General Report.

The report of the general activities of the Waterworks Department in 1921 continues:

The decline in the cost of construction, together with the increase

More Help For The Unemployed

Meeting Held in the City on Saturday Afternoon --Larger Allotment.

Saturday afternoon, a conference was held by Hugh Robertson, Government Employment Officer, Sydney Whatley, Secretary G.W.V.A. G. N. Gordon, M.P., and Thomas Tooms, M.P.P., regarding the arrangements for funds to take care of unemployment. Both Mr. Gordon and Mr. Tooms have been active in negotiating with the Government each is a supporter to get the funds under way and ready for allotment. It is expected this week that the new order in council which was passed by the Dominion Government will be distributed. This provides for an increased allowance of fifty per cent. to be paid by the Dominion Government to the Municipality in case of returned men's unemployment.

PRODIGAL SON DID NOT RETURN

Bernard Dupras Spent His Mother's Cheque on Riotous Living Along Peterboro's Great White Way

Bernard Dupras, of Cornwall, was sentenced to three months in the County Jail by Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning on a forgery charge. Dupras pleaded guilty to forging a cheque on the Union Bank, payable to Albert Crane, signed by J. C. Campbell, dated Jan. 21, 1921. The cheque was made out for $9.50, and Dupras attempted to cash it at the Class Cafe, Simcoe Street, a week ago to-day, after spending money sent by his mother to bring him home.

The five dollars from home, Dupras expended in cafe meals and chocolates, after being released from jail on Saturday.

Magistrate Langley told him to-day he should have bought a railway ticket home with the money. When he became stranded he attempted to obtain money on the forged cheque.

"This forgery has got to be stopped. The merchants and business people of this country have to be protected. I had intended sending you to the Ontario Reformatory for six months, but after considering your respectable family, and this is the first time you say you have been in trouble, I've decided to sentence you to three months in the County Jail. I'm letting you off lightly for forgery is a serious offence." Magistrate O. A. Langley told the prisoner.

NEED CHILDREN'S CLOTHING

The Big Sisterhood wish to enlist the aid of the charitable-minded public in their request for children's clothing, either new or old, or of materials that may be used in making up clothing for children. They have just finished making up about 350 yards of flannelette and 100 yards of flannel into garments for juniors, but the demand is constantly exceeding the supply on hand.

Any donations of this sort could be left at their receiving room, over the Peterborough Creamery, on Aylmer Street.

Diets to Your Order-- It's Latest in Gotham

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. — Happy news for those on a diet who dread the awful stare of that greatest of personages, the hotel waiter, when his shocked ears finally apprise him of the terrible disclosure that you wish a lonely poached egg maroonned on a bit of spinach instead of a soup-to-nuts dinner.

The Waldorf announces a series of seven diets, all listed on a specially compiled menu card, so that hereafter you will not, with your face burning with shame, be forced to repeat to tell the scornful waiter, and incidentally the listening world, that you have diabetes.

All you will need to do is glance at the menu card, ascertain the number of the diet listed for your particular ailment and order it by number.

Besides diets for persons suffering from various ailments there are also diets for those who are reducing and those who are trying to gain weight.

GOVERNMENT ENCOUNTERS OPPOSITION

Outlines Basis on Which it is Willing to Terminate the Egyptian Protectorate--Proposals Condemned.

BRIEFS FROM WIRES

LONDON, Jan. 30.— (Canadian Press.) — Government's statement outlining the basis on which it would be willing to terminate the Egyptian protectorate and recognize Egypt as a sovereign state seemingly has done nothing to remove the opposition in quarters where its past proposals have been condemned. In these circles the statement is made that the new offer differs nowise in substance from the previous ones.

CAUSE OF DELAY.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—Delay in announcing the death of Sir Ernest Shackleton, British explorer, was ascribed by Capt. L. Hussey, who has arrived at Montevideo with the body, as due to a series of wireless mishaps.

THE IRISH SITUATION.

DUBLIN, Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press.)— Withdrawal of British troops from Ireland is proceeding more speedily than was anticipated, giving plain proof of the adherence of the British government to the terms of the treaty setting up the Irish Free State. It is noted that evacuation has occurred everywhere without manifestation whatever from the people. There has been no sign of popular rejoicing or regret.

Transition from one government to another has been rapid, but as was to be expected, criminals have done their best to take advantage of any confusion arising from the change. There have been daring robberies and hold-ups throughout the country, but the new government is dealing vigorously with the criminal element.

WORKERS RIOT.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press.)— Four thousand workers in Standard Jute Mills at Titteghur, in the environs of Calcutta, engaged in a riot Thursday and were only quelled by police after numerous casualties had been inflicted.

THE RESCUE WORK.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—Commandant of Federal troops taking part in rescue work at the Knickerbocker Theatre states that it might be another day before it could be definitely said there were no more dead or injured in the wreckage.
